TITLE 1—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Chapter I—Administrative Committee of the Federal Register

PART 1—FEDERAL REGISTER

ELIMINATION OF REQUIREMENT FOR LEGAL SIZE PAPER

In order to eliminate the requirement that documents submitted to the Federal Register Division be prepared on legal size paper, Title 1, Part 1, Code of Federal Regulations is amended as follows, effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

1. In § 1.63, the figure "12½" is changed to read "10½."

2. The second sentence of § 1.81 (a) is amended by inserting the word "substantially" between the words "not" and "greater," and by changing the figure "12½" to read "10½."

3. In § 1.81 (b) the words "legal size" are deleted.

As amended, §§ 1.63 and 1.81 read as follows:

§ 1.63 Typewritten originals. All documents shall be typewritten on white bond paper approximately 8 by 10½ inches, shall have a left-hand margin of approximately 1½ inches, and a right-hand margin of approximately 1 inch, and shall be double-spaced.

§ 1.81 Illustrations and tabular material. Whenever possible documents should be so drafted as to make the inclusion of illustrations and tabular material unnecessary. If their inclusion cannot be avoided the following provisions shall apply:

(a) Illustrations. The original drawings of all maps, charts, graphs, or other illustrations shall be submitted to the Division at least six working days before the date on which publication is desired. A legible reproduction of the original drawing, reduced to a size not substantially greater than 8 by 10½ inches, shall appear as part of the original document and the three certified copies.

(b) Tabular material. Tabular material comprising more than two typewritten pages must be forwarded to the Division at least six working days before the date on which publication is desired.

The requirements of § 1.91 respecting the form of Executive Orders and Proclamations are not affected by the foregoing amendments.

(Sec. 6, 49 Stat. 501, as amended; 44 U. S. C. 306. E. O. 10530, 19 F. R. 2709; 3 CFR, 1954 Supp.)

AUTHORITY: §§ 502.200 to 502.217 issued under sec. 4, 62 Stat. 1070, 15 U. S. C. 714b. Interpret or apply sec. 201, 63 Stat. 1052, as amended, 70 Stat. 87; 7 U. S. C. 1446.

§ 502.200 General purpose and scope. This part announces the policies and prescribes the general regulations with respect to the operation of the Special Milk Program under section 201 (c) of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, and sets forth the general requirements for participation in the program beginning July 1, 1956. The pertinent part of section 201 (c), as amended, reads as follows:

• • • for each of the two fiscal years in the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending June 30, 1958, not to exceed $75,000,000, of the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation shall be used to increase the consumption of fluid milk by children in (1) nonprofit schools of high-school grade and under; and (2) such nonprofit nursery schools, child-care centers, settlement houses, summer camps, and similar nonprofit institutions as are devoted to the care and training of underprivileged children on a public welfare or charitable basis.

§ 502.201 Administration. (a) Within the United States Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural Marketing Service (hereinafter referred to as AMS) shall act for and on behalf of the Commodity Credit Corporation (hereinafter referred to as CCC) in connection with the operation of this program. Within AMS, and under the general supervision of the Administrator of AMS, the Food Distribution Division (hereinafter referred to as FDD–AMS) shall be responsible for program administration.

(b) To the extent practicable and permissible under State law, responsibility for the administration of this program in schools and child-care institutions within the States shall be in the respective educational agency of the State: Provided, however, That another agency of the State, upon request by an appropriate State official, may be approved by FDD–AMS to administer the program in child-care institutions.

(c) FDD–AMS shall administer the program in any class of schools (hereinafter referred to as private schools) and in child-care institutions in which the program is not administered by the State.

§ 502.202 Advance of funds to State agencies. (a) For each Federal fiscal year FDD–AMS shall initially reserve for advance to a State educational agency entering into agreement with CCC an amount equal to 115 percent of the expenditures of that agency under the program in the Federal fiscal year ending June 30, 1956. Expenditures in that year shall be determined by FDD–AMS on the basis of the latest information available to FDD–AMS at the time the initial annual reserves for each State are developed.

(b) This initial reserve shall be advanced to the State educational agency on a quarterly basis. FDD–AMS reserves the right to request any State educational agency to justify its need for any scheduled quarterly payment prior to its advancement. In the event that a State educational agency does not justify the need for the full amount of any scheduled quarterly payment, FDD–AMS shall withhold from such payment the amount determined to be in excess of program needs.

(c) In the event that a State educational agency justifies the need for funds in excess of the amount of its initial reserve, additional funds shall be made available, at such times as needed, up to an amount that will provide a total payment for the year equal to 130 percent of its expenditures in the Federal fiscal year ending June 30, 1956. Any needed funds in excess of 130 percent of its expenditures in that Federal fiscal year, when justified, will be provided to the extent funds are available for such purpose.

(d) For each Federal fiscal year FDD–AMS shall initially reserve for advance to a State agency, other than the State educational agency, entering into an agreement with CCC an amount equal to one hundred dollars for each one thousand children between the ages of 5 and 17 years residing in the State. This initial reserve shall be advanced quarterly to such State agency in an amount estimated to meet anticipated quarterly reimbursement obligations. In the event that such State agency justifies the need for funds in excess of its initial annual reserve, such funds will be provided to the extent funds are available for such purpose.

(e) Following the close of the Federal fiscal year, any funds advanced under this program to an educational or other agency of a State that remain unobligated under the program shall be returned to AMS within 30 days after a demand is made by FDD–AMS. The State shall also pay to AMS any interest paid or credited to it by reason of the deposit of any funds advanced to it under this program.

§ 502.203 Accounting for program funds by State agencies. Each State agency entering into an agreement with CCC shall maintain a separate account of all Federal funds advanced to it under the program and shall maintain a current record of payments made to schools and child-care institutions and of the unexpended balance remaining on hand. All payments made from such funds shall be made only upon properly certified vouchers.

§ 502.204 Use of funds. Funds made available under this program shall be used to encourage the increased consumption of milk through reimbursement payments to schools and child-care institutions in connection with the purchase of milk for service to children.

§ 502.205 Agreements between CCC and State agencies. CCC shall enter into written agreements with State agencies for the administration of the program within the States. The agreement shall show the class or classes of schools and child-care institutions for which the State agency is assuming responsibility.

§ 502.206 Agreements between State agencies and schools and child-care institutions. State agencies shall enter into written agreements with schools and child-care institutions setting forth the terms and conditions under which the State agencies will reimburse the schools and child-care institutions in connection with the purchase of milk for service to children. Such agreements shall contain, as a minimum, the requirements of § 502.209.

§ 502.207 Agreements between CCC and private schools and child-care institutions. In those States in which FDD-AMS will administer the program in private schools and child-care institutions, CCC shall enter into written agreements with such private schools and child-care institutions setting forth the terms and conditions under which AMS will reimburse the schools and child-care institutions in connection with the purchase of milk for service to children.

§ 502.208 Reimbursement. (a) Reimbursement payments shall be made for milk purchased for service to children by participating schools and child-care institutions, except that reimbursement shall not be made for the first half pint of milk served as part of a Type A or Type B lunch by schools participating in the National School Lunch Program. The maximum rate of reimbursement shall be 4 cents per half pint for schools serving Type A or Type B meals under the National School Lunch Program. For all other schools and for child-care institutions, the maximum reimbursement rate shall be 3 cents per half pint.

(b) Less-than-maximum rates of reimbursement shall be assigned, or assigned rates shall be adjusted, if circumstances indicate such action is advisable.

(c) In child-care institutions; and in schools operating a food service outside the National School Lunch Program or serving more than one meal a day, a portion of the milk served to children may be excluded from reimbursement if such action is deemed advisable in order to encourage the continued expansion of the service of complete school lunches or to accomplish the objectives of this program.

(d) Schools operating the program in more than one school attendance unit may be regarded as a single school or as individual schools for reimbursement purposes. If regarded as a single school, reimbursement shall not be made at a rate in excess of 3 cents per half pint unless all units are serving Type A or Type B meals under the National School Lunch Program.

(e) Schools and child-care institutions offering milk as a separately priced item shall make maximum use of the reimbursement payments received under this program to reduce the price of milk to children. The full amount of such payments shall be reflected in reduced prices to children, except that such payments may be used by schools or child-care institutions to defray distribution costs. Distribution costs shall not exceed one cent per half pint. Exceptions to this provision may be granted in instances where the situation in a school or child-care institution justifies a distribution cost margin fractionally above one cent, and such exceptions shall be subject to periodic reviews.

(f) A school or child-care center which does not offer milk to children as a separately priced item shall, at the time it applies for participation, submit for approval the methods and practices under which it plans to encourage increased consumption of milk by children. Assigned rates of reimbursement shall be subject to adjustment if there is a substantial variation between actual and planned performance with respect to increased milk consumption by children.

§ 502.209 Requirements for participation. (a) Schools and child-care institutions shall make written application for participation to the State agency, except that in those States in which FDD–AMS administers the program in private schools or child-care institutions, application shall be made to FDD–AMS. In approving the application, the State agency or FDD–AMS shall determine that the applicant is a school or child-care institution as defined in § 502.215 and shall designate the effective date on which the school or child-care institution may begin operations. Schools and child-care institutions whose applications are approved shall execute agreements with the State agency or CCC.

(b) Schools and child-care institutions participating in the program shall meet the following minimum requirements, which requirements shall be included in the agreements entered into between the schools and child-care institutions and State agencies and between the private schools and child-care institutions and CCC:

(1) Conduct a nonprofit food service or, in the event no other food service is maintained, conduct a nonprofit milk service;

(2) Claim reimbursement only for milk as defined in this part and in accordance with the provision of § 502.208;

(3) Submit claims for reimbursement in accordance with procedural requirements established by FDD-AMS; and

(4) Maintain such records and furnish such reports and documents as are prescribed by the State agency or by FDD-AMS. All invoices, receipts and records pertaining to the program shall be maintained for a period of three years after the end of each Federal fiscal year's operations. Records shall be made available for audit purposes to the State agency and AMS, or to AMS in the case of a private school or child-care institution which contracts directly with CCC.

§ 502.210 Effective dates for reimbursement. A State agency or AMS may grant written approval to begin operations under this program prior to the processing of the application from a school or child-care institution. Such approval shall be attached to the subsequently filed application and the agreement executed by the school or child-care institution. Reimbursement shall be made for any milk served in accordance with the requirements of this part from the date upon which the school or child-care institution was authorized to begin operations: Provided, however, That no reimbursement shall be made for milk that was served more than 30 days prior to the receipt of the application by the State agency or AMS: Provided, further, That in no event shall reimbursement be made by any State agency for milk served prior to the effective date of the State agency's agreement with CCC.

§ 502.211 Administrative analyses and audits. The State agency shall provide AMS with full opportunity to conduct administrative analyses and audits of all operations of the State agency under this program. The State agency shall make available its records, including the receipt and expenditure of funds under the program, upon reasonable request by AMS. AMS shall also have the right to make audits of the records and operations of any participating school or child-care institution.

§ 502.212 State agency reports and records. Within 30 days after the end of each calendar month, the State agency shall make a report to FDD–AMS concerning the operation of the program for that month, on a form provided by FDD–AMS. The State agency shall maintain for a period of three years after the end of each Federal fiscal year's operations, all records pertaining to the program.

§ 502.213 Investigations. The State agency shall promptly investigate all complaints received or irregularities noted in connection with the operation of the program in participating schools and child-care institutions and shall take appropriate action to correct any irregularities.

§ 502.214 Overclaims. (a) Excess payments resulting from overclaims made by schools or child-care institutions which are discovered by the State agency during audits, administrative visits or by other means, shall be collected by the State agency either by direct refund or by deduction from subsequently filed claims. Any amounts thus recovered by the State agency may be used to pay other claims of the same Federal fiscal year.

(b) The State agency shall likewise recover all excess payments made by it to schools and child-care institutions discovered by AMS administrative analyses or audits of State agency operations or during AMS audits of participating schools and child-care institutions. However, before a final determination is made in such cases, the State agency shall have full opportunity to submit additional information, explanation or information concerning such excess payments.

(c) Excess payments resulting from overclaims made by schools or child-care institutions in which the program is administered by FDD–AMS, discovered by AMS during audits, administrative visits or by other means, shall be collected by AMS either by direct refund or by deduction from subsequently filed claims.

§ 502.215 Definitions—(a) State. The 48 States, the District of Columbia, and the Territory of Hawaii.

(b) School. (1) Any school which is a public school of high school grade and under within the definition of the statutes of the State, and

(g) Distribution costs. Direct expenses incurred by the school or child-care institution in connection with the sale, handling and service of milk. This may include expenses incident to acquisition or rental of necessary milk service equipment.

§ 502.216 Miscellaneous provisions—(a) Disqualifications and compliance clause. Any State agency or any school or child-care institution may be disqualified from future participation if it fails to comply with the provisions of the regulations in this part, its agreement with CCC or the State agency, or other pertinent rules, regulations or instructions. This does not preclude the possibility of other action being taken through other means available where considered necessary. Fraud in the payment of, or claiming for, reimbursement under the program will be prosecuted under applicable Federal statutes. If any part of the money received by the State agency in connection with the program, by any improper or negligent action, is diminished, lost, misapplied, or diverted from the program by the State agency, or by any school or child-care institution to which funds are disbursed, FDD-AMS may order such money to be replaced with funds from sources within the State and, until replaced, may direct that no subsequent payments shall be made to the State agency or to such school or child-care institution. The State agency shall have full opportunity to submit additional evidence, explanation or information concerning instances of noncompliance or diversion of funds, before a final determination is made in such cases.

(b) Saving clause. Any or all of the provisions of this part may be waived, withdrawn, or amended, at any time by AMS: Provided, however, That such action shall not be taken without prior notice to State agencies having agreements with CCC.

PART 27—COTTON CLASSIFICATION UNDER COTTON FUTURES LEGISLATION

SUBPART B—STANDARDS

REVISED OFFICIAL GRADE STANDARDS FOR AMERICAN EGYPTIAN COTTON

On May 15, 1956, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 3186) regarding a proposed revision of the official cotton standards of the United States for the grade of American Egyptian cotton (7 CFR 27.251 through 27.260), pursuant to authority contained in section 6 of the United States Cotton Standards Act, as amended (42 Stat. 1518; 7 U. S. C. 56) and in section 4854 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 580; 26 U. S. C. 4854).

The proposed revised standards for grade of American Egyptian cotton were unanimously approved by representatives of producers, spinners, and merchants at a meeting held in Washington on June 5, 1956. An earlier meeting to discuss these standards was held in Washington on May 23, 1956.

The grade standards now in effect for American Egyptian cotton were prepared from cotton of the Pima 32 and Amsak varieties. Practically all American Egyptian cotton now produced is of the Pima S–1 variety. The revised standards are based on a survey of the 1955–56 American Egyptian cotton crop which indicated a need for a revision of the standards to reflect the varietal characteristics of current American Egyptian crops.

After consideration of all relevant matters presented pursuant to the notice and at the meetings on May 23 and June 5, the following official cotton standards of the United States for the grade of American Egyptian cotton are hereby promulgated to supersede on August 1, 1957, the present provisions of §§ 27.251 through 27.260 of Title 7 of the Code of Federal Regulations:

§ 27.251 Grade No. 1. Grade No. 1 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 1, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.252 Grade No. 2. Grade No. 2 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 2, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.253 Grade No. 3. Grade No. 3 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 3, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.254 Grade No. 4. Grade No. 4 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 4, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.255 Grade No. 5. Grade No. 5 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 5, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.256 Grade No. 6. Grade No. 6 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 6, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.257 Grade No. 7. Grade No. 7 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 7, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.258 Grade No. 8. Grade No. 8 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 8, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.259 Grade No. 9. Grade No. 9 shall be American Egyptian cotton which in grade is within the range represented by a set of samples in the custody of the United States Department of Agriculture in the District of Columbia in a container marked "Original Official Cotton Standards of the United States, American Egyptian, Grade No. 9, effective August 1, 1957."

§ 27.260 Grade No. 10. American Egyptian cotton which in grade is inferior to grade No. 9 shall be designated as "American Egyptian Grade No. 10."

(Sec. 10, 42 Stat. 1519; 7 U. S. C. 61. Interpret or apply sec. 6, 42 Stat. 1518, as amended, sec. 4854, 68A Stat. 580; 7 U. S. C. 56, 26 U. S. C. 4854)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 28th day of June 1956.

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

On May 18, 1956, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 3283) concerning proposed amendments to the regulations under cotton futures legislation (7 CFR Part 27, Subpart A, as amended) and the regulations under the United States Cotton Standards Act (7 CFR Part 28, Subpart A, as amended) pursuant to authority contained in section 4863 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 582; 26 U. S. C. 4863), and in section 4 of the United States Cotton Standards Act (42 Stat. 1517; 7 U. S. C. 54).

After consideration of all relevant matters presented pursuant to the notice, said regulations are hereby amended as follows, effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

1. Section 27.10 is amended to read:

§ 27.10 Supervisor of cotton inspection. The Administrator or the chairman of a board of cotton examiners may when necessary designate an official or employee of the Department of Agriculture to supervise the inspection and sampling and the preparation of samples of cotton for classification by a board of cotton examiners, and to perform such other duties as may be required of him for the purposes of this subpart.

2. Section 27.13 is amended to read:

§ 27.13 Micronaire determination request incidental to classification request. The classification request may include a request for Micronaire determination.

3. Paragraph (b) of § 27.28 is amended to read:

(b) The sample may be removed, by the current holder of the cotton classification certificate covering the cotton represented by such sample, at any time within 30 days after whichever of the following occurs first: (1) Such certificate becomes invalid as provided in § 27.42, or (2) the certificate (covering tenderable cotton) is surrendered for cancellation without the issuance of a new certificate in lieu thereof, or (3) the cotton is classified as untenderable and an application for review is not filed within the time specified in § 27.62, or (4) the cotton is classified as untenderable in review classification, or (5) the cotton is found untenderable in an official Micronaire determination: Provided, That the chairman of the board of cotton examiners may for good cause retain the samples for a longer period.

4. Section 27.44 is amended to read:

§ 27.44 Invalidity of cotton class certificates. Any cotton class certificate shall become invalid for use in the tender or delivery of the cotton covered thereby on a section 4863 contract whenever such cotton shall be removed from the place of storage specified therein, except when it is handled and re-stored or transferred to a different place of storage and restored under the supervision of an exchange inspection agency.

5. Section 27.48 is deleted.

6. The third sentence in § 27.64 (a), which reads as follows, is deleted: "A copy of each such application shall be mailed by the person receiving it under this section to the other party in interest."

7. Section 27.68 is deleted.

8. Section 27.69 is amended to read:

§ 27.69 Classification review; notation on certificate. If upon review the classification of the cotton is found to be the same as shown by the cotton class certificate, there shall be placed upon the certificate a notation, which shall be signed by the chairman of the board and dated, to the effect that the classification of the cotton covered by such certificate has been reviewed and determined to be as stated in such certificate. Thereupon the certificate shall be returned to the person who requested the review.

9. Sections 27.73 through 27.79 are deleted and the following is substituted for § 27.73:

§ 27.73 Supervision of transfers of cotton. Whenever the owner of any cotton inspected and sampled for classification pursuant to this subpart and for which he holds valid cotton class certificates, desires to transfer such cotton to a different place, or to a different warehouse at the same place, for the purpose of having it made available for delivery upon a section 4863 contract, such transfer shall be effected under the supervision of the exchange inspection agency in accordance with procedures approved by the Administrator or his representative. For transfers of cotton between different places the owner of the cotton shall surrender the cotton class certificates for the cotton involved to the exchange inspection agency at the place from which the cotton is being transferred. The exchange inspection agency shall cancel the cotton class certificates and forward them, together with other necessary transfer papers, to the exchange inspection agency at the location to which the cotton is being transferred. When the cotton has been delivered for storage at the place of its destination and new warehouse receipts have been issued therefor, the exchange inspection agency at that point shall surrender the cancelled cotton class certificates, other transfer papers, and the new warehouse receipts for the cotton to the board of cotton examiners. Thereupon the board will issue a new cotton class certificate for each bale involved, valid for use at such destination without the reclassification of the cotton or a new Micronaire determination with respect to the cotton. Transfers between different warehouses at the same place shall be under the supervision of the exchange inspection agency at that place and the procedure as nearly as possible shall be the same as that for transfers between different places. The exchange inspection agency shall report the facts of all transfers to the board of cotton examiners in accordance with § 27.46. Supervision of transfers in accordance with this subpart shall not be granted, nor shall any certificate be issued with respect to any bale which appears, upon examination by the exchange inspection agency, or by a supervisor of cotton inspection or other authorized representative of the Service, to be in such condition that its grade or staple length or fiber fineness and maturity is different from that shown by the cotton class certificate, until such bale has been reclassified, and, if a Micronaire determination is shown on such certificate, until a new Micronaire determination has been made for the bale in accordance with this subpart.

10. Section 27.81 is amended to read:

§ 27.81 Fees; certificates. For each new certificate issued in substitution for a prior certificate at the request of the holder thereof, for his business convenience, or when made necessary by the transfer of the cotton as provided in § 27.73, the person making the request shall pay a fee of 15 cents for each certificate issued, to cover the cost of such service and the handling of samples incident thereto.

11. Section 27.84 is deleted.

12. Section 28.64 is deleted.

13. Paragraph (b) (1) of § 28.115 is amended to read:

(1) That no practical form of any of the official cotton standards for grade, the 6-sample guide boxes for the grade of American upland cotton, or the tentative standards for the preparation of long-staple cotton shall be considered or used as representing such standards after the date of its cancellation in accordance with this section or in any event after the expiration of 12 months following the date of its certification: Provided, That sets of practical forms stored, protected, and preserved in accordance with certain agreements for the adoption of universal standards may be used for such periods as may be prescribed in such agreements.

A proposed revision of paragraph (b) (1) of § 28.115 was not included in the notice of proposed rule making but the sole purpose of the amendment as shown above is to provide that the validity period of practical forms of standards or guide boxes for grade or preparation of any cotton shall be 12 months rather than 18 months. Tests and studies conducted by the Department show that such practical forms deteriorate with age and usage and that shortening the validity period will help insure their representativeness. The Department announced a proposal to limit the validity period of the practical forms to 12 months at the Universal Cotton Standards Conference in Washington in May 1956 and no objections were voiced. In order to be of maximum benefit to the affected persons, the amendment should be made effective for the practical forms to be distributed for the 1956–57 season. This amendment will impose no hardship and require no preparation by any affected person. Therefore, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) it is found upon good cause that to issue a notice of rule making or to delay the effective date for this amendment until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER would be impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest.

The other amendments (1) relieve restrictions on removal of samples from Department custody after classification and restrictions in both the cotton futures and Cotton Standards Act regulations which provide that the original classification shall be changed upon review "only when it shall appear upon the review that such classification was clearly erroneous;" (2) clarify procedures for submitting requests for classification and Micronaire determinations for cotton futures purposes; (3) simplify procedures for the transfer of certificated bales of cotton from one futures delivery location to another delivery location; and (4) delete obsolete provisions in cotton futures regulations. The amendments will impose no hardship and require no advance preparation by any affected person. In order to be of maximum benefit to the affected persons, the amendments should be made effective promptly. Therefore, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that the amendments should be made effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The purpose of this amendment is to add to the list of rust-resistant species and horticultural varieties of barberry, mahoberberis, and mahonia plants the following two additional species and varieties: Mahoberberis aqui-candidula and Mahoberberis aqui-sargentiae. The designation of such rust-resistant species and varieties in effect constitutes a relaxation of the restrictions of the regulations and depends upon facts within the knowledge of the Plant Pest Control Branch. It has been determined that there is no unwarranted pest risk involved in the permitted movement of such species and varieties. The determination having been made that these species and varieties are rust-resistant, authorization for their movement in accordance with the regulations should be accomplished promptly. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure concerning these instructions are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest, and since the instructions relieve restrictions, they may be made effective less than thirty days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 27th day of June, 1956.

Chief,
Plant Pest Control Branch.

QUARANTINE

§ 301.45 Notice of quarantine. Under the authority conferred by section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161), and after public hearing required thereby, the States of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island, and Vermont have been and hereby are continued to be quarantined to prevent the further spread of the gypsy moth (Porthetria dispar L.) and the brown-tail moth (Nygmia phaeorrhoea Donov.), dangerous insects of foreign origin notoriously injurious to forest and shade trees and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, and under the authority conferred by the Plant Quarantine Act and the Insect Pest Act of March 3, 1905 (7 U. S. C. 141 et seq.), supplemental regulations are hereinafter prescribed (§§ 301.45-1 to 301.45-12) governing the movement of gypsy and brown-tail moths and carriers thereof. Hereafter (a) live gypsy moths and brown-tail moths in any stage of development; (b) timber and timber products; (c) plants having persistent woody stems (including deciduous trees and shrubs and Christmas trees), and parts thereof; (d) stone and quarry products; and (e) any aircraft, trucks, wagons, railway cars, boats, and other means of conveyance, containers and products and articles of any character whatsoever which by reason of infestation or exposure constitute a hazard of spreading the gypsy moth or the brown-tail moth as determined in accordance with the supplemental regulations (§§ 301.45-1 to 301.45-12), shall not be shipped, offered for shipment to a common carrier, received for transportation or transported by a common carrier, or carried, transported, moved, or allowed to be moved from any of said quarantined States into or through any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, in manner or method or under conditions other than those prescribed in the supplemental regulations, as from time to time amended; Provided, That the requirements of this quarantine and of the supplemental regulations, except as otherwise provided in the regulations, are hereby limited to the areas in any quarantined State which may be designated as within the gypsy moth regulated area or the brown-tail moth regulated area as provided in the regulations, as long as, in the judgment of the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, the enforcement of the regulations as to such regulated areas will be adequate to prevent the spread of the gypsy and brown-tail moths, except that such limitation is further conditioned upon the affected State's providing for and enforcing control of the movement within such State of the regulated articles under the same conditions as those which apply to their interstate movement under the provisions of currently existing Federal quarantine regulations, and upon the State's enforcing such control and sanitation measures with respect to such areas or portions thereof as, in the judgment of said Administrator, shall be deemed adequate to prevent the spread therefrom within such State of the infestations of said insects: Provided, further, That whenever the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch shall find that facts exist as to the pest risk involved in the movement of one or more of the articles to which the supplemental regulations apply, except live gypsy or brown-tail moths in any stage of development, making it safe to modify, by making less stringent, the requirements contained in the regulations, he shall set forth and publish such finding in administrative instructions, specifying the manner in which the applicable regulations should be made less stringent, whereupon such modification shall become effective, for such period and for such regulated area or portion thereof and for such article or articles as shall be specified in said administrative instructions, and every reasonable effort shall be made to give publicity to such administrative instructions throughout the affected areas.

REGULATIONS

§ 301.45-1 Definitions. For the purpose of the regulations in this subpart the following terms shall be construed, respectively, to mean:

(a) Gypsy moth. The insect known as the gypsy moth, Porthetria dispar L., in any stage of development.

(d) Regulated area. The counties, cities, townships, towns, plantations, villages, and other minor civil divisions, or parts thereof, in any quarantined State, designated in administrative instructions under § 301.45-2 as coming within the area regulated because of the gypsy moth or within the area regulated because of the brown-tail moth.

(e) Regulated articles. Articles the movement of which is controlled under the regulations in this subpart as provided in § 301.45-3.

(f) Suppressive area. That part of a regulated area in which suppressive measures are cooperatively carried out with the objective of eradicating infestations in this area, as designated in administrative instructions under § 301.45-2.

(g) Generally infested area. All of a regulated area, exclusive of the suppressive area, as designated in administrative instructions under § 301.45-2.

(h) Inspector. An inspector of the United States Department of Agriculture.

(i) "Moved" ("movement," "move"). Shipped, offered for shipment to a common carrier, received for transportation or transported by a common carrier, or carried, transported, moved, or allowed to be moved, interstate, directly or indirectly, from or within a regulated area. "Movement" and "move" shall be construed accordingly.

§ 301.45-2 Designation of regulated areas. The Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch shall, from time to time, in administrative instructions promulgated by him, list the counties, cities, townships, towns, plantations, villages, and other minor civil divisions, or parts thereof, in the quarantined States, in which infestation of the gypsy moth or brown-tail moth has been determined to exist, or in which it has been determined such infestation is likely to exist, or which it is deemed necessary to regulate because of their proximity to infestation or their inseparability for quarantine enforcement purposes from infested localities, and shall designate the counties, cities, and other civil divisions, or parts thereof, listed because of the gypsy moth, as constituting the gypsy moth regulated area and shall designate the counties, cities, and other civil divisions, or parts thereof, listed because of the brown-tail moth, as constituting the brown-tail moth regulated area. Civil divisions, or parts thereof, so designated shall continue in a regulated status until the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch shall have determined that adequate eradication measures have been practiced for a sufficient length of time to eradicate the gypsy moth or brown-tail moth therein, as the case may be, and that regulation of such civil divisions, or parts thereof, is not otherwise necessary under this section, and shall have issued administrative instructions revoking the designation of such civil divisions, or parts thereof, as coming within the gypsy moth regulated area or the brown-tail moth regulated area, as the case may be. The Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch may, in said administrative instructions promulgated by him, divide a regulated area into a suppressive area and a generally infested area.

§ 301.45-3 Regulated articles—(a) Articles the removal of which is prohibited. The removal of live gypsy moths or brown-tail moths from any State or Territory into any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia, or from said District into any State or Territory, except for scientific purposes, is prohibited. Provisions for such removal of live gypsy moths or brown-tail moths, for scientific purposes, are set forth in § 301.45-12.

(b) Articles the movement of which is regulated. The movement of the following articles from or within the respective regulated area indicated below is regulated as provided in this subpart.

(1) Gypsy moth regulated area. (i) Timber and timber products, including but not limited to lumber, planks, poles, logs, cordwood, and pulpwood;

(ii) Plants having persistent woody stems (including deciduous trees and shrubs and Christmas trees) and parts thereof;

(iii) Stone and quarry products;

(iv) Any aircraft, trucks, wagons, railway cars, boats, and other means of conveyance, containers and products and articles of any character whatsoever which by reason of infestation or exposure are determined by an inspector to constitute a hazard of spreading the gypsy moth.

(2) Brown-tail moth regulated area. (i) Deciduous trees and shrubs, and branches and other parts thereof, with leaves attached;

(ii) Any aircraft, trucks, wagons, railway cars, boats, and other means of conveyance, containers and products and articles of any character whatsoever which by reason of infestation or exposure are determined by an inspector to constitute a hazard of spreading the brown-tail moth.

§ 301.45-4 Conditions governing the movement of regulated articles—(a) Movement from either regulated area. Except as exempted by administrative instructions of the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch, or as provided in § 301.45-12, regulated articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) shall not be moved from the respective regulated area into or through any point outside thereof unless accompanied by a certificate or limited permit.

(b) Movement from the generally infested area into the suppressive area. Except as exempted by administrative instructions of the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch, or as provided in § 301.45-12, regulated articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) shall not be moved from the generally infested area into or through the suppressive area, within the respective regulated area, unless accompanied by a certificate or limited permit.

(c) Articles originating outside the regulated area. No certificates or limited permits are required under paragraph (a) or (b) of this section for the movement of regulated articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) (1) or (2) originating outside of the respective regulated area and moving within or through such regulated area when the point of origin is clearly indicated, when their identity has been maintained, and when the articles have been protected against infestation while in such regulated area, in a manner satisfactory to the inspector.

§ 301.45-5 Certificates, limited permits and certificates of exemption—(a) Certification of regulated articles. Certificates may be issued for the movement of the regulated articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) under any one of the following conditions:

(1) When, in the judgment of the inspector, they have not been exposed to infestation.

(2) When they have been examined by an inspector and found to be free of infestation.

(3) When they have been treated under the observation of an inspector and in accordance with methods selected by him from administratively authorized procedures known to be effective under the conditions applied.

(4) When they have been grown, produced, processed, manufactured, stored or handled in such a manner that, in the judgment of the inspector, no infestation could be transmitted thereby.

(b) Safeguards against reinfestation. Subsequent to certification, as provided in paragraph (a) of this section, the regulated articles may be moved under this subpart only if they are loaded, handled, and shipped under such protection and safeguards against reinfestation as are required by the inspector.

(c) Limited permits. Limited permits may be issued by the inspector for the movement of noncertified regulated articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) to specified destinations for limited handling, utilization, or processing. Persons shipping, transporting, or receiving such articles may be required by the inspector to enter into written agreements with the Plant Pest Control Branch to maintain such safeguards against the establishment and spread of infestation and to comply with such conditions as to the maintenance of identity, handling, or subsequent movement of such articles and to the cleaning or treatment of aircraft, trucks, wagons, railway cars, boats, and other means of conveyance and containers used in the transportation of such articles as may be required by the inspector.

(d) Cancellation of certificates, limited permits, and certificates of exemption. Certificates, limited permits, and certificates of exemption issued under the regulations in this subpart may be withdrawn or canceled by the inspector and further certificates, limited permits, or certificates of exemption refused whenever, in his judgment, the further use thereof might result in the dissemination of infestation.

§ 301.45-6 Marking. Except as exempted by administrative instructions of the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch, or as provided in § 301.45-12, and except for means of conveyance, every container of articles designated in § 301.45-3 (b) the movement of which is subject to the regulations in this subpart, or if there is no container, the articles themselves, shall be plainly marked with the name and address of the consignor and the name and address of the consignee, when offered for shipment, and shall have securely attached to the outside thereof a certificate or limited permit as required by § 301.45-4: Provided, That (a) in the case of less-than-carlot freight or express shipments a certificate or limited permit attached to one of the containers or articles and another certificate attached to the waybill will be sufficient, and in the case of carlot freight or express shipments, either in containers or in bulk, only a certificate or limited permit attached to the waybill is required and (b) in the case of shipments by road vehicle, the certificate or limited permit shall accompany the shipment and shall be surrendered to the consignee upon delivery of the shipment.

§ 301.45-7 Relieving restrictions of regulations. (a) In relieving restrictions of the regulations in this subpart pursuant to the second proviso in § 301.45, the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch may, in administrative instructions, provide for the issuance of certificates of exemption covering premises in the regulated areas which have been inspected or treated in accordance with procedures approved by said Chief as adequate to assure that the movement of regulated articles from such premises will not disseminate infestation and permit the movement of regulated articles designated in § 301.45–3 (b) (1) (i) through (iii) or (2) (i) directly from such premises without restriction under §§ 301.45–4, 301.45–6, and 301.45–8.

(b) Said Chief from time to time will notify the persons concerned as to the premises for which certificates of exemption are in effect under this section. The Chief may also, in administrative instructions, relieve restrictions of the regulations in such other manner and under such other conditions as he shall deem proper in accordance with § 301.45.

§ 301.45–8 Assembly of regulated articles. Except as exempted by administrative instructions of the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch, or as provided in § 301.45–12, persons intending to move any of the regulated articles designated in § 301.45–3 (b) shall make application for inspection as far in advance as possible and may be required to prepare and assemble materials at such points and times and in such manner as the inspector shall designate, so that thorough inspection may be made or approved treatments may be applied as required under the regulations in this subpart.

§ 301.45–9 Inspection and disposition. Any aircraft, truck, wagon, railway car, boat, or other means of conveyance, or container, which is moving (interstate) and which an inspector has probable cause to believe carries or contains any gypsy moth or brown-tail moth or other regulated article the movement of which is prohibited or restricted under this subpart, may be inspected by the inspector at any time or place. When regulated articles are found to be moving or to have been moved in violation of the provisions in this subpart, the inspector may seize, destroy, or otherwise dispose of such articles as he deems necessary to eliminate the danger of dissemination of the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth. If found to be infested, such articles must be freed of infestation.

§ 301.45–10 Treatment of means of conveyance and containers. When in the judgment of the inspector a hazard of spread of the gypsy moth or brown-tail moth is presented, thorough cleaning or other treatment of aircraft, railway cars, trucks, wagons, boats, and other means of conveyance, and containers, may be required by the inspector before movement thereof from a regulated area, or from a generally infested area into or through a suppressive area.

§ 301.45–11 Nonliability of Department. The United States Department of Agriculture disclaims liability for any cost incident to inspection or treatment required under the regulations in this subpart, other than for the services of the inspector.

§ 301.45–12 Shipments for scientific purposes. Live gypsy moths and brown-tail moths in any stage of development may be removed from any State or Territory into any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia or from said District into any State or Territory, and other articles subject to the requirements of the regulations in this subpart may be moved from a regulated area into or through any point outside thereof or from a generally infested area into or through a suppressive area, for experimental or other scientific purposes, on such conditions and under such safeguards as may be required by the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch. The container of articles so moved shall bear, securely attached to the outside thereof, an identifying tag from the Plant Pest Control Branch.

The foregoing quarantine and regulations shall be effective on and after July 20, 1956, on which date they shall supersede notice of quarantine No. 45 and supplemental regulations effective October 10, 1945, as amended effective August 30, 1948, and August 9, 1952 (7 CFR, and 1954 Supp., 301.45, 301.45–1 et seq.).

This amendment authorizes the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch to publish, from time to time, in administrative instructions a list of the minor civil divisions or parts thereof, in quarantined States, in which infestation of either the gypsy moth or brown-tail moth has been determined to exist, or in which it has been determined such infestation is likely to exist, or which it is deemed necessary to regulate because of their proximity to infestation or their inseparability for quarantine enforcement purposes from infested districts, and to designate such civil divisions or parts thereof as a regulated area. Civil divisions or parts thereof so designated will, under the amendment, continue in a regulated status until the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch has determined that adequate eradication measures have been practiced for a sufficient length of time to eradicate the infestation therein and that regulation of such area is not otherwise necessary for quarantine enforcement purposes, and has issued administrative instructions revoking the designation of such civil divisions or parts thereof as a regulated area. The amendment also authorizes the Chief to divide the regulated area into a generally infested area and a suppressive area wherein measures to eradicate infestation are being conducted.

The amendment further authorizes the Chief to provide for the issuance of certificates of exemption for premises which have been inspected or treated in accordance with approved procedures and permit the movement of regulated articles from such premises without compliance with restrictions otherwise applicable.

The amendment also makes the provisions of these regulations conform as closely as possible in phraseology with similar domestic plant quarantine regulations and makes numerous clarifying changes.

In order to be of maximum protection to the public the foregoing quarantine and regulations should be made effective as soon as possible. Therefore, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) good cause is found for making them effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

NOTE: Under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended, the movement of regulated articles except as permitted by the foregoing quarantine and regulations is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. Under the Insect Pest Act of March 3, 1905, the removal of live gypsy or brown-tail moths except as permitted in the regulations is a felony punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than 5 years, or both.

PART 301—DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

SUBPART—GYPSY MOTH AND BROWN-TAIL MOTH

REVISED ADMINISTRATIVE INSTRUCTIONS EXEMPTING CERTAIN ARTICLES FROM SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS

On May 4, 1956, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 2989) a notice of proposed rule making concerning an amendment of administrative instructions exempting certain articles from requirements of the regulations supplemental to the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine (7 CFR, 1954 Supp., 30145a, B. E. P. Q. 386, revised). After due consideration of all matters presented, and pursuant to the authority conferred on him by the second proviso of the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine (Notice of Quarantine No. 45, 7 CFR 301.45, supra) and by § 301.45–7 (a) of the regulations supplemental to said quarantine (7 CFR 301.45–7 (a), supra), under sections 8 and 9 of the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161, 162), the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch hereby issues such amended administrative instructions to read as follows:

§ 301.45a Administrative instructions exempting certain articles from requirements of regulations. (a) The Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch has found that facts exist as to the pest risk involved in the movement of the following regulated articles making it safe to modify, by making less stringent, the requirements of the regulations supplemental to the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine as follows. The movement of the following articles, when meeting the conditions specified, is hereby exempted from the requirements of §§ 301.45–4, 301.45–6 and 301.45–8 of the regulations supplemental to the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine with respect to both the gypsy moth regulated area and the brown-tail moth regulated area, insofar as such requirements apply to such areas.

(1) Timber products. (i) Manufactured wood products such as box shooks, shingles, laths, flooring, furniture, containers, crates, handles, dowels, staves, and new industrial shoring and blocking, if they have not been exposed to infestation.

(ii) Lumber that has been (a) dressed four sides with ends clipped, or (b) square edged sawed four sides with ends clipped, and freed from surface bark, or (c) kiln dried; when such lumber is shipped direct after processing from planer, log saw or kiln; and when waybills or other transportation papers are marked to show that the lumber was so processed and is being so shipped: Provided, however, That this exemption does not apply to piled or stuck lumber.

(iii) Shavings, sawdust, wood flour, excelsior, and cedar bedding.

(iv) Wood and bark novelties, when waxed, polished or otherwise treated.

(2) Woody plants and plant parts. (i) Plants of the following kinds (and parts thereof):

Clubmoss ("ground pine") (Lycopodium spp.).
Partridgeberry (Mitchella repens).
Trailing arbutus (Epigaea repens).
Wintergreen (Gaultheria procumbens, Pyrola spp.).

(ii) Plants and parts thereof that have been grown in the greenhouse throughout the year, when so labeled on the outside of each container.

(iii) Herbarium specimens, when dried and pressed, and when so labeled on outside of each container.

(iv) Leaves of deciduous or evergreen trees that have been treated or dyed, when so labeled on outside of each container.

(v) Seeds, fruits, and cones.

(vi) Cuttings:

Acacia (Acacia spp.).
Boxwood (Buxus sempervirens).
California pepper tree (Schinus molle).
Eucalyptus (Eucalyptus globulus).
Evergreen smilax (Smilax lanceolata).
Galax (Galax aphylla).
Heather (Erica spp., Calluna spp.).
Mistletoe (Phoradendron flavescens, Viscum album, etc.).
Western red cedar (Thuja plicata).
Oregon holly (Ilex aquifolium).
Oregon huckleberry (Vaccinium ovatum).
Salal (known to the trade as lemon cuttings) (Gaultheria shallon).

(vii) Scions.

(viii) Tip cuttings of deciduous plants without leaves or blossoms, or tip cuttings of evergreen plants, when not more than 12 inches in length, and articles constructed of such tip cuttings, such as wreaths, sprays, and roping.

(3) Stone and quarry products. (i) Stone and quarry products when processed by crushing, grinding, or pulverizing.

(ii) Feldspar, granite, marble, quartz, or slate moving from premises covered by a certificate of exemption issued under paragraph (b) of this section and originating on premises covered by such a certificate or from other sources approved in advance by an inspector.

(4) Pulpwood. Pulpwood moving from a regulated area to a nearby pulp mill in a contiguous nonregulated area, or from a generally infested area to a nearby pulp mill in a contiguous suppressive area, if such mill has entered into a written agreement with the Plant Pest Control Branch to apply such treatments and to maintain such sanitation safeguards as will, in the judgment of the inspector, prevent the establishment of gypsy moth infestation on or surrounding the mill premises; and if such mill has been approved by the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch to receive such pulpwood.

(b) A certificate of exemption will be issued by an inspector for any premises in the gypsy moth regulated area which have been inspected or treated in accordance with procedures approved by the Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch as adequate to assure that movement from such premises of regulated articles will not disseminate infestation, if the person in possession of such premises agrees in writing (1) that he will move regulated articles under the certificate of exemption pursuant to paragraph (a) (3) (ii) of this section only from such premises and only if the articles originate on premises certified under this paragraph or from other sources approved in advance by the inspector and (2) that no regulated articles of the kinds specified in paragraph (a) (3) (ii) of this section will be brought to his certified premises except from other premises certified under this paragraph or from such other sources as are approved in advance by the inspector.

These amended administrative instructions shall become effective July 20, 1956, on which date they shall supersede B. E. P. Q. 386, as revised effective November 5, 1951 (7 CFR, 1954 Supp., 301.45a).

These instructions exempt the movement of pulpwood, under specified conditions, from certain requirements of the regulations supplemental to the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth quarantine and make various modifications in the exemptions previously provided for various articles by changing some of the conditions of exemption and more specifically identifying certain exempted articles. Exemption is provided for treated or dyed leaves of evergreen trees, when properly labeled. The previous exemptions for excelsior waste and mica have been eliminated.

Provisions are made in the amended instructions for the issuance of certificates of exemption for inspected or treated premises and for the movement of certain stone and quarry products from such premises without compliance with restrictions otherwise applicable.

Primarily the instructions relieve restrictions and to this extent are within the exception in section 4 (c) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003 (c)) and may properly be made effective less than 30 days after their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Insofar as the instructions impose stricter requirements they should be made effective promptly to prevent the spread of the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth and good cause is found under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act for making them effective less than 30 days after their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

After due consideration of all matters presented, and pursuant to the said § 301.45–2, under sections 8 and 9 of the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912, as amended (7 U. S. Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 957—IRISH POTATOES GROWN IN CERTAIN DESIGNATED COUNTIES IN IDAHO AND MALHEUR COUNTY, OREGON

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 957.314 Limitation of shipments—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to Marketing Agreement No. 98 and Order No. 57, as amended (7 CFR Part 957), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in certain designated counties in Idaho and Malheur County, Oregon, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Potato committee, established pursuant to said marketing agreement and order, as amended, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that (i) the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, (ii) more orderly marketing in the public interest, than would otherwise prevail, will be promoted by regulating the shipment of potatoes, in the manner set forth below, on and after the effective date of this section, (iii) compliance with this section will not require any preparation on the part of handlers which cannot be completed by the effective date, (iv) a reasonable time is permitted under the circumstances, for such preparation, and (v) information regarding the committee's recommendations has been made available to producers and handlers in the production area.

(b) Order. (1) During the period from July 5, 1956, through September 20, 1956, no handler shall ship potatoes of any variety unless such potatoes are generally "fairly clean", which means that at least 90 percent of such potatoes are "fairly clean," and (i) if they are of the red skin varieties, such potatoes meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, $1\frac{7}{8}$ inch minimum diameter, Provided, That such potatoes meeting the requirement of U. S. No. 1, size B, may be shipped, and (ii) if they are of the White Rose or Kennebec varieties, such potatoes meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, size A, $1\frac{7}{8}$ inch minimum diameter, and (iii) if they are of any other variety, including, but not limited to, Russet Burbank and Early Gem varieties, such potatoes meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, size A, 2-inch minimum diameter or 4-ounce minimum weight, as such terms, grades, and sizes are defined in the United States Standards for Pototoes (§§ 51.1540 to 51.1559 of this title), including the tolerances set forth therein.

(2) During the period from July 5, 1956, through September 20, 1956, and subject to the requirements set forth in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph no handler shall ship (i) any lot of potatoes of the Kennebec and White Rose varieties if more than 30 percent of the potatoes in such lot have more than one-half of the skin missing or "feathered", as such terms are used in the said United States Standards, or (ii) any lot of potatoes of any other varieties if such potatoes are more than "moderately skinned" as such term is defined in the said United States Standards, which means that not more than 10 percent of such potatoes have more than one-half of the skin missing or "feathered": Provided, That during such period, not to exceed 100 hundredweight of each variety of such potatoes may be handled for any producer without regard to the aforesaid skinning requirement: Provided further, That, in addition to the above, any lot of potatoes may be handled for any producer without regard to the aforesaid skinning requirement if (a) such lot of potatoes previously failed, upon inspection by a Federal-State inspector, to meet grade and size requirements but met the aforesaid skinning requirements applicable to such lot of potatoes, (b) such lot of potatoes has been regraded, and such lot of potatoes otherwise meets, as indicated by a Federal-State inspection certificate, the grade and size requirement applicable to such potatoes, and (c) such potatoes failing to meet the aforesaid skinning requirements are not in excess of 100 hundredweight in any such lot. Prior to each shipment of potatoes exempt from the above skinning requirements, the handler thereof shall report the name and address of the producer of such potatoes, and each such shipment shall be handled as an identifiable entity.

(3) Each handler may make one shipment of not in excess of 5 hundredweight per week without regard to the regulatory, assessment and inspection requirements of this part.

(4) For the purpose of determining who shall be entitled to the exemption, set forth in the maturity requirements: (i) "Producer" means any individual, partnership, corporation, association, landlord-tenant crop sharing relationship, community property ownership, or any other business unit engaged in the production of potatoes for market; (ii) it is intended that each 100 hundredweight exemption to the aforesaid maturity requirements shall apply only to the potatoes grown on each farm of a producer.

(5) The grade, size and maturity limitations set forth in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall not be applicable to shipments of potatoes for the following purposes: (i) As certified seed potatoes; (ii) export: Provided, That no handler shall ship potatoes for export which do not meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch minimum diameter; (iii) canning, freezing, dehydration or manufacture or conversion into starch, flour, meal, or alcohol, and (iv) charity.

(6) Each handler making shipments of potatoes pursuant to subparagraph (5) of this paragraph shall with respect to such shipments other than certified seed potatoes: (i) Obtain a Certificate of Privilege, (ii) have each of such shipments inspected, (iii) pay assessments on such shipments, (iv) with respect to each shipment furnish a copy of the bill of lading or appropriate record of movement in case of trucks, applicable thereto, to the committee, (v) with respect to each shipment for export, include in his application for the Certificate of Privilege, therefor, the export license number and shall enter such number on the Federal-State inspection certificate and bill of lading applicable to such shipment, or in the event no export license is required on such shipment, the handler shall furnish the committee with a copy of the Department of Commerce Shippers Export Declaration Form No. 7525-V applicable to such shipment, and (vi) accompany each application for a Certificate of Privilege to ship potatoes (except for shipment for export) with the applicant handler's certification and buyer's certification that the potatoes to be shipped are to be used for the purpose stated in the application.

(7) Terms used in this section shall have the same meaning as when used in Marketing Agreement No. 98 and Order No. 57, as amended (§§ 957.1 to 957.92).

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

This direction under BDSA Reg. 2 is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended. In the formulation of this direction, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all industries affected in advance of the issuance of this direction has been rendered impracticable because it affects many industries.

(d) "Gross requirements of nickel" means the total quantity of nickel, whether primary or contained in scrap, required to be put into the charge for melting to produce a specified quantity of a particular alloy containing nickel.

(e) "Alloys containing nickel" means nickel alloys as defined in Direction 6 to DMS Regulation No. 1 and alloys of iron, steel, copper, aluminum or any other material which contain any quantity of nickel by specification.

SEC. 3. Limitation on the acquisition of nickel with the use of ratings. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any BDSA regulation or order, no person shall place rated orders for primary nickel for use in the production of alloys containing nickel to fill mandatory acceptance orders in an amount greater than the difference between his gross requirements of nickel for such production and the amount of nickel contained in scrap generated by him in production of alloys containing nickel to fill mandatory acceptance orders and which is usable in melting to produce such alloys.

(b) If at any time any person who has generated scrap in the course of producing alloys containing nickel to fill mandatory acceptance orders has on hand such scrap containing a quantity of usable nickel which exceeds the quantity of such nickel needed by him to fill mandatory acceptance orders received by him, he shall promptly notify BDSA of the quantity and location of such scrap, and his proposed use, sale or disposition thereof. Pending receipt of written instructions from BDSA he may use such scrap only to fill mandatory acceptance orders.

This direction shall take effect June 29, 1956.

[DMS Regulation No. 1, Direction 6 of June 29, 1956]

DMS REG. 1—BASIC RULES OF THE DEFENSE MATERIALS SYSTEM

DMS REG. 1, DIR. 6—DESIGNATION OF NICKEL ALLOYS AS CONTROLLED MATERIALS BEGINNING WITH OPERATIONS FOR THE FOURTH CALENDAR QUARTER OF 1956

This direction under DMS Regulation No. 1 is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended. In the formulation of this direction, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all industries affected in advance of the issuance of this direction has been rendered impracticable because it affects many different industries.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 8 issued under sec. 704, 64 Stat. 816, as amended, sec. 10, 69 Stat. 583, 50 U. S. C. App. 2154. Interpret or apply sec. 101, 64 Stat. 799, as amended, sec. 705, 64 Stat. 816, as amended, sec. 10, 69 Stat. 583; 50 U. S. C. App. 2071, 2155; E. O. 10480, 18 F. R. 4939; 3 CFR, 1953 Supp.; DMO I-7, 18 F. R. 5366, 6736; 32A CFR Ch. I; Commerce Dept. Order No. 152, 18 F. R. 6503, 6791, 20 F. R. 6263.

SECTION 1. What this direction does. The purpose of this direction is to designate nickel alloys as controlled materials beginning with operations for the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, under the Defense Materials System regulations and all other regulations and orders of BDSA, with respect to production, construction, and all other uses. It also establishes rules to provide for an orderly transition in the accomplishment of this objective. Those alloys of steel, copper, or aluminum which contain nickel, and which pursuant to the provisions of DMS Regulation No. 1 (as amended April 1, 1954) are controlled materials, continue as steel, copper, or aluminum controlled materials and do not become nickel alloy controlled materials. The designation of nickel alloys as controlled materials will result in these materials being subject to the same quantitative controls and other applicable procedures that relate to the existing controlled materials—steel, copper and aluminum. BDSA order M-1B which is issued concurrently with this direction establishes rules affecting suppliers of nickel alloys.

SEC. 2. Definition. As used in this direction, "nickel alloys" means those alloys for which the specified nickel content is 5 percent or more, up to and including pure nickel, and which do not contain as much as 50 percent of iron or steel, nor as much as 40 percent of copper, nor as much as 50 percent of aluminum, in the following mill and foundry shapes and forms:

Ingots, blooms, slabs, and billets.
Plate, sheet, strip, and foil.
Rods, bars, pipe, tubing, and shapes (rolled, drawn, or extruded).
Wire and wire rod.
Powder.
Castings (less gates and risers, rough as cast).
Anodes (rolled or cast).

It also includes cast iron (less gates and risers, rough as cast) for which the specified nickel content is 5 percent or more. It does not include primary nickel in the forms of electrolytic cathodes, pigs, rondelles, cubes, pellets, shot, oxide (including sintered oxide), salts, or chemicals; nor does it include primary nickel in the forms of ingots or powder for remelting.

SEC. 3. Applicability of this direction. The provisions of this direction are applicable to orders for nickel alloys which call for delivery only after the third calendar quarter of 1956, and to all actions taken in connection therewith. The provisions of all DMS regulations and all other BDSA regulations and orders, including the directions and amendments thereto, as heretofore issued, shall continue to apply to orders for nickel alloys which call for delivery prior to the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, and to all actions taken in connection therewith.

SEC. 4. Applicability of other regulations and orders. The provisions of all DMS regulations and all other BDSA regulations and orders, including the directions and amendments thereto, as heretofore issued, are superseded to the extent to which they are inconsistent with the provisions of this direction. In all other respects the provisions of such regulations, orders, directions, and amendments shall remain in full force and effect.

SEC. 5. Designation of nickel alloys as controlled materials. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of DMS regulations and any other BDSA regulations and orders, including the directions and amendments thereto, nickel alloys are hereby designated as controlled materials for operations during the fourth calendar quarter of 1956 and succeeding calendar quarters.

(b) With respect to operations beginning with the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, all DMS regulations and all other BDSA regulations and orders, including the schedules, directions, amendments, forms, and instructions thereto, and in addition the "Official Class B Product List" of BDSA, shall be deemed to be amended to provide that nickel alloys are controlled materials.

(c) Beginning with operations for the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, the following shall be the 4 basic controlled materials under regulations and orders of BDSA:

(1) Steel.
(2) Copper.
(3) Aluminum.
(4) Nickel alloys.

Beginning with operations for the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, the following shall be the 8 kinds of controlled materials for the purposes of allotments, actions related to allotments, delivery orders, and shipments under regulations and orders of BDSA:

(1) Carbon steel (including wrought iron).
(2) Alloy steel (except stainless steel).
(3) Nickel-bearing stainless steel.
(4) Copper and copper-base alloy brass mill products.
(5) Copper wire mill products.
(6) Copper and copper-base alloy foundry products and powder.
(7) Aluminum.
(8) Nickel alloys.

SEC. 6. Conversion of orders and other special rules. (a) DO or DX rated orders placed pursuant to regulations and orders of BDSA prior to August 1, 1956, calling for delivery of nickel alloys after September 30, 1956, shall be deemed to be authorized controlled material orders for purposes of all regulations and orders of BDSA. Beginning August 1, 1956, no person shall place and no person shall accept any DO or DX rated order calling for delivery of nickel alloys after September 30, 1956.

(b) Beginning August 1, 1956, any person who is authorized to acquire nickel alloys pursuant to allotment or self-authorization under any regulation or order of BDSA, for preferential delivery after September 30, 1956, shall place an authorized controlled material order or authorized controlled material orders therefor.

(c) Any prime consumer or secondary consumer (as defined in DMS Regulation No. 1) and any prime contractor or subcontractor (as defined in DMS Regulation No. 2) who, pursuant to orders placed or to be placed by him after July 31, 1956, requires delivery of nickel alloys after September 30, 1956, to complete an authorized production schedule or an authorized construction schedule for which he has not received an allotment of nickel alloys, shall immediately submit an application for an allotment in accordance with section 7 of this direction. The submission of such an application shall, subject to the adjustments called for in paragraph (d) of this section, constitute authorization to place an authorized controlled material order or authorized controlled material orders for the quantity of nickel alloys requested in such application for allotment, and to make allotments, where appropriate, for the production of Class A products or for the performance of construction.

(d) Any person who receives an allotment of nickel alloys for the fourth calendar quarter of 1956 or subsequent calendar quarters and who has previously placed a rated order or an authorized controlled material order for the purpose for which such allotment is made must charge the quantity of nickel alloys covered by such order against the appropriate quarterly allotment. In no event shall such allotment be exceeded and to the extent that orders previously placed are in excess of such allotment they shall be promptly cancelled or reduced. However, if such cancellation or reduction would result in failure by a person to fill an order or a contract which he is required to accept by BDSA, he shall immediately apply for an additional allotment to the person who made the allotment of nickel alloys to him. He need not cancel nor reduce such outstanding orders pending receipt by him of a response to his application for an additional allotment.

SEC. 7. Application for allotment of nickel alloys. (a) Applications for allotment of nickel alloys shall be made on Form DMS-4A for production of Class A products; Form DMS-4C for construction; or Form DMS-4 (APRA) for production of APRA B products. Revised versions of these forms, showing nickel alloys as a controlled material, will be available at Department of Commerce field offices and at offices of the Department of Defense and the Atomic Energy Commission.

(b) Any person who is required to submit an application for an allotment of nickel alloys pursuant to paragraph (c) of section 6 of this direction shall do so on the appropriate form referred to in paragraph (a) of this section. If such form is not available, he shall submit his application on Form DMS-4S set forth in Schedule I of this direction in accordance with the instructions contained in that Schedule. In using Form DMS-4S, the applicant shall duplicate the form as provided in such instructions. Printed copies of this form will not be available because it is intended for temporary use only, pending the availability of the standard DMS application forms referred to in paragraph (a) of this section.

SEC. 8. General explanatory provisions. The changes effected by this direction in the Defense Materials System and the supporting regulations and orders of BDSA are comprehensive in scope. Some of the more significant changes include, but are not limited to, the following:

(a) The definition of controlled material in section 3 (c) of DMS Regulation No. 1 and in other regulations and orders of BDSA has been expanded to include nickel alloys as well as steel, copper, and aluminum.

(b) Class A and Class B products (sections 3 (i) and 3 (j) of DMS Regulation No. 1 and sections 3 (f) and 3 (g) of DMS Regulation No. 2) become such by virtue of incorporation therein of controlled materials. Since nickel alloys have been designated as controlled materials the "Official Class B Product List", issued May 1, 1953, will cover products containing nickel alloys even though they do not contain steel, copper, or aluminum.

(c) Applications for allotments for Class A products (section 9 of DMS Regulation No. 1) and for construction (section 8 of DMS Regulation No. 2) will include requirements for nickel alloys as well as requirements for steel, copper, and aluminum.

(d) In addition to the 7 kinds of controlled materials used for the purposes of making allotments (section 11 (b) of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 10 (b) of DMS Regulation No. 2), a new kind, nickel alloys, will be employed in making allotments.

(e) The rules for designation and use of allotment numbers (section 12 of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 11 of DMS Regulation No. 2), including calendar quarter identification in placing authorized controlled material orders, apply to nickel alloys.

(f) The so-called "85 percent rule" (section 13 (b) of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 12 (b) of DMS Regulation No. 2) will apply to nickel alloys as well as to the other 7 kinds of controlled materials.

(g) The short form of allotment (section 13 (g) and Schedule II of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 12 (h) of DMS Regulation No. 2) when reproduced and utilized by persons making allotments shall include a separate line for nickel alloys.

(h) The rules for cancellation or reduction of allotments and for changes in requirements (sections 14 and 15 of DMS Regulation No. 1 and sections 13 and 14 of DMS Regulation No. 2) apply to nickel alloys, except as modified in paragraph (d) of section 6 of this direction.

(i) The prohibition on making allotments of controlled materials for the production of Class B products (section 17 (a) of DMS Regulation No. 1) extends to nickel alloys. Persons who receive rated orders for Class B products requiring nickel alloys will, by self-authorization, obtain their requirements of nickel alloys by placing authorized controlled material orders therefor.

(j) The rules for placement of authorized controlled material orders (section 20 of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 18 of DMS Regulation No. 2) apply to delivery orders for nickel alloys.

(k) The rules applicable to controlled materials suppliers (sections 21, 22, and 23 of DMS Regulation No. 1), except to the extent modified or supplemented by the provisions of BDSA Order M-1B which is issued concurrently with this direction, apply to suppliers of nickel alloys.

(l) The rules regarding maintenance of records of allotments received, made, or used (section 25 of DMS Regulation No. 1 and section 21 of DMS Regulation No. 2) apply to nickel alloys.

(m) The self-authorization procedure for defense contract laboratories (Direction 3 to DMS Regulation No. 1) is changed to the extent that requirements of nickel alloys will be obtained by placing authorized controlled material orders, rather than rated orders, therefor.

(n) The self-authorization procedure for MRO (Direction 4 to DMS Regulation No. 1 and Direction 3 to DMS Regulation No. 2) is changed to the extent that requirements of nickel alloys will be obtained by placing authorized controlled material orders, rather than rated orders, therefor.

(o) Manufacturers of APRA B products (Direction 5 to DMS Regulation No. 1) will apply for and receive allotments of nickel alloys, in addition to allotments of steel, copper, and aluminum.

(p) Amendment 2 (June 1, 1954) to BDSA Reg. 2 provides that holders of certain listed forms of nickel acquired by use of ratings must notify BDSA under specified conditions before use or disposition of same. The rules in said Amendment 2 continue to apply to the forms of nickel listed therein even though certain forms have been designated as controlled materials by this direction and will be acquired by the placement of authorized controlled material orders rather than by the placement of rated orders.

(q) Section 3 (k) of BDSA Order M-1A defines high-temperature alloys which, under the provisions of that order, are not controlled materials. To the extent that such high-temperature alloys fall within the definition of nickel alloys in section 2 of this direction, they become controlled materials.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this direction have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This direction shall take effect June 29, 1956.

SEC. 3. Applicability of this order. The provisions of this order are applicable to orders for nickel alloys which call for delivery only after the third calendar quarter of 1956, and to all actions taken in connection therewith. The provisions of all DMS regulations and all other BDSA regulations and orders, including the directions and amendments thereto, as heretofore issued, shall continue to apply to orders for nickel alloys which call for delivery prior to the fourth calendar quarter of 1956, and to all actions taken in connection therewith.

SEC. 4. Applicability of other regulations and orders. The provisions of all DMS regulations and all other BDSA regulations and orders, including the directions and amendments thereto, as heretofore issued, are superseded to the extent to which they are inconsistent with the provisions of this order. In all other respects the provisions of such regulations, orders, directions, and amendments shall remain in full force and effect.

SEC. 5. Directives. BSDA may, from time to time, issue production, allocation, and other directives to producers. Each producer who receives such a directive shall comply therewith.

(b) A producer may open his order books for the purpose of accepting authorized controlled material orders and further converter orders for any calendar quarter as long in advance of the periods set forth in paragraph (a) of this section as he may choose, but after his order books are opened he shall accept such orders as provided in section 7 of this order.

SEC. 7. Acceptance of orders. (a) During the period extending from the date of opening his books until the commencement of lead time for the particular nickel alloy product involved, each producer shall, unless otherwise directed by BDSA, accept authorized controlled material orders and further converter orders for nickel alloy products produced by him, except as provided in section 8 of this order.

(b) Each producer shall, after receipt of any authorized controlled material order tendered to him, promptly accept or reject such order. Receipt of an order shall not be deemed to have occurred until the order is received at the place where the producer usually processes such order. Upon such acceptance or rejection, he shall immediately notify, by letter or by telegram, the person who tendered the order, of such acceptance or rejection. For the purpose of this paragraph, the word "promptly" shall mean as soon as possible, but in no event later than 10 consecutive calendar days after receipt.

SEC. 8. Rejection of authorized controlled material orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by BDSA, a producer may reject an authorized controlled material order in any of the following cases:

All authorized controlled material orders and further converter orders shall have equal preferential status: Provided, however, That, if due to circumstances beyond the control of a producer, or for any other reason, shipment of all such orders during the accepted shipment month is not made, then authorized controlled material orders and further converter orders carried over from any previous month, shall take precedence over other authorized controlled material orders and further converter orders for the same nickel alloy product calling for delivery during the current month involved.

(b) A delivery order for nickel alloy products placed pursuant to a directive issued by BDSA shall take precedence over any other delivery order previously or subsequently received, unless a contrary instruction appears in the directive.

SEC. 10. Further converters. In obtaining nickel alloy products to fill authorized controlled material orders or to replace in his inventory such products used by him to fill authorized controlled material orders, a further converter shall place further converter orders with his regular supplier or suppliers of such products. Such further converter orders are hereby designated as authorized controlled material orders and shall be certified by the further converter as provided in section 20 of DMS Regulation No. 1. In placing such orders, the further converter shall indicate thereon the allotment symbol "FC" and the calendar quarter in which delivery of the nickel alloy products is required: Provided, however, That such orders may be placed only for the purpose of obtaining material required to fill authorized controlled material orders already accepted at the time of placement thereof, or for the purpose of replacing in inventory material used within the same calendar quarter or the immediately preceding calendar quarter to fill authorized controlled material orders.

SEC. 11. Acceptance of orders and replacement of inventory by distributors. (a) Subject to the limitations set forth in this order and in applicable DMS regulations, every distributor shall accept all authorized controlled material orders.

(b) Commencing October 1, 1956, and during each succeeding calendar month thereafter, any distributor who has delivered nickel alloy products from his inventory after September 30, 1956, to fill authorized controlled material orders or any distributor located in the Dominion of Canada or in any province thereof who has delivered nickel alloy products from his inventory to fill atomic energy or defense orders, may obtain nickel alloy products to replace in inventory the nickel alloy products delivered pursuant to such orders, by affixing the allotment number D-8 to the purchase order he places with his regular supplier of such products in the United States. Such purchase orders are hereby designated as authorized controlled material orders and shall be certified by the distributor as provided in section 20 of DMS Regulation No. 1, except that in the case of a Canadian distributor, they shall be certified as provided in section 5 of BDSA Reg. 3. In placing such authorized controlled material orders, the distributor shall indicate thereon the allotment number D-8 and the calendar quarter in which delivery of the nickel alloy products is required: Provided, however, That authorized controlled material orders placed by a distributor pursuant to this section shall call only for delivery of a quantity of each nickel alloy product no greater than the quantity of such product which such distributor delivered from his inventory pursuant to authorized controlled material orders or to fill atomic energy or defense orders in the case of Canadian distributors: And provided further, That the allotment number D-8 may be used to place orders for nickel alloy products pursuant to this paragraph only in the calendar quarter in which they were taken from inventory or in the immediately succeeding calendar quarter.

SEC. 12. Direct shipments by distributors. Nothing in this order shall prevent a distributor who normally acts as authorized agent of a producer from acting not only in the capacity of a distributor as defined in section 2 of this order, but also as an agent of a producer for the purpose of receiving and transmitting to such producer authorized controlled material orders for direct shipment by the producer to the person placing such order.

SEC. 13. Records and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall make, and preserve for at least 3 years thereafter, accurate and complete records of receipts and deliveries in sufficient detail to permit the determination, after audit, whether each transaction complies with the provisions of this order. This order does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily used, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to BDSA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act of 1942 (5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 14. Requests for adjustment or exception. Any person subject to any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. The filing of a request for adjustment or exception shall not relieve any person of his obligation to comply with any such provision. In examining requests for adjustment or exception claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing, by letter in triplicate, shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 15. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the Business and Defense Services Administration, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: BDSA Order M-1B.

SEC. 16. False statements. The furnishing of false information or the concealment of any material fact in the course of operation under this order constitutes a violation of this order.

SEC. 17. Violations. Violation of any provision of this order may subject any person committing or participating in such violation to administrative action to require compliance with this order and correction of such violation. In addition to such administrative action, an injunction and order may be obtained prohibiting any such violation and enforcing compliance with the provisions hereof. Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order, or who wilfully furnishes false information or conceals any material fact in the course of operation under this order, is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both.

This order shall take effect June 29, 1956.

TITLE 38—PENSIONS, BONUSES, AND VETERANS' RELIEF

Chapter I—Veterans Administration

PART 21—VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION AND EDUCATION

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. In § 21.2005, paragraph (a) (1) is amended to read as follows:

§ 21.2005 Definitions. (a) • • •

(1) The term "basic service period" means the period beginning on June 27, 1950, and ending on January 31, 1955, except that with respect to persons in the active service in the Armed Forces on January 31, 1955, such term for the purpose of initiating a program of education or training (sec. 212 (a), Public Law 550, 82d Cong., as amended by Public Law 610, 83d Cong.) means the period beginning on June 27, 1950, and ending on the date of the person's first unconditional discharge or release from such service after January 31, 1955. As to a person who was in the active service in the Armed Forces on January 31, 1955, and whose first discharge or release from such service after that date was of a conditional nature, i. e., exclusively for administrative purposes, the term "basic service period" for the purpose of determining the duration of entitlement to education and training (sec. 214 (a), Public Law 550, 82d Cong.) means the period beginning June 27, 1950, and ending as of the date such person's enlistment or obligated period of service would ordinarily have expired had he not been so conditionally discharged or released. The term "unconditional discharge or release" is interpreted to mean a discharge or release from active service which relieves the recipient thereof from any obligation for continued active service. A discharge or release from active service given solely for administrative purposes, such as acceptance of appointment as a commissioned or warrant officer, or to reenlist in the Regular Establishment, etc. is a conditional discharge. A discharge which does not relieve a recipient from obligation for continued active service must be considered as a conditional discharge.

• • • • •

2. Section 21.2013 is amended to read as follows:

§ 21.2013 Expiration of all education and training. (a) No education or training shall be afforded an eligible veteran beyond 8 years after his discharge or release from active service, and in no event beyond January 31, 1965.

(b) The date of discharge or release from active service means the date of discharge or release from the last period of active service, any part of which occurs during the basic service period. The date of discharge or release for a person on active duty in the armed forces on January 31, 1955, will be fixed as of the date of his first unconditional discharge or release from active service occurring after the date of January 31, 1955.

3. In § 21.2014, that portion of paragraph (a) preceding subparagraph (1) is amended to read as follows:

§ 21.2014 Duration of veteran's education or training.—(a) Computation of entitlement. Each eligible veteran shall have a period of basic entitlement to education or training under Public Law 550, 82d Congress, measured in months and days (or the equivalent thereof in part-time training). The basic entitlement shall be computed by multiplying one and one-half times the duration of the veteran's active service, whether performed in one or more active duty assignments during his basic service period. In computing the duration of his active service, the following periods of time will be excluded:

4. Section 21.2901 is revoked:

§ 21.2901 Entitlement to education or training benefits under the provisions of Title II, Public Law 550, 82d Congress, as amended, based upon active service occurring in the Armed Forces after the date January 31, 1955. (Instruction 1, Public Law 7, 84th Cong.) [Revoked.]

(Sec. 2, 46 Stat. 1016, sec. 7, 48 Stat. 9, sec. 2, 57 Stat. 43, as amended, sec. 400, 58 Stat. 287, as amended; 38 U. S. C. 11a, 701, 707, ch. 12A. Interpret or apply secs. 3, 4, 57 Stat. 43, as amended, secs. 300, 1500–1504, 1506, 1507, 58 Stat. 286, 300, as amended, sec. 261, 66 Stat. 663; 38 U. S. C. 693g, 697–697d, 697f, g, 971, ch. 12A)

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Reg. SR-406C]

PART 4b—AIRPLANE AIRWORTHINESS; TRANSPORT CATEGORIES

PART 40—SCHEDULED INTERSTATE AIR CARRIER CERTIFICATION AND OPERATION RULES

PART 41—CERTIFICATION AND OPERATION RULES FOR SCHEDULED AIR CARRIER OPERATIONS OUTSIDE THE CONTINENTAL LIMITS OF THE UNITED STATES

PART 42—IRREGULAR AIR CARRIER AND OFF-ROUTE RULES

SPECIAL CIVIL-AIR-REGULATION; APPLICATION OF TRANSPORT CATEGORY REQUIREMENTS TO C-46 TYPE AIRPLANES

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 28th day of June, 1956.

On June 30, 1954, the Civil Aeronautics Board adopted Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406, effective July 1, 1954, which provided for the modification and operation of C-46 type airplanes in passenger service. On June 7, 1955, the Board adopted Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406A, effective June 7, 1955, which added certain substantive and clarifying amendments to SR-406. On March 30, 1956, the Board adopted Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406B, effective April 1, 1956, which extended the date for modification of C-46 airplanes in passenger service from April 1, 1956, to July 1, 1956. The preamble material of these three Special Civil Air Regulations is incorporated herein by reference.

SR-406B provided only temporary relief from those provisions of Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406A which prevented the use of C-46 airplanes in passenger operations under Part 42 of the Civil Air Regulations on and after April 1, 1956, unless recertificated in accordance with the regulation. In SR-406B, the Board indicated, that subject to persuasive reasons for failing, type certification had to be accomplished before July 1, 1956, and that, within the effective period of the regulation, the Board would determine a later end effective date by which recertification of these airplanes in the transport category must be completed. It was expressly stated that the later end effective date for recertification would depend on a bona fide showing of meeting the type certification requirements.

Since the adoption of Special Civil Air Regulation No. SR-406B, two type certificates have been issued under its provisions and one application for a type certificate has been received although complete data has not been submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Administration as of the date of adoption of this regulation, SR-406C.

In adopting SR-406B, the Board anticipated obtaining a schedule of modification of C-46 airplanes from the applicants for type certification. In its attempt to obtain this information, not only has the Board not received such a schedule, but has been advised that only a comparatively few operators have actual contractual agreements with holders of type certificates to accomplish the required modification.

The Board has previously stated that a final compliance date for modification would depend on a bona fide showing that the aircraft certification requirements will be met in the reasonably near future. However, in the absence of such a showing by more than a few operators, the Board must establish an end compliance date without the benefit of any complete and detailed modification schedules. In the only formal request for an extension of the effective date of these regulations which the Board has received, it is indicated that required modifications are expected to be completed by January 1, 1957. No other information available to the Board indicates that this is not a reasonable end effective date; therefore, January 1, 1957, is hereby established as the date when recertification is required.

Since October 1, 1955, the Administrator has been authorized to permit the continued operation of C-46 aircraft in passenger service on a showing by operators that "genuine and diligent efforts" have been made to accomplish the required modifications. In the light of the fact that there now exist at least two persons possessing type certificates on the basis of which such modifications may be made, there no longer appears to be any reason for not requiring the showing of a firm contract between the operator and the holder of such a type certificate indicating that the required modifications will be completed prior to January 1, 1957, prior to such operations. Accordingly, this Special Civil Air Regulation contains a requirement that before the Administrator is authorized to continue to permit operation of C-46 airplanes in passenger service, between July 1, 1956, and January 1, 1957, there must be a showing by the operator that he has a firm contract with the holder of a type certificate to complete modifications prior to January 1, 1957, except that the Administrator may authorize during the period July 1, 1956, through July 15, 1956, such operations without a showing of such firm contract where the Administrator has previously permitted such operations based on genuine and diligent efforts to complete the required modifications. In other words, the Administrator may authorize continued operations of C–46 airplanes in passenger service from July 1, 1956, to July 16, 1956, where he has previously given such authority. However, on and after July 16, 1956, the Administrator may authorize such continued operations only upon a showing by the operator that he has a firm contract with the holder of a type certificate to complete modifications prior to January 1, 1957.

As stated hereinbefore, all the preamble material pertinent to the application of transport category requirements to C–46 type airplanes appearing in SR–406, SR–406A, and SR–406B is incorporated herein by reference. However, in order to obviate any possible confusion as to which specific regulations are presently applicable to accomplish the recertification of the C–46 in passenger service, all such regulations are included in this Special Civil Air Regulation.

Since this regulation continues in effect the same rules as are presently applicable to C–46 type airplanes, with the exception of the compliance date listed herein, without diminution in safety standards, and since it would be in the public interest to prescribe rules to become effective on July 1, 1956, to permit the continuation of operation of C–46 type airplanes in passenger service, the Board finds that omission of notice and public procedure is not contrary to public interest and that good cause exists for making this regulation effective on less than 30 days' notice.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby makes and promulgates the following Special Civil Air Regulation, effective July 1, 1956:

1. Contrary provisions of the Civil Air Regulations notwithstanding (in particular the provisions of § 42.15 (b) of Part 42), C–46 airplanes may be used in passenger operations conducted under Part 42 of the Civil Air Regulations. Such airplanes shall be operated in accordance with § 42.15 (a) of Part 42 and the provisions of this special regulation.

2. C–46 type airplanes, when used in passenger operations in accordance with paragraph 4 of this regulation, shall not be operated at weights exceeding those which are demonstrated to the Administrator will allow compliance with the performance requirements of Part 4b, except that in determining the maximum take-off weight, such weight shall be limited only to a value at which the airplane has a rate of climb equal to 0.035 V_{s_1} in the take-off configuration at sea level with the landing gear retracted but with the propeller of the inoperative engine feathered rather than windmilling.

3. Provisionally, pending a determination by the Administrator of the weights at which C–46 airplanes will meet the standards prescribed by paragraph 2 of this regulation, the maximum take-off weight of such airplanes, when used in the manner herein referred to, shall not exceed 44,300 pounds: Provided, That in the case of C–46 airplanes equipped with Hamilton Standard propellers with blades Model Number 6491A–9 or approved equivalent which have been clipped in accordance with specifications approved by the Administrator, such provisional maximum weight shall be increased by 1,000 pounds until such time as the Administrator shall have determined by suitable tests another value to correspond to the additional efficiency obtainable by the use of such propellers, and thereafter by such other value.

4. The Administrator of Civil Aeronautics may authorize continued operation of C–46 airplanes in passenger service in accordance with paragraphs 2 and 3 of this regulation until January 1, 1957, if he finds that the applicant for such authorization has a bona fide, firm contract with the holder of a type certificate indicating that the required modifications will be completed prior to January 1, 1957, except that the Administrator may authorize during the period July 1, 1956, through July 15, 1956, such continued operation without a showing of such firm contract where the Administrator has previously permitted such operations based on genuine and diligent efforts to complete the required modifications. Such type certificate shall indicate that it meets the transport category requirements of Part 4b of the Civil Air Regulations in effect on July 20, 1950, with the exceptions authorized in SR–406A.

5. On and after July 1, 1956 (except as provided in paragraph 4), C–46 airplanes in passenger service shall comply with the provisions of Part 4b as in effect on July 20, 1950, except as otherwise provided hereinafter:

a. The provisions of §§ 4b.0 through 4b.19 of Part 4b, effective May 18, 1954, shall be complied with.

b. The provisions of §§ 4b.100 through 4b.190 need not be complied with.

c. The birdproof windshield requirements of § 4b.352 need not be complied with.

d. The provisions of §§ 4b.480 through 4b.490 effective May 16, 1953, shall be complied with in lieu of §§ 4b.480 through 4b.489 effective July 20, 1950, with the exception of subparagraph 4b.484 (a) (1) which shall be applicable as effective July 20, 1950, and paragraph 4b.487 (e) which has no counterpart in the 1950 regulations.

6. On and after January 1, 1957, C–46 airplanes in passenger service shall be recertificated in the transport category in accordance with paragraph 5 of this regulation, and shall comply with the provisions of §§ 4b.100 through 4b.190 with the following exception: In determining the take-off path in accordance with § 4b.116 and the one-engine-inoperative climb in accordance with § 4b.120 (a) and (b), the propeller of the inoperative engine may be assumed to be feathered if there is installed either an approved means for automatically indicating when the particular engine has failed or an approved means for automatically feathering the propeller of the inoperative engine.

7. In applying the provisions of paragraph 5 and 6 of this regulation, where literal compliance with the requirements of §§ 4b.130 through 4b.190 of Subpart B and Subparts C, D, E, and F of Part 4b is extremely difficult to accomplish, and where the Administrator finds that service experience with the C–46 type airplane so justifies, the Administrator may authorize deviations from specific details of these requirements, taking into account the effect of design changes.

8. On or after January 1, 1957, C–46 airplanes in passenger service shall be operated in accordance with the performance operating limitations applicable to transport category airplanes.

9. C–46 airplanes which comply with the provisions of paragraphs 5 and 6 of this regulation may be used in passenger operations conducted under the provisions of Parts 40 and 41 provided they are operated in accordance with paragraph 8.

10. This Special Civil Air Regulation supersedes Special Civil Air Regulation SR–406B.

TITLE 42—PUBLIC HEALTH

Chapter I—Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Subchapter F—Quarantine, Inspection, Licensing

PART 73—BIOLOGIC PRODUCTS

ADDITIONAL STANDARDS: POLIOMYELITIS VACCINE

On February 9, 1956, a notice of proposed rule making with respect to the licensing of biological products was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 906) inviting any interested parties to present written views or arguments respecting the proposed regulations there published. Notice was also given that it was proposed, for the protection of the public health, to make any regulations that were adopted effective upon their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Several views and suggestions have been received from representatives of drug manufacturers relating particularly to that portion of the proposed regulations that would establish additional standards for poliomyelitis vaccine. All of the views expressed have been carefully considered. On the basis of these and other considerations, it is deemed necessary, in order to assure the continued safety, purity and potency of biological products, to issue at this time the following amendents to Part 73 and, in the public interest for the protection of the public health, to make such amendments effective upon their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

1. Part 73 is hereby amended so that wherever in such part reference is made to "Federal Security Administrator" or "Administrator", such reference is changed to, respectively, "Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare" or "Secretary".

2. Section 73.2 is amended to read as follows:

§ 73.2 Applications. To obtain a license for any establishment, biologic product or trivalent organic arsenical, the manufacturer shall make application to the Surgeon General on forms prescribed for such purpose, and in the case of an application for a product license, shall submit a description of the production methods, samples of the product and specimens of the labels, enclosures, and containers proposed to be used for such product. No product shall be licensed if any production method relating to such product would, in the judgment of the Surgeon General, impair the assurances of continued safety, purity and potency as provided by the regulations of this part.

3. Part 73 is further amended by the addition of the following new provisions constituting §§ 73.100 to 73.105, inclusive:

ADDITIONAL STANDARDS: POLIOMYELITIS VACCINE

§ 73.100 The product—(a) Proper name and definition. For the purpose of section 351 (a) (2) of the act and § 73.1 (j), the proper name of this product shall be "Poliomyelitis Vaccine", which shall consist of an aqueous preparation of poliomyelitis viruses types 1, 2, and 3, grown in monkey kidney tissue cultures, inactivated by a suitable method, and combined in equal proportions with a tolerance of five percent of the total volume, applied to one or more of the three components.

(b) Strains of virus. Strains of poliomyelitis virus used in the production of vaccine shall be identified by historical records, infectivity tests and immunological methods. Any strain of virus may be used that produces a vaccine meeting the safety and potency requirements of §§ 73.101, 73.102 and 73.103, but the Surgeon General may from time to time prohibit the use of any specific strain whenever he finds that it is practicable to use another strain of the same type that is potentially less pathogenic to man and that will produce a vaccine of equivalent safety and potency.

(c) Monkeys. Only cynomolgus or rhesus monkeys, or other species of equal suitability, in overt good health that have reacted negatively to tuberculin within two weeks prior to use, shall be used as the source of kidney tissue for the production of virus. Each animal shall be examined at necropsy under the supervision of a qualified pathologist for gross signs of disease and, if there is any gross pathological lesion of significance to their use in the preparation of the vaccine, the kidneys shall be discarded. Kidney tissue from monkeys that have been used previously for experimental purposes shall not be used, except that monkeys in overt good health, used for the safety or potency tests with negative clinical findings (§§ 73.102 and 73.103) that have reacted negatively to tuberculin prior to such test, may be used within two weeks of the end of the test period.

§ 73.101 Production of poliomyelitis vaccine—(a) Cultivation of virus. Virus for preparing vaccine shall be grown with aseptic techniques in monkey kidney cell tissue cultures. Suitable antibiotics in the minimum concentration required may be used. If penicillin is used, not more than 200 units per milliliter may be added.

(b) Filtration. Within 72 hours preceding the beginning of inactivation, the virus suspensions shall be filtered or clarified by a method having an efficiency equivalent to that of filtration through an S1 Seitz type filter pad.

(c) Virus titer. The 50 percent end-point ($TCID_{50}$) of the virus fluids after filtration shall be 10^{-6} or greater as confirmed by comparison in a simultaneous test (using groups of 10 tubes at 1 log steps or groups of 5 tubes at 0.5 log steps) with a reference virus distributed by the National Institutes of Health. Acceptable titrations of the reference virus shall not vary more than ±10-fold from its labeled titer using 0.5 milliliter inoculum in tissue culture.

(d) Inactivation of virus. The virus shall be inactivated, as evidenced by the tests prescribed in § 73.102, through the use of an agent or method which has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Surgeon General to be consistently effective in the hands of the manufacturer in inactivating a series of lots of poliomyelitis virus. If formaldehyde is used for inactivation, it shall be added to the virus suspension to a final concentration of U. S. P. solution of formaldehyde of 1:4000, and the inactivation conducted under controlled conditions of pH and time, at a temperature of 36 to 38° C. Three or more virus titers, suitably spaced to indicate rate of inactivation, shall be determined during the inactivation process. Filtration equivalent to that described in paragraph (b) of this section shall be performed after the estimated base-line time (time at which the 50 percent end-point reaches 10°), but prior to sampling for the first single strain tissue culture test required in § 73.102 (b).

(e) Additional processing. Single strain or trivalent pools that have failed to pass safety tests prescribed in § 73.102 (b), (c), or (e) may be treated as follows:

(1) Filtration of clarification by a method having an efficiency equivalent to that of filtration through an S1 Seitz type filter pad.

(2) Negative tests performed as described in § 73.102 (b) and (c) must be obtained on each of two successive samples taken so as to be separated by an interval of at least three days while the material is being subjected to treatment with 1:4000 U. S. P. formaldehyde solution and heat at 36°–38° C. The first sample may be taken before incubation is begun and the second sample is to be taken after the incubation of at least 3 days is completed. In the case of single strain pools, the volume tested for each tissue culture safety test shall be at least 500 milliliters and in the case of trivalent pools, at least 1,500 milliliters.

(3) Pools which are positive following such additional processing shall not be used for the preparation of poliomyelitis vaccine.

(f) Supplemental inactivation. Supplemental inactivation employing a method capable of reducing the titer of a similarly produced virus suspension by a factor of 10^{-5} may be applied at any point after the filtration step described in paragraph (d) or (e) (1) of this section.

§ 73.102 Tests for safety. In the preparation of the product, the following tests relating to safety shall be conducted by the manufacturer.

(a) The virus pool. Prior to inactivation each virus pool shall be tested for the presence of B virus and Mycobacterium tuberculosis by suitable animal and culture methods.

(b) Single strain pool tissue culture tests for poliomyelitis virus. (1) During inactivation, before pooling to make the final poliomyelitis vaccine, each monovalent bulk strain pool shall be tested for the presence of virus by tissue culture methods. Two samples separated by an interval of at least three days during inactivation at 36°–38° C. shall be tested.

(2) No less than 500 milliliters of each sample shall be subjected to the complete testing process and each test shall be performed on a different monkey kidney tissue culture cell preparation. Each sample shall be inoculated into five or more tissue culture bottles of a suitable capacity, the ratio of the vaccine to the nutrient fluid being approximately 1:1 to 1:3, and the area of the surface growth of cells being at least 3 square centimeters per milliliter of vaccine. The tissue culture bottles shall be observed at least 14 days.

(3) A first subculture shall be made at the end of seven days from date of inoculation by planting at least 2 percent of the volume from each original bottle into suitable tissue culture containers, followed by refeeding.

(4) A second subculture shall be made from each original bottle in the same manner at the end of 14 days from date of inoculation.

(5) The first and second subcultures shall be each observed for at least seven days.

(6) If cytopathogenic effects occur either in the original bottles of the two tests or in the subcultures from them, or if cellular degeneration appears in the original bottles or in the subcultures before degeneration occurs in uninoculated cultures, the pool shall be held until the matter is resolved. If active poliomyelitis virus is indicated, the strain pool shall not be used for inclusion in a final vaccine unless effectively reprocessed as described in § 73.101 (e). If other viruses are present, the pool shall not be used unless it can be demonstrated that such viruses have originated from other than the strain pool being tested.

(c) Trivalent vaccine pool tissue culture test. No less than 1,500 milliliters of the trivalent vaccine pool, without final preservative, prepared by pooling the three type pools, each of which has passed all tests described in paragraph (b) of this section, shall be subjected to the complete tissue culture test prescribed in such paragraph in at least two approximately equal tests in separate monkey kidney tissue culture preparations.

(d) Trivalent vaccine pool lymphocytic choriomeningitis test. The final vaccine shall be shown to be free of lymphocytic choriomeningitis virus by intracerebral inoculation into 10 or more mice which shall be observed daily for at least 21 days and a negative test shall not be valid unless at least 8 mice survive for this period.

(e) Final vaccine test for active virus in monkeys. (1) Vaccine from a sufficient number of final containers selected at random from each filling of each lot shall be pooled to provide a test sample of at least 100 milliliters representing the filling.

(2) Where the number of fillings in a lot is four or more, a test sample from each filling shall be inoculated into a group of five or more monkeys. Where the number of fillings in a lot is less than four, test samples from the several fillings shall be inoculated into a total of not less than twenty monkeys. A preinjection serum sample must contain no neutralizing antibody against the three poliomyelitis virus types in a dilution of 1:4 when tested against not more than 1,000 $TCID_{50}$ doses of virus. At least 80 percent of the test animals representing each filling must survive the test period without significant weight loss, except that if at least 60 percent of the test animals survive the first 48 hours after injection, those animals which do not survive this 48 hour period may be replaced by an equal number of test animals. If less than 60 percent of the test animals survive the first 48 hours, or if less than 80 percent of the animals representing each filling survive the test period without significant weight loss, the test must be repeated.

(3) Vaccine is injected by combined intracerebral, intraspinal, and intramuscular routes into rhesus or cynomolgus monkeys in overt good health, under deep barbiturate anesthesia. The intracerebral injection consists of 0.5 milliliter into the thalamic region of each hemisphere. The intraspinal injection consists of 0.5 milliliter into the lumbar spinal cord enlargement. The intramuscular injection consists of 1.0 milliliter into the right leg muscles. At the same time, an injection of 200 milligrams of cortisone acetate is given into the left leg muscles, and 1.0 milliliter of procaine penicillin (300,000 units) into the right arm muscles. The monkeys are observed for 17 to 19 days and symptoms suggestive of poliomyelitis are recorded.

(4) At the end of the observation period, samples of nervous tissue are taken for virus recovery and identification. Histological sections are prepared from both spinal cord enlargements and examined.

(5) The monkeys inoculated as described in § 73.103 (a) are sacrificed at the time of collection of the final serum samples described in § 73.103 (b). Histological sections are prepared from both spinal cord enlargements and examined.

(6) Doubtful histopathological findings necessitate (i) examination of a sample of sections from several regions of the brain in question, and (ii) attempts at virus recovery from the nervous tissues previously removed from the animal. The test is considered negative if the histological and other studies leave no doubt that poliomyelitis infection did not occur.

§ 73.103 Potency test. Each lot of vaccine shall be subject to a potency test which permits an estimation of the antigenic capacity of the vaccine. This is done by means of a simultaneous comparison of the antibody levels produced in monkeys by the vaccine under test with the antibody levels of reference serums distributed by the National Institutes of Health. The potency test shall be performed on samples taken after final processing of the trivalent pool including addition of preservative, and shall be conducted as follows:

(a) Inoculation of monkeys. A group of 12 or more rhesus or cynomolgus monkeys shall be used. Animals shall weigh between 4 and 8 pounds and shall be in overt good health. Animals that become ill and then remain ill during the course of immunization shall be excluded from the group. The test shall not be valid unless at least 8 survive the test period. The test vaccine shall be given intramuscularly to each monkey in 3 doses of 1.0 milliliter each at seven day intervals. Only undiluted vaccine shall be used. The initial intramuscular injection is accompanied by the intracerebral injection of 0.5 milliliter into the thalamic region of each hemisphere.

(b) Serum samples. A blood sample shall be taken from each monkey prior to vaccination and then again 7 days after the last injection. Serum shall be separated aseptically, and stored under refrigeration.

(c) Serum-virus neutralization test. The titers of individual monkey serums shall be determined in comparison with N. I. H. reference serums in tests designed to include controls for all the variables of significance including the following:

(1) Serum toxicity control;

(2) Cell control and cell titration;

(3) Virus titration control (at least 4 tubes/dilution at 1/2 log steps); and

(4) Serum controls using type-specific serums to identify the type of virus used in the neutralization test.

(d) Interpretation of the test. Animals showing preinoculation titers of 1/4 or over when tested against not more than 1,000 $TCID_{50}$ of virus, shall be excluded from the test. The geometric mean titer of antibody induced in the monkeys surviving the course of immunization and bleeding, shall be calculated. A comparison of the value so obtained shall be made with the values for the reference serums that were tested simultaneously and expressed as ratios between the mean titer values of the serums under test and the mean titer value of the reference serums.

(e) Potency requirements. A lot of vaccine tested against National Institutes of Health reference serums IIA, IIA 1/4, and IIA 1/16 shall be satisfactory if the geometric mean value of the group of individual monkey serums representing the lot of vaccine tested is at least 0.86 times the geometric mean value of the three reference serums for type 1, at least 0.75 times for type 2, and at least 0.48 times for type 3. In applying the foregoing requirements, a variation of 66⅔ percent is acceptable.

§ 73.104 General requirements—(a) Final container tests. Tests shall be made on final containers for identity, safety, and sterility in accordance with §73.70. In addition, the lot shall not be released unless the test for the presence of living poliomyelitis virus described in § 73.102 (e) is negative.

(b) Extraneous protein. Extraneous protein, capable of producing allergenic effects on injection into human subjects, shall not be added to the final virus production medium. If animal serum is used at any stage, its calculated concentration in the final medium shall not exceed 1:1,000,000.

(c) Dose. These additional standards are based on a human dose of 1.0 milliliter for a single injection and a total human immunizing dose of three injections of 1.0 milliliter given at appropriate intervals.

(d) Labeling. In addition to compliance with the requirements of §§ 73.50 to 73.55, inclusive, the label or the package enclosure shall include an appropriate statement indicating the type and amounts of antibiotics added, if any. The preservative used shall be stated on the label, as well as allergenic substances added, if any, and the source, composition and method of inactivation of the viruses.

(e) Dating. The expiration date shall not be more than six months after the date of manufacture or the date of issue. The date of issue shall not be more than three months after the date of manufacture as defined in § 73.78 (c).

(f) Requirements for samples and reports. For each lot of vaccine, the following material shall be submitted to the Division of Biologics Standards, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda 14, Maryland:

(1) A 2,500 milliliter sample, neutralized, not dialyzed, and without final preservative, taken at the latest possible stage of production before the addition of such preservative.

(2) A 200 milliliter bulk sample of the final vaccine containing final preservative.

(3) A total of not less than 200 milliliter sample of the final vaccine in final labeled containers.

(4) Protocols showing the history of the lot and the results of the tests prescribed in these additional standards.

§ 73.105 Equivalent methods. Modification of any particular manufacturing method or process or the conditions under which it is conducted as set forth in the additional standards relating to poliomyelitis vaccine (§§ 73.100 to 73.104, inclusive) shall be permitted whenever the manufacturer presents evidence to demonstrate that such modification will provide equal or greater assurances of the safety, purity and potency of the vaccine as the assurances provided by such standards, and the Surgeon General so finds and makes such finding a matter of official record.

4. The additional standards relating to poliomyelitis vaccine (§§ 73.100 to 73.105, inclusive) shall be applicable to all virus pools and vaccine in process on the date of publication of these amendments in the FEDERAL REGISTER and thereafter: Provided, however, That compliance with any test, method or procedure otherwise required by such additional standards shall be waived as to such material to the extent the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service determines (i) that the production or processing of such material has proceeded to a stage at which it is impossible to comply with any such requirement, and (ii) that the manufacturer has provided evidence satisfactory to the Surgeon General of the use of tests, methods or procedures equivalent to such requirements in assuring the safety, purity and potency of the vaccine.

§ 1.165 Statutory provisions; losses.

SEC. 165. Losses—(a) General rule. There shall be allowed as a deduction any loss sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

(b) Amount of deduction. For purposes of subsection (a), the basis for determining the amount of the deduction for any loss shall be the adjusted basis provided in section 1011 for determining the loss from the sale or other disposition of property.

(c) Limitation on losses of individuals. In the case of an individual, the deduction under subsection (a) shall be limited to—

(1) Losses incurred in a trade or business;

(2) Losses incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with a trade or business; and

(3) Losses of property not connected with a trade or business, if such losses arise from fire, storm, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft. No loss described in this paragraph shall be allowed if, at the time of the filing of the return, such loss has been claimed for estate tax purposes in the estate tax return.

(d) Wagering losses. Losses from wagering transactions shall be allowed only to the extent of the gains from such transactions.

(e) Theft losses. For purposes of subsection (a), any loss arising from theft shall be treated as sustained during the taxable year in which the taxpayer discovers such loss.

(f) Capital losses. Losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets shall be allowed only to the extent allowed in sections 1211 and 1212.

(g) Worthless securities—(1) General rule. If any security which is a capital asset becomes worthless during the taxable year, the loss resulting therefrom shall, for purposes of this subtitle, be treated as a loss from the sale or exchange, on the last day of the taxable year, of a capital asset.

(2) Security defined. For purposes of this subsection, the term "security" means—

(A) A share of stock in a corporation;

(B) A right to subscribe for, or to receive, a share of stock in a corporation; or

(C) A bond, debenture, note, or certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness, issued by a corporation or by a government or political subdivision thereof, with interest coupons or in registered form.

(3) Securities in affiliated corporation. For purposes of paragraph (1), any security in a corporation affiliated with a taxpayer which is a domestic corporation shall not be treated as a capital asset. For purposes of the preceding sentence, a corporation shall be treated as affiliated with the taxpayer only if—

(A) At least 95 percent of each class of its stock is owned directly by the taxpayer, and

(B) More than 90 percent of the aggregate of its gross receipts for all taxable years has been from sources other than royalties, rents (except rents derived from rental from properties to employees of the corporation in the ordinary course of its operating business), dividends, interest (except interest received on deferred purchase price of operating assets sold), annuities, and gains from sales or exchanges of stocks and securities.

In computing gross receipts for purposes of the preceding sentence, gross receipts from sales or exchanges of stocks and securities shall be taken into account only to the extent of gains therefrom.

(h) Cross references. (1) For special rule for banks with respect to worthless securities, see section 582.

(2) For disallowance of deduction for worthlessness of securities to which subsection (g) (2) (C) applies, if issued by a political party or similar organization, see section 271.

§ 1.165-1 Losses—(a) Allowance of deduction in general. (1) Losses sustained by individual citizens or residents of the United States and by domestic corporations which are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise are deductible under section 165 (a) if deduction of such losses is not prohibited or limited by any other provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. See, for example, section 165 (c), relating to individuals; sections 165 (g) and 1211, relating to capital losses; section 165 (d), relating to wagering losses; section 267 (a), relating to losses from sales or exchanges of property between related taxpayers; section 271, relating to debts owed by political parties; section 931, relating to income from sources within possessions of the United States; section 932, relating to citizens of possessions of the United States; and subchapter O, relating to gain or loss on disposition of property. See also sections 871, 873, and 876 as to limitation upon losses sustained by nonresident aliens.

(2) In general, losses for which an amount may be deducted from gross income must be evidenced by closed and completed transactions, fixed by identifiable events, bona fide and actually sustained during the taxable year for which allowed. Substance and not mere form will govern in determining deductible losses. Full consideration must be given to any salvage value and to any insurance or other compensation received in determining the amount of losses actually sustained. See section 1016.

(b) Voluntary removal of buildings. Subject to the provisions of § 1.167 (a)-8, an abnormal retirement loss due to the voluntary removal or demolition of old buildings, the scrapping of old machinery, equipment, etc., incident to renewals and replacements is deductible from gross income. When a taxpayer buys real estate upon which is located a building, which he proceeds to raze with a view to erecting thereon another building, it will be considered that the taxpayer has sustained no deductible loss by reason of the demolition of the old building, and no deductible expense on account of the cost of such removal. It will be presumed that the value of the real estate, exclusive of old improvements, is equal to the purchase price of the land and building plus the cost of removing the useless building.

(c) Loss of useful value. (1) When, through some change in business conditions, the usefulness in the business of some or all of the assets is suddenly terminated, so that the taxpayer discontinues the business or discards such assets premanently from use in such business, he may claim as a loss for the year in which he takes such action the difference between the basis (adjusted to the extent provided in section 1016 or as otherwise specifically provided for under applicable provisions of internal revenue laws) and the salvage value of the property. This exception to the rule requiring a sale or other disposition of property in order to establish a loss requires proof of some unforeseen cause by reason of which the property has been prematurely discarded, as, for example, where an increase in the cost or change in the manufacture of any product makes it necessary to abandon such manufacture, to which special machinery is exclusively devoted, or where new legislation directly or indirectly makes the continued profitable use of the property impossible.

This exception does not extend to a case where the useful life of property terminates solely as a result of those gradual processes for which depreciation allowances are authorized. It does not apply to inventories. The exception applies to buildings only when they are permanently abandoned or permanently devoted to a radically different use, and to machinery only when its use as such is permanently abandoned. Any loss to be deductible under this exception must be fully explained in the return of income. The limitations provided in sections 1211 and 1212 with respect to the sale or exchange of capital assets have no application to losses due to the discarding of capital assets.

(2) The method of computing the allowable deduction resulting from a casualty loss to business and nonbusiness property is provided for in the regulations under § 1.165–3 (c). For special rules relating to losses due to the retirement or abandonment of depreciable property used in a trade or business or held for the production of income, see § 1.167 (a)–8.

(d) Shrinkage in value of stocks. A person possessing stock of a corporation cannot deduct from gross income any amount claimed as a loss merely on account of shrinkage in value of such stock through fluctuation of the market or otherwise. The loss allowable in such cases is that actually suffered when the stock is disposed of. If stock of a corporation becomes worthless, its cost or other basis as determined under section 1012 and adjusted to the extent provided in section 1016 or as otherwise specifically provided for under applicable provisions of internal revenue laws is deductible by the owner for the taxable year in which the stock becomes worthless, provided a satisfactory showing is made of its worthlessness. See § 1.165–7. Federal or State authorities, incident to the regulation of banks and certain other corporations, may require that stock be charged off as worthless or written down to a nominal value. If, in any such case, the basis of the requirement is the worthlessness of the stock, such charging off or writing down will, for income tax purposes, be considered prima facie evidence of worthlessness; but if the charging off or writing down is due to market fluctuations, or if no reasonable attempt has been made to determine worthlessness, no deduction for income tax purposes of the amount so charged off or writen down can be allowed. For dealers in securities, see section 471 and the regulations thereunder. For limitations on deductions for losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets generally, including stocks and bonds, see sections 1211 and 1212.

(e) Losses in farming. Losses incurred in the operation of farms as busines enterprises are deductible from gross income. If farm products are held for favorable markets, no deduction on account of shrinkage in weight or physical value or by reason of deterioration in storage shall be allowed, except as such shrinkage may be reflected in an inventory if used to determine profits. The total loss by frost, storm, flood, or fire of a prospective crop is not a deductible loss in computing taxable income. A taxpayer engaged in raising and selling stock, such as cattle, sheep, horses, etc., is not entitled to claim as a loss the value of animals that perish from among those animals that were raised on the farm, except as such loss is reflected in an inventory if used. If livestock has been purchased for any purpose, and afterwards dies from disease, exposure, or injury, or is killed by order of the authorities of a State or the United States, the actual purchase price of such livestock, less any depreciation allowable as a deduction in respect of such perished livestock, may be deducted as a loss if the loss is not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. The actual cost of other property (with proper adjustment for depreciation) which is destroyed by order of the authorities of a State or of the United States, may in like manner be claimed as a loss. If reimbursement in whole or in part is made by a State or the United States on account of stock killed or other property destroyed in respect of which a loss was claimed for a prior year, the amount received shall be reported as income for the year in which reimbursement is made. The cost of any feed, pasture, or care which has been deducted as an expense of operation shall not be included as part of the cost of the stock for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of a deductible loss. If gross income is ascertained by inventories, no deduction can be made for livestock or products lost during the year, whether purchased for resale or produced on the farm, as such losses will be reflected in the inventory by reducing the amount of livestock or products on hand at the close of the year. If a taxpayer owns and operates a farm, in addition to being engaged in another trade, business, or calling, and sustains a loss from such operation of the farm, then the amount of loss sustained may be deducted from gross income received from all sources, provided the farm is not operated for recreation or pleasure. As to losses claimed as deductions for estate tax purposes, see § 1.165–3 (a) (1). See also sections 61 and 162 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.165–2 Amount of deduction in general. In ascertaining the amount of the deduction for a loss allowed under section 165 (a), the amount of the loss realized and recognized is determined under sections 1001 and 1002, by reference to the adjusted basis provided in section 1011 for determining the loss from the sale or other disposition of property. Adjustments to basis shall be made in accordance with section 1016. For example, proper adjustment under section 1016 must be made for any expenditure, receipt, loss, or other item properly chargeable to capital account and for depreciation, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion.

§ 1.165–3 Limitation on losses of individuals—(a) In general. (1) In the case of an indivdual, the deduction under section 165 (a) shall be limited to:

(i) Losses incurred in trade or business;

(ii) Losses incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with a trade or business; and

(iii) Losses of property not connected with a trade or business, if such losses arise from fire, storm, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft. No loss described in this subdivision shall be allowed, if at the time the return is filed, such loss has been claimed for estate tax purposes in the estate tax return. Where a loss described in this subdivision would be allowable in computing the taxable estate of a decedent under section 2054, such loss shall be allowed in computing the taxable income of a taxpayer if the taxpayer establishes that such loss has not been, and will not be, allowed as a deduction under section 2054. This requirement is satisfied if the taxpayer files a statement to the effect that such loss has not been allowed as a deduction under section 2054 and a waiver of the right to have such loss allowed at any time as a deduction under section 2054. Such statement and waiver must be signed by the executor or administrator of the decedent's estate. For the time, manner, and form of filing such statement and waiver see section 642 (g) and the regulations thereunder.

(2) A loss occasioned by damage to an automobile maintained for pleasure, where such damage results from the faulty driving of the taxpayer or other person operating the automobile, but is not due to the willful act or negligence of the taxpayer, is a deductible loss in the computation of taxable income. If damage to a taxpayer's automobile results from the faulty driving of the operator of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned to the taxpayer by such damage is likewise deductible.

(3) No loss is realized by the transfer of property by gift or by death. But see sections 453 (d) and 691.

(b) Sale of residential property. A loss on the sale of residential property purchased or constructed by the taxpayer for use as his personal residence and so used by him up to the time of the sale is not deductible. If, however, property so purchased or constructed is before its sale rented or otherwise appropriated to income-producing purposes and is used for such purposes up to the time of its sale, a loss from the sale of the property, computed as provided in section 1001, is, subject to the limitations provided in sections 1211 and 1212, an allowable deduction in an amount not to exceed the lesser of:

(1) The fair market value of the property at the time it was appropriated to income-producing purposes (with proper adjustment for depreciation), or

(2) The adjusted basis of the property at the time it was appropriated to income-producing purposes (with proper adjustment for depreciation), over the amount realized from the sale. Similarly, the basis for computing depreciation shall be the fair market value of the property at the time it was appropriated to income-producing purposes, or the adjusted basis on that date, whichever is the lesser. See § 1.167 (f)–1.

Example (1). Residential property was purchased by a taxpayer in 1940 for use as his personal residence at a cost of $25,000, of which $15,000 was allocable to the building. The property was so used by the taxpayer until January 1, 1949. From that date to January 1, 1955, when the property was sold, it was rented by the taxpayer. The fair market value of the property at the time it was rented on January 1, 1949, was $22,000, of which $12,000 was allocable to the building. The building had an estimated life of 20 years on January 1, 1949. The property was sold on January 1, 1955, and the amount realized was $16,000. The loss from the sale allowable as a deduction, except as limited by section 1211, is $2,400, computed as follows:

Cost of property in 1940	$25,000
Less depreciation allowed (not less than amount allowable) in respect of the building (depreciation for 6 years at 5 percent on the straight-line method of depreciation based on $12,000, value of building when converted to business use)	3,600
	21,400
Amount realized	16,000
Loss computed as provided in section 1001	5,400
Value of property at time it was rented on Jan. 1, 1949	22,000
Less depreciation allowed or allowable	3,600
	18,400
Amount realized	16,000
Portion of $5,400 loss which is deductible except as limited by section 1211	2,400

Example (2). If, under the circumstances set forth in example (1), the property had been purchased at a cost of $21,000, of which $10,000 was allocable to the building, but otherwise the facts assumed are the same, the deductible loss, except as limited by section 1211, is $2,000, computed as follows:

Cost of property in 1940	$21,000
Less depreciation allowed (not less than amount allowable) in respect of the building (depreciation for 6 years at 5 percent on the straight-line method of depreciation based on $10,000, cost of building)	3,000
	18,000
Amount realized	16,000
Loss computed as provided in section 1001	2,000
Deductible loss, except as limited by section 1211	2,000

(c) Casualty losses—(1) Casualty losses under section 165 (c) (1) and (2). In the case of a casualty loss incurred in a trade or business, or in connection with any transaction entered into for profit, where the destroyed or damaged property has at all times been devoted to business or income-producing purposes in the hands of the taxpayer, the deductible loss will be the proportion of the adjusted basis determined under section 1011 which the value of the destroyed property bears to the value of the entire property, reduced by any insurance or other compensation received in respect of the property. For limitations on the amount of the deductible loss where property was devoted to personal use prior to its devotion to use in the trade or business or in connection with a transaction entered into for profit, see § 1.165–3 (b).

Example. A purchased an automobile for $4,200 on January 1, 1955, and at once devoted it to business use. The expected life of the automobile was 6 years. On January 1, 1957, the automobile sustained damages through casualty. The value of the automobile immediately before the casualty was $2,000. The value of the automobile immediately after the casualty is $1,500. A is compensated by insurance in the amount of $300. The amount of the allowable deduction to A is $400 (loss of $700 less insurance of $300), computed as follows:

Cost	$4,200
Less: Depreciation for 1955 and 1956 at $700 per year	1,400
Adjusted basis at time of casualty	2,800
Value before casualty	2,000
Value after casualty	1,500
Value of destroyed property	500
Allowable loss $\left(\frac{$500}{$2,000 \times $2,800}\right)$	700
Less: Insurance received	300
Allowable deduction	400

(2) Casualty losses under section 165 (c) (3). In the case of property described in section 165 (c) (3) the amount of the deduction for any casualty loss is the lesser of—

(i) The difference between the value of the property before the casualty and after the casualty (including any salvage value), or

(ii) The amount of the adjusted basis of the property determined under section 1011, reduced by any insurance or other compensation received in respect of the property. This method may be used in computing the amount of casualty damage to buildings and to ornamental and fruit trees where the buildings and trees are integral parts of the realty, in which case the loss may be measured by considering the decrease in fair market value of the entire property (including the land and improvements) as a unit.

Example (1). A purchased a residential estate containing ornamental trees and shrubbery at a cost of $100,000 in 1955. In 1960 the estate was damaged by hurricane and many of the ornamental trees were destroyed. The value of the estate immediately before the casualty was $210,000. The value of the estate immediately after the casualty is $60,000. A is compensated by insurance in the amount of $40,000. A is entitled to a deduction of $60,000 for casualty loss under section 165 (c) (3), computed as follows:

Value of property immediately before casualty	$210,000
Less: Value of property immediately after casualty	60,000
Value of property destroyed	150,000
Allowable loss (limited to adjusted basis)	100,000
Less: Insurance received	40,000
Allowable deduction	60,000

Example (2). A purchased land and a building in 1955 for $20,000 to be used as a personal residence. In 1960 the building was damaged by fire. The fair market value of the property immediately before the casualty was $30,000. The fair market value of the property immediately after the casualty is $18,000. Insurance received in respect of the property damaged is $8,000. The amount of the allowable deduction is $4,000 (loss of $12,000 less insurance of $8,000) computed as follows:

Value of property immediately before casualty	$30,000
Less: Value of property immediately after casualty	18,000
Value of destroyed property	12,000
Allowable loss (but not in excess of adjusted basis)	12,000
Less: Insurance received	8,000
Allowable deduction	4,000

Example (3). A purchased an automobile for $3,600. Later, the automobile was partially damaged through casualty. The value immediately before the casualty was $2,000, while the value immediately after the casualty is $1,500. Insurance received in respect to the property damage is $300. The allowable deduction is $200 (loss of $500 less insurance of $300), computed as follows:

Value of automobile immediately before casualty	$2,000
Less: Value of automobile immediately after casualty	1,500
Value of destroyed property	500
Allowable loss (but not in excess of adjusted basis)	500
Less: Insurance received	300

(3) Valuation. In general, in determining the amount of loss resulting from casualty under this section, the difference between the fair market value of the property immediately before the casualty and the fair market value of the property immediately after the casualty shall be ascertained by competent appraisal. However, the cost of repairs may be accepted instead of such appraisal where (but only to the extent that) such repairs are necessary to restore the property to its condition immediately before the casualty.

§ 1.165–4 Wagering losses. (a) No deduction shall be allowed for losses from wagering transactions except to the extent of the gains during the taxable year from such transactions. In the case of a husband and wife making a joint return, the combined losses of the spouses as a result of wagering transactions shall be allowed to the extent of the combined gains of the spouses from such transactions during the taxable year.

(b) In the case of a taxpayer who is not engaged in the trade or business of gambling, losses from wagering transactions are not deductible from adjusted gross income in determining taxable income where the taxpayer has elected under section 144 to use the standard deduction.

(c) The application of paragraph (b) of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. G, an individual taxpayer not engaged in the trade or business of gambling, realized wagering gains of $300 in 1955 and sustained wagering losses of $375. G is required, under the provisions of section 61, to include the $300 wagering gains in his gross income. If G itemizes his deductions on his income tax return, a deduction for wagering losses may be taken to the extent of $300, the amount of wagering gains included in gross income. If G elects under section 144 to use the standard deduction, no part of the $375 wagering losses is deductible.

§ 1.165–5 Theft losses. (a) For purposes of section 165 (a), any loss arising from theft (including embezzlement, larceny, etc.) shall be treated as sustained during the taxable year in which the taxpayer discovers such loss, and is deductible only in that year.

(b) If any loss from theft is treated as sustained in the year in which the taxpayer discovers such loss, there can be no deduction for such loss for a prior year under section 165 or any provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. Similarly, if any loss from theft is taken into account in computing a tax under any provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1339, there shall be no deduction for such loss under this provision. See section 7852 (c), relating to the disallowance of double deductions.

§ 1.165–6 Capital losses. Deductions allowed to individuals and to corporations under section 165 for losses sustained on the sale or exchange of a capital asset shall be limited to the extent provided in sections 1211 and 1212.

§ 1.165–7 Worthless securities—(a) In general. Any loss sustained by virtue of a security becoming worthless during the taxable year is, under section 165 (g), made subject to the limitations provided in sections 1211 and 1212 with respect to sales or exchanges, provided the security is a "capital asset" as that term is defined in section 1221. For the purposes of computing the taxable income of any taxpayer, other than a bank as defined in section 581, such loss is to be considered as being sustained from the sale or exchange of the security on the last day of the taxable year, irrespective of when during the taxable year such security actually became worthless. No deduction shall be allowed on account of the worthlessness of any security, as defined in section 165 (g) (2) and paragraph (b) of this section, which is recoverable only in part. For special rule for banks with respect to worthless securities, see section 582. For disallowance of deduction for worthlessness of securities to which section 165 (g) (2) (C) applies, if issued by a political party or similar organization, see section 271.

(b) Definition of security. As used in section 165 (g) and this section, the term "security" means a share of stock in a domestic or foreign corporation; a right to subscribe for or to receive such a share; or a bond, debenture, note, or certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness to pay a fixed or determinable sum of money, which has been issued at any time by a domestic or foreign corporation (including those issued by any government or political subdivision thereof), in registered form or with interest coupons.

(c) Loss on securities of affiliate—(1) In general. If a taxpayer is a domestic corporation and is affiliated, within the provisions of section 165 (g) (3) and subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, with another corporation, a security in such affiliated corporation owned by the taxpayer shall not be deemed to be a "capital asset" for the purpose of determining the loss under section 165 (g) from the worthlessness of such security. No deduction shall be allowed to the taxpayer with respect to any security which is recoverable only in part.

(2) Affiliated corporation defined. For the purpose of section 165 (g), a corporation shall be deemed to be affiliated with the taxpayer only if all the following factors are present:

(i) The taxpayer is a domestic corporation;

(ii) The taxpayer owns directly at least 95 percent of each class of the stock of such corporation; and

(iii) More than 90 percent of the aggregate of the gross receipts of such corporation for all the taxable years during which it has been in existence has been from sources other than royalties, rents (except rents derived from rental of properties to employees of the corporation in the ordinary course of its operating business), dividends, interest (except interest received on deferred purchase price of operating assets sold), annuities, and gains from sales or exchanges of stocks and securities. For the purposes of section 165 (g) (3) (B), gross receipts is the total amount of receipts before deduction of cost of goods sold. In computing gross receipts for the purposes of section 165 (g) (3) (B), gross receipts from sales or exchanges of stocks and securities shall be taken into account only to the extent of gains therefrom.

(3) Example. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Corporation P, a domestic manufacturing corporation which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, owns 100 percent of each class of the stock of Corporation S, and, in addition, 4 percent of the common stock (the only class of stock) of Corporation R which it acquired in 1948. Corporation S, a domestic manufacturing corporation which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, owns 96 percent of the common stock of Corporation R which it acquired in 1952. It is established that the stock of Corporation R which has from its inception derived all its gross receipts from manufacturing operations, became worthless during 1956. Since Corporation P does not own directly at least 95 percent of the stock of Corporation R, and thus for purposes of section 165 (g) (3) and this section is not affiliated with Corporation R, the stock of Corporation R is a capital asset. The loss upon the worthlessness of such stock will, under section 165 (g), be considered to be a loss from the sale or exchange of a capital asset. Since such stock was held for more than six months, such loss shall be considered a long-term capital loss as defined in section 1222 (see also section 1211). Since Corporation R is deemed to be affiliated with Corporation S for the purposes of section 165 (g) (3) and this paragraph, the stock of Corporation R is not a capital asset in the hands of Corporation S for the purposes of section 165 (g). Consequently, the loss upon such stock may, under section 165, be deducted as an ordinary loss and is not limited by the provisions of section 165 (g) or sections 1211 and 1212.

(4) Special rule. If a loss from the worthlessness of securities of an affiliated corporation would, under the provisions of section 165 (g) (1) and paragraph (a) of this section, be treated as a capital loss, the taxpayer may not convert such loss into an ordinary loss under this paragraph by the acquisition of additional securities in the affiliated corporation solely for the purpose of bringing the holdings of the taxpayer up to the minimum stock ownership requirement provided in section 165 (g) (3).

§ 1.166 Statutory provisions; bad debts.

SEC. 166. Bad debts—(a) General rule—(1) Wholly worthless debts. There shall be allowed as a deduction any debt which becomes worthless within the taxable year.

(2) Partially worthless debts. When satisfied that a debt is recoverable only in part, the Secretary or his delegate may allow such debt, in an amount not in excess of the part charged off within the taxable year, as a deduction.

(b) Amount of deduction. For purposes of subsection (a), the basis for determining the amount of the deduction for any bad debt shall be the adjusted basis provided in section 1011 for determining the loss from the sale or other disposition of property.

(c) Reserve for bad debts. In lieu of any deduction under subsection (a), there shall be allowed (in the discretion of the Secretary or his delegate) a deduction for a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts.

(d) Nonbusiness debts—(1) General rule. In the case of a taxpayer other than a corporation—

(A) Subsection (a) and (c) shall not apply to any nonbusiness debt; and

(B) Where any nonbusiness debt becomes worthless within the taxable year, the loss resulting therefrom shall be considered a loss from the sale of exchange, during the taxable year, of a capital asset held for not more than 6 months.

(2) Nonbusiness debt defined. For purposes of paragraph (1), the term "nonbusiness debt" means a debt other than—

(A) A debt created or acquired (as the case may be) in connection with a taxpayer's trade or business; or

(B) A debt the loss from the worthlessness of which is incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business.

(e) Worthless securities. This section shall not apply to a debt which is evidenced by a security as defined in section 165 (g) (2) (C).

(f) Guarantor of certain noncorporate obligations. A payment by the taxpayer (other than a corporation) in discharge of part or all of his obligation as a guarantor, endorser, or indemnitor of a noncorporate obligation the proceeds of which were used in the trade or business of the borrower shall be treated as a debt becoming worthless within such taxable year for purposes of this section (except that subsection (d) shall not apply), but only if the obligation of the borrower to the person to whom such payment was made was worthless (without regard to such guaranty, endorsement, or indemnity) at the time of such payment.

(g) Cross references. (1) For disallowance of deduction for worthlessness of debts owed by political parties and similar organizations, see section 271.

(2) For special rule for banks with respect to worthless securities, see section 582.

(3) For special rule for bad debt reserves of certain mutual savings banks, domestic building and loan associations, and cooperative banks, see section 593.

§ 1.66–1 Bad debts—(a) In general. Bad debts may be treated in either of two ways:

(1) By a deduction from income in respect of debts which become worthless in whole or in part, or

(2) By a deduction from income of an addition to a reserve for bad debts.

Taxpayers were given the option of selecting either of these two methods under the corresponding provisions of prior law, and the method elected under such corresponding provisions must be used in returns for all subsequent years unless permission is granted by the Commissioner to change to the other method. A taxpayer filing a first return of income may select either of the two methods subject to approval by the Commissioner upon examination of the return. If the method selected is approved, it must be followed in returns for all subsequent years except as permission may be granted by the Commissioner to change to another method. Application for permission to change the method of treating bad debts shall be made at least 30 days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective. (See also § 1.166-6.)

(b) Amount of deduction. The basis for determining the amount of the deduction under section 166 for any bad debt shall be the adjusted basis provided in section 1011 for determining the loss from the sale or other disposition of property.

(c) Partial and total worthlessness. (1) If, from all the surrounding and attending circumstances, the Commissioner is satisfied that a debt is partially worthless, the amount which has become worthless, to the extent charged off during the taxable year, shall be allowed as a deduction in computing taxable income. If a taxpayer claims a deduction for a part of a debt for the taxable year within which such part of the debt is charged off and such deduction is disallowed for such year and the debt becomes partially worthless subsequent to such year, a deduction may be allowed for a subsequent taxable year, not in excess of the amount charged off in the prior year plus any amount charged off in the subsequent year, the chargeoff in the prior year, if consistently maintained as such, being sufficient to that extent to meet the chargeoff requirement. Before a taxpayer may deduct a debt in part, he must be able to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Commissioner the amount thereof which is uncollectible and the part thereof which was charged off.

(2) If a debt becomes wholly worthless during the taxable year, the amount thereof which has not been allowed as a deduction for any prior taxable year shall be allowed as a deduction for the taxable year.

(3) There should accompany the return a statement of facts substantiating any deduction claimed for bad debts. Any amount subsequently received on account of a bad debt or on account of a part of such debt previous allowed as a deduction for income tax purposes must be included in gross income for the taxable year in which received, except to the extent excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 111. In determining whether a debt is worthless in whole or in part the Commissioner will consider all pertinent evidence, including the value of the collateral, if any, securing the debt and the financial condition of the debtor. Partial deductions will be allowed with respect to specific debts only.

(d) Evidence of worthlessness. Where the surrounding circumstances indicate that a debt is worthless and uncollectible and that legal action to enforce payment would in all probability not result in the satisfaction of execution on a judgment, a showing of these facts will be sufficient evidence of the worthlessness of the debt for the purpose of deduction. Bankruptcy is generally an indication of the worthlessness of at least a part of an unsecured and unpreferred debt. In bankruptcy cases a debt may become worthless before settlement in some instances, and in others only when a settlement in bankruptcy shall have been had. In either case the mere fact that bankruptcy proceedings instituted against the debtor are terminated in a later year, confirming the conclusion that the debt is worthless, will not authorize shifting the deductions to such later year. If a taxpayer computes his income upon the basis of valuing his notes or accounts receivable at their fair market value when received, which may be less than their face value, the amount deductible for bad debts in any case is limited to such original valuation.

(e) Rules for banks and banking corporations. Where banks or other corporations which are subject to supervision by Federal authorities (or by State authorities maintaining substantially equivalent standards) in obedience to the specific orders of such supervisory officers charge off debts in whole or in part, such debts shall, to the extent charged off during the taxable year, be conclusively presumed, for income tax purposes, to have become worthless or worthless only in part, as the case may be, during the taxable year. But no such debt shall be so conclusively presumed to be worthless or worthless only in part, as the case may be, if the amount so charged off is not claimed as a deduction by the taxpayer at the time of filing the return for the taxable year in which such chargeoff takes place. If a taxpayer does not claim a deduction in its return for such a totally or partially worthless debt for the year in which such chargeoff takes place, but claims such deduction for a later year, then such chargeoff in the prior year will be deemed to have been involuntary and the deduction shall be allowed for the year for which claimed, if the taxpayer produces sufficient evidence to show (1) that the debt became wholly worthless in such later year or became recoverable only in part subsequent to the year of such involuntary chargeoff, as the case may be, and (2) that, to the extent that the deduction claimed in the later year for a debt partially worthless was not involuntarily charged off in prior years, it was charged off in the later year.

(f) Applicability of rules. The provisions of paragraphs (a) to (d), inclusive, of this section apply generally to all taxpayers. However, they do not apply in the case of a taxpayer, other than a corporation, with respect to a nonbusiness debt as defined in section 166 (d) and § 1.166–7. Nor shall any deduction be allowed on account of the worthlessness of any debt of the type described in section 165 (g) (3) which is recoverable only in part. In the case of taxpayers other than banks as defined in section 581, the term "debts" as used in paragraphs (a) to (d), inclusive, of this section means obligations to pay fixed or determinable sums of money which are not evidenced by a security as defined in section 165 (g) (2) and § 1.165–7 (b). For disallowance of deduction for worthlessness of debts owed by political parties and similar organizations, see section 271.

§ 1.166–2 Examples of bad debts. Worthless debts arising from unpaid wages, salaries, rents, and similar items of taxable income will not be allowed as a deduction unless the income such items represent has been included in the return of income for the year for which the deduction as a bad debt is sought to be made or for a previous year. Only the difference between the amount received in distribution of the assets of a bankrupt and the amount of the claim may be deducted as a bad debt. The difference between the amount received by a creditor of a decedent in distribution of the assets of the decedent's estate and the amount of his claim may be considered a worthless debt. A purchaser of accounts receivable which become worthless is entitled to deduct them, the amount of deduction to be based upon the price he paid for them and not upon their face value.

§ 1.166–3 Uncollectible deficiency upon sale of mortgaged or pledged property. (a) If mortgaged or pledged property is lawfully sold (whether to the creditor or another purchaser) for less than the amount of the debt, and the portion of the indebtedness remaining unsatisfied after such sale is wholly or partially uncollectible, the mortgagee or pledgee may deduct such amount (to the extent that it constitutes capital or represents an item the income from which has been returned by him) as a bad debt for the taxable year in which it has become wholly worthless or is charged off as partially worthless. In addition, if the creditor buys in the mortgaged or pledged property, loss or gain is realized measured by the difference between the amount of those obligations of the debtor which are applied to the purchase or bid price of the property (to the extent that such obligations constitute capital or represent an item the income from which has been returned by him) and the fair market value of the property. The fair market value of the property shall be presumed to be the amount for which it is bid in by the taxpayer in the absence of clear and convincing proof to the contrary. If the creditor subsequently sells the property so acquired, the basis for determining gain or loss is the fair market value of the property at the date of acquisition.

(b) Accrued interest may be included as part of the deduction only if it has previously been returned as income.

§ 1.166–4 Worthless securities. No deduction is allowable under section 166 and this section to any taxpayer with respect to a debt evidenced by a security as defined in section 165 (g) (2) (C) which has become worthless in whole or in part. See, however, section 582 and the regulations thereunder for special rule for banks with respect to worthless securities.

§ 1.166–5 Bonds. (a) A bond issued by an individual, if it has become worthless, may be treated as a bad debt. A bond (whether or not a security) of an insolvent corporation secured only by a mortgage from which nothing is realized for the bondholders on foreclosure is regarded as having become worthless not later than the year of the foreclosure sale, and no deduction is allowable under either section 165 or 166 in computing a bondholder's income for a subsequent year.

(b) A taxpayer (other than a dealer in bonds or other similar obligations) possessing debts evidenced by bonds or other similar obligations (which are not securities as defined in section 165 (g) (2) (C)) cannot deduct from gross income any amount merely on account of market fluctuation. On the other hand, the taxpayer may, in computing taxable income, deduct the uncollectible part of a debt evidenced by bonds or other similar obligations if, owing to the financial condition of the debtor or to conditions other than market fluctuations, he will recover upon maturity only a part of the debt evidenced by such bonds or other similar obligations and he so demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Commissioner. In addition, the taxpayer must have made a proper chargeoff with respect to that part of the debt which is uncollectible. For deduction of bad debts of banks, see section 582.

§ 1.166–6 Reserve for bad debts—(a) In general. Taxpayers who have established the reserve method of treating bad debts and maintained proper reserve accounts for bad debts, or who, in accordance with § 1.166–1, adopt the reserve method of treating bad debts, may deduct from gross income a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts in lieu of a deduction for specific bad debt items.

(b) Reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts. What constitutes a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in the light of the facts, and will vary as between classes of business and with conditions of business prosperity. It will depend primarily upon the total amount of debts outstanding as of the close of the taxable year, those arising currently as well as those arising in prior taxable years, and the total amount of the existing reserve. In case subsequent realizations upon outstanding debts prove to be more or less than estimated at the time of the creation of the existing reserve, the amount of the excess or inadequacy in the existing reserve should be reflected in the determination of the reasonable addition necessary in the taxable year. A taxpayer using the reserve method should make a statement in his return showing the volume of charge sales (or other business transactions) for the year and the percentage of the reserve to such amount, the total amount of notes and accounts receivable at the beginning and close of the taxable year, and the amount of the debts which have become wholly or partially worthless and have been charged against the reserve account. For special rules for bad debt deserves of certain mutual savings banks, domestic building and loan associations, and cooperative banks, see section 593 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.166–7 Nonbusiness bad debts—(a) In general. In the case of a taxpayer, other than a corporation, if a nonbusiness bad debt becomes entirely worthless within the taxable year, the loss resulting therefrom shall be treated as a loss from the sale or exchange of a capital asset held for not more than six months. Such a loss is subject to the limitations provided in sections 1211 and 1212 with respect to gains and losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets. A loss with respect to such a debt will be treated as sustained only if and when the debt has become totally worthless, and no deduction shall be allowed for a nonbusiness debt which is recoverable in part during the taxable year.

(b) Definition. A nonbusiness debt is a debt other than one created or acquired in connection with a taxpayer's trade or business, without regard to the relationship of the debt to a trade or business of the taxpayer at the time that it becomes worthless, or other than a debt the loss from the worthlessness of which is incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business. The question whether a debt is one the loss from the worthlessness of which is incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business is a question of fact in each particular case. The determination of this question is substantially the same as that which is made for the purpose of ascertaining whether a loss from the type of transaction covered by section 165 is "incurred in trade or business" under section 165 (c) (1).

(c) Character of the debt. The application of this section shall depend upon the existence of a bona fide debt as distinguished from a gift or a contribution to the capital of a corporation. Once it is determined that there is a bona fide debt, the debt may be characterized either as a business bad debt or a nonbusiness bad debt depending upon the circumstances. The character of the debt for purposes of this section is controlled either by the circumstances attending its creation or by its subsequent acquisition by the taxpayer. Further, the character of the debt is determined by whether or not the loss resulting from the debt's becoming worthless was incurred in taxpayer's trade or business.

(d) Examples. The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

A, an individual engaged in the grocery business and who makes his income tax returns on the calendar year basis, extends credit on an open account to B in 1955:

(1) In 1956 A sells the business, but retains the claim against B. The claim becomes worthless in A's hands in 1957. A's loss is not controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions. Since the original consideration was advanced by A in his trade or business, the loss is treated as a business bad debt.

(2) In 1956 A sells the business to C, but sells the claim against B to the taxpayer, D. The claim becomes worthless in D's hands in 1957. D's loss is controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions, even though the original consideration was advanced by A in his trade or business, since the debt was not related to any trade or business of D either at the time he acquired it or at the time it became worthless.

(3) In 1956 A dies, leaving the business, including the accounts receivable, to his son, C, the taxpayer. The claim against B becomes worthless in C's hands in 1957. C's loss is not controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions. While C did not advance any consideration for the claim or acquire it in carrying on his trade or business, it was a debt the loss from the worthlessness of which was incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business.

(4) In 1956 A dies, leaving the business to his son, C, but leaves the claim against B to another son, D, the taxpayer. The claim against B becomes worthless in D's hands in 1957. D's loss is controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions, even though the original consideration was advanced by A in his trade or business, since the debt was not related to any trade or business of D either at the time he acquired it or at the time it became worthless.

(5) In 1956 A dies and while his executor, C, is carrying on the business, the claim against B becomes worthless in 1957. The loss sustained by A's estate is not controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions since the debt was acquired in connection with a trade or business of A's estate and it was also related to such trade or business at the time it became worthless.

(6) In 1956, A, in liquidating the business, attempts to collect the claim against B but finds that it has become worthless. A's loss is not controlled by the nonbusiness debt provisions, since a loss incurred in liquidating a trade or business is related thereto at the time it became worthless.

§ 1.166–8 Guarantors, endorsers, or indemnitors of certain noncorporate obligations. There may be deducted from gross income losses sustained by a noncorporate taxpayer through payment during the taxable year of part or all of his obligation as a guarantor, endorser, or indemnitor of a noncorporate obligation. In order to obtain a business bad debt deduction, the taxpayer must establish that the proceeds of the loan were used in the trade or business of the borrower and that the obligation of the borrower, to the person to whom the taxpayer made payment in discharge of his guarantor's obligation, was worthless at the time of such payment without regard to the guaranty, endorsement, or indemnity. The terms guarantor, endorser, and indemnitor include not only those persons having collateral obligations as guarantors or endorsers but also those persons having direct obligations as indemnitors. The application of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A is a guarantor of an obligation of B, an individual, to C, the proceeds of which were used in B's trade or business. B defaults on his obligation. A makes payment in discharge of his obligation as guarantor at a time when the obligation of the borrower to C is worthless. A may claim a business bad debt deduction.

Example (2). A is a guarantor of an obligation of B, an individual, to C, the proceeds of which were used in B's trade or business. B pays a portion of the obligation but defaults on the remainder. A makes payment, in discharge of his obligation as guarantor, of the remaining unpaid portion of the debt at a time when the obligation of the borrower as to such unpaid balance is worthless. A may claim a business bad debt deduction for the remaining portion of the debt which he pays in discharge of his obligation.

Example (3). A is a guarantor of an obligation of B, an individual, to C, the proceeds of which were used for B's personal use. B defaults on the obligation. A makes payment in discharge of his obligation as guarantor for the entire amount of the debt. Assuming that A is not regularly engaged in the business of lending money, A may not take a business bad debt deduction because the proceeds of the loan were not used in B's trade or business.

COAL PERMITS, LEASES AND LICENSES

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Interior under sections 2 to 8, inclusive, of the act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 438 et seq., 30 U. S. C. 201, 202–208), as amended, it is proposed to amend certain sections of the coal regulations approved March 27, 1951, as amended September 7, 1955. The proposed amendment of the sections is set forth below.

Interested persons may submit, in triplicate, written comments, suggestions, or objections with respect to the proposed amendment of the sections to the Bureau of Land Management, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days from date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

WESLEY A. D'EWART,
Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

JUNE 27, 1956.

Sections 193.9 and 193.14 are revised; §§ 193.10 and 193.17 are amended; the present text of § 193.24 is designated as paragraph (a) and a new paragraph (b) added thereto; and paragraph (c) of § 193.25 is amended and new paragraphs (d) and (e) added thereto, as follows:

1. Section 193.9 is revised to read:

§ 193.9 Lease bond. A compliance bond, in no event less than $1,000, with approved corporate surety (Form 4–1113), or the lessee's personal bond in similar amount (Form 4–1114), will be required prior to the issuance of a lease. Personal bonds must be accompanied by negotiable Federal securities in the amount of the bond. If the amount of the bond is fixed at $1,000, the lessee may, instead, furnish a bond on Form 4–1113 with two qualified individual sureties, as provided in § 191.13 of this subchapter. The right is reserved at any time before or after issuance of the lease to require an increase of the amount of the bond, whether a corporate, personal or individual surety bond, in any case where the Bureau of Land Management deems it proper to do so.

2. Section 193.10 is amended to read:

§ 193.10 Minimum production. Leases shall be conditioned upon the payment of a royalty on a minimum annual production beginning with the sixth year of the lease, except when operation is interrupted by strikes, the elements, or casualties not attributable to the lessee, unless, on application and showing made, operations shall be suspended when market conditions are such that the lease cannot be operated except at a loss or for the other reasons specified in section 39 of the act.[1] Operations under the lease shall be continuous except in the circumstances described or unless the lessee shall pay a royalty, less rent, on the minimum production for one year in advance, in which case operations may be suspended for that year.

3. Section 193.14 is revised to read:

§ 193.14 Sale; bidding requirements, action by successful bidder. (a) When the sale is by public auction, before bidding is commenced by those persons present, the Manager or other officer conducting the sale will open and read to those persons the sealed bids received on or before the time set in the notice of lease offer. The successful bidder at a sale by public auction must on the day of sale deposit with the Manager or other officer conducting the sale and each bidder at a sale by sealed bid must submit with his bid, the following: Certified check, cashier's check, bank draft, money order or cash for one-fifth of the amount of the bid by him, and a statement over the bidder's own signature with respect to citizenship and interests held, similar to that prescribed in § 193.11 (a) (2) and (3).

(b) Upon receipt of the high bid at, and at the close of, an oral auction, or the opening of the sealed bids, the authorized officer, subject to his right to reject any and all bids, will award the lease to the successful bidder, who will be notified accordingly. If the land is surveyed, four lease forms will be sent to the successful bidder, who will be required within 30 days from receipt thereof to execute them, pay the balance of the bonus bid, the first year's rental, and the cost of publication of the notice of lease offer as specified in § 193.13, and file a bond as required by § 193.9. The lease will be dated as of the first day of the month following its issuance unless the successful bidder requests that it be dated as of the first day of the month of issuance. If the land is unsurveyed, the successful bidder will not be required to comply with the requirements of this subsection until the land has been surveyed and the plat of such survey accepted and officially filed. Such survey will be at the expense of the Government. If the bidder, after being awarded a lease, fails to execute it or otherwise comply with the applicable regulations, his deposit will be forfeited and disposed of as other receipts under the Mineral Leasing Act. If the lease awarded to the successful bidder, is executed by an attorney acting in behalf of the bidder, the lease must be accompanied by evidence that the bidder authorized the attorney to execute the lease. If the bidder dies before the lease is issued, there must be furnished satisfactory evidence, such as specified in § 193.24 (b), in order that the Manager of the appropriate land office may determine to whom the lease may be issued.

[1] See showing required under § 191.26 of this subchapter.

4. Section 193.17 is amended to read:

§ 193.17 Relinquishment of lease. Upon a satisfactory showing that the public interest will not be impaired, the lessee may surrender the entire lease or any legal subdivision thereof. A relinquishment must be filed in duplicate in the appropriate land office. Upon its acceptance it shall be effective as of the date it is filed, subject to the continued obligation of the lessee and his surety to make payment of all accrued rentals and royalties and to provide for the preservation of any mines or productive works or permanent improvements on the leased lands in accordance with the regulations and terms of the lease.

5. The present text of § 193.24 is designated paragraph (a) and a new paragraph (b) added, as follows:

§ 193.24 Reward for discovery. (a) • • •

(b) If the permittee dies before the lease is issued, the lease will be issued to the executor or administrator of the estate if probate of the estate has not been completed; if probate has been completed, or is not required, to the heirs or devisees; and if there are minor heirs or devisees, to their legal guardian or trustee in his name, provided there is filed in all cases the following information:

(1) Where probate of the estate has not been completed:

(i) Evidence that the person, who as executor or administrator submits forms of lease and bond, has authority to act in that capacity and to sign such forms.

(ii) Evidence that the heirs or devisees are the heirs or devisees of the deceased permittees and are the only heirs or devisees of the deceased.

(iii) A statement over the signature of each heir or devisee concerning citizenship and holdings similar to that required by § 193.11 (a) (2) and (3).

(2) Where the executor or administrator has been discharged or no probate proceedings are required:

(i) A certified copy of the will or decree of distribution, if any, and if not, a statement signed by the heirs that they are the only heirs of the permittees and citing the provisions of the law of the deceased's last domicile showing no probate is required.

(ii) A statement over the signature of each of the heirs or devisees with reference to citizenship and holdings similar to that required by § 193.11 (a) (2) and (3), except that if the heir or devisee is a minor, the statement must be over the signature of the guardian or trustee.

(3) Where there is a legal guardian or trustee:

(i) A certified copy of the court order authorizing the guardian or trustee to act as such and to fulfill in behalf of the minor or minors all obligations of the lease or arising thereunder; statements by the guardian or trustee as to the citizenship and holdings of each of the minors and as to his own citizenship and holdings, including his holdings for the benefit of other minors similar to that required by § 193.11 (a) (2) and (3).

6. Paragraph (c) of § 193.25 is amended and new paragraphs (d) and (e) added, as follows:

§ 193.25 Transfers, including subleases.

(c) An application for approval of any instrument transferring a lease or permit, or interest therein, must be accompanied by a service fee of $10. An application not accompanied by such a fee will not be accepted. The fee will not be returned even though the application is later withdrawn or rejected.

(d) No transfer will be approved if the transferee is not qualified to take and hold a permit or lease or if his bond is insufficient. A minor, except a minor heir or devisee of a permittee or lessee, is not qualified to hold a permit or lease and a transfer to a minor will not be approved.

(e) In order for the heirs or devisees of a deceased holder of a permit or lease, an operating agreement, or a royalty interest in a permit or lease, to be recognized by the Secretary as the holder of the permit or lease, agreement or interest, there must be furnished the appropriate showing required under § 193.-24 (b).

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[7 CFR Part 973]

[Docket No. AO-178-A8]

MILK IN MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL, MINN., MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the act, and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota, marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business on the 5th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing on the record of which the proposed marketing agreement and the order amending the order, as amended, were formulated was conducted at Minneapolis, Minnesota, on April 26, 1956, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on April 18, 1956 (21 F. R. 2604).

The only material issues of record related to modifying the definition of "base milk" and revising the base rules to make the base plan more effective in leveling out seasonal production in the market.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the issues of record are based upon the evidence in the record.

1. In § 973.17 which defines the term "base milk", the phrase "on which the milk was produced" should be deleted.

The order now requires that a volume of milk at least equal to his earned base be delivered to a pool plant from each day's production if the producer is to receive the maximum return for his base milk. The intent of this requirement was to prevent producers from shipping a volume of milk equal to their bases for the entire delivery period during a portion of the delivery period and sending their milk to a nonpool plant for the remainder of the delivery period. This practice should not develop to any great extent, certainly not to the point where it would endanger a supply of milk for the month. Since the base plan is effective only during the months of relatively flush production, it is unlikely that a producer could find a market for such milk, other than at a manufacturing plant, as his milk would be available to such an outlet during only a portion of the month. Since manufacturing plants would pay approximately the excess price provided by the order there would be little incentive for producers to seek such an outlet.

The proponents of the amendment stated that the deletion of this phrase would effect very great savings in the man hours required to compute producer payrolls. The market administrator testified that a similar savings would be made in his office and that elimination of the phrase in question would greatly expedite the computation of the pool each month. It is now necessary to check each producer's deliveries for each day to determine whether he shipped for that particular day an amount equal to his daily base. Under the amendment, it would be necessary only to check the producer's total deliveries for the month against the producer's daily base multiplied by the number of days in the delivery period.

The savings that would be accomplished in the offices of the handlers and of the market administrator would outweigh any disadvantages that might occur as a result of the amendment.

2. The base-forming period should be changed to include the month of July.

The month of July is now a month of relatively short production and in some years July production is no greater than production during the month of October. The addition of July to the base-forming period will provide an incentive for producers to increase their production at this season of the year and help to eliminate the shortage which sometimes has made it necessary to import emergency supplies during July in years past. Since it is too late for producers to change their production pattern for the year 1956, the addition of July to the base-forming period should be postponed until the year 1957. This will provide producers with a whole year's notice that their deliveries during July will be used in computing their bases for the following year.

3. The elimination of the provision under which a new producer, who commences to deliver his milk to the market after the base-forming period, is allotted a base, was proposed. Its proponents argued that since several weeks and perhaps months, may elapse between the time the farmer decides to equip his farm to produce Grade A milk and the issuance of his Grade A permit, a farmer contemplating such a move should plan to do so only when the market is in short supply and in need of additional production, and that permitting such a producer to acquire a base other than by the purchase of an existing base would be unfair to base-holding producers and would lower their returns by increasing the supply of milk going into manufacturing dairy products.

A market as short of milk as the Minneapolis-St. Paul market has been in recent years might well need milk which might be furnished by a new producer at the end of the base-forming period. It should be noted that dairy farmers, already producing Grade A milk, may become producers under the order if the plant to which they have been furnishing milk qualifies as a pool plant. This may happen without the prior knowledge of these farmers. It would be inequitable to penalize them by requiring them to take the excess price for their entire production because the plant to which they shipped their milk became a pool plant under the Minneapolis-St. Paul order during the base-paying period or so late in the base-forming period that such producer would have shipped only a few days' production on which to establish a base. Accordingly, it is concluded that producers who do not ship to a pool plant during the base-forming period or who ship during only a small portion of it should be allotted bases. These bases, however, should be somewhat less than those provided in the current order for new producers.

The present provisions of the order have, with respect to the bases allotted to new producers, worked against the purpose of the base plan. Payment to a new producer for 40 percent of his deliveries at the base price will afford a more workable basis for distinguishing between producers who have supplied the market in the fall as compared with those who have not. Such a percentage will encourage the individual farmer who chooses to become a producer to do so during the base-forming period in order that he may secure as large a base as possible. At the same time, it will permit producers coming on the market at other times to obtain a base and will not constitute a deterrent to nonpool plants to qualify as pool plants, as might be the case if all of the milk received from farmers at any such plant were to be priced as excess milk.

A new producer who ships less than 40 days' production during the base-forming period (32 days during the base-forming period of 1956) should be allotted the same base as a producer who commences delivery of milk to the market after the base-forming period has ended. Otherwise, the producer who delivered less than 40 days' milk to the market during the base-forming period would have a base equal to less than 40 percent of his deliveries since the bases are determined by dividing a producer's deliveries by the number of days for which delivery is made but not less than 90 (78 in 1956). A base thus computed would be smaller than the producer would obtain by waiting until the end of the base-forming period to commence deliveries to the market. This would create inequity and would increase the difficulty of the market's securing additional milk should it be needed in late September or October.

4. It was also proposed that the provision whereby a producer could relinquish his base earned during the base-forming period and earn a new base as a new producer should be deleted.

The effectiveness of the base plan in leveling out production has been adversely affected by the ease with which producers could establish a new base. Many producers who produce little or no milk during the base-forming period when the market is in short supply and importing emergency milk have been able to secure new bases substantially greater than those of producers who have produced milk during the months when the market needs it. Producers who have permitted their herds to dry up during the summer and fall when field work and harvest are at their peaks, and produced very substantial quantities of milk during the winter and spring months when production is flush, have greatly increased the amount of base milk on the market during the present base-paying period and have substantially decreased the price of base milk. This has created considerable unrest among those producers who have adjusted their production to the needs of the market.

Unless some modification of the present provision is effected, many of these producers will be encouraged to abandon the practices they have followed to level out their production in accordance with the requirements of the market and will tend to become "grass producers" again. Continuation of the present provision would threaten the supply of milk for the market during the summer and fall months.

Preventing any producer from establishing a new base would work an undue hardship on producers who, through circumstances beyond their control such as fire, lightening, disease, etc., were unable to establish a satisfactory base in the base-forming period. Such a producer should be permitted to establish a base equal to that granted to a new producer. Because of the difficulty of identifying or defining what constitutes a hardship, the provision should apply to all producers who have earned a base. The much smaller base provided in the proposed amendment will not provide the incentive for relinquishment that is found in the present order. Likewise it should be provided that a producer who desires to relinquish his base shall notify the market administrator prior to the beginning of the base-paying period. This will provide ample protection to the producer who suffered hardship during the base-forming period and will eliminate the consent recomputation of bases which occurred during the entire base-paying period this year.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as and will be applicable only to persons in their respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs were filed containing statements of fact, proposed findings and conclusions and arguments with respect to the provision of the proposed amendments. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions contained in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this recommended decision.

Recommended marketing agreement and order. The following order amending the order, as amended, is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which these conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not included because the regulatory provisions thereof would be the same as those contained in the order.

1. Amend § 973.17 by deleting the words "on which the milk was produced" at the end of said section.

2. Amend § 973.75 to read as follows:

§ 973.75 Determination of base for each producer. (a) Any producer who delivers milk representing at least 40 days' production to a pool plant during the delivery periods of July, August, September and October shall have a base computed by the market administrator to be applicable during the following January through June equal to the total pounds of milk delivered in the four-month period divided by the number of days of production represented by such deliveries during such period but not less than 90: Provided, That for the year 1956 the base-forming period shall be the delivery periods of August, September and October and the base of a producer shall be determined by dividing his total deliveries during the three-month period by the number of days of production represented by such deliveries but not less than 78, and

(b) Any producer who commences delivery to a pool plant less than 40 days prior to the end of the base-forming period (32 days during the base-forming period of 1956), or who commences delivery to a pool plant after the base-forming period, shall have a base for each of the months of January through June equal to 40 percent of such producer's deliveries to a pool plant during such month.

3. Delete § 973.76 and substitute therefore the following:

§ 973.76 Establishing new bases. Any producer for whom a base has been established pursuant to § 973.75 (a) may relinquish such base for the following base-paying period by notifying the market administrator prior to December 31. The daily base of such producer shall then be determined pursuant to § 973.75 (b).

Filed at Washington, D. C., this 28th day of June 1956.

RICHARD FLESCHNER IMPORT-EXPORT AND HANS WOLFF EXPORT-IMPORT

ORDER TEMPORARILY REVOKING AND DENYING EXPORT PRIVILEGES

In the matter of Richard Fleschner Import-Export, Uhlandstrasse 52, Berlin W. 15—Wilmersdorf, Federal Republic of Germany. Hans Wolff Export-Import, Nussbaumallee 33 W., Berlin—Charlottenburg 9, Federal Republic of Germany, respondents.

The Investigation Staff of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, United States Department of Commerce, applied to the Compliance Commissioner, pursuant to the provisions of § 382.11 of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce Export Regulations (Title 15, Chapter III, Subchapter C, Code of Federal Regulations), for an order temporarily suspending Richard Fleschner Import-Export and Hans Wolff Export-Import from all United States export privileges pending completion of an investigation of violations of the export regulations involving said individuals.

The Compliance Commissioner, having considered the evidence submitted in support of said application, has recommended that the temporary suspension order requested by the Investigation Staff be issued. There is reasonable ground to believe from the supporting evidence and the memorandum of the Compliance Commissioner that the respondents Fleschner and Wolff, with knowledge that Fleschner had contracted to sell certain automobiles, trucks and equipment to a firm in Moscow, Russia, and with knowledge that such commodities might not be exported to that destination without a validated United States export license, ordered and had shipped from the United States the said commodities under general license upon the representation that the purchaser and ultimate consignee thereof was Fleschner in West Germany, and further, that Fleschner and Wolff, having obtained control of three automobiles so shipped and being in a position where they may obtain control of five trucks and equipment, intend to ship the said vehicles and equipment to Moscow in defiance of warnings that such shipment will be in violation of United States Export Control Regulations.

It appears further that an investigation of the foregoing matters is presently being conducted by the Investigation Staff and that pending the completion thereof it would be contrary to the public interest to permit said respondents or persons and firms associated with them to participate in any further exportations from the United States; and that the temporary suspension hereinafter provided is reasonable and necessary to protect the public interest pending completion of the aforementioned investigation: Now, therefore, it is ordered as follows:

(1) All outstanding validated export licenses in which respondents, Fleschner and Wolff, appear or participate as purchaser, intermediate consignee, ultimate consignee, or otherwise, are hereby revoked and shall be returned forthwith to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for cancellation.

(2) The said respondents, Fleschner and Wolff, their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons and firms associated with them, are hereby denied all privileges of participating directly or indirectly in any manner, form or capacity in an exportation of any commodity from the United States to any foreign destination, including Canada, whether such exportation has heretofore or hereafter been completed. Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing, participation in an exportation shall include and prohibit respondents' participation (a) as parties or as representatives of a party to any validated export license application; (b) in the obtaining or using of any validated or general export license or other export control document; (c) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, delivering or disposing of any commodities in whole or in part exported or to be exported from the United States; and (d) in the financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of exports from the United States.

(3) Such denial of export privileges shall apply not only to the said respondents, but also to any other person, firm, corporation, or business organization with which the respondents may be now or hereafter related by ownership, control, position of responsibility, or other connection in the conduct of trade which may involve exports from the United States or services connected therewith.

(4) This order shall take effect forthwith and shall remain in effect pending the completion of the investigation and the determination of any compliance proceeding which may be instituted against respondents, except insofar as it may be hereafter extended, amended, or modified in accordance with the provisions of the export regulations.

(5) No person, firm, corporation, or other business organization, within the United States or elsewhere, and whether or not engaged in trade relating to exports from the United States, shall, without prior disclosure of the facts to, and specific authorization from, the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, directly or indirectly in any manner, form or capacity (a) apply for, obtain, transfer, or use any license, shipper's export declaration, bill of lading, or other export control document relating to any exportation of commodities from the United States, or (b) order, receive, buy, sell, use, deliver, dispose of, finance, transport, forward, or otherwise service or participate in an exportation from the United States, or in a reexportation of any commodity exported from the United States, with respect to which any of the persons or companies within the scope of paragraphs (2) and (3) hereinabove receive any benefit or have any interest or participation of any kind or nature, direct or indirect.

(6) A certified copy of this order shall be served upon the said respondents.

(7) In accordance with the provisions of § 382.11 (c) of the export regulations, the respondents may move at any time to vacate or modify this temporary suspension order by filing an appropriate motion therefor, supported by evidence, with the Compliance Commissioner and may request oral hearing thereon, which, if requested, shall be held before the Compliance Commissioner at Washington, D. C., at the earliest possible date.

PERMIAN BASIN PIPELINE CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

JUNE 27, 1956.

Take notice that Permian Basin Pipeline Company (Applicant), a Delaware corporation with principal office at 2223 Dodge Street, Omaha, Nebraska, filed, on April 23, 1956, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to section 7 (c) of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing Applicant to construct and operate certain natural gas facilities as hereinafter described in addition to those heretofore authorized in this docket for the purpose of taking natural gas from Phillips Petroleum Company at its Andrews Gasoline Plant, Andrews County, Texas, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Said application was filed as a petition to amend the findings and order of the Commission issued on March 30, 1956, In the Matters of Permian Basin Pipeline Company et al. in Docket No. G–9688 et al. This order authorized Permian, inter alia, to construct and operate five 1,350 horsepower compressor units at the aforesaid Gasoline Plant.

In Docket No. G–10450 Permian seeks authorization to remove five of its existing 1,350 horsepower compressor units now located at its Spraberry Compressor Station as authorized in Docket No. G–1928 for the purpose of complying with the authorization granted by Commission order on March 30, 1956 in Docket No. G–9688.

Applicant now proposes in Docket No. G–9688 to construct and operate an additional five 1,350 horsepower compressor units at the aforesaid Gasoline Plant.

Applicant states that the estimated cost of the proposed compressor facilities is approximately $1,276,000 which will be financed by short-term borrowing; that approximately 50,000 Mcf of gas per day will be available to Applicant in 1956; that these five additional units will enable Applicant to receive a total of 50,000 Mcf of residue gas per day from Phillips in Andrews County; that the additional volumes of gas so obtained will be used to further supplement Applicant's existing gas supply; and that the purchase of this additional gas by Applicant provides a market for residue gas which would otherwise either remain in the ground or, if permitted, be flared.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on Thursday, July 19, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before July 14, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

UNITED GAS PIPE LINE CO. AND TENNESSEE GAS TRANSMISSION CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS AND DATE OF HEARING

JUNE 27, 1956.

Take notice that United Gas Pipe Line Company (United), a Delaware corporation with principal place of business at 1525 Fairfield Avenue, Shreveport, Louisiana, filed in Docket No. G–10203 on April 5, 1956, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to section 7 (c) of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing United to render service as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully described in the application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Concurrently therewith, Tennessee Gas Transmission Company (Tennessee), a Delaware corporation with principal place of business at Commerce Building, Houston, Texas, filed in Docket No. G–10204 on April 5, 1956, an application for permission to abandon service, pursuant to section 7 (b) of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing Tennessee to terminate service as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

United proposes to construct and operate, as an integral part of its existing natural gas system, certain natural gas facilities as hereinafter described which are necessary to the delivery and sale of natural gas in interstate commerce by United, and, to sell and deliver natural gas in interstate commerce pursuant to its Form A Service Agreement and G–C Rate Schedule, FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, to the Town of Chatham (Chatham), Jackson Parish, Louisiana, for resale in said Town. Chatham is presently being served by Tennessee.

The facilities proposed to be constructed and operated by United out of current working funds at an estimated cost of $4,615 consist of a 2-inch tap together with a meter and regulator station and appurtenant facilities to be located near Milepost No. 410 on United's 30-inch Magasco-Sterlington line.

United estimates its proposed sale of natural gas to Chatham at 14.73 p. s. i. a. for the first three years as follows: First year, 29,394 Mcf; second year, 30,396 Mcf; third year, 30,750 Mcf.

Tennessee proposes, at the request of Chatham, to abandon the sale of natural gas in interstate commerce to Chatham for resale in said Town and to dismantle its existing natural gas facilities installed at the Chatham sales meter station which represents a total investment of approximately $5,718. This natural gas service is proposed to be abandoned as soon as other substitute gas service is made available to Chatham.

The applications state that this change of service is mutually agreeable to United, Tennessee and Chatham and that Tennessee is presently serving Chatham under the terms of a Gas Sales Contract dated March 30, 1955, which provides for the sale and delivery of Chatham's requirements up to a maximum of 250 Mcf per day.

These related matters should be heard on a consolidated record and disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on Thursday, July 19, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such applications: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicants to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before July 14, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 812–1011]

B. S. F. Co.

NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING ON APPLICATION FOR ORDER DECLARING THAT COMPANY IS NOT AN INVESTMENT COMPANY

JUNE 27, 1956.

Notice is hereby given that B. S. F. Company ("BSF"), a registered management closed-end, non-diversified investment company, has filed an application and an amendment thereto, pursuant to section 3 (b) (2) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("act"), for an order declaring it to be engaged primarily in a business or businesses other than that of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in securities.

The application states that BSF is a Delaware corporation, organized on August 10, 1955, and is the surviving corporation of the merger of B. S. F. Company, a Pennsylvania corporation ("Pennsylvania Corporation") into BSF on September 30, 1955. On December 13, 1954, Pennsylvania Corporation changed its name from Birdsboro Steel Foundry & Machine Company to B. S. F. Company. Prior to a sale of its assets in December 1954, Pennsylvania Corporation was engaged in business as a steel foundry and machine manufacturer. Following the sale of assets, it was decided to continue Pennsylvania Corporation in existence.

From the proceeds of the sale of assets, $236,030 was expended to purchase 12,300 shares of stock of the company on the American Stock Exchange, and $1,881,030 was expended to purchase 93,564 shares as a result of a tender offer, invitations for which were issued April 20, 1955. The tender offer specifically stated that the remaining cash and other assets would be employed to purchase securities and, if appropriate opportunity were presented, substantial, controlling, or entire interests in one or more going businesses.

BSF filed its Notification of Registration on August 12, 1955, and in its registration statement filed in December 1955, made the following statement:

> Registrant's primary purpose is to control and operate various industries, either by registrant itself or through subsidiaries. Registrant's intent is to cease to be an investment company and to enter a business other than investment in securities. Control of industrial operations, specifically factoring and hardware, is registrant's primary activity—not the business of investing. Accordingly, registrant specifically intends to apply for an exemption order under Section 3 (b) (2) of the Act, since registrant is not engaged in the business of investing, reinvesting, borrowing, holding, or trading in securities.

In the prospectus covering a recent offering of 92,636 additional shares of capital stock, reference was made to the above-quoted statement.

The company announced to its stockholders on August 29, 1955, that it was the intention that its assets be devoted to the acquisition of "control of various businesses, as and when such businesses are available."

In March 1955, the company began acquiring common stock of The American Hardware Corporation ("Hardware"). As of May 1, 1956, the company's holdings of Hardware stock totalled 151,961 shares, or 25.56 percent of the outstanding stock thereof.

It is stated in the application that BSF is the largest single stockholder of Hardware, that Hardware has a total of 5,000 stockholders, and except for BSF no stockholder owns more than 5 percent of the outstanding stock. Four members of the Board of Directors of BSF are also on the twelve man Board of Directors of Hardware and one of these directors is also President of Hardware. It is also stated that the officers and directors of BSF have developed a close working relationship with the management and management directors of Hardware; take an active part in the affairs of Hardware and have conducted various negotiations on Hardware's behalf and have actively participated in the making of its important policy decisions.

BSF also contends that through its subsidiary, New York Factors, Inc., the company is engaged in the business of factoring. The company has invested $361,512 to acquire all the preferred stock and 78 percent of the common stock of New York Factors, Inc., and the remaining 22 percent is under contract to the company. BSF is contingently liable for all present and future debts and liabilities of the subsidiary and recently loaned $300,000 to the subsidiary.

Section 3 (a) (3) of the act defines an investment company as one which is engaged or proposes to engage in the business of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in securities, and owns or proposes to acquire investment securities having a value exceeding 40 percent of the value of the company's total assets (exclusive of Government securities and cash items) on an unconsolidated basis. For purposes of this section, "investment securities" are defined as including all securities except Government securities, securities issued by employees' securities companies and securities issued by majority-owned subsidiaries which are not investment companies.

Section 3 (b) (2) of the act provides, that, notwithstanding section 3 (a) (3), the term "investment company" does not include a person whom the Commission upon application finds and by order declares to be primarily engaged in a business or businesses other than that of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding or trading in securities either directly or through majority-owned subsidiaries or through controlled companies conducting similar types of businesses.

BSF is an investment company in accordance with the statistical definition of section 3 (a) (3) of the act. At April 30, 1956, BSF's total assets (exclusive of Government securities and cash items) had a value of $3,691,893. The value of its majority-owned subsidiary, as determined by the Board of Directors, was $500,000 or approximately 13.5 percent of total assets (exclusive of Government securities and cash items). Investment securities (mainly the stock of Hardware), had a value of $3,162,222 or 85.7 percent of total assets.

For the three months ending March 31, 1956, BSF's total income was $47,932, of which $17,600 or 36.7 percent was derived from its investment in its majority-owned subsidiary and $30,333 or 63.3 percent from its investment in Hardware.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors that a hearing be held with respect to the application pursuant to section 3 (b) (2);

It is ordered, Pursuant to section 40 (a) of the act, that a hearing on the aforesaid application under the applicable provisions of the act, and of the rules of the Commission thereunder be held on the 12th day of July 1956, at 10:00 a. m., in the offices of the Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At such time the Hearing Room Clerk will advise as to the room in which such hearing will be held. It is further ordered, That Edward C. Johnson, or any officer or officers of the Commission, designated by it for that purpose, shall preside at said hearing. The officer so designated is hereby authorized to exercise all the powers granted to the Commission under sections 41 and 42 (b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

The Division of Corporate Regulation having advised the Commission that it has made a preliminary examination of the application, and that upon the basis thereof the following matters and questions are presented for consideration, without prejudice to its specifying additional matters and questions upon further examination:

(1) Whether BSF is an investment company within the definition of section 3 (a) (3) of the act;

(2) Whether BSF is primarily engaged in the hardware business through its ownership of 25.56 percent of the voting stock of American Hardware;

(3) Whether BSF is primarily engaged in the factoring business through its ownership of 78 percent of the voting stock of New York Factors, Inc.; and

(4) Whether, pursuant to the terms of section 8 (f) of the act, an order should be issued declaring that BSF has ceased to be an investment company and that its registration as such shall cease to be in effect and whether it is necessary for the protection of investors that any appropriate conditions should be provided in such order.

It is further ordered, That at the aforesaid hearing attention be given to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commisson shall give notice of the aforesald hearing by mailing a copy of this notice and order by registered mail to BSF and that notice to all other persons be given by publication of this notice and order in the FEDERAL REGISTER and that a general release of this Commission in respect of this notice and order be distributed to the press and mailed to the mailing list for releases.

By the Commission.

[Rev. S. O. 562, Taylor's I. C. C. Order 72]

LACKAWANNA & WYOMING VALLEY RAILROAD CO.

DIVERSION OR REROUTING OF TRAFFIC

In the opinion of Charles W. Taylor, Agent, the Lackawanna & Wyoming Valley Railroad Company (E. McClain Watters, Trustee), because of derailment, is unable to transport traffic routed over and to points on its line: It is ordered, That:

(a) Rerouting traffic: The Lackawanna & Wyoming Valley Railroad Company, and its connections, is hereby authorized to divert or reroute such traffic over any available route to expedite the movement, regardless of routing shown on the waybill. The billing covering all such cars rerouted shall carry a reference to this order as authority for the rerouting.

(b) Concurrence of receiving roads to be obtained: The railroads desiring to divert or reroute traffic under this order shall confer with the proper transportation officer of the railroad or railroads to which such traffic is to be diverted or rerouted, and shall receive the concurrence of such other railroads before the rerouting or diversion is ordered.

(c) Notification to shippers: The carriers rerouting cars in accordance with this order shall notify each shipper at the time each car is rerouted or diverted and shall furnish to such shipper the new routing provided under this order.

(d) Inasmuch as the diversion or rerouting of traffic by said Agent is deemed to be due to carrier's disability, the rates applicable to traffic diverted or rerouted by said Agent shall be the rates which were applicable at the time of shipments on the shipments as originally routed.

(e) In executing the directions of the Commission and of such Agent provided for in this order, the common carriers involved shall proceed even though no contracts, agreements, or arrangements now exist between them with reference to the divisions of the rates of transportation applicable to said traffic; divisions shall be, during the time this order remains in force, those voluntarily agreed upon by and between said carriers; or upon failure of the carriers to so agree, said divisions shall be those hereafter fixed by the Commission in accordance with pertinent authority conferred upon it by the Interstate Commerce Act.

(f) Effective date: This order shall become effective at 3:00 p. m., June 25, 1956.

(g) Expiration date: This order shall expire at 11:59 p. m., June 27, 1956, unless otherwise modified, changed, suspended or annulled.

It is further ordered, That this order shall be served upon the Association of American Railroads, Car Service Division, as agent of all railroads subscribing to the car service and per diem agreement under the terms of the agreement and by filing it with the Director, Division of the Federal Register.

Chief of the Plant Pest Control Branch that adequate sanitation measures have been practiced for a sufficient length of time to eradicate the khapra beetle in and upon such premises. It also adds additional premises to the list of premises in which khapra beetle infestations have been determined to exist, and designates such premises as regulated areas under the khapra beetle quarantine and regulations.

This amendment in part imposes restrictions supplementing khapra beetle quarantine regulations already effective. It also relieves restrictions insofar as it revokes the designation of presently regulated areas. It must be made effective promptly in order to carry out the purposes of the regulations and to permit unrestricted movement of regulated products from the premises being removed from designation as regulated areas. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administration Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the foregoing amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making the effective date thereof less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 959—IRISH POTATOES GROWN IN MODOC AND SISKIYOU COUNTIES, CALIF., AND IN ALL COUNTIES IN OREGON, EXCEPT MALHEUR COUNTY

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 959.314 Limitation of shipments—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to Marketing Agreement No. 114, as amended, and Order No. 59 as amended (7 CFR Part 959; 20 F. R. 7068), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in Modoc and Siskiyou Counties in California and in all counties in Oregon, except Malheur County, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Oregon-California Potato Committee, established pursuant to said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that (i) the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, (ii) more orderly marketing in the public interest, than would otherwise prevail, will be promoted by regulating the shipment of potatoes, in the manner set forth below, on and after the effective date of this section, (iii) compliance with this section will not require any preparation on the part of handlers which cannot be completed by the effective date, (iv) a reasonable time is permitted under the circumstances, for such preparation, and (v) information regarding the committee's recommendations has been made available to producers and handlers in the production area.

(b) Order. (1) During the period from July 9, 1956, through June 30, 1957, no handler shall ship potatoes (i) if they are of the round varieties (including, but not limited to, Kennebec, Irish Cobbler, Bliss Triumph, and Pontiac varieties), unless such potatoes meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, 1⅞ inches minimum diameter, and (ii) if they are of the long varieties, (including, but not limited to White Rose, Russet Burbank, and Early Gem varieties), unless such potatoes meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 2 or better grade, 2 inches minimum diameter or 4 ounces minimum weight, as such terms are defined in the United States Standards for Potatoes (§§ 51.1540 to 1559 of this title), including the tolerances set forth therein.

(2) During the period from July 9, 1956, through June 30, 1957, and subject to the requirements set forth in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph no handler shall ship (i) any lot of potatoes of the round varieties (including, but not limited to, Kennebec, Irish Cobbler, Bliss Triumph, and Pontiac varieties) if more than 20 percent of the potatoes in such lot have more than one-half of the skin missing or "feathered," as such terms are used in the said United States Standards, (ii) any lot of potatoes of the White Rose variety if more than 35 percent of the potatoes in such lot have more than one-half of the skin missing or "feathered," as such terms are used in the said United States Standards, or (iii) any lot of potatoes of the Netted Gem varieties (including, but not limited to Russet Burbank and Early Gem varieties) if such potatoes are more than "moderately skinned," as such term is defined in the said United States Standards, which means that not more than 10 percent of such potatoes have more than one-half of the skin missing or "feathered." Provided, That during such period, not to exceed 100 hundredweight of each variety of such potatoes may be handled every seven days without regard to the aforesaid skinning requirements if the handler thereof reports, prior to such handling, the name and address of the producer of such potatoes, and each shipment hereunder is handled as an identifiable entity.

(3) Pursuant to § 959.53, each handler may make one shipment of not in excess of five hundredweight per week without regard to the limitations set forth in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph and §§ 959.42 and 959.60.

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the limitations set forth in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall not be applicable to shipments of potatoes for the following purposes: (i) Grading or storing within the district where grown; (ii) certified seed potatoes; (iii) export; (iv) canning or freezing; (v) dehydration or manufacture or conversion into starch, flour, or alcohol; (vi) charity; (vii) potato chipping; (viii) livestock feed within the district where grown, except that potatoes grown in District No. 2 or District No. 4 may be shipped for livestock feed within, or to, such districts for such purpose.

(5) During the period July 9, 1956, through June 30, 1957: (i) No handler shall ship (a) potatoes for export which do not meet the requirements of the U. S. No. 1 or better grade, 1½ inches minimum diameter, or (b) potatoes for dehydration or manufacture or conversion into starch, flour, or alcohol which do not meet the requirements of 85 percent of the U. S. No. 1 or better grade, 1½ inches minimum diameter; (ii) potatoes grown in a particular district and which fail to meet applicable grade and size requirements of this section because of damage from shriveling or sprouting caused by the conditioning of the potatoes for potato chipping may be shipped for use for potato chipping; (iii) potatoes grown in a particular district and which by clipping second growth could be made to meet the aforesaid applicable grade and size requirements may be shipped for use for potato chipping without such clipping; and (iv) potatoes grown in a particular district and which meet the aforesaid applicable grade and size requirements may be commingled in the handling thereof for use for potato chipping.

(6) Each handler making shipments of potatoes authorized pursuant to subparagraph (4) of this paragraph shall with respect to such shipments other than those for grading or storing and for livestock feed: (i) File an application for a Certificate of Privilege pursuant to §§ 959.130 and 959.131; (ii) pay the required assessments pursuant to § 959.42; (iii) have such shipments (except shipments of certified seed potatoes) inspected pursuant to § 959.60; and (iv) for each such shipment (except shipments of certified seed potatoes) furnish a record of shipment applicable thereto to the committee: Provided, That each application to ship potatoes for export, for canning or freezing, for dehydration or manufacture or conversion into starch, flour, or alcohol, for charity, or for potato chipping, shall be accompanied by a copy of the applicable bill of lading and the applicant handler's certification and the buyer's certification that the potatoes to be shipped are to be used for the purpose stated in the application: Provided further, That each handler agrees, in his application to make shipments for canning or freezing, or for dehydration or manufacture or conversion into starch, flour, or alcohol, or for potato chipping, to bill each such shipment directly to the applicable processor and, if a particular shipment is not so billed, to furnish copies of the bill of lading and related diversion orders covering such shipment.

(7) Pursuant to § 959.60 (b), the inspection requirements of § 959.60 applicable to the handling of regraded, resorted, or repacked potatoes are suspended during the effective time of this § 959.314 with respect to any such potatoes which prior to the regrading, resorting, or repacking thereof, were inspected pursuant to § 959.60 (a) and the inspection certificate is valid at the time of handling such regraded, resorted, or repacked potatoes.

(8) For the purpose of operations under this part, each required inspection certificate is hereby determined, pursuant to § 959.60 (c), to be valid for a period not to exceed 14 days following completion of inspection as shown on the certificate.

(9) Except as otherwise provided, the various grades and sizes referred to in this section shall have the same meaning as when used in the United States Standards for Potatoes (§§ 51.1540 to 51.1559 of this title), including the tolerances set forth therein, and the terms "District No. 1," "District No. 2," District No. 3," District No. 4," and all other terms used in this section shall have the same meaning as when used in Marketing Agreement No. 114, as amended, and Order No. 59, as amended (7 CFR Part 959; 20 F. R. 7068).

TITLE 24—HOUSING AND HOUSING CREDIT

Chapter I—Federal Home Loan Bank Board

Subchapter C—Federal Savings and Loan System

[No. 9764]

PART 147—APPOINTMENT OF CONSERVATOR, RECEIVER AND SUPERVISORY REPRESENTATIVE IN CHARGE

Resolved that, pursuant to Part 108 of the general regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (24 CFR Part 108) and § 142.1 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System (24 CFR 142.1), §§ 147.3 and 147.7 of the rules and regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System (24 CFR 147.3 and 24 CFR 147.7) are hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 147.3 Possession by supervisory representative in charge. A supervisory representative in charge shall forthwith upon appointment as such for a Federal association, or at such time as may be fixed by the Board, take possession of such association and, at the time he shall demand possession, shall serve a certified copy of the resolution of the Board appointing him as supervisory representative in charge upon the officer or employee of the association, if any, who shall be in the home office of the association and appear to be in charge of such office. Immediately upon taking possession of such Federal association the supervisory representative in charge shall succeed to all the rights, powers and privileges of the members of the Federal association, its officers and directors, or any of them. Such members, officers and directors shall not thereafter, except as hereinafter expressly provided, have or exercise any such rights, powers or privileges, or act in connection with any assets or property of any nature of the association: Provided, however, That the board of directors of such association, as such, shall have the right to appear and be heard at any administrative hearing fixed by the Board for a determination upon the question of whether or not a conservator or receiver should be appointed for such Federal association, and the officers, directors, or the members of the Federal association, or any of them, may, from time to time, communicate with the Board with respect to the discharge of such supervisory representative in charge and the release of the association from his control: Provided further, That the members of the association or the board of directors thereof, may by resolution consent to the appointment of a conservator or receiver for such association. The Board may, at any time, direct the supervisory representative in charge to return the Federal association to its management; may provide for a meeting or meetings of the members for any purpose, including, without any limitation on the generality of the foregoing, an increase in the number of directors, the election of additional directors or an entire new board, and may provide for a meeting or meetings of the directors for any purpose, including, without any limitation on the generality of the foregoing, the filling of vacancies on the board of directors, the election of new officers, or both. Any such meeting of members or of directors may, as provided by the Board, be supervised or conducted by a representative of the Board. Such supervisory representative in charge shall furnish bond in form and amount and with surety acceptable to the Director. The expenses incurred by a supervisory representative in charge during the period that he continues in charge of any Federal association, including the cost of his bond and charges for his services, as determined by the Director, shall be paid out of the assets of the Federal association. In addition, all expenses incurred by the Board arising out of the appointment and affecting such appointment shall be paid by the association to the Board. The term "Director", when used in this part, shall mean the Director and any Associate or Assistant Director of the Division of Supervision of the Board and the term Secretary to the Board shall also mean any Assistant Secretary to the Board.

§ 147.7 Possession by conservator or receiver. A conservator or receiver shall take possession of the Federal association for which he has been so appointed in accordance with the terms of such appointment and, at the time he shall demand possession, notify the officer or employee of the association, if any, who shall be in the home office of the association and appears to be in charge of such office, of the action of the Board. Immediately upon taking possession of such Federal association, such conservator or receiver shall forthwith take possession of the books, records and assets of every description of such association and (a) a conservator shall succeed to all the rights, powers and privileges of its members, its officers and directors, or any of them, and (b) a receiver, by operation of law and without any conveyance and other instrument, act or deed shall succeed to all the rights, titles, powers and privileges of the Federal association and shall succeed to the rights, powers and privileges of its members, its officers and directors, or any of them. Such members, officers, or directors, or any of them, shall not thereafter, except as hereinafter expressly provided, have or exercise any such rights, powers or privileges, or act in connection with any assets or property of any nature of the association: Provided, however, That the members of the association shall have the right from time to time to communicate with the Board with respect to such conservatorship or receivership. Such conservator or receiver shall furnish bond in form and amount and with surety acceptable to the Director. The Board may, at any time, direct the conservator or receiver to return the Federal association to its previous or a newly constituted management; may provide for a meeting or meetings of the members for any purpose, including, without any limitation on the generality of the foregoing, the election of directors or an increase in the number of directors, or both, or the election of an entire new board; and may provide for a meeting or meetings of the directors for any purpose, including, without any limitation on the generality of the foregoing, the filling of vacancies on the board of directors, the removal of officers, and the election of new officers, or for any of such purposes. Any such meeting of members or of directors may, as provided by the Board, be supervised or conducted by a representative of the Board. The Board may, without further hearing, replace a conservator by appointing the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation as receiver for the purpose of liquidation, whether such conservator was appointed pursuant to a hearing or by consent.

Resolved further that, whereas the amendment to § 147.3 is a rule of procedure and practise, and the amendment to § 147.7 is an interpretative rule, and since these amendments do not impose any additional obligations, the deferment of the effective date of each such amendment would serve no useful purpose, and notice and public procedure is unnecessary. Good cause is found, therefore, for issuing these amended sections without notice and public procedure thereon to be effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, as provided in section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003).

(Sec. 17, 47 Stat. 736, as amended; 12 U. S. C. 1437. Interprets or applies sec. 5, 48 Stat. 132, as amended; 12 U. S. C. 1464)

This amendment shall be effective July 4, 1956.

By the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

[SEAL] HARRY W. CAULSEN,
Assistant Secretary.

TITLE 29—LABOR

Chapter V—Wage and Hour Division, Department of Labor

PART 778—OVERTIME COMPENSATION

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Pursuant to authority under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.), and General Order No. 45–A (15 F. R. 3290), Part 778, Subchapter B, Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations, is amended as follows:

1. Section 778.0 (a), 20th line, delete the word "new".

2. Footnote 1 to § 778.0 (a) is amended to read:

[1] 29 U. S. C. 201–219, 251–262.

3. Footnote 2 to § 778.0 (a) is amended to read:

[2] 29 U. S. C. 201–208, 211–217.

4. Footnote 4 to § 778.0 (a) is amended to read:

[4] 29 U. S. C. 251–262.

5. Footnote 6 to § 778.0 (c) is amended to read:

[6] Section 16 (c) of the Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1949 (set out as note under 29 U. S. C. 208) provides:

Any order, regulation, or interpretation of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division or of the Secretary of Labor, and any agreement entered into by the Administrator or the Secretary, in effect under the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, on the effective date of this act, shall remain in effect as an order, regulation, interpretation, or agreement of the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, pursuant to this act, except to the extent that any such order, regulation, interpretation, or agreement may be inconsistent with the provisions of this act, or may from time to time be amended, modified, or rescinded by the Administrator or the Secretary, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

6. In footnote 12 to § 778.3 (a) delete the number and word "75 cents" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$1.00."

7. Section 778.3 (b) (1) is amended to read:

(1) Hourly rate employee. If the employee is employed solely on the basis of a single hourly rate, the hourly rate is his "regular rate." For his overtime work he must be paid, in addition to his straight-time hourly earnings, a sum determined by multiplying one-half the hourly rate by the number of hours worked in excess of 40 in the week. Thus, a $1.40 hourly rate will bring, for an employee who works 46 hours, a total weekly wage of $68.60 (46 hours at $1.40 plus 6 hours at 70 cents). In other words, the employee is entitled to be paid an amount equal to $1.40 an hour for 40 hours and $2.10 an hour for the 6 hours of overtime, or a total of $68.60.

If, in addition to the earnings at the hourly rate, a production bonus of $4.60 is paid, the regular hourly rate of pay is $1.50 an hour (46 hours at $1.40 yields $64.40; the addition of the $4.60 bonus makes a total of $69; this total divided by 46 hours yields a rate of $1.50). The employee is then entitled to be paid a total wage of $73.50 for 46 hours (46 hours at $1.50 plus 6 hours at 75 cents, or 40 hours at $1.50 plus 6 hours at $2.25).

8. Section 778.3(b)(2) is amended to read:

(2) Pieceworker. When an employee is employed on a piece-rate basis, his regular hourly rate of pay is computed by adding together his total weekly earnings from piece rates and all other sources (such as production bonuses) and any sums paid for waiting time or other hours worked (except statutory exclusions). This sum is then divided by the number of hours worked in the week for which such compensation was paid, to yield the pieceworker's "regular rate" for that week. For his overtime work the pieceworker is entitled to be paid, in addition to his total weekly earnings, a sum equivalent to one-half this regular rate of pay multiplied by the number of hours worked in excess of 40 in the week.[14] Only additional half-time pay is required in such cases since the employee has already received straight-time compensation at piece rates for all hours worked. Thus, if the employee has earned $66 at piece rates for 46 hours of productive work and in addition has been compensated at $1. an hour for 4 hours of waiting time, his total compensation—$70—must be divided by his total hours of work—50—to arrive at his regular hourly rate of pay—$1.40. For the 10 hours of overtime the employee is entitled to additional compensation of $7 (10 hours at 70 cents). For the week's work he is thus entitled to a total of $77 (which is equivalent to 40 hours at $1.40 plus 10 overtime hours at $2.10).

In some cases an employee is hired on a piece-rate basis coupled with a minimum hourly guaranty. Where the total piece-rate earnings for the week fall short of the amount that would be earned for the total hours at the guaranteed rate, the employee is paid the difference. In such weeks the employee is in fact paid at an hourly rate and the minimum hourly guaranty which he was paid is his regular rate in that week. In the example just given, if the employee was guaranteed $1.50 an hour for productive working time, he would be paid $69 (46 × $1.50) for the 46 hours of productive work (instead of the $66 earned at piece rates). In a week in which no waiting time was involved, he would be owed an additional 75 cents (half-time) for each of the 6 overtime hours worked, to bring his total compensation up to $73.50 (46 hours at $1.50 plus 6 hours at 75 cents or 40 hours at $1.50 plus 6 hours at $2.25). If he is paid at a different rate for waiting time, his regular rate is the weighted average of the two hourly rates.[15]

9. Section 778.3 (b) (4) is amended to read:

(4) Salaried employees—general. If the employee is employed solely on a weekly salary basis, his regular hourly rate of pay, on which time and a half must be paid, is computed by dividing the salary by the number of hours which the salary is intended to compensate. If an employee is hired at a salary of $56 and if it is understood that this salary is compensation for a regular workweek of 35 hours, the employee's regular rate of pay is $56 divided by 35 hours, or $1.60 and hour, and when he works overtime he is entitled to receive $1.60 for each of the first 40 hours and $2.40 (one and one-half times $1.60) for each hour thereafter. If an employee is hired at a salary of $56 for a 40-hour week, his regular rate is $1.40 an hour. If his salary is $56 for a 50-hour week, his regular rate is $1.12 per hour. Where the salary covers a period longer than a workweek, such as a month, it must be reduced to its workweek equivalent. A monthly salary is subject to translation to its equivalent weekly wage by multiplying by 12 (the number of months) and dividing by 52 (the number of weeks). A semimonthly salary is translated into its equivalent weekly wage by multiplying by 24 and dividing by 52. Once the weekly wage is arrived at, the regular hourly rate of pay will be calculated as indicated above.[16] Under regulations of the Administrator, pursuant to the authority given to him in section 7 (f) (3) of the act, the parties may provide that the regular rate shall be determined by dividing the monthly salary by the number of working days in the month and then by the number of hours of the normal or regular workday. Of course, the resultant rate in such a case must not be less than the statutory minimum of $1 per hour.

10. Section 778.3 (b) (5) is amended to read:

(5) Salaried employees; irregular hours. If an employee earns $66 per week with the understanding that the salary is to cover all hours worked and if his hours of work fluctuate from week to week, his regular rate of pay will vary from week to week and will be the average hourly rate each week. Suppose that during the course of four weeks the employee works 40, 44, 50, and 47 hours. His regular hourly rate of pay in each of these weeks is approximately $1.65, $1.50, $1.32, and $1.40, respectively. Since the employee has already received straight-time compensation on a salary basis for all hours worked, only additional half-time pay is due. For the first week the employee is entitled to be paid $66; for the second week $69 ($66 plus 4 hours at 75 cents) or (40 hours at $1.50 plus 4 hours at $2.25); for the third week $72.60 ($66 plus 10 hours at 66 cents) or (40 hours at $1.32 plus 10 hours at $1.98); for the fourth week approximately $70.90 ($66 plus 7 hours at 70 cents) or (40 hours at $1.40 plus 7 hours at $2.10).

11. In § 778.3 (c) delete the number and word "75 cents" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$1.00".

12. Section 778.5 (b), delete the second paragraph which begins with word "Thus", and ends with the word "act", and insert in place thereof the following:

Thus, if an employee is hired at the rate of $1.20 an hour and receives, as overtime compensation under his contract, $1.60 per hour for each hour actually worked in excess of 8 per day, his employer may credit the total of the extra 40-cent payments thus made for daily overtime hours against the overtime compensation which is due under the statute for hours in excess of 40 in that workweek. If the same contract further provided for the payment of $2 for hours in excess of 12 per day, the extra 80-cent payments could likewise be credited toward overtime compensation due under the act. Similarly, where the employee's normal or regular daily or weekly working hours are greater or less than 8 hours and 40 hours respectively and his contract provides for the payment of premium rates for work in excess of such normal or regular hours of work for the day or week (such as 7 in a day or 35 in a week) the extra compensation provided by such premium rates, paid for excessive hours, is a true overtime premium to be excluded from the regular rate and it may be credited towards overtime compensation due under the act.[20]

[14] For an alternative method of complying with the overtime requirements of the act as far as pieceworkers are concerned, see § 778.19 (b).

[16] The regular rate of an employee who is paid a regular monthly salary of $173.34, or a regular semimonthly salary of $86.67 for 40 hours a week, is thus found to be $1.00 per hour. The Administrator has announced that, as an enforcement policy, he will consider that payment of such regular monthly or semimonthly salary is in accordance with the minimum wage requirements of the Act.

[20] To qualify as overtime premiums under section 7 (d) (5), the daily overtime premium payments must be made for hours in excess of 8 hours per day or the employee's normal or regular working hours. If the normal workday is artificially divided into a "straight time" period to which one rate is assigned, followed by a so-called "overtime" period for which a higher "rate" is specified, the arrangement will be regarded as a device to contravene the statutory purposes and the premiums will be considered part of the regular rate. For a fuller discussion of this problem, see § 778.22.

13. Section 778.5 (c) (1) is amended to read:

(1) Premiums for weekend and holiday work. The application of section 7 (d) (6) may be illustrated by the following example: Suppose an agreement of employment calls for the payment of $1.65 an hour for all hours worked on a holiday or on Sunday in the operation of machines whose operators are paid a bona fide hourly rate of $1.10 for like work performed during nonovertime hours on other days. Suppose further that the workweek of such an employee begins at 12:01 a. m. Sunday, and in a particular week he works a schedule of 8 hours on Sunday and on each day from Monday through Saturday, making a total of 56 hours worked in the workweek. Tuesday is a holiday. The payment of $70.40 to which the employee is entitled under the employment agreement will satisfy the requirements of the act since the employer may properly exclude from the regular rate the extra $4.40 paid for work on Sunday and the extra $4.40 paid for holiday work and credit himself with such amount against the statutory overtime premium required to be paid for the 16 hours worked over 40.

14. Section 778.5 (c) (2) is amended to read:

(2) Premiums for work outside basic workday or workweek. The effect of section 7 (d) (7) where "clock pattern" premiums are paid may be illustrated by reference to provisions typical of the applicable collective-bargaining agreements traditionally in effect between employers and employees in the longshore and stevedoring industries. These agreements specify straight-time rates applicable during the hours established in good faith under the agreement as the basic, normal, or regular workday and workweek. Under one such agreement, for example, such workday and workweek are established as the first six hours of work, exclusive of mealtime, each day, Monday through Friday, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. Under another typical agreement, such workday and workweek are established as the hours between 8 a. m. and 12 noon and between 1 p. m. and 5 p. m., Monday through Friday. Work outside such workday and workweek is paid for at premium rates not less than one and one-half times the bona fide straight-time rates applicable to like work when performed during the basic, normal, or regular workday or workweek. The extra compensation provided by such premium rates will be excluded in computing the regular rate at which the employees so paid are employed and may be credited toward overtime compensation due under the Fair Labor Standards Act. For example, if an employee is paid $1.40 an hour under such an agreement for handling general cargo during the basic, normal, or regular workday and $2.10 per hour for like work outside of such workday, the extra 70 cents will be excluded from the regular rate and may be credited to overtime pay due under the act. Similarly, if the straight-time rate established in good faith by the contract should be higher because of handling dangerous or obnoxious cargo, recognition of skill differentials, or similar reasons, so as to be $2 an hour during the hours established as the basic or normal or regular workday or workweek, and a premium rate of $3 an hour is paid for the same work performed during other hours of the day or week, the extra $1 may be excluded from the regular rate of pay and may be credited toward overtime pay due under the act. Similar principles are applicable where agreements following this general pattern exist in other industries.

15. Section 778.7 (d) (1) is amended to read:

(1) An employee whose rate of pay is $1.30 an hour and who usually works a 6-day 48-hour week is entitled, under his employment contract, to a week's paid vacation in the amount of his usual straight-time earnings—$62.40. He foregoes his vacation and works 50 hours in the week in question. He is owed $65 as his total straight-time earnings for the week, and $62.40 in addition as his vacation pay. Under the statute he is owed an additional $6.50 as overtime premium (additional half-time) for the 10 hours in excess of 40. His rate of $1.30 per hour has not been increased by virtue of the payment of $62.40 vacation pay, but no part of the $62.40 may be offset against the statutory overtime compensation which is due. (Nothing in this example is intended to imply that the employee has a statutory right to $62.40 or any other sum as vacation pay.[20] This is a matter of private contract between the parties who may agree that vacation pay will be measured by straight-time earnings for any agreed number of hours or days, or by total normal or expected take-home pay for the period or that no vacation pay at all will be paid. The example merely illustrates the proper method of computing overtime for an employee whose employment contract provides $62.40 vacation pay.)

16. Section 778.7 (d) (2) is amended to read:

(2) An employee, who is entitled, under his employment contract, to 8 hours' pay at his rate of $1.30 an hour for the Christmas holiday, foregoes his holiday and works 9 hours on that day. During the entire week he works a total of 50 hours. He is paid, under his contract, $65 as straight-time compensation for 50 hours plus $10.40 as idle holiday pay. He is owed, under the statute, an additional $6.50 as overtime premium (additional half-time) for the 10 hours in excess of 40. His rate of $1.30 per hour has not been increased by virtue of the holiday pay but no part of the $10.40 holiday pay may be credited toward statutory overtime compensation due.

The latter example should be distinguished from a situation in which an employee is entitled to idle holiday pay only when he is actually idle on the holiday, and who, if he foregoes his holiday also, under his contract, foregoes his idle holiday pay. The typical situation is one in which an employee is entitled by contract to 8 hours' pay at his rate of $1.30 an hour for certain named holidays when no work is performed. If, however, he is required to work on such days, he does not receive his idle holiday pay. Instead he receives a premium rate of $1.95 (time and one-half) for each hour worked on the holiday. If he worked 9 hours on the holiday and a total of 50 hours for the week, he would be owed, under his contract, $17.55 (9 × $1.95) for the holiday work and $53.30 for the other 41 hours worked in the week, a total of $70.85. Under the statute (which does not require premium pay for a holiday) he is owed $71.50 for a workweek of 50 hours at a rate of $1.30 an hour. Since the holiday premium qualifies as an overtime premium under section 7 (d) (6)[21] the employer may credit it toward statutory overtime compensation due and need pay the employee only the additional sum of 65 cents to meet the statutory requirements.

If all other conditions remained the same but the contract called for the payment of $2.60 (double time) for each hour worked on the holiday, the employee would receive, under his contract, $23.40 (9×$2.60) for the holiday work in addition to $53.30 for the other 41 hours worked, a total of $76.70. Since this holiday premium is an overtime premium under section 7 (d) (6), the employer may credit it toward statutory overtime compensation due. Since the total paid exceeds the statutory requirements, no additional compensation is due under the act. In distinguishing this situation from that in example (2) above, it should be noted that the contract provisions in the two situations are different and result in the payment of different amounts. In example (2) the employee received a total of $22.10 attributable to the holiday (8 hours' idle holiday pay at $1.30 an hour and $11.70 pay for 9 hours' work on the holiday). In the situation discussed in this paragraph the employee received $23.40 pay for the holiday—double time for 9 hours of work. Thus, clearly, all of the pay in this situation is paid for and directly related to the number of hours worked on the holiday.

17. Section 778.7 (e) is amended to read:

(e) "Show-up" and "call-back" pay. Under some employment agreements, an employee may be paid a minimum of a specified number of hours' pay at the applicable straight-time or overtime rate on infrequent and sporadic occasions when, after reporting to work at his scheduled starting time on a regular workday or on another day on which he has been scheduled to work, he is not provided with the expected amount of work. The amounts that may be paid under such an agreement over and above what the employee would receive if paid at his customary rate only for the number of hours worked are paid to compensate the employee for the time wasted by him in reporting for work and to prevent undue loss of pay resulting from the employer's failure to provide expected work during regular hours. One of the primary purposes of such an arrangement is to discourage employers from calling their men in to work for only a fraction of a day when they might get full-time work elsewhere. Pay arrangements of this kind are commonly referred to as "show-up" or "reporting" pay. Under the principles and subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 778.3 to 778.5, that portion of such payment which represents compensation at the applicable rates for the straight-time or overtime hours actually worked, if any, during such period may be credited as straight-time or overtime compensation, as the case may be, in computing overtime compensation due under the act. The amount by which the specified number of hours' pay exceeds such compensation for the hours actually worked is considered as a payment that is not made for hours worked. As such, it may be excluded from the computation of the employee's regular rate and cannot be credited toward statutory overtime compensation due him.

To illustrate, assume that an employee whose workweek begins on Monday and who is paid $1.30 an hour reports for work on Monday according to schedule and is sent home after being given only 2 hours of work. He then works 8 hours each day on Tuesday through Saturday, inclusive, making a total of 42 hours for the week. The employment agreement covering the employees in the plant, who normally work 8 hours a day, Monday through Friday, provides that an employee reporting for scheduled work on any day will receive a minimum of 4 hours' work or pay. The employee thus receives not only the $2.60 earned in the 2 hours of work on Monday but an extra 2 hours' "show-up" pay, or $2.60 by reason of this agreement. However, since this $2.60 in "show-up" pay is not regarded as compensation for hours worked, the employee's regular rate remains $1.30 and the overtime requirements of the Act are satisfied if he receives, in addition to the $54.60 straight-time pay for 42 hours and the $2.60 "show-up" payment, the sum of $1.30 as extra compensation for the 2 hours of overtime work on Saturday.

In the interest of simplicity and uniformity, these principles will be applied also with respect to typical minimum "call-back" or "call-out" payments made pursuant to employment agreements. Typically, such minimum payments consist of a specified number of hours' pay at the applicable straight-time or overtime rates which an employee receives on infrequent and sporadic occasions when, after his scheduled hours of work have ended and without prearrangement, he responds to a call from his employer to perform extra work.

The application of these principles to call-back payments may be illustrated as follows: An employment agreement provides a minimum of 3 hours' pay at time and one-half for any employee called back to work outside his scheduled hours. The employees covered by the agreement normally work 8 hours each day, Monday through Friday, inclusive, in a workweek beginning on Monday, and are paid overtime compensation at time and one-half for all hours worked in excess of 8 in any day or 40 in any workweek. Assume that an employee covered by this agreement and paid at the rate of $1.30 an hour works 1 hour overtime or a total of 9 hours on Monday, and works 8 hours each on Tuesday through Friday, inclusive. After he has gone home on Friday evening he is called back to perform an emergency job. His hours worked on the call total 2 hours and he receives 3 hours' pay at time and one-half, or $5.85, under the call-back provision, in addition to $52 for working his regular schedule and $1.95 for the overtime worked on Monday evening.

In computing overtime compensation due this employee under the act, the 43 actual hours (not 44) are counted as working time during the week. In addition to $55.90 pay at the $1.30 rate for all these hours, he has received under the agreement a premium of 65 cents for the one overtime hour on Monday and of $1.30 for the 2 hours of overtime work on the call, plus an extra sum of $1.95 paid by reason of the provision for minimum call-back pay. For purposes of the act, the extra premiums paid for actual hours of overtime work on Monday and on the Friday call (a total of $1.95) may be excluded as true overtime premiums in computing his regular rate for the week and may be credited toward compensation due under the act, but the extra $1.95 received under the call-back provision is not regarded as paid for hours worked; therefore, it may be excluded from the regular rate, but it cannot be credited toward overtime compensation due under the act. The regular rate of the employee, therefore, remains $1.30, and he has received an overtime premium of 65 cents an hour for 3 overtime hours of work. This satisfies the requirements of section 7 of the act. The same would be true, of course, if, in the foregoing example, the employee was called back outside his scheduled hours for the 2-hour emergency job on another night of the week or on Saturday or Sunday, instead of on Friday night.

18. Footnote 32 to § 778.7 (f) is amended to read:

[32] See Part 785 (Interpretative Bulletin on "hours worked"). For a discussion of travel time in particular and preliminary and postliminary activities in general as working time see Part 790 (statement on effect of Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947).

19. Section 778.9 (b) is amended to read:

(b) Effect on salary for fixed workweek. If an employee was hired at a salary of $56 for a fixed workweek of 40 hours, his regular rate at the time of hiring was $1.40 per hour. If his workweek is later reduced to a fixed workweek of 35 hours while his salary remains the same, it is the fact that it now takes him only 35 hours to earn $56, so that he earns his salary at the average rate of $1.60 per hour. His regular rate thus becomes $1.60 per hour; it is no longer $1.40 an hour. Overtime pay is due under the act only for hours worked in excess of 40, not 35, but if the understanding of the parties is that the salary of $56 now covers 35 hours of work and no more, the employee would be owed $1.60 per hour under his employment contract for each hour worked between 35 and 40. He would be owed time and one-half of $1.60 ($2.40) per hour, under the statute, for each hour worked in excess of 40 in the workweek. In weeks in which no overtime is worked only the provisions of section 6 of the act, requiring the payment of not less than $1.00 per hour, apply, so that the employee's right to receive $1.60 per hour is enforceable only under his contract. However, in overtime weeks the Administrator has the duty to insure the payment of time and one-half the employee's regular rate of pay for hours in excess of 40 and overtime cannot be said to have been paid until all straight-time compensation due the employee under the statute or his employment contract has been paid. Thus if the employee works 41 hours in a particular week, he is owed his salary for 35 hours—$56, 5 hours pay at $1.60 per hour for the 5 hours between 35 and 40—$8, and one hour's pay at $2.40 for the one hour in excess of 40—$2.40, or a total of $66.40 for the week.

20. Section 778.9 (c) is amended to read:

(c) Effect if salary is for variable workweek. The discussion in the prior paragraph sets forth one result of reducing the workweek from 40 to 35 hours. It is not either the necessary result or the only possible result. As in all cases of employees hired on a salary basis, the regular rate depends in part on the agreement of the parties as to what the salary is intended to compensate. In reducing the workweek to 35 hours the parties may agree to change the basis of the employment arrangement by providing that the salary which formerly covered a fixed workweek of 40 hours now covers a variable workweek up to 40 hours. If this is the new agreement, the employee receives $56 for workweeks of varying lengths, such as 35, 36, 38, or 40 hours. His rate thus varies from week to week, but in weeks of 40 hours or over, it is $1.40 per hour (since the agreement of the parties is that the salary covers up to 40 hours and no more) and his overtime rate, for hours in excess of 40, thus remains $2.10 per hour. Such a salary arrangement presumably contemplates that the salary will be paid in full for any workweek of 40 hours or less. The employee would thus be entitled to his full salary if he worked only 25 or 30 hours. No deductions for hours not worked in short workweeks would be made.[33]

21. Section 778.9 (e) is amended to read:

(e) Effect on salary covering more than 40 hours' pay. The same reasoning applies to salary covering straight-time pay for a longer workweek. If an employee was hired at a fixed salary of $77 for 55 hours of work, he was entitled to statutory overtime for the 15 hours in excess of 40 at the rate of 70 cents per hour (half-time) in addition to his salary. If the workweek is later reduced to 50 hours, with the understanding between the parties that the salary covers all hours up to 55, his regular rate in any week of 55 hours or less is determined by dividing the salary by the number of hours worked to earn it in that particular week, and additional half-time, at that rate, is due for each hour in excess of 40. In weeks of 55 hours or more, his regular rate is $1.40 per hour. If the understanding of the parties is that the salary now covers a fixed workweek of 50 hours, his regular rate is $1.54 per hour in all weeks. This assumes that when an employee works less than 50 hours in a particular week, deductions are made at the rate of $1.54 per hour for the hours not worked.

[33] For a discussion of the effect of deductions on the regular rate, see § 778.12.

The reasoning does not, of course, apply to a situation in which the former earnings at both straight-time and overtime are paid to the employee for the reduced workweek. Suppose an employee was hired at an hourly rate of $1.40 an hour and regularly worked 50 hours, earning $77 as his total straight-time and overtime compensation, and the parties now agree to reduce the workweek to 45 hours without any reduction in take-home pay. The parties in such a situation may agree to an increase in the hourly rate from $1.40 per hour to $1.62 so that for a workweek of 45 hours (the reduced schedule) the employee's straight-time and overtime earnings will be $77. The parties cannot, however, agree that the employee is to receive exactly $77 as total compensation (including overtime pay) for a workweek varying, for example, up to 50 hours, unless he does so pursuant to contracts specifically permitted in section 7 (e) of the act, as discussed in § 778.18. An employer cannot otherwise discharge his statutory obligation to pay overtime compensation to an employee who does not work the same fixed hours each week by paying a fixed amount purporting to cover both straight-time and overtime compensation for an "agreed" number of hours. To permit such a practice without proper statutory safeguards would result in sanctioning the circumvention of the provisions of the act which require that an employee who works more than 40 hours in any workweek be compensated, in accordance with express Congressional intent, at time and one-half his regular rate of pay for the burden of working long hours. In arrangements of this type, no additional financial pressure would fall upon the employer and no additional compensation would be due to the employee under such a plan until the workweek exceeded 50 hours.

22. Section 778.9 (f) is amended to read:

(f) Temporary or sporadic reduction in schedule. The problem of reduction in the workweek is somewhat different where a temporary reduction is involved. Reductions for the period of a dead or slow season follow the rules announced above. However, reduction on a more temporary or sporadic basis presents a different problem. It is obvious that as a matter of simple arithmetic an employer might adopt a series of different rates for the same work, varying inversely with the number of overtime hours worked in such a way that the employee would earn no more than his straight-time rate no matter how many hours he worked. If he set the rate at $1.40 per hour for all workweeks in which the employee worked 40 hours or less, approximately $1.38 per hour for workweeks of 41 hours, approximately $1.37 for workweeks of 42 hours, approximately $1.27 for workweeks of 50 hours, and so on, the employee would always receive (for straight time and overtime at these "rates") $1.40 an hour regardless of the number of overtime hours worked. This is an obvious bookkeeping device designed to avoid the payment of overtime compensation and is not in accord with the law. The regular rate of pay of this employee for overtime purposes is, obviously, the rate he earns in the normal non-overtime week—in this case, $1.40 per hour.

The situation is different in degree but not in principle where employees who have been hired at a bona fide $1.60 rate usually working 50 hours and taking home $88 as total straight-time and overtime pay for the week are, during occasional weeks, cut back to 42 hours. If the employer raises their rate to $2 for such weeks so that their total compensation is $86 for a 42-hour week the question may properly be asked, when they return to the 50-hour week, the $1.60 rate and the gross pay of $88, whether the $1.60 rate is really their regular rate. Are they putting in 8 additional hours of work for that extra $2 or is their "regular" rate really now $2 an hour since this is what they earn in the short workweek? It seems clear that where different rates are paid from week to week for the same work and where the difference is justified by no factor other than the number of hours worked by the individual employee—the longer he works the lower the rate—the device is evasive and the rate actually paid in the shorter or non-overtime week is his regular rate for overtime purposes in all weeks.

23. Section 778.10, computation number (3), is amended to read:

(3) Suppose that, in the example given, the employee worked 5 hours on Sunday, March 11, 1956. His workweek commenced at 7 a. m. on Monday, March 5th, and he worked 40 hours March 5th through 10th so that for that week he would be owed straight-time and overtime compensation for 45 hours. The proposal is to commence the workweek at 7 a. m. on March 11th. In the week from Sunday, March 11, through Saturday, March 17, the employee worked a total of 40 hours, including the 5 hours worked on Sunday. It is obvious that the allocation of the Sunday hours to the old workweek will result in higher total compensation to the employee for the 13-day period. He should, therefore, be paid (if his rate were $1.40 an hour) $66.50 for the period from March 5th through March 11th, and $49 for the period from March 12th through March 17th.

The fact that this method of compensation is permissible under the Fair Labor Standards Act will not alter any obligation the employer may have under his employment contract to pay a greater amount of overtime compensation for the period in question.

24. Section 778.12, paragraph beginning with the words "the reductions" and ending with the word "altered" is amended to read:

The reductions in pay described in category (4) are not, properly speaking, "deductions" at all. If an employee is compensated at a fixed salary for a fixed workweek and if this salary is reduced by the amount of the average hourly earnings for each hour lost by the employee in a short workweek, the employee is, for all practical purposes, employed at an hourly rate of pay. This hourly rate is the quotient of the fixed salary divided by the fixed number of hours it is intended to compensate. If an employee is hired at a fixed salary of $56 for a 40-hour week, his hourly rate is $1.40. When he works only 36 hours he is therefore entitled to $50.40. The employer makes a "deduction" of $5.60 from his salary to achieve this result. The rate is not altered.

25. Section 778.12, last paragraph beginning with the words "where deductions," 3d from last line, delete the number and symbol "75¢" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$1.00".

26. Footnote 39 to § 778.13 (b) is amended to read:

[39] The time spent by the employee in competing for such a prize (whether successfully or not) is working time and must be counted as such in determining overtime compensation due under the act.

27. Section 778.14 is amended to read:

§ 778.14 Lump sum attributed to overtime. Section 7 of the act requires the payment of overtime compensation for hours worked in excess of 40 at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate. The overtime rate is a rate per hour.

Where employees are paid on some basis other than an hourly rate, the regular hourly rate is derived by dividing the total compensation (except statutory exclusions) by the total hours of work for which the payment is made. To qualify as an overtime premium under section 7 (d) (5), (6) or (7), however, the extra compensation must be paid pursuant to a premium rate which is a rate per hour.[40] To qualify under section 7 (d) (5) this rate must be greater than the regular rate, either a fixed amount per hour or a multiple of the rate, such as time and one-third. To qualify under section 7 (d) (6) or (7) the rate may not be less than time and one-half the bona fide rate established in good faith for like work performed during nonovertime hours. It may not be less than time and one-half but it may be more. It may be a standard multiple greater than one and one-half (for example, double time); or it may be a fixed sum of money per hour which is, as an arithmetical fact, at least time and one-half the regular rate (for example, if the regular rate is $2 per hour, the overtime rate may not be less than $3 but it may be set at a higher arbitrary figure such as $3.20 per hour).

Where an employee works a regular fixed number of hours each week, it is, of course, proper to pay him a fixed sum, for his overtime work, determined by multiplying his overtime rate by the number of overtime hours, regularly worked. However, a premium in the form of a lump sum which is paid for work performed during overtime hours without regard to the number of overtime hours worked does not qualify as an overtime premium even though the amount of money may be equal to or greater than the sum owed on a per-hour basis. For example, an agreement that provides for the payment of a flat sum of $20 to employees who work on Sunday does not provide a premium which will qualify as an overtime premium, even though the employee's straight-time rate is $1 30 an hour and the employee always works less than 10 hours on Sunday. Likewise, where an agreement provides for the payment for work on Sunday of either the flat sum of $20 or time and one-half the employee's regular rate for all hours worked on Sunday, whichever is greater, the $20 guaranteed payment is not an overtime premium. The reason for this is clear. If the rule were otherwise, an employer desiring to pay an employee a fixed salary regardless of the number of hours worked in excess of 40 in the workweek could merely label as overtime pay a fixed portion of such salary sufficient to take care of compensation for the maximum number of hours that would be worked. The Congressional purpose to effectuate a maximum hours standard by placing a penalty upon the performance of excessive overtime work would thus be defeated. For this reason, where extra compensation is paid in the form of a lump sum for work performed in overtime hours, it must be included in the regular rate and may not be credited against statutory overtime compensation due.

The same reasoning applies where employees are paid a flat rate for a special job performed during overtime hours, without regard to the time actually consumed in performance.[41] The total amount paid must be included in the regular rate; no part of the amount may be credited toward statutory overtime compensation due.

It may be helpful to give a specific example illustrating the results of paying an employee on the basis under discussion.

An employment agreement calls for the payment of $1.50 per hour for work during the hours established in good faith as the basic workday or workweek; it provides for the payment of $2.25 per hour for work during hours outside the basic workday or workweek. It further provides that employees doing a special task outside the basic workday or workweek shall receive 6 hours' pay at the rate of $2.25 per hour (a total payment of $13.50) regardless of the time actually consumed in performance.

Suppose an employee works the following schedule. (The hours marked by an asterisk were spent in the performance of the special work.)

	M	T	W	T	F	S	S
Hours within basic workday	8	8	7	8	8	0	0
Pay under contract	$12	$12	$10.50	$12	$12	0	0
Hours outside basic workday	2	*2	1	0	0	4	0
Pay under contract	$4.50	$13.50	$2.25	0	0	$9	0

To determine the regular rate, the total compensation (except statutory exclusions) must be divided by the total number of hours worked. The only sums to be excluded in this situation are the extra premiums provided by a premium rate (a rate per hour) for work outside the basic workday and workweek, which qualify for exclusion under section 7 (d) (7) of the act.[42] The $4.50 paid on Monday, the $2.25 paid on Wednesday and the $9 paid on Saturday are paid pursuant to rates which qualify as premium rates under section 7 (d) (7) of the act. The total extra compensation (over the straight-time pay for these hours) provided by these premium rates is $5.25. The sum of $5.25 should be subtracted from the total of $87.75 paid to the employee. No part of the $13.50 paid for the special work performed on Tuesday qualifies for exclusion. The remaining $82.50 must thus be divided by 48 hours to determine the regular rate—$1.72 per hour. The employee is owed one-half this rate for each of 8 overtime hours worked—$6.88. The extra compensation in the amount of $5.25 paid pursuant to premium rates which qualify as overtime premiums may be credited toward the $6.88 owed. No part of the $13.50 premium may be so credited. The employer must pay the employee an additional $1.63 as statutory overtime pay—a total of $89.38 for the week.

28. In § 778.15 delete from the paragraph beginning with the words "The employment agreement establishes a basic hourly rate" to the end of the section, and insert in place thereof the following:

The employment agreement establishes a basic hourly rate of $1.50 per hour, provides for the payment of $2.25 per hour for overtime work (in excess of the basic workday or workweek) and defines the basic workday as 8 hours, and the basic workweek as 40 hours, Monday through Friday. It further provides that the assembling of a machine constitutes a day's work. An employee who completes the assembling job in less than 8 hours will be paid 8 hours' pay at the established rate of $1.50 per hour and will receive pay at the "overtime" rate for hours worked after the completion of the task.

Suppose an employee works the following hours in a particular week:

	M	T	W	T	F	S	S
Hours spent on task	6	7	7	9	8½	6	0
Day's pay under contract	$12	$12	$12	$12	$12	$18	0

Additional pay under contract	$4.50	----	$4.50	$2.25	$2.25	----	----

The employee has actually worked a total of 48 hours and has received a total of $91.50 for the week. The only sums which can be excluded from this total before the regular rate is determined are the extra 75-cent payments for the extra hour on Thursday and Friday made because of work actually in excess of 8 hours. The other premium rates were paid either without regard to whether or not the hours they compensated were in excess of a bona fide daily or weekly standard or without regard to the number of overtime hours worked. Only the sum of $1.50 is excluded from the total. The remaining $90 is divided by 48 hours to determine the regular rate—$1.875 per hour. One-half this rate is due as extra compensation for each of the 8 overtime hours—$7.50. The $1.50 paid for excessive hours may be credited and the balance—$6.00—is owed in addition to the $91.50 due under the contract.

29. In § 778.16 delete the third paragraph which begins with the words "An agreement not" and ends with the words "under the Act", and insert in place thereof the following:

An agreement not to compensate employees for certain nonovertime hours stands on no better footing since it would have the same effect of diminishing the employee's total overtime compensation. An agreement, for example, to pay an employee $1.50 an hour for the first 35 hours, nothing for the hours between 35 and 40 and $2.25 an hour for the hours in excess of 40 would not meet the overtime requirements of the act. The employee would have to be paid $7.50 for the 5 hours worked between 35 and 40 before any sums ostensibly paid for overtime could be credited toward overtime compensation due under the act.

30. Section 778.18 (d), second paragraph which begins with the words "The regular rate of pay", delete the number and word "75 cents" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$1.00".

31. Section 778.18 (f), delete the fourth paragraph which begins with the words "the amount of weekly pay", and insert in place thereof the following:

The amount of weekly pay guaranteed may not exceed compensation due at the specified regular rate for 40 hours and at the specified overtime rate for 20 additional hours. Thus, if the specified regular rate is $1.50 an hour the weekly guaranty cannot be greater than $105. This does not mean that an employee employed pursuant to a guaranteed pay contract under this section may not work more than 60 hours in any week; it means merely that pay in an amount [41] This situation is to be distinguished from "show-up" and "call-back" pay situations discussed in § 778.7 (e). It is also to be distinguished from payment at time and one-half the applicable rate to pieceworkers for work performed during overtime hours, as discussed in § 778.19.

[42] As discussed in § 778.5 (d).

sufficient to compensate for a greater number of hours cannot be covered by the guaranteed pay. If he works in excess of 60 hours he must be paid, for each hour worked in excess of 60, overtime compensation as provided in the contract, in addition to the guaranteed amount.

32. Section 778.18 (f), delete the 6th paragraph which begins with the words "The guaranty of pay", and insert in place thereof the following:

The guaranty of pay must be "based on the rates so specified," in the contract. If the contract specified a regular rate of $1.50, and an overtime rate of $2.25 and guarantees pay for 50 hours, the amount of the guaranty must be $82.50, if it is to be based on the rate so specified. A guaranty of $100 in such a situation would not, obviously, be based on the rates specified in the contract.

33. Section 778.18 (f), in the 7th paragraph which begins with the words "Moreover, a contract", delete the symbol and number "$75" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$100".

34. Section 778.18 (g), in the 2d paragraph which begins with the words "As a guide to employers", delete the symbol, number, and words "$1.30 per hour" and insert in place thereof the symbol, number, and words $1.50 per hour.

35. Section 778.18 (g), delete the 3d paragraph which begins with the words "The X company" and insert in place thereof the following:

The X Company hereby agrees to employ John Doe as a claims adjuster at a regular hourly rate of pay of $1.50 per hour for the first 40 hours in any workweek and at the rate of $2.25 per hour for all hours in excess of 40 in any workweek, with a guarantee that John Doe will receive, in any week in which he performs any work for the company, the sum of $82 50 as total compensation, for all work performed up to and including 50 hours in such workweek.

36. Section 778.19 (b), in subparagraph (4) which begins with the words "the compensation paid" delete the symbol and number "$1.125" and insert in place thereof the symbol and number "$1.50".

37. Section 778 20, delete the last paragraph which begins with the words "Regulations issued pursuant" and insert in place thereof the following:

Regulations issued pursuant to this section are published in the Code of Federal Regulations as 29 CFR 548. Payments made in conformance with these regulations satisfy the overtime requirements of the act.

38. Section 778.22 is amended to read:

§ 778.22 The "split-day" plan. Another device designed to evade the overtime requirements of the act was a plan known as the "Poxon" or "split-day" plan. Under this plan the normal or regular workday is artificially divided into two portions one of which is arbitrarily labeled the "straight-time" portion of the day and the other the "overtime" portion. Under such a plan, an employee who would ordinarily command an hourly rate of pay well in excess of the minimum for his work is assigned a low hourly rate (often the minimum) for the first hour (or the first 2 or 4 hours) of each day. This rate is designated as the regular rate; time and one-half such rate is paid for each additional hour worked during the workday. Thus, for example, an employee is arbitrarily assigned an hourly rate of $1.40 per hour under a contract which provides for the payment of so-called "overtime" for all hours in excess of 4 per day. Thus, for the normal or regular 8-hour day the employee would receive $5.60 for the first 4 hours and $8.40 for the remaining 4 hours; a total of $14 for 8 hours. (This is exactly what he would receive at the straight-time rate of $1.75 per hour.) On the sixth 8-hour day the employee likewise receives $14 and the employer claims to owe no additional overtime pay under the statute since he has already compensated the employee at "overtime" rates for 20 hours of the workweek.

Such a division of the normal 8-hour workday into 4 straight-time hours and 4 overtime hours is purely fictitious. The employee is not paid at the rate of $1.40 an hour and the alleged overtime rate of $2.10 per hour is not paid for overtime work. It is not geared either to hours "in excess of the employee's normal working hours or regular working hours" (section 7 (d) (5)) or for work "outside of the hours established in good faith • • • as the basic, normal, or regular workday" (section 7 (d) (7)) and it cannot therefore qualify as an overtime rate. The regular rate of pay of the employee in this situation is $1.75 per hour and he is owed additional overtime compensation, based on this rate, for all hours in excess of 40. This rule was settled by the Supreme Court in the case of Walling v. Helmerich & Payne, 323 U. S. 37, and its validity has been reemphasized by the definition of the term "regular rate" in section 7 (d) of the act as amended.

39. Section 778.23 (a) is amended to read:

§ 778.23 (a) Artificially labeling part of the regular wages a "bonus." The term "bonus" is properly applied to a sum which is paid as an addition to total wages, usually because of extra effort of one kind or another, or as a reward for loyal service or as a gift. The term is improperly applied if it is used to designate a portion of regular wages which the employee is entitled to receive under his regular wage contract.

For example, if an employer has agreed to pay an employee $66.50 a week without regard to the number of hours worked, the regular rate of pay of the employee is determined each week by dividing the $66.50 salary by the number of hours worked in the week. The situation is not altered if the employer continues to pay the employee the same $66.50 each week but arbitrarily breaks the sum down into wages for the first 40 hours at an hourly rate of $1.00 an hour, overtime compensation at $1.50 per hour and labels the balance a "bonus" (which will vary from week to week, becoming smaller as the hours increase and vanishing entirely in any week in which the employee works 57⅔ hours or more). The situation is in no way bettered if the employer, standing by the logic of his labels, proceeds to compute and pay overtime compensation due on this "bonus" by prorating it back over the hours of the workweek. Overtime compensation has still not been properly computed for this employee at his regular rate.

An illustration of how the plan works over a three-week period may serve to illustrate this principle more clearly:

In the first week the employee works 40 hours and receives $66.50. The books show he has received $40 (40 hours × $1 an hour) as wages and $26.50 as bonus. No overtime has been worked so no overtime compensation is due.

In the second week he works 50 hours and receives $66.50. The books show he has received $40 for the first 40 hours and $15 (10 hours × $1.50 an hour) for the 10 hours over 40, or a total of $55 as wages, and the balance as a bonus of $11.50. Overtime compensation is then computed by the employer by dividing $11.50 by 50 hours to discover the average hourly increase resulting from the bonus—23 cents per hour—and half this rate is paid for the 10 overtime hours—$1.15. This is improper. The employee's regular rate in this week is $1.33 per hour. He is owed $73.15, not $67.65.

In the third week the employee works 55 hours and is paid $66.50. The books show that the employee received $40 for the first 40 hours and $22.50 (15 hours × $1.50 per hour) for the 15 hours over 40, or a total of $62.50, and the balance as a bonus of $4. Overtime pay due on the "bonus" is found to be 54 cents. This is improper. The employee's regular rate in this week is $1.21 and he is owed $75.58, not $67.04.

Similar schemes have been devised for piece-rate employees. The method is the same. An employee is assigned an arbitrary hourly rate (usually the minimum) and it is agreed that his straight-time and overtime earnings will be computed on this rate but that if these earnings do not amount to the sum he would have earned had his earnings been computed on a piece-rate basis of "x" cents per piece, he will be paid the difference as a "bonus". This subterfuge does not serve to conceal the fact that this employee is actually compensated on a piece-rate basis, that there is no bonus and that his regular rate is the quotient of piece-rate earnings divided by hours worked.[42]

The general rule may be stated that wherever the employee is guaranteed a fixed or determinable sum as his wages each week, no part of this sum is a true bonus and the rules for determining overtime due on bonuses do not apply.

40. Section 778.23 (b), delete all paragraphs preceding the paragraph beginning with the words "The total amount earned by each employee is" and insert in place thereof the following:

(b) Pseudo "percentage bonuses." The device does not improve when it becomes more complex. If no true bonus in a flat sum amount can be legitimately separated out of the employee's wages, certainly no bonus in the form of a percentage of total earnings can be so derived. Yet some employers, seeking to evade the overtime requirements of the act entirely while apparently complying with every requirement, have devised schemes of this kind. Like the employer described in the preceding paragraph, such an employer pays his employee $66.50 a week without regard to the number of hours worked. He also sets up a fictitious regular rate of $1.00 an hour. In a week in which the employee works 50 hours his records show the following:

[42] See Walling v. Youngerman-Reynolds Hardwood Company, 325 U. S. 419, where this scheme was struck down by the Supreme Court.

(The material in bracketa does not usually appear in the final records.)

Straight time for 40 hours at $1 an hour	$40.00
Overtime for 10 hours at $1.50 an hour	15.00
	$55.00
[$66.50−$55.00=$11.50, total amount to be distributed as a bonus]
[$11.50/$55.00=20.9 percent]
Percentage of total earnings bonus at 20.9 percent of $55	11.50
Total	66.50

Obviously, this employee can no more be said to be receiving proper overtime than the employee in the previous example. This employee's regular rate in this week is $1.33 per hour and he is owed a total of $73.15 for the week.

No better claim of compliance can be made by an employer who arbitrarily pieces out a bonus from all or part of group wages. The scheme tends to be more complex, but the principle is the same and the same results follow:

One relatively simple example of such a scheme is the following: Two employees are hired as salesmen on an hourly-rate-plus-commission basis. Each is hired at the rate of $1.40 an hour for the first 40 hours and $2.10 an hour for overtime and, in addition, is entitled to a share in commissions earned by each at the rate of one percent of sales. In a given week one employee works 40 hours and the other works 50. Together they sell $1,330 worth of merchandise and are thus entitled to $13.30 as commissions. In order to avoid payment of overtime on the commissions, the employer decides to distribute the $13.30 in the form of a percentage of total earnings. The total wages of the two employees is $133 in the particular week. The $13.30 commissions represent 10 percent of this figure. The employer therefore pays a 10 percent "bonus" to each employee on his total earnings. One receives $5.60 as bonus, the other, $7.70. The employer claims that no additional overtime is due because the "bonus" was a percentage of total earnings and the percentage was determined before the amount due any individual employee had been determined.

If the commissions were a "bonus" at all, the method of distribution might be proper. But a bonus, as has been stated, is a sum paid in addition to regular wages and not as a part of such wages. The employees have contracted to work on a wage-plus-group-commission basis. No extra pay—over and above the contract wage—is involved. As a regular part of their duties, the employees make sales and regularly receive a one-percent commission on the amount of the sale. Moreover, since the employees are owed the commissions in an amount related only to the amount of total sales and without regard to the number of hours worked, no part of such commissions is paid as overtime compensation.

In the example just given the employer sought only to relieve himself of the burden of paying proper overtime on part of the wages. The example must grow more complex but the principle does not change when the employer seeks to relieve himself of the entire burden of overtime by a fictitious division of regular group wages into hourly earnings and "bonus". This scheme is usually tried with respect to employees who work solely on a group piece rate or group commission basis. For simplicity we will assume that the two employees in the previous example receive no base hourly rate but are working solely on a commission basis—11 percent of total sales. In order for the scheme to function the employer must provide a minimum hourly guarantee. The minimum rate of $1.00 is best suited to his purpose for it provides the greatest leeway as to the number of hours that may be worked without the payment of any additional overtime compensation whatever. In a week in which the total sales amount to $950 the two employees are together entitled to $104.50 (11%). They will receive this amount regardless of the number of hours they have worked individually or collectively. If they work the same number of hours, each will get half—$52.25. This would be true whether the hours worked by each were 40, 43, 45, or 48 hours. Only the bookkeeping is altered. If each works 40 hours the record will show for each:

Wages at $1 per hour	$40.00
Bonus	12.25
Total	52.25

If each works 45 hours, the record will show:

Wages at $1 per hour for 40 hours	40.00
Overtime pay at $1.50 per hour for 5 hours	7.50
Bonus at 10 percent of total earnings (10 percent of $47.50)	4.75

41. Section 778.25, delete from the paragraph beginning with the words "under this provision" to the end of the section, and insert in place thereof the following:

Under this provision, where an employee works both in excess of twelve hours in a day and in excess of fifty-six hours in the aggregate in a particular workweek, the employer must pay overtime compensation computed on either the daily or the weekly basis, whichever is greater, but not both. It may be helpful to illustrate this opinion by specific examples.

(a) Suppose an employee paid $1.20 an hour works the following schedule:

	M	T	W	T	F	S	S
Hours	14	14	14	14	10	0	0

On a daily basis the employee is entitled to 8 hours of overtime pay, or a total of $84, for the week (12 hours at $1.20 plus 2 hours at $1.80 for each of the first 4 days ($72) plus 10 hours at $1.20 for the fifth day). On a weekly basis the employee is entitled to 10 hours of overtime pay or a total of $85.20, for the week (56 hours at $1.20 plus 10 hours at $1.80). The employer must pay $85.20 to satisfy the requirements of the act.

(b) Suppose the employee paid $1.20 an hour works the following schedule:

	M	T	W	T	F	S	S
Hours	16	14	14	14	6	0	0

On a daily basis the employee is entitled to 10 hours of overtime pay, or a total of $82.80, for the week. On a weekly basis the employee is entitled to 8 hours of overtime pay, or a total of $81.60, for the week (56 hours at $1.20 plus 8 hours at $1.80). The employer must pay $82.80 to satisfy the requirements of the act.

42. Section 778.27 is amended to read:

§ 778.27 Retroactive effect. Section 16 (e) of the Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1949 (29 U. S. C. 216b) provides:

No employer shall be subject to any liability or punishment under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (in any action or proceeding commenced prior to or on or after the effective date of this act), on account of the failure of said employer to pay an employee compensation for any period of overtime work performed prior to July 20, 1949, if the compensation paid prior to July 20, 1949, for such work was at least equal to the compensation which would have been payable for such work had section 7 (d) (6) and (7) and section 7 (g) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, been in effect at the time of such payment.

For the period between July 20, 1949, and January 25, 1950, the provisions of the former section 7 (e) of the act, as added by the act of July 20, 1949 (63 Stat. 446) provided virtually identical protection.

43. Section 778.6 (g) (4) is amended to read:

(4) Plans under section 401 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code. Where the benefit plan or trust has been approved by the Bureau of Internal Revenue as satisfying the requirements of section 401 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the plan or trust will be considered to meet the conditions specified in subparagraphs (3), (i), (iii), (iv), and (v) of this paragraph.

(52 Stat. 1060; 29 U. S. C. 201–219)

These amendments shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 27th day of June 1956.

TITLE 32—NATIONAL DEFENSE

Chapter I—Office of the Secretary of Defense

Subchapter G—Defense Contract Financing

PART 84—PAYMENTS ON INCENTIVE-TYPE AND PRICE REDETERMINATION-TYPE CONTRACTS

Sec.
84.1 Purpose.
84.2 Policy and action.
84.3 Refunds and adjustments.
84.4 Contract administration.

AUTHORITY: §§ 84.1 to 84.4 issued under sec. 202, 61 Stat. 500, as amended, secs. 2–12, 62 Stat. 21–26, sec. 638, 66 Stat. 537; 5 U. S. C. 171a, 41 U. S. C. 151–162.

NOTE: This part supersedes and cancels Part 84 published 20 F. R. 9179, subject: "Payments on Incentive-Type and Price Redetermination-Type Contracts."

§ 84.1 Purpose. It is the purpose of this part to assure payment of amounts fairly due for items delivered and accepted under incentive-type and price redetermination-type contracts, to reduce the need for refunds by contractors under such contracts, to facilitate timely adjustment of provisional billing prices and prompt completion of final pricing under these types of contracts, and to reaffirm the policy on progress payments.

§ 84.2 Policy and action. (a) To accomplish the purpose of this part, all new contracts of the incentive-type and price redetermination-type, all definitive contracts of the incentive- or price redetermination-type replacing or superseding letter contracts, all amendments providing an incentive- or price redetermination-clause in contracts not previously containing such a clause, and all amendments to contracts of the incentive- or price redetermination-type providing for new or additional procurement, entered into on or after July 1, 1956, shall contain one or the other of the provisions set out in subparagraphs 1 or 2 of this paragraph.

(1) Incentive-type contracts:

Notwithstanding any provision of this contract authorizing greater payment, adjustments and refunds shall be made if the total of all amounts billed and paid or payable under this contract for items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government (including amounts applied to liquidate progress payments) until final price revision has been made shall exceed the sum of the following items as reported by the Contractor from time to time as hereinafter provided; (1) the total contract price of all items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have been established, and (2) the total amount of costs (estimated to the extent necessary) that have been reasonably incurred for and are properly allocable solely to items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have not been established, and (3) the total amount of the established target profit allocable by direct proportion to items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have not been established—increased or decreased in accordance with the incentive profit formula of this contract when the amount of costs stated in (2), above, differs from the applicable target costs. Within 45 days after the end of each quarter of the Contractor's fiscal year, beginning for the quarter in which a delivery is first made (or services are first performed for and accepted by the Government) under this contract, and as of the end of each quarter, the Contractor shall submit a statement setting forth the respective amounts of each of the three numbered items next above, together with the total amount of all billings for items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government (including amounts applied to liquidate progress payments) under this contract as of the end of each quarter. If on any quarterly statement these total billings exceed the sum of the three numbered items above, this gross excess (less any applicable tax credit under Section 1481 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954) shall, after deduction of the total refunds (cash or credit memoranda not including any tax credits under the Internal Revenue Code) theretofore made, be paid immediately by the Contractor to the Government or credited against existing unpaid billings covered by such statement; provided that if any portion of such gross excess (less all tax credits under the Internal Revenue Code) has been applied to the liquidation of progress payments, such amount may be added or restored to the unliquidated progress payment account, to the extent consistent with the progress payment clause of this contract, instead of making direct refund thereof. When, after submission by the Contractor of cost data and price-redetermination offer, the Contractor and the Contracting Officer (a) have agreed in writing upon revised billing prices in the light of the cost experience and anticipated future trend (and provided that such revised prices are not higher than the smallest of (1) the existing contract price, (ii) the Contractor's price-redetermination offer and (iii) a price based upon the most recent quarterly statement), and (b) the contractor agrees to promptly make the necessary adjustments to bring payments for past deliveries of items into alignment with the revised billing prices, and (c) so long as the Contractor bills at the agreed revised billing prices (or lower prices thereafter negotiated as final prices preliminary to confirmation by formal contract supplement), the prices so agreed upon or negotiated shall be deemed to be final prices for the purpose of this paragraph until final prices are established by supplement. For any quarter in which only the numbered (1), above, is applicable, the Contractor may furnish a written statement to that effect instead of the quarterly statement above required.

(2) In price revision—or redetermination-type contracts, not of the incentive type:

Notwithstanding any provision of this contract authorizing greater payment, adjustments and refunds shall be made if the total of all amounts billed and paid or payable under this contract for items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government (including amounts applied to liquidate progress payments), until final price revision has been made to the full extent permitted by this contract, shall exceed the sum of the following items as reported by the Contractor from time to time as hereinafter provided; (1) the total contract price of all items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have been established, and (2) the total amount of costs (estimated to the extent necessary) that have been reasonably incurred for and are properly allocable solely to (for services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have not been established, and (3) the total amount of interim profit used in establishing the initial contract price and allocable by direct proportion to items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government for which final prices have not been established. Within 45 days after the end of each quarter of the Contractor's fiscal year, beginning for the quarter in which a delivery is first made (or services are first performed for and accepted by the Government) under this contract, and as of the end of each quarter, the Contractor shall submit a statement setting forth the respective amounts of each of the three numbered items next above, together with the total amount of all billings for items delivered to (or services performed for) and accepted by the Government (including amounts applied to liquidate progress payments) under this contract as of the end of each quarter. If on any quarterly statement these total billings exceed the sum of the three numbered items above, this gross excess (less any applicable tax credit under Section 1481 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954) shall, after deduction of the total refunds (cash or credit memoranda not including any tax credits under the Internal Revenue Code) theretofore made, be paid immediately by the Contractor to the Government or credited against existing unpaid billings covered by such statement; provided that if any portion of such gross excess (less all tax credits under the Internal Revenue Code) has been applied to the liquidation of progress payments, such amount may be added or restored to the unliquidated progress payment account, to the extent consistent with the progress payment clause of this contract, instead of making direct refund thereof. When, after submission by the Contractor of cost data and price-redetermination offer, the Contractor and the Contracting Officer (a) have agreed in writing upon revised billing prices in the light of the cost experience and anticipated future trend (and provided that such revised prices are not higher than the smallest of (1) the existing contract price, (ii) the Contractor's price-redetermination offer and (iii) a price based upon the most recent quarterly statement), and (b) the contractor agrees to promptly make the necessary adjustments to bring payments for past deliveries of items into alignment with the revised billing prices, and (c) so long as the Contractor bills at the agreed revised billing prices (or lower prices thereafter negotiated as final prices preliminary to confirmation by formal contract supplement), the prices so agreed upon or negotiated shall be deemed to be final prices for the purpose of this paragraph until final prices are established by supplement. For any quarter in which only the numbered (1), above, is applicable, the Contractor may furnish a written statement to that effect instead of the quarterly statement above required.

(b) In connection with amendments providing for new procurement, and amendments providing an incentive- or price redetermination-clause in contracts not previously containing such a clause, the above provisions shall be made applicable to the entire contract.

(c) Where the contracting officer has discretion to control payments through withholding provisions under an existing contract of the incentive- or price redetermination-type not containing the above provisions, the contract shall be administered hereafter, to the maximum extent permitted by such withholding provisions, so that on and after January 1, 1956, the total aggregate payments will be limited in the manner provided in paragraph (a) of this section.

(d) In the case of outstanding contracts of the incentive-type or price redetermination-type, where payments cannot be limited within a reasonable time as provided above, the contracting officer shall take prompt action to obtain by mutual agreement amendments of such contract incorporating the above provisions.

(e) Ordinarily, unless the contracting officer has good cause to doubt or question the accuracy of statements furnished in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section, such statements will be relied upon and prompt payments under the contract will continue to be made pending any post-audit or post-review that may be necessary to protect the interests of the Government.

§ 84.3 Refunds and adjustments. (a) (1) It is essential in all cases that the amount of any indebtedness of contractors to the Government be ascertained promptly, and that the amount of each contractor's indebtedness to the Government be collected expeditiously.

(2) Government personnel will take prompt action so that amendments and supplemental agreements, where appropriate, will be prepared expeditiously and executed without delay.

(b) For use in expediting and controlling adjustments and refunds, current inventory and control lists shall be established and maintained with regard to all incentive-type and price redetermination-type contracts. Aggressive and continuing efforts shall be made to eliminate any unnecessary delays.

(c) All incentive-type and price redetermination-type contracts shall be reviewed systematically and periodically to obtain voluntary interim billing price adjustments and prompt refunds as appropriate. The making of voluntary refunds in anticipation of retroactive price reductions shall be systematically encouraged. No proposed voluntary refund shall be refused or delayed, and all such refunds shall be tendered and accepted without prejudice to final pricing. In connection with voluntary refunds, minimum refunds proposed by contractors in connection with final pricing proposals, and refunds incident to quarterly statements, contractors shall not be required to furnish concurrent itemization of adjustments to be made on past billings, nor to furnish adjusted bills concurrently. Such adjustments as may be essential in connection with refunds will be accomplished by appropriate Government personnel, with such information as may be essential from contractors after refunds are made, and the making, acceptance and deposit of refunds will not be delayed pending the making of any necessary accounting adjustments. When reductions in billing prices are proposed by contractors, they will be made effective immediately without prejudice to further adjustment, and billings voluntarily reduced by contractors shall if otherwise proper be paid at the reduced amounts without awaiting contract amendments.

§ 84.4 Contract administration. (a) The contracting officer will exercise every effort to bring about prompt redetermination of prices and setting of firm target prices by vigilant and timely attention to the contract administration aspects of each contract, and nothing contained herein will dimish his responsibilities.

(b) Section 1481 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 and Section 3806 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 provide for certain tax credits in connection with contract price refunds. The contract provisions set out in this part and in superseded Part 84 (20 F. R. 9179) do not alter the effect of those statutory provisions. Contracts containing either one of the provisions set out in § 84.3 (a) of superseded Part 84 (20 F. R. 9179) shall be administered in such manner as to allow this statutory tax credit whenever applicable under the circumstances. Whenever there is a "gross excess" under those contract provisions, the amount of such tax credit shall be allowed in partial settlement of the gross excess determined without reference to such tax credit, and only the remainder of the excess after such tax credit allowance shall be subject to refund by the Contractor. Also, applicable previous tax credits shall be excluded in computing refunds previously made, and the amount of tax credits shall be deducted from the "gross excess" in computing the amount that may be added or restored to the unliquidated progress payment amount.

(c) It was intended by superseded Part 84 (20 F. R. 9179) that subject to the quarterly adjustment required by the contract provisions set out therein, payments at contract billing prices would be made before submission of the first required quarterly statement, and thereafter during the intervals between quarterly statements. Hence, contracts containing the provisions required by superseded Part 84 (20 F. R. 9179) will be administered in the same manner as if they contained the first sentence of the contract provisions set out above.

TITLE 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

[Docket No. 11532; FCC 56-587]

[Rules Amdt. 3-16]

PART 3—RADIO BROADCAST SERVICES

TELEVISION BROADCAST STATIONS

1. Prior to November 10, 1955, when this proceeding was initiated (Notice of Proposed Rule Making, FCC 55-1124), television broadcasters and other elements of the television industry had submitted numerous suggestions and, in some cases, formal petitions for revisions of the television allocation plan.

2. The scope of these proposals and the methods employed varied widely. They ranged from channel reassignments affecting a single city to major revisions affecting the entire country. The methods included such diverse and mutually inconsistent approaches as conversion to an all-VHF system, conversion to an all-UHF system, and continued use of both bands under a wide variety of proposals. Some of the latter envisaged the more or less extensive increase of the number of VHF channel assignments through the use of new VHF channels, the use of the present 12 VHF channels under reduced spacings, or both. Others contemplated the elimination or transfer elsewhere of VHF commercial channels and the substitution, locally, of UHF channels. Some proposals were based on the revision of the existing engineering standards and policies, notably with respect to minimum spacings, maximum antenna heights and powers, the directionalizing of antennas, and the use of cross polarization. Other proposals advocated the maintenance of present standards. In short, the Commission was called upon to consider an extensive array of widely differing remedies for the difficulties which had hindered the further expansion of the nation's television service and the fuller achievement of the objectives of the Sixth Report and Order.

3. Briefly stated, those objectives were to encourage the development of a nationwide, competitive television system in which:

(a) All areas would have at least one service;

(b) The largest possible number of communities would have at least one local television station; and

(c) Multiple services would be available in as many communities and areas as possible to provide adequate program choice to the public and encourage the development of competition—among broadcasters, networks and other elements of the industry.

4. Among these three basic objectives, the greatest progress has been made in achieving the first. It is estimated that over 90 percent of the population can receive service from at least one television station. Less progress has been realized toward achievement of the second objective. Of the 1,260 communities to which at least one television channel is assigned, fewer than 300 have 1 or more stations on the air. As for the third objective, approximately 75 percent of the population receive service from two or more television stations. Slightly over 100 communities have two or more television stations in operation, as compared with 348 communities to which two or more television channels are assigned.

5. The foregoing reflects substantial progress during the four years which have elapsed since the present television allocation plan and engineering standards were adopted. Serious problems have arisen, however, which are impeding the continued expansion of the nation's television services. There is general agreement on the sources of these problems. In brief, they are:

(a) The limitation to 12 channels in the VHF band; and

(b) Difficulties which have been experienced in achieving fuller utilization of the 70 UHF channels. These difficulties have been ascribed chiefly to:

(1) The large numbers of VHF-only receivers in use and the high proportion of VHF-only receivers which continue to be manufactured.

(2) Performance deficiencies of UHF transmitting and receiving equipment during the initial 4-year period of the utilization of UHF for television broadcasting.

(3) The consequent preference of program and revenue sources for VHF outlets.

6. While some of the numerous suggestions, proposals and petitions before the Commission last November appeared to merit consideration, none was sufficiently free from disadvantage and difficulty to warrant adoption without extensive study and evaluation. Therefore this proceeding was initiated on November 10, 1955, to provide an orderly basis for examining and comparing the proposals and comments of all interested parties. Because the problems were nationwide in scope, and because widely divergent approaches to their solution required evaluation initially on a broad, nationwide basis, the Commission stated, in its Notice of Proposed Rule Making, that it would be premature at the outset to consider proposals whose scope was limited to action affecting only single communities or local areas.

7. Accordingly, the Commission requested the submission of proposals and comments relating to overall solutions on a broad, nationwide basis. At the same time the Commission terminated five rule making proceedings which had been initiated earlier on petitions for the deintermixture of five individual communities (Report and Order), November 10, 1955, Dockets 11238, 11333, 11334, 11335 and 11336, FCC 55-1125), and denied a number of other similar petitions on which rule making had not been initiated (Memorandum Opinion and Order, November 10, 1955, FCC 55-1126).

8. Aided by the proposals, comments and data submitted in this proceeding, the Commission has now had an opportunity to examine and compare the different basic approaches which are advocated by members of the television industry. The material filed has been painstakingly studied and evaluated in the endeavor to accomplish the object of the proceeding, which was to reach a decision as to the basic lines on which it would be in the public interest to revise the nationwide television system, and thus provide a basis for determining the specific reassignments which could usefully be made in individual communities in conformity with the nationwide policies adopted herein.

9. In evaluating the proposals before us it has been necessary to recognize that, while actions by this Commission determine the numbers of channels which are available for television broadcasting, the extent to which they are actually utilized depends upon the construction and operation of stations by qualified brodcasters who are able and willing to enter this field of private, free enterprise and to cope, as entrepreneurs, with the conditions of the marketplace. The opportunity for profit is accompanied by the risk of loss. Whether broadcast operations yield one or the other is dependent on economic and technical factors, many of which are beyond the Commission's control. One important economic factor is the high cost of the construction, operation and programming of television stations as compared with similar costs for radio stations. Because of this, under the present economies of television, fewer communities are able, at this stage, to support television stations than can support radio stations. Also, because of the dependence of television stations on network and other nationally distributed programming, the techniques, developed over the years in the aural broadcasting service, which enable numerous radio stations to operate successfully with a high proportion of local, non-network programming, have not so far been developed to as great an extent in the television field. This has meant that both VHF and UHF stations which have not been able to secure their principal programs from a major network have found survival difficult, if not impossible. But since it has also meant that the stations able to offer the largest viewing audience in any given community will normally secure the principal network affiliations, many UHF stations which normally cannot provide a viewing audience comparable to those of their VHF competitors have been forced to operate on a marginal or submarginal basis or cease operation.

10. Disparities which occur frequently between the audiences which VHF and UHF stations are able to offer advertising program sponsors and national spot advertisers have resulted from the serious problem of receiver incompatibility and from limitations which have been experienced to date in the power of UHF transmitters and in the sensitivity and selectivity of UHF receivers as well as the different propagation characteristics of the UHF band.

11. While we are cognizant of the jurisdictional and practical limitations which restrict the extent to which the Commission can ameliorate the foregoing economic and technical conditions, we have endeavored to determine the realistic possibilities for improvement through revision of existing television allocations. It has become apparent that the construction and successful operation of a larger number of stations has been impeded in numerous markets by the absence of a greater number of more nearly competitive facilities, despite the need for and the capacity of such markets to support a larger number of television outlets. Accordingly, in our evaluation of the numerous, diverse proposals before us, and in our determination of the course which in our judgment offers the best possibilities for both the immediate and long range expansion of the nation's television services, we have kept in mind the paramount need for more competitive services.

Remedial action proposed by the parties. 12. Some of the proposals submitted under this proceeding were based on the allocation of additional VHF spectrum space to television broadcasting and on the assignment of new VHF channels which this would make possible. Before this proceeding was initiated the Commission had undertaken negotiations with the Office of Defense Mobilization to ascertain whether any of the VHF frequencies allocated to governmental services might be made available for television broadcasting. The Office of Defense Mobilization made a careful study of the matter but concluded, in a report issued by that Office on April 13, 1956, that "national security requirements and the needs of air navigation and air communications preclude the release for non-Government use of any of the very high frequencies now utilized by the Federal Government." Moreover, this Commission has concluded that it would not be practicable to obtain a significant number of additional VHF channels using VHF frequencies under our control and now allocated to other services. In these circumstances, the proposals looking toward revision of the allocation plan on the basis of additional VHF channels must now be rejected. Moreover, the fact that additional VHF frequencies cannot be made available for television broadcasting precludes revision of the allocation plan looking toward an all-VHF television system. As the Commission has recognized from the outset, and has frequently reaffirmed, the 12 VHF channels alone are not adequate to make possible sufficient outlets for a fully competitive television system.

13. Other proposals before the Commission are based on the widespread use of additional VHF assignments, particularly in the larger markets, using the 12 VHF channels now available, but at spacings substantially shorter than the present minimum spacings. While this method appears to offer limited possibilities for meeting present needs for more stations in some areas, careful analysis of these proposals discloses difficulties which raise very serious doubt that this method would adequately serve our long range objectives. VHF stations at substandard spacings would reduce the service areas of existing VHF stations and create new interference areas within which satisfactory signals might not be received either from existing stations or from the new stations. Our studies disclose that, unless the existing minimum spacings were reduced very substantially, the number of additional outlets which could be provided over the country by this method would be very limited. Thus, in order to permit the construction of a significant number of new VHF stations it would be necessary to make very substantial in-roads in the service areas of existing stations. We recognize as urged by parties to this proceeding that the interference problems might be limited to some extent by requiring the "squeezed-in" stations to employ lower heights and powers and directional antennas, and by the use of cross polarization. But we do not believe that the creation of numerous small VHF stations with very limited service areas would further the objectives of our nationwide television system. Similar proposals were submitted to the Commission when the present television allocation plan was under consideration. They were rejected, for reasons set out in the Sixth Report and Order (Paragraphs 136 et seq.). In our opinion those reasons remain essentially valid today. There is little likelihood, moreover, that even with the maximum possible utilization of VHF "squeeze-ins", assignments could be made available in sufficient numbers to accommodate the maximum number of television stations for which it may be expected there will eventually be economic support in the United States. Yet it is clear that the widespread use of new VHF assignments at sub-standard spacings would discourage the building of additional UHF stations, and in many instances would reduce the opportunities for successful operation of UHF stations now on the air. Thus in most of the larger markets the assignment of a VHF station at substandard spacings would operate to place an artificial ceiling on the number of stations which could eventually be established. For all of these reasons we have been unable to find that the addition of new VHF assignments at substandard spacings would serve the public interest. For reasons which are discussed later, we believe, however, that it may be desirable to relax the present rules concerning minimum assignment separations to the extent necessary to permit the assignment of additional channels which do not meet the separation from the new city, provided all separations will be met from the new transmitter on these channels.

14. Some of the proposals before us advocate the deintermixture of VHF and UHF channel assignments in order to more nearly equalize competitive opportunities in individual markets while at the same time utilizing both the VHF and UHF bands in the nationwide television system. Citing competitive difficulties of UHF broadcasters, particularly in markets which are served by two or more satisfactory VHF signals, the proponents of deintermixture have advocated the elimination of some or all of the VHF channel assignments in designated cities. It is contended that this would improve the opportunities of the local UHF broadcasters to obtain, or in some cases to retain sufficient network programming and national advertising revenue to support successful station operation which, it is alleged, would be impossible for a good many UHF stations obliged to compete with two or more VHF broadcasters. The deintermixture proposals also envisage, at least in some instances, the transfer of some VHF channels to other cities where they could be used to increase the number of local VHF services. Thus, deintermixture has the dual aspect of reducing or eliminating VHF assignments in some communities and of increasing the number of VHF assignments in others.

15. It does not appear, however, that deintermixture at this stage would be practicable in a sufficient number of communities representing a sufficiently large segment of the total population to provide significantly enhanced opportunities for the fuller utilization of the UHF channels on a nationwide basis. We believe that in some types of situations, which are discussed later, deintermixture merits careful consideration as a means of increasing the opportunity for effective competition among a greater number of stations in certain individual areas. Most of the deintermixture proposals [1] have been confined to communities where UHF stations commenced operating before the advent of one, and in some cases before the advent of a second VHF service, and where a high percentage of receivers in the hands of the local residents can receive UHF signals. There are serious obstacles to a more extensive nationwide program of deintermixture at this stage. Thus there is little support for the elimination of VHF assignments in areas with little UHF set saturation. In other instances the elimination of local VHF channel assignments would not accomplish effective deintermixture owning to the local reception from VHF stations located in neighboring communities. In still other cases the elimination of local VHF assignments would be impracticable at this stage owing to the fact that substantial "white areas" would be created. It seems doubtful for these reasons that the elimination of VHF channel assignments would be practicable at this stage in a sufficient number of communities to encourage significantly increased nationwide use of the UHF band. Nor would this technique alone satisfy the need for increasing the number of outlets in many markets, both large and small, which are at present inadequately served, and which accordingly offer only limited opportunities for competition among stations, among networks, and among other program and revenue sources.

16. Because deintermixture, alone, cannot solve the entire problem, we have found it necessary to consider additional means for making possible the full utilization of the UHF band for television broadcasting. As early as 1945,[2] recognizing the inadequacy of 13 VHF channels for a fully developed nationwide television system, Commission policy has looked toward the extensive use of the UHF band for television broadcasting. The expectation that ultimately the major part of television broadcasting would be carried on in the UHF band was implicit in the allocation, in the Sixth Report and Order, of 70 UHF channels to supplement 12 previously available VHF channels. But so far this expectation has not been realized owing to difficulties which none of the proposals already discussed can sufficiently overcome. One of the proposals whose consideration has been recommended in this proceeding and has been advocated in the past by industry representatives in submissions to the Commission and to Congress, should be examined. That is the proposal to shift all television broadcasting in the United States, or in a substantial portion of the country, to the ultra-high frequency band.

17. Although it would be premature at this stage for the Commission to adopt final conclusions concerning the feasibility of transferring television to the UHF band throughout the United States, or, alternatively, in a major portion of the country, we believe that our effort to find a solution to the nationwide television allocation problem should not be concluded without a careful and thorough exploration of this approach. Another major consideration is involved. As discussed later in more detail, there are growing indications that the needs of other services for additional spectrum space are increasing rapidly. The fact that the lower part of the VHF spectrum seems well suited to their needs indicates the likelihood that it will be possible to make effective use of the VHF frequencies now allocated to television, for other nonbroadcast services.

18. If suitable means could be found to overcome the difficulties inherent in so major a frequency reallocation as moving television to UHF, and if UHF could be sufficiently developed to permit the elimination of VHF channels without loss of service, a number of basic advantages would result. All stations would be able to compete on a much more nearly comparable basis technically, since there is much less disparity between the lower and upper UHF channels than between the VHF and UHF television channels. Thus the coverage of competing stations would be much more comparable than at present, and competitive opportunities among broadcasters, among networks and among other program and revenue sources would be considerably enhanced. It may be expected that this would encourage the building of numerous additional stations which would bring a first local service to some communities and much needed additional services in others. These achievements would be aided by the fact that broadcasting in a single band would, after a suitable transition period, eliminate the crucial problem of receiver incompatibility. As compared with alternative solutions which have been considered, the use of the UHF band exclusively would raise the ceiling of the maximum number of television stations which could eventually be built and successfully operated. And, as stated above, after the discontinuance of VHF television broadcasting, additional VHF frequencies would be made available to meet the growing needs of other services for VHF spectrum space.

[1] A petition filed on April 18, 1955, by Mr. Albert J. Balusek of San Antonio, Texas, proposed that the Commission deintermix UHF and VHF channel assignments in all communities throughout the United States. We are obliged to deny this petition for the reasons set out in paragraph 15.

[2] Report of Allocations from 25,000 kc to 30,000,000 kc, May 25, 1945, Docket No. 6651.

19. Before it would be possible, however, to achieve these impressive advantages it would be necessary to find solutions for numerous problems which a transition to all-UHF television would involve. These problems fall into several major groups. The first group relates to the technical transmission and reception potentialities of UHF. It will be necessary to ascertain the extent to which UHF transmission and reception can be improved, in order to make a realistic determination as to whether conversion to all-UHF television throughout the United States or in a major portion of the country would or would not result in the loss of services available now or potentially available with the use of VHF channels. In order to ascertain the capacity of UHF transmitting and receiving equipment to render satisfactory service without the concurrent use of the VHF band for television broadcasting, the Commission believes that a program of expedited research and development should be launched without delay with the object of achieving the maximum possible increase in the range of, and the reduction of the shadow areas of UHF stations. This research and development program should be concentrated on:

(a) UHF transmitters, with emphasis on increased transmitting power and the feasibility of the use of such techniques as UHF boosters and satellites.

(b) Receivers and receiving antennas, with the object of increasing the sensitivity of and reducing the noise factors of receivers; and improving their selectivity in order to permit the reassignment of UHF channels with a minimum number of restrictions on station separations.

20. The Commission will cooperate fully with all interested groups in organizing the orderly conduct of the foregoing research and development program. While it would be premature to anticipate the results of this program, the Commission believes that considerable encouragement is offered by recent notable advances in increasing the power of UHF transmitters and in tubes for improving the characteristics of UHF receivers. Notwithstanding the disadvantages frequently associated with UHF broadcasting there are some respects in which the UHF band is superior to the VHF channels allocated to television. UHF reception, for one thing, is freer than VHF from interference caused by local noise generators such as ignition systems, electrical appliances and switches, and is less susceptible to interference due to multipath reflections. Also, if future developments result in the production of single-band UHF receivers they could be simpler in design, less costly, and more efficient than present VHF-only or combination UHF-VHF receivers, owing to the fact that the ratio between the top and bottom UHF television frequencies is smaller than between the top and bottom VHF frequencies now allocated to television. The Commission believes, therefore, that despite disappointments that have been experienced during this initial four year period of development of UHF transmitting and receiving equipment, it would be erroneous to base our policies on an assumption that UHF transmission and reception is not susceptible of significant improvement. On the other hand, additional facts and data are needed in order to make a sound determination as to whether the fullest possible exploitation of UHF's technical potentialities will enable UHF to render a service which will justify elimination of VHF broadcasting in a major part or throughout the United States.

21. The answer to this question will not depend on whether all the disparities between UHF and VHF transmission and reception can be completely eliminated. We recognize that some differences inhere in the essential characteristics of the two frequency bands and that it may never be possible to eliminate them entirely. The problem is not, however, whether these disparities can be totally eliminated, but whether UHF transmission and reception can be perfected sufficiently to enable an all-UHF system to render service to the public at least as good as or better than the service that can be provided to the public under the present system. It may very well be that owing to the opportunities which a one-band system with 70 channels will open up for increased competition, and for the construction and operation of a greater number of stations and successful operation of more networks and other program sources, a one-band system would permit more communities to have local service and would provide a larger number of multiple services to a greater portion of the population than would be possible with the combined use of the UHF and VHF bands. This may be possible despite certain advantages in the use of VHF frequencies for television broadcasting. The critical factor is that there is an inadequate number of these frequencies, and the use of the 12 VHF channels has discouraged the utilization of more than a fraction of the UHF assignments which were made available for television broadcasting in 1952.

22. When we learn the results of the suggested program of UHF research and development, we will be better able to ascertain the full practical capabilities of UHF. On that basis we will then be able to evaluate UHF's capacity to supplant VHF broadcasting without loss of service. We will also be in a better position to determine whether UHF alone would render adequate service throughout the country, or whether it would be necessary to confine all-UHF television to areas, such as east of the Mississippi River, where owing to the greater population density, and the larger number of cities able to support stations, service areas need not be as large as in the less densely populated areas to the west.

23. The second major group of problems involved in an all-UHF television system concerns the need to establish methods and timing for transition from the present system which will minimize cost and dislocation to the public and to the television industry. It would appear that a transition period would have to be sufficiently long to cover the useful life of VHF-only receivers in the hands of the public, and to permit the amortization, over a reasonable period, of VHF transmitting equipment whose use would be discontinued when VHF broadcasting would be terminated in designated portions of the United States. One method which may merit consideration is to require VHF stations to broadcast simultaneously on UHF channels during all or some part of the transition period. It would seem probable that if it should be decided to go to an all-UHF system, the announcement of a decision that VHF broadcasting would be discontinued on a fixed future date, coupled with interim simultaneous UHF broadcasting by VHF stations, would lay the necessary basis for discontinuance of the manufacture of VHF-only receivers.

24. The problem of getting UHF equipped sets into the hands of the public is not, however, subject to complete control, under existing law, by either the Commission or the industry. For even if it were to be determined that on a mass production basis improved all-channel sets can be developed at only a moderate cost differential from VHF-only sets, the forces of price competition in the industry are such as to magnify the effects of such slight differentials and in the absence of some additional spur or protection, to have the cheaper, less-complete set drive out the all-channel sets. Any private agreement among manufacturers to manufacture only UHF equipped sets would run the risk of violating the anti-trust laws. And in view of this fact, and the public's reluctance to spend additional sums in anticipation of future developments in the television art, we believe it may be essential for the Congress, contemporaneously without explorations of the technical problems of UHF operation, to examine the advisability of legislation to relieve the situation. Such legislation might take the form of special tax relief, such as that already suggested, to equate all-channel receiver costs with those of VHF-only sets, or perhaps more drastic remedies such as the prohibition of the shipment in interstate commerce of other than UHF-equipped receivers might be found to be necessary. We can make no definite recommendations at this time as to specific legislation; we do believe, however, that this is an important facet of the overall problem which cannot be overlooked.

25. For all the foregoing reasons the Commission is convinced that it should now undertake a thorough, searching analysis of the possibilities for improving and expanding the nationwide television system through the exclusive use of the UHF band throughout or in a major portion of the United States. In order, however, to lay the basis for the formulation of a definite plan or proposal in a form suitable for consideration in a formal rule making proceeding, it will be necessary first to obtain facts and data relating to the basic problems, discussed in paragraphs 19 through 24 concerning UHF's capacity to provide a complete television service without the concomitant use of VHF channels, and the best means of effecting a transition to an all-

UHF system. The Commission will welcome the submission of comments and data on these problems by all interested parties. The comments should refer to "FCC Inquiry Into The Feasibility Of Transferring Television Broadcasting To The UHF Band," and should be submitted, in an original and 14 copies, by October 1, 1956. The Commission will decide what further proceedings will be appropriate after considering those comments.

26. Concerning the first group of problems relating to the technical performance of UHF transmitters and receivers we believe that it will be necessary to achieve some progress with the suggested program of research and development before it will be useful to establish an extensive record on these subjects. The Commission will, however, accept any comments which interested parties may feel it may be useful to submit on this aspect of the matter at this time. We will especially welcome comments at this time concerning the most effective methods for conducting and expediting this suggested research and development program.

27. An additional group of problems concerns the question of the most efficient utilization of the VHF frequencies now allocated to television broadcasting, taking into account both the problems of television allocations and the uses to which these frequencies might be put by other services. It would be premature to examine the latter uses in detail, at this stage, since even assuming the successful disposition of the technical problems of an all-UHF system developments in the interim may considerably alter the present circumstances of the other services. At the same time, it may be useful to note briefly several developments which indicate growing need of additional space in the VHF portion of the spectrum for other services.

28. Recently there has been considerable development of techniques employing ionospheric scatter from point-to-point or fixed communication. It is in use outside the United States and appears to offer possibilities for domestic use and for international use between the United States and other countries. The useful frequency range is between about 30 and 60 mc. As the sunspot cycle advances widespread interference is caused to the mobile services which are now using the same frequencies for domestic operation. Whether the use of ionospheric scatter circuits is limited to foreign areas or in the event that there will be domestic demands for this service, the question is raised whether frequencies in the range of 30 to 60 mc should be set aside for this service within the next 5 or 10 years.

29. The conditions of use and the characteristics of radio systems employed by the land mobile services indicate that the lower VHF spectrum may be well adapted to their needs. Many of these services are related to trading areas in much the same manner as the broadcast service. Thus they have need for substantially the same coverage areas. However, only the base transmitting and receiving antennas can be raised above rooftop and treetop levels, and in general the base station uses lower antennas and lesser powers than broadcast stations. The governing factor, however, is the severely restricted powers and antenna heights which are available to mobile units. Only in exceptional cases do they operate from clear sites, and it is imperative that for longer ranges they have frequencies suited to their needs. The lower VHF frequencies are less affected by hills, structures and vegetation. They also permit longer mobile antennas and more sensitive receivers. These factors indicate the desirability of considering the allocation of lower VHF frequencies to the land mobile services.

30. It is evident that the need and demand for more accommodation for land mobile services has been increasing substantially in the recent past and promises to increase further as the industrial uses of radio continue to develop. These factors raise basic questions concerning spectrum allocation which go further than the requirements of television broadcasting alone, and which take into account the rising needs of other services. Thus the question of the transfer of television broadcasting to UHF has the dual aspect of the possible improvement it may provide in the opportunity for achieving the goals of the nationwide television system upon the one hand and of accommodating expanding needs and requirements of industry on the other.

Interim action. 31. There remains the problem of interim action which should be taken pending resolution of the long range problems already discussed. Since some years would be required in any event for the full implementation of an all-UHF system, the Commission believes that steps should be taken in the meantime to improve the opportunities for effective competition among a greater number of stations. As already indicated, a basic choice in many markets at this time lies between the elimination of VHF channel assignments to create improved opportunities for UHF broadcasting and, alternatively, the assignment of additional local VHF channels. Because of the widely varying circumstances in individual markets and the numerous factors which bear on the choice of techniques in any individual community or area, it is not possible to formulate rigid criteria whose perfunctory application to individual cases will automatically indicate the course which would best serve the public interest in each community during the interim period. We have concluded, however, after extensive review of all the proposals which have been submitted to us for the elimination or addition of commercial VHF assignments, that the following considerations will have important bearing on decisions in specific communities or areas. In markets with one or more commercial VHF assignments, the merits of proposals to eliminate a VHF commercial assignment would depend to a large extent on such factors as:

1. Whether significant numbers of people would lack service as a result of the elimination of the VHF channel.

2. Whether one or more UHF stations are operating in the area.

3. Whether a reasonably high proportion of the sets in use can receive UHF signals.

4. Whether the terrain is reasonably favorable for UHF coverage.

5. Whether, taking into account all the local circumstances, the elimination of a VHF channel would be consistent with the objective of improving the opportunities for effective competition among a greater number of stations.

The desirability of assigning a first VHF channel or of adding an additional VHF channel would depend principally upon:

1. Whether it is possible to locate the new transmitter so as to meet minimum transmitter spacings.

2. Whether, in cases where it is necessary to move the channel from another city, there is greater need for the channel in the area to which it is proposed to be assigned.

3. Whether the addition of a new VHF assignment would be consistent with the objective of improving the opportunities for effective competition among a greater number of stations.

32. In appropriate instances it may be desirable, in order to attain the objectives stated in the preceding paragraph, to add an additional VHF assignment which meets all requirements of the present rules with the exception that the minimum spacing from the city where the new assignment is proposed would not be met. It would be feasible, however, in these instances, by appropriate location of the new transmitter, to meet all transmitter spacing requirements. Since it is the spacing from the transmitter that is critical, we believe, that it will be in the public interest to relax the present rules in order to permit new assignments that can be utilized within reasonable distance from the city in conformity with the minimum transmitter spacing requirement. In this way additional service can be provided without departing from the engineering standards.

Implementation of interim revisions of the table of assignments. 33. This proceeding has served the purpose for which it was instituted, i. e., determination of the basic lines on which revisions of the existing television allocation plan should be considered. It can therefore now be terminated. We announced in the Notice of Proposed Rule Making adopted on November 10, 1955, that after this determination had been made we would proceed to the consideration of proposals for such channel reassignments as might be made in conformity with the general policies adopted herein.

34. Accordingly, we are adopting today a number of Notices of Proposed Rule Making in which we will consider a series of proposed channel reassignments which appear to merit consideration in conformity with the objectives outlined in this Report and Order. For example, in a number of communities, including Madison [3] and Elmira,[4] we are proposing to delete a VHF channel or reserve it for educational use. It appears on the basis of the facts before us that such action offers reasonable prospect for improving the opportunities for effective competition among a greater number of stations in these areas. In other communities, such as Fresno [4] and Peoria,[4] we are proposing to shift VHF channels to other communities, which would have the added advantage of making additional comparable facilities available in VHF markets. In several other areas, such as New Orleans [4] and Albany,[5] it appears that similar objectives can be achieved by deleting or shifting one of the two VHF channels assigned in the area.

[3] Chairman McConnaughey and Commissioners Doerfer and Mack dissented from this proposed rule making.

35. In communities such as Charleston and Duluth-Superior, which have two VHF channels assigned and no UHF stations in operation, we find that it is possible to add a third VHF channel by "drop-in" or by shifting an unused educational assignment for which there appears to be no realistic prospect of early use. In Miami,[6] which already has three commercial VHF assignments, we are proposing to add a 4th which it appears can be accomplished in accordance with minimum transmitter spacing requirements. We believe this course of action is more meritorious than deletion of two or all-VHF channels from Miami, as some petitioners and parties to this proceeding have proposed. Where a 4th VHF channel can be employed without violating our engineering standards, deletion of VHF channels would not appear to be warranted.

36. In some markets such as Toledo, where there are only two commercial VHF assignments and no UHF stations operating, we find that despite the apparent capacity of such markets to support additional stations, it is not possible to assign an additional VHF channel because there are none available which would meet minimum transmitter spacings. Nor would it be practicable to encourage the expansion of local services on locally assigned UHF channels by eliminating a local VHF assignment because, apart from the absence of significant UHF conversion in the area, the reception of signals from VHF cities located elsewhere (in this case, Detroit) would make it doubtful that effective deintermixture could be achieved.

37. Parties interested in these proceedings will have full opportunity to submit comments in support of or in opposition to these proposals, and to submit counterproposals. The proposals put out for rule making at this time do not cover all the amendments to the present Table of Assignments which have been proposed in petitions now before us. We will endeavor to act on all petitions as rapidly as possible, including those already before us which have not yet been acted on and in those on which rule making proceedings have been initiated but not yet concluded. Parties desiring to file petitions for additional or alternative amendments to the Table of Assignments may do so.

[4] Commissioners Doerfer and Mack dissented from this proposed rule making.

[5] Chairman McConnaughey and Commissioners Doerfer and Mack dissented from this proposed rule making. Commissioners Webster, Bartley and Lee concurring but would propose the deletion of Channel 6 also.

[6] Commissioners Webster and Mack dissented from this proposed rule making.

38. In order to assist the Commission in evaluating proposals for channel reassignments which involve the removal of an existing VHF assignment for which an application is on file or a construction permit has been granted, it is requested that the parties furnish data, in accordance with the procedure set out in paragraphs 39 and 40, showing the service of all stations in the area involved.

39. As the Commission pointed out in the Sixth Report and Order and other documents, there is no available means for predicting precisely the service areas of a specific television station which will take into account time variations and variations in location, with particular reference to uneven terrain. Propagation data gathered since the Sixth Report and Order are now available. These latest data, as analyzed by the Commission's staff and others, should be used, since they improve somewhat the predictions which can now be made in the average case. The new data [7] and methods for employing them are set out below.

40. The data supplied should be based on the following assumptions:

(1) In computing coverage, stations should be assumed to be operating with maximum power at 1,000 feet above average terrain, with the transmitter located in the center of the principal community, except where the minimum transmitter separations proposed require transmitter location elsewhere.

(2) 1,000 feet antenna height above average terrain should be used for all pertinent directions.

(3) Service should be drawn for the limit of the Grade B contour as limited by noise or interference, as the case may be.

(4) The extent of Grade B service should be computed in accordance with the tables set out below.

(5) Only co-channel interference need be considered.

(6) Single station method of interference should be employed, i. e., the station causing the greatest penetration is assumed to mask the interference of other stations.

(7) In computing interference or service, all stations presently on the air or authorized, and pending applications, should be taken into account, whether UHF or VHF. However, where a station that is not yet operating is considered, this fact should be indicated.

If the parties desire, data based on other assumptions may be submitted in addition to the foregoing.

41. In a Notice of Proposed Rule Making adopted June 22, 1955 (Docket No. 11433, FCC 55–705), the Commission requested comments on a proposal to raise the maximum power of UHF television stations from 1,000 kw to 5,000 kw, and to substitute new curves in Figures 3 and 4 of § 3.699 of the rules governing reduction of power for antenna heights exceeding 2,000 feet. In a Further Report and Order adopted on December 14, 1955, the foregoing rule making proceeding was incorporated as part of the general television allocation proceeding under Docket No. 11532, and the proposal is accordingly before us for review in the instant proceeding. After careful examination of the comments which have been submitted in support of and in opposition to these proposals the Commission has concluded, in the light of the decisions reached in this proceeding, that the public interest would be served by increasing the maximum power of UHF stations to 5,000 kw. It has accordingly decided to amend the relevant rules, including the curves already mentioned, in Figures 3 and 4 of § 3.699. Equipment is now available and in use which yields effective radiated power of 1,000 kw for UHF stations. Encouraging experiments have been conducted with UHF transmissions at 4,500 kw and even higher power. The increase at this time in the maximum power authorized for UHF stations seems particularly appropriate in view of the importance which is attached to the research and development program already discussed.

42. In a Further Report and Order adopted November 30, 1955 (Docket Nos. 11181 and 11532, FCC 55–1198), the Commission brought within this general television allocation proceeding the proposal to increase the antenna height at which maximum power could be authorized for VHF television stations in Zone I. Previously, on July 20, 1955 (Report and Order, Docket No. 11181, FCC 55–802), the Commission had announced the adoption of an amendment to § 3.614 (b) of the rules which would permit VHF television stations in Zone I to use maximum power at antenna heights up to 1,250 feet, instead of up to 1,000 feet as provided in the rules. The effective date for that amendment was designated as August 31, 1955. This effective date was subsequently extended in a series of Orders issued prior to November 30, 1955, at which time the Commission vacated the Report and Order of July 20, 1955, and made the record in Docket No. 11181 part of this general television allocation proceeding. The rule making proposal under the former Docket No. 11181 is accordingly before us for decision.

43. In re-examining this proposal we have again carefully reviewed the comments, supporting and opposing the change. We have also considered a number of petitions for reconsideration or for stay of our Report and Order of July 20, 1955 (Docket No. 11181).[1] We also have considered the issues concerning maximum antenna heights and powers for VHF stations in Zone I in the light of the conclusions reached in this proceeding concerning the measures which will best facilitate the building and operation of greater numbers of television stations in both large and small markets. This objective is paramount, and furnishes the basis for our conclusion that it would be undesirable to alter the antenna height and power maxima at this time. As we pointed out in our Report and Order of July 20, 1955, there were cogent reasons for rejecting, in the Sixth Report and Order, proposals to permit all stations to use maximum power at 2,000 feet, irrespective of location. In that document the Commission adverted to the lower separations in Zone I, the shorter distances between cities, and the need for more data on operations over 1,000 feet. The pattern of VHF stations in Zone I is now well established on the basis of the height and power rules adopted in 1952 when the Sixth Report and Order was issued.

44. The comments and data submitted in the instant proceeding also indicate that to some extent, the overlap of service areas tends to diminish the opportunities for the building and successful operation of a larger number of stations, both in the VHF and UHF bands, in smaller communities neighboring the larger metropolitan areas. The power increases sought for Zone I would tend to augment these effects of overlapping of service areas. In these circumstances, taking into account the objective of facilitating the construction and operation of a larger number of television stations, the Commission has come to the conclusion that it would be preferable not to adopt even the compromise increase contemplated in our Report and Order of July 20, 1955. In reaching this decision, the Commission has borne in mind not only the possible impact of the change on UHF stations in Zone I, but also the needless burdens which would be thrust on VHF stations, which would be faced with the alternatives of sustaining increased interference from co-channel stations taking advantage of the proposed rule change, or of increasing the heights of their own antennas in order to offset it. Owing to the added cost, local zoning restrictions and air space considerations not all VHF stations in Zone I would find it possible to increase their antenna heights. Thus this proposal would tend to unbalance the established pattern of VHF service in Zone I, a result which would not be justified by the extension of service areas which the amendment might make possible in a relatively few cases.

45. In our Memorandum Opinion and Order adopted December 14, 1955, we listed five petitions which related directly to the matters under review in the general television allocation and which we announced we would, accordingly, consider in these proceedings. It is now appropriate to consider these petitions in the light of the decisions reached herein. The petition filed April 18, 1955, by Albert J. Balusek of San Antonio, Texas, has already been disposed of. The remaining four are dealt with in the succeeding paragraphs.

46. On June 21, 1955, the UHF Industry Coordinating Committee requested that the Commission amend the rules so as to permit the authorization of VHF stations on a case-to-case basis at lower separations than are permitted at present. Whether such authorizations were processed on a case-to-case basis or on the basis of a general reduction of minimum separations, the Commission has concluded, for the reasons already given, that the authorization of additional VHF stations at sub-standard transmitter spacings would not be desirable.

47. On October 17, 1955, the Ultra High Frequency Industry Coordinating Committee filed a separate petition requesting, inter alia, that the Commission consider the television allocations problem under a broad rule making proceeding. The instant rule making proceeding corresponds with that requested by the petitioner. The Ultra High Frequency Industry Coordinating Committee also requested the deferment of authorizations or modifications of authorizations which would increase intermixture pending the conduct of the general proceeding. That portion of the petition is now moot, since we are now terminating this proceeding.

48. On October 7, 1955, the American Broadcasting Company filed a petition requesting the deintermixture of some communities, the reduction of VHF separations and other revisions to the present rules. These proposals of the American Broadcasting Company have been superseded by comments filed under the instant proceeding. It is not necessary, therefore, to give separate consideration to this petition.

49. On November 9, 1955, Scharfeld and Baron of Washington, D. C., filed a petition proposing that channel assignments be made on the basis of individual applications rather than under a fixed Table of Assignments. The Commission has given careful consideration to this proposal, but is not persuaded that it would be in the public interest to abandon the Table of Assignments at this time. Before the Sixth Report and Order was adopted the Commission considered proposals to assign television channels on the basis of individual applications. It was decided, however, for reasons set out in that document, that it would be preferable to establish a table of assignments subject to modification through rule making proceedings. Although not all the reasons given at that time are applicable now to the full extent they were in 1952, when a large backlog of applications would have rendered the application basis almost unmanageable, the Commission hesitates to discard the table and thereby incur delays which may occur in cases where applications propose conflicting assignments. Moreover, retention of the present system of fixed assignments subject to modification in rule making proceedings is desirable for implementation of the policies adopted in this Report and Order.

50. In our Further Report and Order adopted in this proceeding on November 30, 1955, the Commission gave notice that it would consider herein the petition which Northern Pacific TV Corporation of Spokane, Washington, filed on November 17, 1954, requesting the amendment of §3.614 (b) of the rules so as to permit stations operating on Channels 2–6 in Zone II to operate with maximum power of 100 kw irrespective of antenna height. On the basis of careful consideration of this proposal the Commission has concluded that it would not serve the public interest to remove the maximum limitations set out in the present rules at the present time. The basic considerations which apply here are similar to those already discussed in paragraphs 43 and 44, above, relating to the proposal to increase the antenna height at which VHF stations in Zone I are permitted to use maximum power.

51. In accordance with the decision reached on the proposal to increase the maximum power of UHF stations to 5000 kilowatts, discussed in paragraph 41 above, it is ordered, That effective August 1, 1956, Part 3 of the Commission's rules is amended as follows:

A. Section 3.614 (b) is amended by deleting in the table the expression "30 dbk (1000 kw)" and substituting therefor "37 dbk (5000 kw)".

B. Section 3.699 is amended by the deletion of Figures 3 and 4 and the substitution therefor of the attached Figures 3 and 4.

52. Authority for the foregoing amendment is contained in sections 303 (a), (b), (c), (e), (f), (g), (h) and (r) and 4 (i) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

53. In accordance with the conclusions reached herein: It is ordered, That this proceeding is terminated, including that portion of this proceeding concerning amendment of the rules governing maximum antenna heights and powers in Zone I, which was formerly considered under Docket No. 11181.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interprets or applies sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 303)

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,[3]
[SEAL] MARY JANE MORRIS,
Secretary.

The accompanying Tables, which have been drawn up on the basis of new propagation data,[1] provide the basis for determining the Grade B service contours of television stations in the presence of noise and co-channel interference.

In order that rapid determinations may be reached, an abbreviated method is to be used in employing the Tables. In constructing the Tables it has been assumed that a contour which reflects the effect of each interfering station separately will approximate that derived from computing the simultaneous effect of several interfering signals since the interference from the nearest station will predominate.

The Tables are based on new minimum local field intensities of 35, 44, and 53 dbu in the presence of noise for low VHF, high VHF and UHF, respectively, and on a maximum receiving antenna discrimination of 6 db for VHF and 13 db for UHF. These new figures are employed in light of experience and improvement in the art since the Sixth Report and Order. They represent the following changes from the values employed at the time of the Sixth Report and Order. A 6 db improvement in the receiver noise figure for low VHF, a 4 db improvement in the receiver noise figure and a 3 db improvement in the receiving antenna gain for high VHF, and a 5 db improvement in the receiver noise figure and a 2 db improvement in transmission line loss for UHF. Maximum power for VHF stations, 1,000 kw for UHF stations and 1,000 foot transmitting antenna heights have been assumed in compiling the Tables. All of the data underlying the Tables are based on the foregoing assumptions and on 90 percent service time probability.

Table I gives the distance of a television station's signal as limited by noise for 50 percent and 70 percent of the locations for the low band VHF, high band VHF and UHF in the presence of noise only.

Table II gives the minimum spacing between co-channel stations in order that their Grade B contours will be limited by noise only. When stations are spaced at distances less than those indicated, their service areas will be limited by the resulting interference.

Table III gives the point, on a direct line between stations, at which Grade B service will be limited by co-channel interference on the basis of the single station method of computation.[1] Linear interpolations may be used for distances between those listed.

Table IV gives the radii of the interfering signals which reduce the 70 percent noise limitation to an overall limitation of 50 percent.

The following example explains how the tables should be used:

Consider three co-channel TV stations in the low VHF band: Stations A, B and C (see fig. 1). The stations are offset. Station A is 180 miles from Station B and 225 miles from Station C. Station B is 290 miles from Station C. The problem is to determine the limitations of the Grade B contour of Station A in the presence of noise and the interfering signals from Stations B and C.

From Table I draw the 50 percent and 70 percent location contours as limited by noise. These are found to be circles of 78 and 71 mile radii, respectively. The contour limitation of Station A in the direction of Station B can be obtained by finding from Table III the distance to the interference-free Grade B contour d_1 for a spacing of 180 miles for low VHF stations operating on an offset basis. This contour is found to fall 50 miles from Station A, and this point should be plotted on a line between Stations A and B.

Two additional points should now be located to determine the limitation of the Grade B contour of Station A in the presence of noise and interference from Station B. These additional two points may be located from Table IV. From this Table find the pertinent distance d_2. The required points will be this distance from Station B—the undesired station—and will lie on the 70 percent location noise-limited contour of Station A, i. e., at points x and y in the diagram. In the example d_2 is 208 miles. These points will be positioned symmetrically with relation to the point already determined above and will indicate where noise will limit service to 70 percent of the locations and the interfering signal will limit service to 70 percent of the locations. The cumulative effect would thus be a limitation of service to 50 percent of the locations.

The Grade B contour of Station A as limited by noise, and interference from Station B will be determined by an arc of a circle drawn through the three points which have been located. The above procedure should be repeated for Station C.

The Grade B contour limitations for Station A are shown in the figure as indicated by the arrows.

[1] The figures in the Table were computed by obtaining the point on a line between stations at which the desired field exceeds the undesired by the required ratio. This does not give the precise point at which Grade B service is limited since receiver noise factor is not considered. In dealing with stations in the low VHF band, it would be necessary to consider nonoffset stations as far removed as 650 miles in order to take noise also into account. When using the simple method employed here for the spacings usually encountered the results may place the service contours from 1 to 4 miles beyond the actual figure that will be obtained if noise were also taken into account. Nevertheless, we believe the suggested method affords results of sufficient accuracy for present purposes.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Commodity Stabilization Service

[7 CFR Part 814]

[Hearing Clerk Docket No. SH-145]

ALLOTMENT OF 1956 SUGAR QUOTA FOR DOMESTIC BEET SUGAR AREA

NOTICE OF REOPENED HEARING

Pursuant to the provisions of the Sugar Act of 1948 as amended (61 Stat. 922, as amended by 65 Stat. 318, 7 U. S. C. 1100 et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "act", the 1956 quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area as established by Sugar Regulation 811 (20 F. R. 9848) amounting to 1,800,000 short tons, raw value, was allotted in Sugar Regulation 814.32, Amendment 1 (21 F. R. 2589). Thereafter, the act was amended by Public Law 545, 84th Congress, approved May 29, 1956, which provided, among other things, for increases in the quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area above the previously fixed level of 1,800,000 tons, when total sugar requirements exceed 8,350,000 short tons, raw value. In accordance therewith, Sugar Regulation 811, Amendment 2 (21 F. R. 4653), effective June 27, 1956 increased the 1956 quota for the area by 63,731 short tons, raw value, to total 1,863,731 short tons, raw value.

[Hearing Clerk Docket No. SH-144]

ALLOTMENT OF 1956 SUGAR QUOTA FOR MAINLAND CANE SUGAR AREA

NOTICE OF REOPENED HEARING

Pursuant to the provisions of the Sugar Act of 1948 as amended (61 Stat. 318, 7 U. S. C. 1100 et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "act" and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure (7 CFR 801.1 et seq.) a notice of hearing was issued (20 F. R. 10167) and a hearing was held to receive evidence for the allotment of the 1956 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area. Thereafter, the act was amended by Public Law 545, 84th Congress, approved May 29, 1956, which provided, among other things, for increases in the quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area above the previously fixed level of 500,000 tons, when total sugar requirements exceed 8,350,000 short tons, raw value. In accordance therewith, Sugar Regulation 811, Amendment 2, (21 F. R. 4653) effective June 27, 1956 increased the 1956 quota for the area by 60,019 short tons, raw value, to total 560,019 short tons, raw value.

In view of such increase in the 1956 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area and to provide a basis for the allotment thereof and any further changes in such quota, it is necessary to reopen the record and hearing in the proceedings pertaining to the allotment of such quota identified as Hearing Clerk Docket No. SH–144, to permit evidence, limited to the subjects and issues hereinafter stated, to be introduced into such record. Accordingly, pursuant to section 205 of the act (62 Stat. 926, as amended by section 10, Pub. Law 545, 84th Cong.) and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure (21 F. R. 4251) notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held in Room 2W, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture on July 16, 1956 beginning at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t.

The scope of such hearing will be limited to the presentation of evidence relevant and pertinent to the following subjects and issue:

1. The allotment, in accordance with section 205 of the act, of the increase of 60,019 short tons, raw value, in the 1956 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area and the allotment of any further increases or reductions of that part of the quota in excess of 500,000 short tons, raw value.

2. The limiting of marketings of each processor to permit an appropriate distribution of the 1956 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area in the event of any decreases in that part of the quota in excess of 500,000 short tons, raw value.

At the hearing, the Department of Agriculture will propose (1) that the increase of 60,019 short tons, raw value, in the 1956 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area, and any further increases or reductions of that part of the quota in excess of 500,000 short tons, raw value, be allotted in the same manner as finally adopted for the allotment of the 500,000 tons pursuant to the record of the hearing held in this proceeding identified as Hearing Clerk docket No. 144, and (2) that marketings of each allottee be limited to 95 percent of its allotment through November 30, 1956 and that after that date, total marketings of each allottee in the calendar year 1956 shall not exceed its allotment for such year.

It also will be appropriate at the hearing to present evidence of any corporate merger or consolidation or of any transfer of sugar-processing facilities on the basis of which the Secretary may attribute the production, marketing and inventory history of one processor to another and establish allotments accordingly or may permit marketings to be made by one allottee, or other person, within the allotment of another. A Government witness will propose that a paragraph be included in the allotment order as follows:

The Director of the Sugar Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, of the Department, may, consistent with the provisions and objectives of the Sugar Act, permit marketings to be made by one allottee, or other person, within the allotment or portion thereof established for another allottee upon receipt of evidence satisfactory to him of a merger, consolidation, transfer of sugar processing facilities, or other action of similar effect upon the allottees or persons involved, and upon relinquishment by one of the allottees of all or a portion of its allotment.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 28th day of June 1956.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS FOR RAILROAD COMPANIES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING

JUNE 6, 1956.

Having under consideration rearrangement of the form of the general balance sheet statement prescribed for railroad companies, and changes in account numbers, titles, and texts, necessary to implement the rearrangement, the Commission has approved the modifications which are set forth below. These changes in the form of the balance sheet will, when formally ordered, have the effect of (1) showing the current assets and the current liabilities as the first items in the list of assets and liabilities, respectively; and (2) showing the capital stock, capital surplus, and retained income, in the same group under "Shareholders Equity" at the end of the balance sheet.

Any interested person may on or before August 1, 1956, file with the Commission's Secretary written views or arguments to be considered in this connection, and may request oral argument thereon. Unless otherwise decided after consideration of representations so received, and giving effect to any changes found necessary because of them, it is contemplated that this revision of the balance sheet accounts and the form of balance sheet statement will become effective January 1, 1957.

2. Cancel the numbers, titles and texts, of § 10.702½C Accrued depreciation; road and § 10.702½D Accrued depreciation; equipment, and substitute the following:

§ 10.735 Accrued depreciation; road and equipment. (a) This account shall be credited with amounts concurrently charged to operating expenses or other accounts to cover the loss in service value of depreciable road and equipment property. It shall also include amounts which the Commission may authorize the accounting company to credit to account 607, "Miscellaneous credits," or charge to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits," or to account 733, "Acquisition adjustment," in respect to past accruals of depreciation.

(b) At the time of the retirement of each unit of depreciable property, this account shall be charged with the entire service value of the unit retired or minor item retired and not replaced.

(c) For balance sheet purposes, this account shall be treated as a single composite reserve for property. However, for purposes of analysis, the accounting company shall maintain subsidiary records in which this reserve is broken down into components corresponding to the primary accounts for depreciable property. These subsidiary records shall show the current debits and credits to this reserve by primary accounts.

3. Cancel the numbers, titles and texts of § 10.702½E Accrued amortization of defense projects; road and § 10.702½F Accrued amortization of defense projects; equipment and substitute the following:

§ 10.736 Accrued amortization of defense projects; road and equipment. (a) This account shall include the amounts of accumulated past provisions for amortization of road and equipment defense projects, the cost of which is included in account 731, "Road and equipment property," or account 732, "Improvements on leased property." This account shall be charged with the credit balance herein applicable to specific property at the time the property is retired.

(b) The accounting company shall maintain subaccounts separately for accrued amortization of (1) road property and (2) equipment.

4. Change the title of § 10.712 Loans and bills receivable, to read: "Loans and notes receivable."

5. Change the account number of § 10.720 Working fund advances, to 710 and add the following note to the text of the account:

§ 10.710 Working advances. • • •

NOTE: Advances to jointly owned or used terminal companies and other companies for permanent working funds or capital purposes shall be included in accounts 721, Investments in Affiliated Companies, or 722, Other Investments, as may be appropriate.

6. Cancel the account number, title and text of § 10.722 Other deferred assets, and substitute the following:

§ 10.741 Other assets. This account shall include the estimated value of salvage recoverable from property retired when the recovery of the salvage is deferred for any reason; items of a current character but of doubtful value; other deferred assets; and assets not otherwise provided for in general balance sheet accounts. (See § 10.08–7 Current assets.)

7. Change the account number of § 10.723 Prepayments, to 711 and add the following note to the text of the account:

§ 10.711 Prepayments. • • •

NOTE: Expenditures, in the nature of additional rental, borne by a carrier for improvements to office buildings and other facilities rented for more than one year shall be included in account 743, Other deferred charges.

8. Cancel the account numbers, titles and texts of § 10.726 Property retired chargeable to operating expenses, and § 10.727 Other unadjusted debits, and substitute the following:

§ 10.743 Other deferred charges. (a) This account shall include the amount of debit balances in suspense accounts that cannot be cleared and disposed of until additional information is received, such as freight claims paid when found to be correct, but in advance of investigation with other carriers; debit balances in clearing accounts, such as "Shop expenses," "Store expenses," "Operations of gravel pits," and "Operation of quarries"; unextinguished discount on short-term notes; unadjusted debit items not otherwise provided for and similar items the proper disposition of which is uncertain.

(b) This account also is intended as a suspense account in which may be included deferred amounts for property retired chargeable to operating expenses as follows:

(1) Amounts representing the service value of nondepreciable road property retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the accounts for a single year would distort those accounts. (See § 10.04–6 Distribution of charges for nondepreciable road property retired.)

(2) Amounts representing the service value of depreciable road property retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the depreciation reserve would result in unduly depleting the reserve.

(3) Amounts representing the service value of equipment retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the depreciation reserve would result in unduly depleting the reserve.

(4) This provision covering property retired is to be used only after permission of the Commission has been asked and given. The carrier in its application to the Commission shall give full particulars concerning the property retired, the amount which it is proposed to charge to operating expenses, and the period over which, in its judgment, the amount of such charge shall be distributed.

9. Cancel the numbers, titles and texts of § 10.728 Securities issued or assumed; unpledged, and § 10.729 Securities issued or assumed; pledged.

§ 10.782 Other liabilities. This account shall include assessments for public improvements payable over a period longer than one year; retained percentages due contractors to be paid upon completion of contracts; deposits for construction of side tracks to be refunded on basis of an agreed portion of the earnings from the traffic handled over the tracks; other deferred liabilities; and liabilities not otherwise provided for in general balance sheet accounts.

NOTE: The amount of assessments for public improvements, if payments are to be made within one year, shall be included in account 761, "Other current liabilities."

11. Add the following account number, title and text:

§ 10.774 Casualty and other reserves. This account shall include reserves created by charges to operating expenses to provide for estimated liability for injuries to persons and loss and damage claims; estimated liability for revenue overcharges, such as those covered by reparation claims; and reserves not otherwise provided for in balance sheet accounts.

NOTE: With respect to injuries to persons and loss and damage claims, if the settlements when audited are charged to this account the balances for each year shall be kept separately until all items have been adjusted and cleared, but, if the settlements when audited are charged to the appropriate expense accounts the balance in this account shall be adjusted through the appropriate expense accounts so as to reflect the probable liability at the close of each year.

12. Cancel the account number, title and text of § 10.778 Other unadjusted credits, and substitute the following:

§ 10.784 Other deferred credits. This account shall include the amount of credit balances in suspense accounts that cannot be entirely cleared and disposed of until additional information is received, such as amounts received from sale of mileage tickets, to be disposed of as mileage is honored; amounts received from sales of excess baggage script, to be disposed of as coupons are honored; interchangeable mileage credential ticket redemption funds; amounts collected from the sale of damaged, unclaimed and overfreight held pending claim; credit balances in clearing accounts, such as "Shop expenses," "Store expenses," "Operating gravel pits," and "Operating quarries"; unadjusted credit items not otherwise provided for and similar items, the proper disposition of which is uncertain.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Foreign Assets Control

DYED HOG BRISTLE OF GERMAN ORIGIN

AVAILABILITY OF LICENSES FOR IMPORTATION

Notice is hereby given that the Treasury Department is now prepared to consider applications on Form TFAC–1 for licenses under the Foreign Assets Control Regulations, 31 CFR 500.101 to 500.808, to consummate contracts for the purchase and importation from Germany, in appropriate cases, of dyed hog bristles of German origin, provided that such bristles were dyed and dressed pursuant to such contract or contracts entered into between the applicant and the German exporter prior to April 14, 1955, and in reliance upon the German certificate of origin procedure, which was announced in the FEDERAL REGISTER on September 22, 1953 (18 F. R. 5655), and which is no longer in effect. Licenses issued pursuant to such applications will authorize the importation of bristle for entry into warehouse. The release from warehouse of bristle imported pursuant to such licenses will be authorized only after the Foreign Assets Control is satisfied by physical inspection of the merchandise, and such other measures as may be appropriate, that the merchandise consists solely of dyed bristle of German origin.

Applicants are advised that the fact that a licensee has paid for bristle under a license will not be considered a factor which would warrant the release from warehouse of bristle which is not found by Foreign Assets Control to consist entirely of dyed bristle of German origin.

Additional information and license application forms may be obtained from the Foreign Assets Control, Treasury Department, Washington 25, D. C., or the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, 33 Liberty Street, New York 45, New York.

Acting Director,

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket Nos. G-1142, G-2210, G-9547, and G-10592]

UNITED GAS PIPE LINE CO.

ORDER FURTHER CONSOLIDATING PROCEEDINGS FOR PURPOSE OF ORAL ARGUMENT ONLY AND SUPPLEMENTING ORDER ISSUED JUNE 22, 1956

By order issued June 22, 1956, the Commission consolidated the proceding in Docket No. G-9547 with the proceedings in Docket Nos. G-1142 and G-2210 for purpose of oral argument upon the matters involved in and the issues presented by (1) the May 15, 1956, motion of Tyler Gas Service Company (Tyler Gas) and the answer of United Gas Pipe Line Company (United) in Docket Nos. G-1142 and G-2210; (2) the petitions to intervene of Tyler Gas and the City of Tyler, Texas, in such proceedings; and (3) the motion of Tyler Gas and the answer of United in Docket No. G-9547. We fixed July 13, 1956, as the date of oral argument thereon.

United, on May 15, 1956, filed increased rates, including increased rates and charges applicable to the sales of gas to Tyler Gas. These increased rates and charges were suspended until November 16, 1956, by order of the Commission issued June 15, 1956, in Docket No. G-10592.

Tyler Gas and the City of Tyler, Texas, on June 15, 1956, filed a joint petition in Docket No. G-10592 for an order of the Commission rejecting the May 15, 1956, filing of United insofar as it applied to sales of gas to Tyler Gas.

Petitioner state, and the petition so shows, that the joint petition in Docket No. G-10592 and the other pleadings hereinabove referred to are grounded upon the same basic facts and principles of law, namely, the rule of the United States Supreme Court in Federal Power Commission v. Mobile Gas Service Corporation, 350 U. S. 332, and Federal Power Commission v. Sierra Pacific Power Company, 350 U. S. 348. They request that these matters be consolidated and set for oral argument.

In its answer in Docket No. G-10592, United adopted its answer to the motion of Tyler Gas in Docket No. G-9547 and, in addition, denied that it had or has any contract with the City of Tyler, Texas. United again points to the decisions in its favor in Tyler Gas Service Company v. United Gas Pipe Line Company, C. A. No. 1622, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas, Tyler Division, decided December 29, 1953, affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, 217 F. 2d 73, as being final judgments and obligatory upon Tyler Gas, City of Tyler, Texas, and United.

The joint petition and the answer of United in Docket No. G-10592 raise substantially the same question posed in the proceedings in Docket Nos. G-1142, G-2210, and G-9547, and it appears appropriate that the matters involved and the issues presented by such pleadings be resolved at the same time.

The Commission finds it is necessary and appropriate in carrying out the provisions of the Natural Gas Act and for the proper administration thereof that oral argument be had concerning the matters involved and the issues presented by the joint petition filed on June 15, 1956 by Tyler Gas and the City of Tyler, Texas, in the proceeding in Docket No. G-10592; and that the proceeding in Docket No. G-10592 be consolidated with the proceedings in Docket Nos. G-1142, G-2210, and G-9547 solely for purpose of oral argument upon the pleadings described above.

The Commission orders:

(A) The proceeding in Docket No. G-10592 be and it is hereby consolidated with the proceedings in Docket Nos. G-1142, G-2210, and G-9547, solely for the purpose of the oral argument provided in Paragraph (B) hereof.

(B) The order of the Commission issued June 22, 1956, in the proceedings in Docket Nos. G-1142, G-2210, and G-9547, be and it is hereby supplemented to provide that the oral argument fixed to be had on July 13, 1956, also shall concern the matters involved in and the issues presented by the joint petition filed June 15, 1956, in Docket No. G-10592 by Tyler Gas Service Company and the City of Tyler, Texas, and by the answer of United Gas Pipe Line Company.

Issued: June 22, 1956.

By the Commission.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C., on the 27th day of June 1956;

The Commission, having under consideration a revised tariff schedule, filed by American Cable and Radio Corporation, to become effective July 1, 1956, designated as follows: American Cable and Radio Corporation, Joint Tariff F. C. C. No. 7, 1st Revised Page 70.

which amends Rule 31 by adding paragraph .04 reading as follows:

.04 Subject to admissibility at oversea points, telegrams addressed to customers having tie-line connections with either Company may bear a non-chargeable routing instruction consisting of the addressee's tie-line number. Overseas senders must insert such routings at the time the message is filed. Such routings will not form part of the chargeable address which must comply with Rule 11.

It appearing that the Commission is unable to determine from an examination of the aforesaid amendment whether it will be lawful under the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, insofar as the provision at issue purports to permit one class of users to insert matter without charge whereas other classes of users are required to pay for the matter of a similar nature which they insert;

It further appearing that if the aforesaid amendment is permitted to become effective on the date specified in the revised tariff schedule, the rights and interests of the public may be adversely affected thereby;

It is ordered, That pursuant to sections 201, 202, 204, 205, and 403 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the Commission shall enter upon a hearing and investigation concerning the lawfulness of the classifications, regulations, and practices set forth in the aforesaid amendment;

It is further ordered, That pursuant to section 204 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the operation of the aforesaid amendment is hereby suspended until the 1st day of October 1956, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission; and that during said period of suspension no changes shall be made in such suspended amendment unless authorized by special permission of the Commission;

It is further ordered, That, without in any way limiting the scope of the investigation, it shall include consideration of the following issues:

(a) Whether the classifications, practices, and regulations provided for in said tariff amendment are lawful under section 201 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended;

(b) Whether the classifications, practices, and regulations provided for in said tariff provision are lawful under section 202 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended;

It is further ordered, That a copy of this order be filed in the offices of the Commission with the tariff schedule containing the amendment herein suspended; that the American Cable and Radio Corporation, with its subsidiaries, Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company, Commercial Cable Company, and All America Cables and Radio, Inc., are hereby made party respondents to the proceeding, and that a copy hereof be served upon said respondents;

DREXEL & CO. ET AL.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR ORDER EXEMPTING ACCEPTANCE OF FEES BY AFFILIATED PERSONS OF AN INVESTMENT COMPANY

JUNE 28, 1956.

In the matter of Drexel & Co., Phillip A. Roth, Baldwin Securities Corporation and General Industrial Enterprises, Inc., File No. 812-1013.

Notice is hereby given that Baldwin Securities Corporation ("Baldwin"), a closed-end, non-diversified investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 ("act") and General Industrial Enterprises, Inc. (formerly The Midvale Company and herein designated "General"), a company controlled by Baldwin, Phillip A. Roth, an affiliated person of Baldwin and General, and Drexel & Co. ("Drexel"), an affiliated person of an affiliated person of Baldwin and General, have filed an application pursuant to section 6 (c) of the act for an order of the Commission exempting from the provisions of section 17 (e) (1) of the act, the receipt by Roth and Drexel of a commission in connection with the sale by General of certain of its assets.

Baldwin owns 62 percent of the outstanding stock of General. General therefore is a controlled company of Baldwin.

On August 25, 1955, the Board of Directors of General adopted a resolution authorizing Roth and Drexel to conduct negotiations on behalf of General with one or more prospective purchasers looking toward a sale by General of its operating assets. The services on behalf of Drexel were to be performed by Edward Hopkinson, Jr., a partner in the Drexel firm, who also was and is a director and officer of both Baldwin and General. Since May 7, 1953, Roth has been a director of Baldwin and since March 7, 1956, an officer of Baldwin, and since June 25, 1953, a director of General and since April 3, 1956, an officer of General. Roth is therefore an affiliated person of Baldwin and General and Drexel is an affiliated person of an affiliated person of Baldwin and General within the terms of section 2 (a) (3) of the act.

Both before and subsequent to the resolution dated August 25, 1955, Roth and Hopkinson conducted negotiations with several prospective purchasers and these negotiations culminated in a sale on December 30, 1955, by General of all its operating assets to Midvale-Heppenstall Company for a base consideration of $6,100,000.

On March 7, 1956, a disinterested majority of the Board of Directors of General adopted a resolution authorizing, subject to the granting of the instant application, the payment by General to Roth and Drexel of $75,000 each for the services performed.

The receipt by an affiliated person of a registered investment company or by an affiliated person of such a person of any compensation for the sale of property for such investment company is prohibited by section 17 (e) (1) of the act unless an exemption therefrom is granted by the Commission pursuant to section 6 (e) of the act.

All interested persons are referred to said application which is on file at the Washington, D. C., office of this Commission for a more detailed statement of the matters of fact and law therein asserted.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application may be issued by the Commission at any time after July 16, 1956, unless prior thereto a hearing on the application is ordered by the Commission as provided in Rule N-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act. Any interested person may, not later than July 16, 1956, at 5:30 p. m., submit in writing to the Commission his views or any additional facts bearing upon the application or the desirability of a hearing thereon or request the Commission, in writing, that a hearing be held thereon. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C., and should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert.

By the Commission.

[File No. 70-3483]

MICHIGAN WISCONSIN PIPE LINE CO.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION REGARDING ISSUANCE OF SHORT-TERM NOTES TO BANKS

JUNE 28, 1956.

Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company ("Michigan Wisconsin"), a nonutility subsidiary of American Natural Gas Company, a registered holding company, has filed an application and an amendment thereto with this Commission pursuant to the third sentence of section 6 (b) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") regarding certain proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

Michigan Wisconsin proposes to enter into a Credit Agreement providing for the borrowing from banks at one or more times subsequent to June 30, 1956, of up to $25,000,000 on notes maturing January 1, 1957. The names of the banks and their respective commitments are as follows:

Name of bank	Amount of commitment
The First National City Bank of New York	$7,000,000
The Hanover Bank, New York	7,000,000
Mellon National Bank & Trust Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.	7,000,000
National Bank of Detroit	4,000,000

The Credit Agreement will commit the banks to lend to the company from time to time, on and after July 1, 1956, sums aggregating a maximum of $25,000,000 and will provide that the company shall pay a stand-by charge calculated at the rate of one-fourth of one percent per annum on the average daily unused balance of the commitment from July 1, 1956, until the entire $25,000,000 shall have been taken down or the Agreement terminates, whichever is earlier. The company may reduce the amount of the commitment at any time without penalty.

The notes issued pursuant to the Credit Agreement will mature January 1, 1957, and will bear interest at the prime rate prevailing at the First National City Bank of New York for commercial loans on the date of each borrowing. The company will have the right to prepay at any time without penalty, in amounts of $1,000,000 or multiples thereof, notes so issued, except that a prepayment penalty of one-fourth of one per cent per annum for the unexpired terms of the notes will apply in case of prepayment from the proceeds of borrowings from banks other than those participating in the Credit Agreement.

Michigan Wisconsin will covenant in the Credit Agreement, among other things, that it will not without prior consent of the banks pay dividends on its common stock in excess of the amount permitted by the company's Mortgage and Deed of Trust; incur other borrowings unless subordinated to the notes issued under the Credit Agreement except first mortgage bonds issued under said mortgage or any mortgage indenture supplementing or replacing the same; or merge or consolidate with or into any other company.

At March 31, 1956, Michigan Wisconsin had outstanding $14,000,000 of notes to banks due July 1, 1956, issued pursuant to a Credit Agreement dated June 17, 1955. The first borrowing under the proposed Credit Agreement will be on July 1, 1956, and the company will apply the proceeds therefrom, to the extent required, to the retirement of notes issued and then outstanding under the 1955 Credit Agreement.

The proposed borrowings will provide Michigan Wisconsin with funds for the construction of additional facilities, the cost of which, together with normal construction, is estimated to be approximately $12,500,000. Thus, a total of about $26,500,000 is required to finance construction this year and retire the presently outstanding bank loans.

The notes to be issued under the proposed Credit Agreement will be retired from proceeds of the issue and sale, pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50, of $25,000,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds, -- Percent Series due 1976, as to which an application is now pending before this Commission (File No. 70-3488). To provide sufficient time to carry out the bond financing and obtain adequate protection against unforeseeable contingencies, the company desires, in its present application, to have authorization to execute the proposed Credit Agreement for a period of six months, with the right of the company at its option and with the approval of the Commission, to renew the notes for a period of six months beyond January 1, 1957.

The fees, commissions and other remuneration to be paid by the company in connection with the proposed transaction are estimated by Michigan Wisconsin as follows:

Sidley, Austin, Burgess & Smith, legal fees	$1,000
American Natural Gas Service Co., services at cost	500
Miscellaneous telephone, telegraph, duplicating, traveling and other expenses and contingency fund	500
Total	2,000

No State commission and no Federal commission other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Due notice having been given of the filing of the application and a hearing not having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable provisions of the act and rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, and it appearing to the Commission that the estimated fees and expenses are not unreasonable, provided they do not exceed the amounts estimated, and that the application should be granted:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act, that said application be, and the same hereby is, granted forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

It appearing that the fees and expenses to be incurred in connection with the proposed transactions are not unreasonable if they do not exceed the estimates set forth above; and the Commission observing no basis for adverse findings, or for the imposition of terms and conditions, and finding that the applicable provisions of the act and of the rules thereunder are satisfied, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers that the application-declaration, as amended, should be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that the application-declaration, as amended, be, and it hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions contained in Rule U-24.

WHEREAS the description of products in item 806 (a) in Part I of Schedule XX annexed to the said Sixth Protocol of Supplementary Concessions reads as follows:

WHEREAS that portion of the description of products in item 1510 [second] in Part I of the said Schedule XX which follows the last semicolon therein, was erroneously worded to provide for buttons "wholly or in chief value of textile material" instead of for buttons "wholly or in part of textile material":

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the Statutes, including section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (48 Stat. (b) That item 1510 [second] in Part I of the said Schedule XX shall be applied as though that portion of the description of products therein which follows the last semicolon read as follows: "or wholly or in part of textile material".

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this 29th day of June in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and [SEAL] fifty-six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighteenth.

AUTHENTICATION OF SIGNATURES FOR INSURED LENDERS

Sections 332.13 (g); 352.4 (c) (2), and 354.8 (b) (1) of Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (20 F. R. 8657, 21 F. R. 1227, 20 F. R. 7214), are amended to provide for authentication of the signature of the County Supervisor who signs the insurance endorsement on the promissory note when someone else signed the request for issuance of the loan check by an insured lender, and to read as follows:

§ 332.13 Action by County Supervisor following receipt of closing instructions. • • •

(g) Insurance endorsement for insured loan. The County Supervisor is authorized to execute the insurance endorsement on the reverse of Form FHA–240, "Promissory Note (Insured Farm Ownership Loan)," or 240A, "Bond (Insured Farm Ownership Loan)." The State Director also is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement. Execution of the insurance endorsement constitutes the Government's insurance of the loan. If for any reason it is not possible for the same County Supervisor who signed Form FHA–971 to sign the insurance endorsement on the promissory note, the original of the completed note will be sent to the State Office, instead of directly to the lender. In such case, the State Director, or other authorized State Office official, will attest on the reverse of the note the signature of the different County Supervisor before sending the note to the lender. This will not be necessary when a local lender has no objection to a different signature on the insurance endorsement than that which appeared on Form FHA–971.

(Sec. 41 (1), 60 Stat. 1066; 7 U. S. C. 1015 (1))

(c) Preparation of promissory note. • • •

(2) The County Supervisor is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement on Form FHA–965 and Form FHA–965B. The State Director also is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement. Execution of the insurance endorsement constitutes the Government's insurance of the loan. If for any reason it is not possible for the same County Supervisor who signed Form FHA–971 to sign the insurance endorsement on the promissory note, the original of the completed note will be sent to the State Office, instead of directly to the lender. In such case, the State Director, or other authorized State Office official, will attest on the reverse of the note the signature of the different County Supervisor before sending the note to the lender. This will not be necessary when a local lender has no objection to a different signature on the insurance endorsement than that which appeared on Form FHA–971.

(Sec. 6 (3), 50 Stat. 870, sec. 10 (a) (7), 68 Stat. 735; 16 U. S. C. 590w (3), 590x–3 (a) (7))

(b) Preparation of promissory note. • • •

(1) The County Supervisor is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement on Form FHA–520. The State Director also is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement. Execution of the insurance endorsement constitutes the Government's insurance of the loan. If for any reason it is not possible for the same County Supervisor who signed Form FHA–971 to sign the insurance endorsement on the promissory note, the original of the completed note will be sent to the State Office, instead of directly to the lender. In such case, the State Director, or other authorized State Office official, will attest on the reverse of the note the signature of the different County Supervisor before sending the note to the lender. This will not be necessary when a local lender has no objection to a different signature on the insurance endorsement than that which appeared on Form FHA–971.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter I—Agricultural Marketing Service (Standards, Inspections, Marketing Practices), Department of Agriculture

PART 29—TOBACCO INSPECTION

ORDER DESIGNATING TOBACCO AUCTION MARKETS OF SWAINSBORO AND THOMASVILLE, GA., AND MADISON, FLA.

Upon referenda conducted, pursuant to prior notice (21 F. R. 4258), during the period June 21, 1956–June 23, 1956, both dates inclusive, among tobacco growers, who, during the 1955 marketing season, sold tobacco at auction on the market at Swainsboro, Ga., on the market at Thomasville, Ga., and on the market at Madison, Fla., it is found that more than two-thirds of the growers voting in each such referendum favor the designation of each such market under section 5 of the Tobacco Inspection Act (7 U. S. C. 511 et seq.) for the free and mandatory inspection and certification of tobacco sold on each such market. Therefore, pursuant to the authority vested in the Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service, and for the purposes of said act, the orders of designation of tobacco markets (7 CFR 29.601) are amended by adding thereto at the end thereof the following paragraph (tt):

§ 29.601 Designation of tobacco markets. • • •

(tt) The tobacco markets at Swainsboro, Georgia, Thomasville, Georgia, and Madison, Florida. Effective 30 days after the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER no tobacco of any type shall be offered for sale at auction on the market at Swainsboro, Georgia, on the market at Thomasville, Georgia, and on the market at Madison, Florida, until such tobacco shall have been inspected and certified by an authorized representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture according to standards established under the Tobacco Inspection Act (7 U. S. C. 511 et seq.): Provided, however, that such requirement of inspection and certification may be suspended at any time when it is found impracticable to provide inspection or when the quantity of tobacco available for inspection is not sufficient to justify the cost of such service.

(Sec. 14, 49 Stat. 734; 7 U. S. C. 511m)

Issued this 29th day of June 1956.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

[Bartlett Pear Order 1]

PART 936—FRESH BARTLETT PEARS, PLUMS, AND ELBERTA PEACHES GROWN IN CALIFORNIA

REGULATION BY GRADES AND SIZES

§ 936.537 Bartlett Pear Order 1—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 36, as amended (7 CFR Part 936), regulating the handling of fresh Bartlett pears, plums, and Elberta peaches grown in the State of California, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendations of the Bartlett Pear Commodity Committee, established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of Bartlett pears, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that, as hereinafter set forth, the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective not later than July 8, 1956. A reasonable determination as to the supply of, and the demand for, Bartlett pears must await the development of the crop and adequate information thereon was not available to the Bartlett Pear Commodity Committee until June 26, 1956; recommendation as to the need for, and the extent of, regulation of shipments of such pears was made at the meeting of said committee on June 26, 1956, after consideration of all available information relative to the supply and demand conditions for such pears, at which time the recommendation and supporting information was submitted to the Department; shipments of the current crop of such pears are expected to begin on or about July 13, 1956; and this section should be applicable to all shipments of such pears in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act; and compliance with the provisions of this section will not require of handlers any preparation therefor which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., July 8, 1956, and ending at 12:01 a. m., P. s. t., January 1, 1957, no shipper shall ship any box or container of Bartlett pears unless:

(i) All such pears grade not less than U. S. No. 2;

(ii) At least 75 percent by count of the pears contained in any box or container grade at least U. S. No. 1, except that such pears may fail to be fairly well formed only because of short shape but shall not be seriously misshapen; and

(iii) All such pears are of a size not smaller than the size known commercially as size 180.

(2) Section 936.143, sets forth the requirements with respect to the inspection and certification of shipments of Bartlett pears. Such section also prescribes the conditions which must be met if any shipment is to be made without prior inspection and certification. Notwithstanding that shipments may be made without inspection and certification, each shipper shall comply with all grade and size regulations applicable to the respective shipment.

(c) Definitions. (1) Terms used in the amended marketing agreement and order shall, when used herein, have the same meaning as is given to the respective term in said amended marketing agreement and order.

(2) "Size known commercially as size 180" means a size Bartlett pear that will pack a standard pear box, packed in accordance with the specifications of a standard pack, with five tiers, each tier having six rows with six pears in each row, and with the twenty-one smallest pears weighing not less than five pounds.

(3) "Standard pear box" means the container so designated in § 828.3 of the Agricultural Code of California.

(4) "U. S. No. 1," "U. S. No. 2," "fairly well formed," "seriously misshapen," and "standard pack" shall have the same meaning as when used in the United States Standards for Pears (summer and fall), §§ 51.1260–51.1278 of this title.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Dated: July 2, 1956.

Acting Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service.

PART 120—TOLERANCES AND EXEMPTIONS FROM TOLERANCES FOR PESTICIDE CHEMICALS IN OR ON RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES

TOLERANCES FOR RESIDUES OF SYSTOX

A petition was filed with the Food and Drug Administration requesting the establishment of tolerances for residues of Systox in or on certain raw agricultural commodities.

The Secretary of Agriculture has certified that this pesticide chemical is useful for the purposes for which tolerances are being established.

After consideration of the data submitted in the petition and other relevant material which show that the tolerances established in this order will protect the public health, and by virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 408 (d) (2), 68 Stat. 512; 21 U. S. C. 346a (d) (2)) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (21 CFR 120.7 (g)), the regulations for tolerances for pesticide chemicals in or on raw agricultural commodities (21 CFR Part 120; 21 F. R. 301) are amended by changing § 120.105 to read as follows:

§ 120.105 Tolerances for residues of Systox (O,O-diethyl-(2-ethylmercaptoethyl) thiophosphate, a mixture of thiono and thiol isomers). Tolerances for residues of Systox (O,O-diethyl-(2-ethylmercaptoethyl) thiophosphate, a mixture of thiono and thiol isomers) and derived anticholinesterase products as determined by in vitro cholinesterase inhibition of pooled human plasma, using technical Systox as a standard (this standard effects 50-percent inhibition of pooled human plasma cholinesterase at a concentration of 0.3±0.025 part per million in water as a medium) are established as follows:

(a) 5 parts per million in or on almond hulls.

(b) 1.25 parts per million in or on grapes.

(c) 0.75 part per million in or on almonds, apples, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, grapefruit, lemons, lettuce, mushmelons, oranges, pears, pecans, potatoes, strawberries, walnuts.

(d) 0.3 part per million in or on beans.

Any person who will be adversely affected by the foregoing order may, at any time prior to the thirtieth day from the effective date thereof, file with the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., written objections thereto. Objections shall show wherein the person filing will be adversely affected by this order, specify with particularity the provisions of the order deemed objectionable and reasonable grounds or the objections, and request a public hearing upon the objections. Objections may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. All documents shall be filed in quintuplicate.

Effective date. This order shall be effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF AN EMPLOYER TO AN EMPLOYEES' TRUST OR ANNUITY PLAN AND COMPENSATION UNDER A DEFERRED-PAYMENT PLAN

In order to conform Regulations 118 (26 CFR (1939) Part 39) and Regulations 111 (26 CFR (1939) Part 29), relating to income taxes, to the decisions in Saalfield Publishing Company v. Commissioner (1948) 11 T. C. 756 (A., C. B. 1952-2, 3), Philadelphia Suburban Transportation Company v. Smith (1952) 105 F. Supp. 650, Lincoln Electric Co. Profit-Sharing Trust, et al. v. Commissioner (CA 6th, 1951) 190 F. 2d 326, Commissioner v. Produce Reporter Company (CA 7th, 1953) 207 F. 2d 586, and McClintock-Trunkey Company v. Commissioner (CA 9th, 1954) 217 F. 2d 329, such regulations are hereby amended as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Section 39.23 (p)-6 (e) of Regulations 118 is amended by striking the last sentence thereof.

PAR. 2. Section 39.165-1 (a) (2) of Regulations 118 is amended by striking the sixth, seventh, and eighth sentences thereof and substituting the following: "A profit-sharing plan, on the other hand, is a plan established and maintained by an employer to provide for the participation in his profits, by his employees or their beneficiaries, based on a definite predetermined formula for allocating the contributions made to the plan among the participants and for distributing the funds accumulated under the plan after a fixed number of years, the attainment of a stated age, or upon the prior occurrence of some event such as illness, disability, retirement, death, or severance of employment. A formula for allocating the contributions among the participants is definite if, for example, it provides for an allocation in proportion to the basic compensation of each participant. A plan (whether or not it contains a definite predetermined formula for determining the profits to be shared with the employees) does not qualify under section 165 (a) if the contributions to the plan are made at such times or in such amounts that the plan in operation discriminates in favor of officers, shareholders, persons whose principal duties consist in supervising the work of other employees, or highly compensated employees. For the rules with respect to discrimination, see §§ 39.165-3 and 39.165-4."

PAR. 3. The last undesignated paragraph of § 29.23 (p)-6 of Regulations 111, as amended by Treasury Decision 5666, approved November 2, 1948, is further amended by striking the last sentence thereof.

PAR. 4. The second paragraph, which is undesignated, of § 29.165-1 (a) of Regulations 111, as amended by Treasury Decision 5422, approved December 13, 1944, and Treasury Decision 6033, approved July 27, 1953, is further amended by striking the sixth, seventh, and eighth sentences thereof and substituting the following: "A profit-sharing plan, on the other hand, is a plan established and maintained by an employer to provide for the participation in his profits, by his employees or their beneficiaries, based on a definite predetermined formula for allocating the contributions made to the plan among the participants and for distributing the funds accumulated under the plan after a fixed number of years, the attainment of a stated age, or upon the prior occurrence of some event such as illness, disability, retirement, death, or severance of employment. A formula for allocating the contributions among the participants is definite if, for example, it provides for an allocation in proportion to the basic compensation of each participant. A plan (whether or not it contains a definite predetermined formula for determining the profits to be shared with the employees) does not qualify under section 165 (a) if the contributions to the plan are made at such times or in such amounts that the plan in operation discriminates in favor of officers, shareholders, persons whose principal duties consist in supervising the work of other employees, or highly compensated employees. For the rules with respect to discrimination, see §§ 39.165-3 and 39.165-4."

Because the purpose of this Treasury decision is merely to eliminate from the regulations provisions which the courts have held to be invalid, it is found that it is unnecessary to issue this Treasury decision with notice and public procedure thereon under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, or subject to the effective date limitation of section 4 (c) of said act.

BANKING INSTITUTIONS

RULES OF GENERAL APPLICATION TO BANKING INSTITUTIONS

§ 1.581 Statutory provisions; definition of bank.

SEC. 581. Definition of bank. For purposes of sections 582 and 584, the term "bank" means a bank or trust company incorporated and doing business under the laws of the United States (including laws relating to the District of Columbia), of any State, or of any Territory, a substantial part of the business of which consists of receiving deposits and making loans and discounts, or of exercising fiduciary powers similar to those permitted to national banks under section 11 (k) of the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 262; 12 U. S. C. 248 (k)), and which is subject by law to supervision and examination by State, Territorial, or Federal authority having supervision over banking institutions. Such term also means a domestic building and loan association.

§ 1.581-1 Tax on banks. A bank, as defined in section 581, is subject to the tax on corporations imposed by section 11.

§ 1.581-2 Mutual savings banks, building and loan associations, and cooperative banks. (a) Mutual savings banks, building and loan associations, and cooperative banks not having capital stock represented by shares are subject to tax as in the case of other corporations. For special rules governing the taxation of a mutual savings bank conducting a life insurance business, see section 594 and § 1.594-1.

(b) While the general principles for determining the taxable income of a corporation are applicable to a mutual savings bank, a building and loan association, and a cooperative bank not having capital stock represented by shares, there are certain exceptions and special rules governing the computation in the case of such institutions. See section 593 and § 1.593-1 for special rules concerning additions to reserves for bad debts. See section 591 and § 1.591-1, relating to dividends paid by banking corporations, for special rules concerning deductions for amounts paid to, or credited to the accounts of, depositors or holders of withdrawable accounts as dividends. See also section 592 and § 1.592-1, relating to deductions for repayment of certain loans.

(c) For the purpose of computing the net operating loss deduction provided in section 172, any taxable year for which a mutual savings bank, building and loan association, or a cooperative bank not having capital stock represented by shares was exempt from tax shall be disregarded. Thus, no net operating loss carryover shall be allowed from a taxable year beginning before January 1, 1952, and, in the case of any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1951, the amount of the net operating loss carryback or carryover from such year shall not be reduced by reference to the income of any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1952.

§ 1.582 Statutory provisions; bad debt and loss deduction with respect to securities held by banks.

SEC. 582. Bad debt and loss deduction with respect to securities held by banks—(a) Securities. Notwithstanding sections 165 (g) (1) and 166 (e), subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 166 (relating to allowance of deduction for bad debts) shall apply in the case of a bank to a debt which is evidenced by a security as defined in section 165 (g) (2) (C).

(b) Worthless stock in affiliated bank. For purposes of section 165 (g) (1), where the taxpayer is a bank and owns directly at least 80 percent of each class of stock of another bank, stock in such other bank shall not be treated as a capital asset.

(c) Bond, etc., losses of banks. For purposes of this subtitle, in the case of a bank, if the losses of the taxable year from sales or exchanges of bonds, debentures, notes, or certificates, or other evidences of indebtedness, issued by any corporation (including one issued by a government or political subdivision thereof), with interest coupons or in registered form, exceed the gains of the taxable year from such sales or exchanges, no such sale or exchange shall be considered a sale or exchange of a capital asset.

§ 1.582-1 Bad debt and loss deduction with respect to securities held by banks. (a) A bank, as defined in section 581, is allowed a deduction for bad debts to the extent and in the manner provided by subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 166 with respect to a debt which has become worthless in whole or in part and which is evidenced by a security (a bond, debenture, note, certificate, or other evidence of indebtedness to pay a fixed or determinable sum of money) issued by any corporation (including governments and their political subdivisions), with interest coupons or in registered form.

(b) For purposes of section 165 (g) (1), relating to the deduction for losses involving worthless securities, if the taxpayer is a bank (as defined in section 581) and owns directly at least 80 percent of each class of stock of another bank, stock in such other bank shall not be treated as a capital asset.

(c) With respect to the taxation under subtitle A of a bank (as defined in section 581), if the losses of the taxable year from sales or exchanges of bonds, debentures, notes, or certificates, or other evidences of indebtedness, issued by any corporation (including one issued by a government or political subdivision thereof), with interest coupons or in registered form, exceed the gains of the taxable year from such sales or exchanges, no such sale or exchange shall be considered a sale or exchange of a capital asset.

SEC. 583. Deductions of dividends paid on certain preferred stock. In computing the taxable income of any national banking association, or of any bank or trust company organized under the laws of any State, Territory, possession of the United States, or the Canal Zone, or of any other banking corporation engaged in the business of industrial banking and under the supervision of a State banking department or of the Comptroller of the Currency, or of any incorporated domestic insurance company, there shall be allowed as a deduction from gross income, in addition to deductions otherwise provided for in this subtitle, any dividend (not including any distribution in liquidation) paid, within the taxable year, to the United States or to any instrumentality thereof exempt from Federal income taxes, on the prefered stock of the corporation owned by the United States or such instrumentality. The amount allowable as a deduction under this section shall reduce the deduction for dividends paid otherwise computed under section 561.

§ 1.584 Statutory provisions; common trust funds.

SEC. 584. Common trust funds—(a) Definitions. For purposes of this subtitle, the term "common trust fund" means a fund maintained by a bank—

(1) Exclusively for the collective investment and reinvestment of moneys contributed thereto by the bank in its capacity as a trustee, executor, administrator, or guardian; and

(2) In conformity with the rules and regulations, prevailing from time to time, of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System pertaining to the collective investment of trust funds by national banks.

(b) Taxation of common trust funds. A common trust fund shall not be subject to taxation under this chapter and for purposes of this chapter shall not be considered a corporation.

(c) Income of participants in fund—(1) Inclusions in taxable income. Each participant in the common trust fund in computing its taxable income shall include, whether or not distributed and whether or not distributable—

(A) As part of its gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than 6 months, its proportionate share of the gains and losses of the common trust fund from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than 6 months;

(B) As part of its gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than 6 months, its proportionate share of the gains and losses of the common trust fund from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than 6 months;

(C) Its proportionate share of the ordinary taxable income or the ordinary net loss of the common trust fund, computed as provided in subsection (d).

(2) Dividends and partially tax exempt interest. The proportionate share of each participant in the amount of dividends to which section 34 or section 116 applies, and in the amount of partially tax exempt interest on obligations described in section 35 or section 242, received by the common trust fund shall be considered for purposes of such sections as having been received by such participant. If the common trust fund elects under section 171 (relating to amortizable bond premium) to amortize the premium on such obligations, for purposes of the preceding sentence the proportionate share of the participant of such interest received by the common trust fund shall be his proportionate share of such interest (determined without regard to this sentence) reduced by so much of the deduction under section 171 as is attributable to such share.

(d) Computation of common trust fund income. The taxable income of a common trust fund shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as in the case of an individual, except that—

(1) There shall be segregated the gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets;

(2) After excluding all items of gain and loss from sales or exchanges of capital assets, there shall be computed—

(A) An ordinary taxable income which shall consist of the excess of the gross income over deductions; or

(B) An ordinary net loss which shall consist of the excess of the deductions over the gross income;

(3) The deduction provided by section 170 (relating to charitable, etc., contributions and gifts) shall not be allowed; and

(4) The standard deduction provided in section 141 shall not be allowed.

(e) Admission and withdrawal. No gain or loss shall be realized by the common trust fund by the admission or withdrawal of a participant. The withdrawal of any participating interest by a participant shall be treated as a sale or exchange of such interest by the participant.

(f) Different taxable years of common trust fund and participant. If the taxable year of the common trust fund is different from that of a participant, the inclusions with respect to the taxable income of the common trust fund, in computing the taxable income of the participant for its taxable year, shall be based upon the taxable income of the common trust fund for any taxable year of the common trust fund ending within or with the taxable year of the participant.

(g) Net operating loss deduction. The benefit of the deduction for net operating losses provided by section 172 shall not be allowed to a common trust fund, but shall be allowed to the participants in the common trust fund under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 1.584–1 Common trust funds—(a) Method of taxation. A common trust fund maintained by a bank is not subject to taxation under this chapter and is not considered a corporation. Its participants are taxed on their proportionate share of income from the common trust fund. Except as otherwise provided in §§ 1.584–1 to 1.584–6, inclusive, the term "participant" refers to any trust or estate, the moneys of which have been contributed to the common trust fund.

(b) Conditions for qualification. Under section 584, two conditions must be satisfied by a fund maintained by a bank (as defined in section 581) before such fund may be designated as a "common trust fund." These conditions are that such fund must be maintained by such a bank:

(1) Exclusively for the collective investment and reinvestment of moneys contributed thereto by the bank, whether acting alone or in conjunction with one or more co-fiduciaries, but solely in its capacity: (i) As a trustee of a trust created by will, deed, agreement, declaration of trust, or order of court, (ii) as an executor of the will of, or as an administrator of the estate of, a deceased person, or (iii) as a guardian (by whatever name known under local law) of the estate of an infant, of an incompetent individual, or of an absent individual; and

(2) In conformity with the rules and regulations, prevailing from time to time, of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System pertaining to the collective investment of trust funds by national banks, whether or not the bank maintaining such fund is a national bank or a member of the Federal Reserve System.

§ 1.584–2 Income of participants in common trust fund. (a) Each participant in a common trust fund is required to include in computing its taxable income for its taxable year within which or with which the taxable year of the fund ends, whether or not distributed and whether or not distributable:

(1) Its proportionate share of the gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than six months, computed as provided in § 1.584–3, as part of its gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than six months;

(2) Its proportionate share of the gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than six months, computed as provided in § 1.584–3, as part of its gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than six months; and

(3) Its proportionate share of the ordinary taxable income or the ordinary net loss of the common trust fund, computed as provided in § 1.584–3.

(b) (1) Each participant's proportionate share in the amount of dividends to which section 34 or section 116 applies received by the common trust fund shall be deemed to have been received by such participant as such dividends.

(2) Each participant's proportionate share in the amount of partially tax exempt interest described in section 35 or section 242 received by the common trust fund shall be deemed to have been received by such participant as such interest. If the common trust fund elects under section 171 (relating to amortizable bond premium) to amortize the premium on such obligations, for purposes of the preceding sentence the proportionate share of each participant of such interest received by the fund shall be his proportionate share of such interest (determined without regard to this sentence) reduced by so much of the deduction under section 171 as is attributable to such shares. See section 171 and the regulations thereunder.

(3) Any tax withheld at the source from income of the fund shall be deemed to have been withheld proportionately from the participants to whom such income is allocated.

(c) (1) The proportionate share of each participant in gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than six months, gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than six months, ordinary taxable income or ordinary net loss, dividends received, partially exempt interest, and tax withheld at the source shall be determined under the method of accounting adopted by the bank in accordance with the written plan under which the common trust fund is established and administered, provided such method clearly reflects the income of each participant.

(2) The items of income and deductions are, therefore, to be allocated to the periods between valuation dates within the taxable year established by such plan in which they were realized or sustained, and the ordinary taxable income or ordinary net loss, gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for not more than six months, and gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets held for more than six months computed for each such period. The proportionate shares of the participants in such items are then to be determined.

(3) The provisions of subparagraph (2) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. (i) The plan of a common trust fund provides for quarterly valuation dates and for the computation and the distribution of the income upon a quarterly basis, except that there shall be no distribution of capital gains. The participants are as follows: Trusts A, B, C, and D for the first quarter; Trusts A, B, C, and E for the second quarter; and Trusts A, B, F, and G for the third and fourth quarters, the participants having equal participating interests. As computed upon the quarterly basis, the ordinary taxable income, the short-term capital gain, and the long-term capital loss for the taxable year were as follows:

	First quarter	Second quarter	Third quarter	Fourth quarter	Total
Ordinary taxable income	$200	$300	$200	$400	$1,100
Short-term capital gain	200	100	200	100	600
Long-term capital loss	100	200	100	200	600

(ii) The participants' shares of ordinary taxable income are as follows:

PARTICIPANTS' SHARES OF ORDINARY TAXABLE INCOME

Participant	First quarter	Second quarter	Third quarter	Fourth quarter	Total
A	$50	$75	$50	$100	$275
B	50	75	50	100	275
C	50	75	-------	-------	125
D	50	-------	-------	-------	50
E	-------	75	-------	-------	75
F	-------	-------	50	100	150
G	-------	-------	50	100	150
Total	200	300	200	400	1,100

(iii) The participants' shares of the short-term capital gain are as follows:

PARTICIPANTS' SHARES OF SHORT-TERM CAPITAL GAIN

Participant	First quarter	Second quarter	Third quarter	Fourth quarter	Total
A	$50	$25	$50	$25	$150
B	50	25	50	25	150
C	50	25	-------	-------	75
D	50	-------	-------	-------	50
E	-------	25	-------	-------	25
F	-------	-------	50	25	75
G	-------	-------	50	25	75
Total	200	100	200	100	600

(iv) The participants' shares of the long-term capital loss are as follows:

PARTICIPANTS' SHARES OF LONG-TERM CAPITAL LOSS

Participant	First quarter	Second quarter	Third quarter	Fourth quarter	Total
A	$25	$50	$25	$50	$150
B	25	50	25	50	150
C	25	50	-------	-------	75
D	25	-------	-------	-------	25
E	-------	50	-------	-------	50
F	-------	-------	25	50	75
G	-------	-------	25	50	75
Total	100	200	100	200	600

(4) If in the above example the common trust fund also had short-term capital losses and long-term capital gains, the treatment of such gains or losses would be similar to that accorded to the short-term capital gains and long-term capital losses in the above example.

(d) The provisions of Subparts A, B, C, D, and E of Part I of Subchapter J are applicable in determining the extent to which each participant's proportionate share of the income of the common trust fund is taxable to the participant, or to the beneficiaries or the grantor of the participant.

§ 1.584–3 Computation of common trust fund income. The taxable income of the common trust fund shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as in the case of an individual, except that:

(a) No deduction shall be allowed under section 170 (relating to charitable, etc., contributions and gifts);

(b) The gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets of the common trust fund are required to be segregated. A common trust fund is not allowed the benefit of the capital loss carryover provided by section 1212;

(c) The ordinary taxable income (the excess of the gross income over deductions) or the ordinary net loss (the excess of the deductions over the gross income) shall be computed after excluding all items of gain and loss from sales or exchanges of capital assets; and

(d) The standard deduction provided in section 141 shall not be allowed.

§ 1.584–4 Admission and withdrawal of participants in the common trust fund—(a) Gain or loss. The common trust fund realizes no gain or loss by the admission or withdrawal of a participant, and the basis of the assets and the period for which they are deemed to have been held by the common trust fund for the purposes of section 1202 are unaffected by such an admission or withdrawal. If a participant withdraws the whole or any part of its participating interest from the common trust fund, such withdrawal shall be treated as a sale or exchange by the participant of the participating interest or portion thereof which is so withdrawn. A participant is not deemed to have withdrawn any part of its participating interest in the common trust fund so as to have completed a closed transaction by reason of the segregation and administration of an investment of the fund, pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (c) (7) of section 17 of Regulation F of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, as amended, for the benefit of all the then participants in the common trust fund. Such segregated investment shall be considered as held by, or on behalf of, the common trust fund for the benefit ratably of all participants in the common trust fund at the time of segregation, and any income or loss arising from its administration and liquidation shall constitute income or loss to the common trust fund apportionable among the participants for whose benefit the investment was segregated.

(b) Basis for gain or loss upon withdrawal. The participant's gain or loss upon withdrawal of its participating interest or portion thereof shall be measured by the difference between the amount received upon such withdrawal and the adjusted basis of the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn plus the additions prescribed in paragraph (c) of this section and minus the reductions prescribed in paragraph (d) of this section. The amount received by the participant shall be the sum of any money plus the fair market value of property (other than money) received upon such withdrawal. The basis of the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn shall be the sum of any money plus the fair market value of any property (other than money) contributed by the participant to the common trust fund to acquire the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn. Such basis shall not be reduced on account of the segregation of any investment in the common trust fund pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (c) (7) of section 17 of Regulation F of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, as amended. For the purpose of making the adjustments, additions, and reductions with respect to basis as prescribed in this paragraph, the ward, rather than the guardian, shall be deemed to be the participant; and the grantor, rather than the trust, shall be deemed to be the participant, to the extent that the income of the trust is taxable to the grantor under subpart E of part I of subchapter J.

(c) Additions to basis. As prescribed in paragraph (b) of this section, in computing the gain or loss upon the withdrawal of a participating interest or portion thereof, there shall be added to the basis of the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn an amount equal to the aggregate of the following items (to the extent that they were properly allocated to the participant for a taxable year of the common trust fund and were not distributed to the participant prior to withdrawal):

(1) Wholly exempt income of the common trust fund for any taxable year,

(2) Net income of the common trust fund for the taxable years beginning after December 31, 1935, and prior to January 1, 1938,

(3) Net short-term capital gain of the common trust fund for each taxable year beginning after December 31, 1937,

(4) The excess of the gains over the losses recognized to the common trust fund upon sales or exchanges of capital assets held (i) for more than 18 months for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1937, and before January 1, 1942, and (ii) for more than 6 months for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1941, and

(5) Ordinary net or taxable income of the common trust fund for each taxable year beginning after December 31, 1937.

(d) Reductions in basis. As prescribed in paragraph (b) of this section, in computing the gain or loss upon the withdrawal of a participating interest or portion thereof, the basis of the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn shall be reduced by such portions of the following items as were allocable to the participant with respect to the participating interest or portion thereof withdrawn:

(1) The amount of the excess of the allowable deductions of the common trust fund over its gross income for the taxable years beginning after December 31, 1935, and before January 1, 1938, and

(2) The amount of the net short-term capital loss, net long-term capital loss, and ordinary net loss of the common trust fund for each taxable year beginning after December 31, 1937.

§ 1.584–5 Returns of banks with respect to common trust funds. For rules applicable to filing returns of common trust funds, see section 6032 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.584–6 Net operating loss deduction. The net operating loss deduction is not allowed to a common trust fund. Each participant in a common trust fund, however, will be allowed the benefits of such deduction. In the computation of such deduction, a participant in a common trust fund shall take into account its pro rata share of items of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit of the common trust fund. The character of any such item shall be determined as if the participant had realized such item directly from the source from which realized by the common trust fund, or incurred such item in the same manner as incurred by the common trust fund.

MUTUAL SAVINGS BANKS, ETC.

SEC. 591. Deduction for dividends paid on deposits. In the case of mutual savings banks, cooperative banks, and domestic building and loan associations, there shall be allowed as deductions in computing taxable income amounts paid to, or credited to the accounts of, depositors or holders of accounts as dividends on their deposits or withdrawable accounts, if such amounts paid or credited are withdrawable on demand subject only to customary notice of intention to withdraw.

§ 1.591–1 Deduction for dividends paid on deposits—(a) In general. (1) A mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, and a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit may deduct from gross income amounts which during the taxable year are paid to or credited to the accounts of depositors or holders of accounts, as dividends on their deposits or withdrawable accounts, if such amounts paid or credited are withdrawable on demand subject only to customary notice of intention to withdraw.

(2) The deduction provided in section 591 is applicable to the taxable year in which amounts credited as dividends become withdrawable by the depositor or holder of account subject only to customary notice of intention to withdraw. Thus, amounts credited as dividends as of the last day of the taxable year which are not withdrawable by depositors or holders of accounts until the following business day are deductible under section 591 in the year subsequent to the taxable year in which they were credited. A deduction under this section will not be denied by reason of the fact that the amounts credited as dividends, otherwise deductible under section 591, are subject to the terms of a pledge agreement between the institution and the depositor or holder of account. In the case of a building and loan association having nonwithdrawable capital stock represented by shares, no deduction is allowable under this section for amounts paid or credited as dividends on such shares.

(b) Serial associations, bonus plans, etc. If a building and loan association operates in whole or in part as a serial association, maintains a bonus plan, or issues shares subject to fines, penalties, forfeitures, or other withdrawal fees, it may deduct under section 591 the total amount credited as dividends upon such shares, credited to a bonus account for such shares, or allocated to a series of shares for the taxable year, notwithstanding that as a customary condition of withdrawal:

(1) Amounts invested in, and earnings credited to, series shares must be withdrawn in multiples of even shares, or

(2) Such association has the right, pursuant to by-law, contract, or otherwise, to retain or recover a portion of the total amount invested in, or credited as earnings upon, such shares, such bonus account, or series of shares, as a fine, penalty, forfeiture, or other withdrawal fee.

In any taxable year in which the right referred to in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph is exercised, there is includible in the gross income of such association for such taxable year amounts retained or recovered by the association pursuant to the exercise of such right.

§ 1.592 Statutory provisions; deduction for repayment of certain loans.

SEC. 592. Deduction for repayment of certain loans. In the case of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, or a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit, there shall be allowed as deductions in computing taxable income amounts paid by the taxpayer during the taxable year in repayment of loans made before September 1, 1951, by (1) the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof which is wholly owned by the United States, or (2) any mutual fund established under the authority of the laws of any State.

§ 1.592–1 Repayment of certain loans by mutual savings banks, building and loan associations, and cooperative banks. There is deductible, under section 592, from the gross income of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, or a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit, amounts paid by such institutions during the taxable year in repayment of loans made before September 1, 1951, by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof which is wholly owned by the United States, or by any mutual fund established under the authority of the laws of any State. For example, amounts paid by such institution in repayment of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation before September 1, 1951, are deductible under this section. Section 592 is not applicable, however, in the case of amounts paid in repayment of loans made by an agency or instrumentality not wholly owned by the United States.

§ 1.593 Statutory provisions; additions to reserve for bad debts.

SEC. 593. Additions to reserve for bad debts. In the case of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, and a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit, the reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts under section 166 (c) shall be determined with due regard to the amount of the taxpayer's surplus or bad debt reserves existing at the close of December 31, 1951. In the case of a taxpayer described in the preceding sentence, the reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts for any taxable year shall in no case be less than the amount determined by the taxpayer as the reasonable addition for such year; except that the amount determined by the taxpayer under this sentence shall not be greater than the lesser of—

(1) The amount of its taxable income for the taxable year, computed without regard to this section, or

(2) The amount by which 12 percent of the total deposits or withdrawable accounts of its depositors at the close of such year exceeds the sum of its surplus, undivided profits, and reserves at the beginning of the taxable year.

§ 1.593–1 Additions to reserve for bad debts—(a) In general. A mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, and a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit may, as an alternative to a deduction from gross income under section 166 (a) for specific debts which become worthless in whole or in part, deduct amounts credited to a reserve for bad debts in the manner and under the circumstances prescribed in this section and § 1.593–2. In the case of such an institution, the selection of either of the alternative methods for treating bad debts may be made by the taxpayer in the return for its first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1951. The method selected shall be subject to the approval of the Commissioner upon examination of the return. If the method selected is approved, it must be followed in returns for subsequent years, unless permission is granted by the Commissioner to change to another method. Application for permission to change the method of treating bad debts shall be made at least 30 days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective.

(b) Addition to reserve. Except as otherwise provided in § 1.593–2, the reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts shall be any amount determined by the taxpayer which does not exceed the lesser of:

(1) The amount of its taxable income for the taxable year, computed without regard to section 593 and without regard to any section providing for a deduction the amount of which is dependent upon the amount of taxable income (such as section 170, relating to charitable, etc., contributions and gifts), or

(2) The amount by which 12 percent of the total deposits or withdrawable accounts of its depositors at the close of such year exceeds the sum of its surplus, undivided profits, and reserves at the beginning of the taxable year.

(c) Adjustments to reserve. Bad debt losses sustained during the taxable year shall be charged against the bad debt reserve. Recoveries of debts charged against the bad debt reserve during a prior taxable year in which the institution was subject to tax under this chapter or under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 shall be credited to the bad debt reserve. The establishment of such reserve and all adjustments made thereto must be reflected on the regular books of account of the institution at the close of the taxable year, or as soon as practicable thereafter. Minimum amounts credited in compliance with Federal or State statutes, regulations, or supervisory orders to reserve or similar accounts, or additional amounts credited to such reserve or similar accounts and permissive under such statutes, regulations, or orders, against which charges may be made for the purpose of absorbing losses sustained by an institution, will be deemed to have been credited to the bad debt reserve.

(d) Definitions. When used in this section and in § 1.593–2:

(1) Institution. The term "institution" means either a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association as defined in section 7701 (a) (19), or a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit.

(2) Surplus, undivided profits, and reserves. (i) The phrase "surplus, undivided profits, and reserves" means the amount by which the total assets of an institution exceed the amount of the total liabilities of such an institution.

(ii) For this purpose the term "total assets" means the sum of money, plus the aggregate of the adjusted basis of the property other than money, held by an institution. Such adjusted basis for any asset is its adjusted basis for determining gain upon sale or exchange for Federal income tax purposes. (See sections 1011 through 1022, and the regulations thereunder. For special rules with respect to adjustments to basis for prior taxable years during which the institution was exempt from tax, see section 1016 (a) (3) and the regulations thereunder.) The determination of the total assets of any taxpayer shall conform to the method of accounting employed by such taxpayer in determining taxable income and to the rules applicable in determining its earnings and profits.

(iii) The term "total liabilities" means all liabilities of the taxpayer, which are fixed and determined, absolute and not contingent, and includes those items which constitute liabilities in the sense of debts or obligations. The total deposits or withdrawable accounts, as defined in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, shall be considered a liability. In the case of a building and loan association having permanent nonwithdrawable capital stock represented by shares, the paid-in amount of such stock shall also be considered a liability. Reserves for contingencies and other reserves, however, which are mere appropriations of surplus, are not liabilities.

(3) Total deposits or withdrawable accounts. The phrase "total deposits or withdrawable accounts" means the aggregate of (i) amounts placed with an institution for deposit or investment and (ii) earnings outstanding on the books of account of the institution at the close of the taxable year which have been credited as dividends upon such accounts prior to the close of the taxable year, except that such term, in the case of a building and loan association, does not include permanent nonwithdrawable capital stock represented by shares, or earnings credited thereon.

(e) Examples. The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). (i) Institution X, which keeps its books on the basis of the calendar year, has surplus, reserves, and undivided profits of $800,000 as of January 1, 1955, and total deposits or withdrawable accounts of $10,000,000 as of December 31, 1955. During 1955 the institution credits $30,000, as required by a Federal agency, to a Federal insurance reserve for the sole purpose of absorbing losses. Likewise, it credits $25,000, as permitted by State statute, to another reserve fund for the purpose of absorbing losses. In 1955 Institution X charges $5,000 against its bad debt reserve for losses sustained during the taxable year.

(ii) The taxable income of Institution X for the taxable year 1955, computed without regard to section 593 and without regard to any section providing for a deduction the amount of which is dependent upon the amount of taxable income, is $200,000.

(iii) Upon the basis of the facts as stated in subdivision (i) above, the amount by which 12 percent of the total deposits or withdrawable accounts of Institution X at the close of taxable year 1955 exceeds the sum of such institution's surplus, undivided profits, and reserves at the beginning of the taxable year is $400,000 (12% of $10,000,000, minus $800,000).

(iv) Institution X, therefore, may deduct, for the taxable year 1955, as an addition to a reserve for bad debts, any amount it may determine that does not exceed the lesser of the amounts determined in subdivision (ii) or (iii) above. That amount is $200,000 (as determined in subdivision (ii) above). Since under paragraph (c) of this section, the $30,000 credited to the reserve as required by the Federal agency and the $25,000 credited to the reserve as permitted by the State statute are regarded as amounts credited to a reserve for bad debts account, Institution X can credit an additional $145,000 ($200,000 minus $55,000) to a general reserve for bad debts account at any time during the taxable year.

(v) The loss of $5,000 charged to the bad debt reserve during the taxable year does not affect the amount of the addition to the bad debt reserve provided for in paragraph (b) of this section. It is of significance only in determining the surplus, undivided profits, and reserves of Institution X as of January 1, 1956.

Example (2). The taxable income of Institution Y for the taxable year 1955, computed without regard to the deduction under section 593 and without regard to any section providing for a deduction the amount of which is dependent upon the amount of taxable income, is determined to be $250,000. The amount by which 12 percent of the total deposits or withdrawable accounts of Institution Y at the close of the taxable year exceeds the sum of such institution's surplus, undivided profits, and reserves at the beginning of the taxable year is $500,000. Institution Y credits $250,000 to its bad debt reserve in 1955. In 1957, it is determined that the correct taxable income of Institution Y for 1955, computed without regard to any deduction under section 593 and without regard to any section providing for a deduction the amount of which is dependent upon the amount of taxable income, is $275,000 and not $250,000. Assuming that Institution Y credits the additional $25,000 to its bad debt reserve, $275,000 is allowable as a deduction from gross income for such institution for the taxable year 1955.

§ 1.593–2 Additions to reserve for bad debts where surplus, reserves, and undivided profits equal or exceed 12 percent of deposits or withdrawable accounts. Where 12 percent of the total deposits or withdrawable accounts of an institution at the close of the taxable year is equal to or less than the sum of such institution's surplus, undivided profits, and reserves at the beginning of the taxable year, a reasonable addition to the reserve for bad debts as determined under the general provisions of section 166 (c) may be allowable as a deduction from gross income. In making such determination, there shall be taken into account (a) surplus or bad debt reserves existing at the close of December 31, 1951 (i. e., the amount of surplus, undivided profits, and reserves accumulated prior to January 1, 1952, and in existence at the close of December 31, 1951), and (b) changes in the surplus, undivided profits, and reserves of the institution from December 31, 1951, until the beginning of the taxable year. A deduction for an addition to the reserve for bad debts pursuant to this section will be authorized only in those cases where the institution proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the bad debt experience of the institution warrants an addition to the reserve for bad debts in excess of that provided in § 1.593–1 (b). For definitions, see § 1.593–1 (d).

SEC. 594. Alternative tax for mutual savings banks conducting life insurance business—(a) Alternative tax. In the case of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, authorized under State law to engage in the business of issuing life insurance contracts, and which conducts a life insurance business in a separate department the accounts of which are maintained separately from the other accounts of the mutual savings bank, there shall be imposed in lieu of the taxes imposed by section 11 or section 1201 (a), a tax consisting of the sum of the partial taxes determined under paragraphs (1) and (2):

(1) A partial tax computed on the taxable income determined without regard to any items of gross income or deductions properly allocable to the business of the life insurance department, at the rates and in the manner as if this section had not been enacted; and

(2) A partial tax computed on the income of the life insurance department determined without regard to any items of gross income or deductions not properly allocable to such department, at the rates and in the manner provided in subchapter L (sec. 801 and following) with respect to life insurance companies.

(b) Limitations of section. Subsection (a) shall apply only if the life insurance department would, if it were treated as a separate corporation, qualify as a life insurance company under section 801.

[Sec. 594 as amended by sec. 5 (3), Life Insurance Company Tax Act for 1955]

§ 1.594–1 Mutual savings banks conducting life insurance business—(a) Scope of application. Section 594 applies to the case of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares which conducts a life insurance business, if:

(1) The conduct of the life insurance business is authorized under State law,

(2) The life insurance business is carried on in a separate department of the bank,

(3) The books of account of the life insurance business are maintained separately from other departments of the bank, and

(4) The life insurance department of the bank would, if it were treated as a separate corporation, qualify as a life insurance company under section 801.

(b) Computation of tax. In the case of a mutual savings bank conducting a life insurance business to which section 594 is applicable, the tax upon such bank consists of the sum of the following:

(1) A partial tax computed under section 11 upon the taxable income of the bank determined without regard to any items of income or deduction properly allocable to the life insurance department, and

(2) A partial tax computed on the income (or, in the case of taxable years beginning before January 1, 1955, the taxable income (as defined in section 803)) of the life insurance department determined without regard to any items of income or deduction not properly allocable to such department, at the rates and in the manner provided in subchapter L (section 801 and following) with respect to life insurance companies.

BANK AFFILIATES

§ 1.601 Statutory provisions; special deduction for bank affiliates.

SEC. 601. Special deduction for bank affiliates. In the case of a holding company affiliate (as defined in section 2 of the Banking Act of 1933; 12 U. S. C. 221a (c)), there shall be allowed as a deduction, for purposes of section 535 (b) (8) (relating to the computation of accumulated taxable income) and section 545 (b) (6) relating to the computation of undistributed personal holding company income), the amount of the earnings and profits which the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System certifies to the Secretary or to his delegate has been devoted by such affiliate during the taxable year to the acquisition of readily marketable assets other than bank stock in compliance with section 5144 of the Revised Statutes (12 U. S. C. 61). The amount of the deduction under this section for any taxable year shall not exceed the taxable income for such year computed without regard to the special deductions for corporations provided in part VIII (except section 248) of subchapter B (section 241 and following, relating to the deduction for dividends received by corporations, etc.). The aggregate of the deductions allowable under this section and the credits allowable under the corresponding provision of any prior income tax law for all taxable years shall not exceed the amount required to be devoted under such section 5144 to such purposes.

§ 1.601–1 Special deduction for bank affiliates. (a) The special deduction described in section 601 is allowed:

(1) To a holding company affiliate of a bank, as defined in section 2 of the Banking Act of 1933 (12 U. S. C. 221a), which holding company affiliate holds, at the end of the taxable year, a general voting permit granted by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System,

(2) In the amount of the earnings or profits of such holding company affiliate which, in compliance with section 5144 of the Revised Statutes (12 U. S. C. 61), has been devoted by it during the taxable year to the acquisition of readily marketable assets other than bank stock.

(3) Upon certification by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to the Commissioner that such an amount of the earnings or profits has been so devoted by such affiliate during the taxable year.

No deduction is allowable under section 601 for the amount of readily marketable assets in excess of what is required by section 5144 of the Revised Statutes (12 U. S. C. 61) to be acquired by such affiliate, or in excess of the taxable income for the taxable year computed without regard to the special deductions for corporations provided in sections 241–247, inclusive. Nor may the aggregate of the deductions allowable under section 601 and the credits allowable under the corresponding provision of any prior income tax law for all taxable years exceed the amount required to be devoted under such section 5144 to the acquisition of readily marketable assets other than bank stock.

(b) Every taxpayer claiming a deduction provided for in section 601 shall attach to its return a supplementary statement setting forth all the facts and information upon which the claim is predicated, including such facts and information as the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System may prescribe as necessary to enable it, upon the request of the Commissioner subsequent to the filing of the return, to certify to the Commissioner the amount of earnings or profits devoted to the acquisition of such readily marketable assets. A certified copy of such supplementary statement shall be forwarded by the taxpayer to the Board of Governors at the time of the filing of the return. The holding company affiliate shall also furnish the Board of Governors such further information as the Board shall require. For the requirements with respect to the amount of such readily marketable assets which must be acquired and maintained by a holding company affiliate to which a voting permit has been granted, see section 5144 (b) and (c) of the Revised Statutes (12 U. S. C. 61).

WITHHOLDING OF TAX ON NONRESIDENT ALIENS AND FOREIGN CORPORATIONS AND TAX-FREE COVENANT BONDS

NONRESIDENT ALIENS AND FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

§ 1.1441 Statutory provisions; withholding of tax on nonresident aliens.

SEC. 1441. Withholding of tax on nonresident aliens—(a) General rule. Except as otherwise provided in subsection (c), all persons, in whatever capacity acting (including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers, and all officers and employees of the United States) having the control, receipt, custody, disposal, or payment of any of the items of income specified in subsection (b) (to the extent that any of such items constitutes gross income from sources within the United States), of any nonresident alien individual, or of any partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States and composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, shall (except in the cases provided for in section 1451 and except as otherwise provided in regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate under section 874) deduct and withhold from such items a tax equal to 30 percent thereof.

(b) Income items. The items of income referred to in subsection (a) are interest (except interest on deposits with persons carrying on the banking business paid to persons not engaged in business in the United States), dividends, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income, and amounts described in section 402 (a) (2), section 631 (b) and (c), and section 1235, which are considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets.

(c) Exceptions—(1) Dividends of foreign corporations. No deduction or withholding under subsection (a) shall be required in the case of dividends paid by a foreign corporation unless (A) such corporation is engaged in trade or business within the United States, and (B) more than 85 percent of the gross income of such corporation for the 3-year period ending with the close of its taxable year preceding the declaration of such dividends (or for such part of such period as the corporation has been in existence) was derived from sources within the United States as determined under part I of subchapter N of chapter 1.

(2) Owner unknown. The Secretary or his delegate may authorize the tax under subsection (a) to be deducted and withheld from the interest upon any securities the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent.

(3) Bonds with extended maturity dates. The deduction and withholding in the case of interest on bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust or other similar obligations of a corporation, within subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 1451 were it not for the fact that the maturity date of such obligations has been extended on or after January 1, 1934, and the liability assumed by the debtor exceeds 27½ percent of the interest, shall not exceed the rate of 27½ percent per annum.

(4) Compensation of certain aliens. Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, there may be exempted from deduction and withholding under subsection (a) the compensation for personal services of nonresident alien individuals who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals.

(5) Special items. In the case of amounts described in section 402 (a) (2), section 631 (b) and (c), and section 1235, which are considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets, the amount required to be deducted and withheld shall, if the amount of such gain is not known to the withholding agent, be such amount, not exceeding 30 percent of the proceeds from such sale or exchange, as may be necessary to assure that the tax deducted and withheld shall not be less than 30 percent of such gain.

(d) Alien resident of Puerto Rico. For purposes of this section, the term "nonresident alien individual" includes an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

§ 1.1441–1 Requirement for withholding of tax on nonresident aliens and foreign corporations. Except as otherwise provided in §§ 1.1441–3 and 1.1441–4, withholding of a tax of 30 percent is required in the case of the items of income specified in § 1.1441–2 (to the extent that such items constitute gross income from sources within the United States) paid to a nonresident alien individual, a nonresident partnership composed in whole or in part of nonresident alien individuals, or a nonresident foreign corporation. The rate of 30 percent shall be reduced as may be provided by treaty with any country. See section 894, relating to income exempt under treaty. For purposes of this section, the term "nonresident alien individual" includes an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

§ 1.1441–2 Income subject to withholding—(a) Fixed or determinable annual or periodical income. (1) The gross amount of fixed or determinable annual or periodical income is subject to withholding. Section 1441 specifically includes in such income interest (except interest on deposits with persons carrying on the banking business paid to persons not engaged in business in the United States), dividends, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, and emoluments; but other kinds of income are included, as, for instance, royalties. The term "fixed or determinable annual or periodical" income is merely descriptive of the character of a class of income. If an item of income falls within the class of income contemplated by the statute, it is immaterial whether payment of that item is made in a series of repeated payments or in a single lump sum. Thus, $5,000 in royalty income would come within the meaning of the term, whether paid in 10 payments of $500 each or in one payment of $5,000.

(2) Income is fixed when it is to be paid in amounts definitely predetermined. Income is determinable whenever there is a basis of calculation by which the amount to be paid may be ascertained. The income need not be paid annually if it is paid periodically; that is to say, from time to time, whether or not at regular intervals. The fact that a payment is not made annually or periodically does not, however, necessarily prevent its being fixed or determinable annual or periodical income. That the length of time during which the payments are to be made may be increased or diminished in accordance with someone's will or with the happening of an event does not make the payments any the less determinable or periodical. A salesman working by the month for a commission on sales which is paid or credited monthly receives determinable periodical income. The share of the fixed or determinable annual or periodical income of an estate or trust from sources within the United States which is required to be distributed currently, or which has been paid or credited during the taxable year, to a nonresident alien beneficiary of such estate or trust constitutes fixed or determinable annual or periodical income. Such items as taxes, interest on mortgages, or premiums on insurance paid to or for the account of a nonresident alien landlord by a tenant, pursuant to the terms of the lease, constitute fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

(3) Income derived from the sale in the United States of property, whether real or personal, is not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income. However, the consideration received from the transfer of property is fixed or determinable annual or periodical income if for purposes of the income tax the consideration is treated as rentals or royalties and not as the proceeds of a sale of property.

(b) Amounts considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets. Withholding is also required on the gross amount of the items described in section 402 (a) (2), relating to treatment of total distributions from certain employees' trusts; section 631 (b) and (c), relating to treatment of gain on disposal of timber or coal with a retained economic interest; and section 1235, relating to treatment of gain on sale or exchange of patents, which are considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets.

§ 1.1441–3 Exceptions and rules of special application—(a) Income from sources without the United States. To the extent that items of income constitute gross income from sources without the United States, they are not subject to withholding under § 1.1441–1. For rules governing the determination of the sources of income, see sections 861 to 864, inclusive, and the regulations thereunder.

(b) Corporate distributions—(1) Nontaxable portion. The tax shall be withheld at the source under § 1.1441–1 on the gross amount of any distribution made by a corporation other than—

(i) A nontaxable distribution payable in stock or stock rights, and

(ii) A distribution which is treated as a distribution in part or full payment in exchange for stock.

This rule shall apply without regard to any claim that all or a portion of the distribution is not taxable under section 871 or 881. The tax shall be withheld on the gross amount of the distribution even though the payee may be entitled to the benefits of section 34, relating to the credit for dividends received by individuals, or section 116, relating to partial exclusion of dividends received by individuals. Appropriate adjustment, if any, will be made upon the payee's filing of a claim for refund, together with appropriate supporting evidence, in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section.

(2) Dividends paid by a foreign corporation. No withholding under

§ 1.1441–1 is required in the case of dividends paid by a foreign corporation unless (i) the corporation is engaged in trade or business within the United States, and (ii) more than 85 percent of the gross income of the corporation for the 3-year period ending with the close of its taxable year preceding the declaration of the dividends (or for such part of such period as the corporation has been in existence) was derived from sources within the United States as determined under the provisions of sections 861–864, inclusive, and the regulations thereunder.

(3) Dividends paid by a China Trade Act corporation. Withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 on dividends paid by a corporation organized under the China Trade Act of 1922 (15 U. S. C., c. 4) if the dividends are treated as income from sources within the United States under sections 861–864, inclusive, and are distributed to—

(i) A nonresident alien other than a resident of Formosa or Hong Kong at the time of the distribution, or

(ii) A nonresident partnership composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens (other than a partnership resident in Formosa or Hong Kong), or

(iii) A nonresident foreign corporation (other than a corporation resident in Formosa or Hong Kong).

(4) Dividends paid to shareholder whose status is not definite. When a payer corporation or any other person, including a nominee, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal, or payment of dividends has no definite knowledge of the status of a shareholder, the tax shall be withheld under § 1.1441–1 if the shareholder's address is outside the United States. If the shareholder's address is within the United States, it may be assumed for the purpose of withholding on dividends that the shareholder is a citizen or resident of the United States. Unless the name and style of the shareholder are such as to indicate clearly that he is a nonresident alien, an address in care of another person in the United States does not of itself warrant treating the shareholder as a nonresident alien for such purpose. If a shareholder changes his address from a place without the United States to a place within the United States, the tax shall be withheld on dividends unless proof is furnished showing that he is a citizen or resident of the United States. For general provisions for claiming United States citizenship or residence, see § 1.1441–5.

(c) Interest—(1) Government obligations. Withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 in the case of interest paid on obligations issued on or after March 1, 1941, by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof. See section 103 and the regulations thereunder, relating to the taxation of such interest, and § 1.1461–1, relating to ownership certificates.

(2) Assumed obligations. If, in connection with the sale of a corporation's property, payment of the bonds or other obligations of the corporation is assumed by the assignee, the assignee, whether an individual, partnership, or corporation, shall deduct and withhold such taxes under § 1.1441–1 as would be required to be withheld by the assignor had no such sale or transfer been made.

(3) Defaulted interest coupons. The tax shall be withheld at the source under § 1.1441–1 on the gross amount of interest without regard to whether or not the payment constitutes a return of capital or the payment of income within the meaning of section 61. Thus, for example, the tax shall be withheld in accordance with § 1.1441–1 from defaulted interest payments upon bonds which were purchased flat at quotations representing the price of both the bonds and the defaulted matured interest coupons. Appropriate adjustment, if any, will be made upon the payee's filing of a claim for refund, together with appropriate supporting evidence, in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section.

(4) Unknown owner. Withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 in the case of interest upon all bonds or securities the owners of which are not known to the withholding agent unless such bonds or securities were issued by a corporation before January 1, 1934, contain a tax-free covenant, and do not have a maturity date which was extended on or after that date. For withholding under section 1451 in the case of unknown owners, see paragraph (a) (2) of § 1.1451–1.

(5) Tax-free covenant bonds—(i) Issued on or after January 1, 1934. Withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 in the case of interest upon bonds or other corporate obligations issued on or after January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant.

(ii) Issued before January 1, 1934. Withholding is not required under § 1.1441–1 in the case of interest upon bonds or other corporate obligations issued before January 1, 1934, containing a tax-free covenant, and not having a maturity date which was extended on or after that date. A domestic or resident fiduciary is required, however, to withhold tax under § 1.1441–1 in the case of so much of such interest as is properly allocable under section 652 or 662 to a nonresident alien beneficiary. See paragraph (f) of this section and of § 1.1451–1. For general rules respecting the withholding of tax under section 1451 in the case of such interest, see § 1.1451–1.

(iii) Extended maturity date. Withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 in the case of interest upon bonds or other corporate obligations issued before January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant, if the maturity date of the bonds or obligations has been extended on or after that date. See paragraph (c) of § 1.1451–1.

(iv) Special rate of 27½ percent. The rate of tax to be withheld at the source under § 1.1441–1 shall not exceed 27½ percent in the case of interest on bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation if—

(a) The liability assumed by the debtor exceeds 27½ percent of the interest, and

(b) The interest would be subject to withholding under the provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 1451 except for the fact that the maturity date of the obligations has been extended on or after January 1, 1934. See paragraph (c) of § 1.1451–1.

(d) Amounts considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets. (1) If, in the case of the amounts enumerated in paragraph (b) of § 1.1441–2 which are considered to be gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets, the withholding agent does not know the amount of recognized gain, he is required to deduct and withhold such amount under § 1.1441–1 as may be necessary to assure that the tax withheld will not be less than 30 percent of the recognized gain. For this purpose the recognized gain shall be determined without regard to the deduction allowed by section 1202 in respect of capital gains. The amount so withheld shall not exceed 30 percent of the gross proceeds from the transaction giving rise to the recognized gain, except that the gross proceeds may be determined by excluding the net unrealized appreciation described in section 402 (a) (2). Appropriate adjustment, if any, will be made upon the payee's filing of a claim for refund, together with appropriate supporting evidence, in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section.

(2) The withholding agent may rely upon the written statement of the person entitled to the income described in this paragraph as to the amount of gain recognized on the transaction involved. This statement shall show the computation of the gain and shall be furnished to the withholding agent in duplicate. The duplicate copy of the statement shall be forwarded with a letter of transmittal to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland; except that on and after January 1, 1957, such copy shall be forwarded to the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D. C.

(e) Personal exemption. (1) The taxation of nonresident alien individuals is provided for in sections 871 to 877, inclusive. Section 874 (a) makes the filing of a return a prerequisite to the allowance of deductions, including deductions of personal exemptions. Except in the circumstances described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, personal exemptions do not serve to reduce the amount of tax to be withheld under § 1.1441–1.

(2) In the determination of the tax to be withheld at the source under § 1.1441–1 from remuneration paid for labor or personal services performed within the United States by a nonresident alien, the benefit of the deduction for one personal exemption provided in section 151 shall be allowed, prorated upon a daily basis for the period of employment during any portion of which labor or personal services are performed within the United States by the alien. The proration is on the basis of $1.70 per day. Thus, if A, a nonresident alien seaman employed by X Shipping Corporation, is paid in 1955 upon the termination of a voyage covering 100 days and A performs personal services within the United States during, or incident to, the voyage, the amount of $170 will be allocated as the portion of the deduction to be allowed against the remuneration for personal services performed within the United States during that voyage; and withholding at 30 percent shall be applied against the balance, if any, of the remuneration. If, for example, the total remuneration paid to A for that voyage is $2,000, of which the amount of $800 is allocable to sources within the United States, a tax in the amount of $189 is required to be withheld under § 1.1441–1. As to what constitutes remuneration for labor or personal services performed within the United States, see section 861 (a) (3) and the regulations thereunder.

(f) Fiduciaries. Resident or domestic fiduciaries are required to withhold the tax at source under § 1.1441–1 on all items of income specified in § 1.1441–2 of nonresident alien beneficiaries, to the extent that such items constitute gross income from sources within the United States. Such income paid to a nonresident alien fiduciary is subject to withholding under § 1.1441–1 even though the beneficiaries of the estate or trust are citizens or residents of the United States.

(g) Trust income taxable to grantor. The income of a trust created by a nonresident alien individual and taxable to the grantor under the provisions of subpart E of part I of subchapter J is subject to withholding under § 1.1441–1, even though the fiduciary or beneficiaries of the trust are citizens or residents of the United States and regardless of whether the beneficiaries are exempt from income tax.

(h) Claims for refund. Notwithstanding § 301.6402–2 of this chapter, any claim for refund referred to in paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) of this section which is filed on and after January 1, 1957, shall be filed with the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D. C. For special rules permitting the use of the income tax return as a claim for refund, see § 301.6402–3 of this chapter.

(i) Rents paid to foreign tax-exempt organizations. For the rule for withholding on rents paid to foreign tax-exempt organizations, see § 1.1443–1.

§ 1.1441–4 Exemptions from withholding—(a) Interest—(1) Interest on bank deposits. Interest on deposits with persons carrying on the banking business paid to persons not engaged in business in the United States is not subject to withholding under § 1.1441–1.

(2) Sale of bonds between interest dates. The tax is not required to be withheld under § 1.1441–1 on accrued interest paid by the buyer in connection with the sale of bonds between interest dates, even though the interest is subject to tax under section 871 or 881. The exemption from withholding granted by this subparagraph is not a determination that the accrued interest is not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

(b) Compensation for personal services—(1) Exemption under section 1441. The salary or other compensation for personal services of a nonresident alien individual who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals shall not be subject to withholding of tax under § 1.1441–1 if—

(i) The nonresident alien is a resident of Canada or Mexico, or

(ii) The nonresident alien is engaged in agricultural labor as defined in section 3121 (g) and the regulations thereunder.

(2) Withholding of tax under section 3402. For collection of the income tax at source under section 3402 upon remuneration paid for services performed by a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Canada or Mexico and who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals, see section 3401 (a) (7) and the regulations thereunder.

(3) Proration of personal exemption. For provisions allowing the benefit of the deduction for the personal exemption on a prorated basis, see paragraph (e) of § 1.1441–3.

(c) Dividends paid by China Trade Act corporations. Withholding is not required under § 1.1441–1 upon dividends distributed by a corporation organized under the China Trade Act of 1922 (15 U. S. C., c. 4) to or for the benefit of a resident of Formosa or Hong Kong and which are exempt from taxation by section 943.

(d) Inhabitants of Virgin Islands—(1) Allowance of exemption. No withholding is required under § 1.1441–1 upon any item of income paid to any person who at the time of payment reasonably expects to satisfy his income tax obligations with respect to that item under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands. That section provides that all persons whose permanent residence is in the Virgin Islands "shall satisfy their income tax obligations under applicable taxing statutes of the United States by paying their tax on income derived from all sources both within and outside the Virgin Islands into the Treasury of the Virgin Islands." For the purpose of this paragraph, the term "person" shall include an individual, partnership, and corporation.

(2) Claiming exemption. To avoid withholding of tax at source under § 1.1441–1 the payee of the income shall notify the withholding agent by letter in duplicate that he expects to satisfy his income tax obligations under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands with respect to all income to be paid to him by the withholding agent during the current calendar year. This letter of notification shall constitute authorization to the payer of the income to pay income to the payee during that year without deduction of the tax at source under § 1.1441–1.

(3) Disposition of letter. The duplicate copy of each letter of notification shall be forwarded with a letter of transmittal to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland; except that on and after January 1, 1957, such copy shall be forwarded to the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 1.1441–5 Claiming United States citizenship or residence—(a) Individuals. For purposes of chapter 3 an individual's written statement that he is a citizen or resident of the United States may be relied upon by the payer of the income as proof that such individual is a citizen or resident of the United States. This statement shall be furnished to the withholding agent in duplicate. An alien may claim residence in the United States by filing Form 1078 with the withholding agent in duplicate in lieu of the above statement.

(b) Partnerships and corporations. For purposes of chapter 3 a written statement from a partnership or corporation claiming residence in the United States may be relied upon by the payer of the income as proof that such partnership or corporation is a resident of the United States. This statement shall be furnished to the withholding agent in duplicate. It shall contain the address of the taxpayer's office or place of business in the United States and shall be signed by a member of the partnership or by an officer of the corporation. The official title of the corporate officer shall also be given.

(c) Manner of filing statement or form. (1) The statement of citizenship or residence, or Form 1078 in the case of residence, shall be filed with the withholding agent for each successive three-calendar-year period during which the income is paid in respect of which the statement or form is furnished. The statement or form shall be filed with the withholding agent not later than 20 days preceding the date of the first payment within the three-calendar-year period for which the statement or form is furnished, or, if that is not possible because of special circumstances, as soon as possible after such first payment.

(2) Once a statement or form has been filed in respect of any three-calendar-year period, no additional statement or form is required to be filed in respect thereto unless the Commissioner of Internal Revenue notifies the withholding agent that an additional statement or form shall be filed by the taxpayer. If, after filing a statement or form, the taxpayer ceases to be a citizen or resident of the United States, he shall promptly notify the withholding agent.

(3) Upon the expiration of any three-calendar-year period, the statement or form filed in respect of that period may not be relied upon by the payer of the income as proof of citizenship or residence.

(d) Disposition of statement and form. The duplicate copy of each statement and form filed pursuant to this section shall be forwarded with a letter of transmittal to the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D. C.

(e) Definitions. As to who are nonresident alien individuals, see sections 871, 7701, and the regulations thereunder. As to what partnerships and corporations are deemed to be nonresident, see sections 881, 882, 7701, and the regulations thereunder.

(f) Effective date. This section shall apply with respect to payments made after December 31, 1956. The provisions of §§ 39.143–3 (a) and 39.144–2 of Regulations 118 corresponding to the provisions of this section, which were made applicable to chapter 3 of the 1954 Code by Treasury Decision 6091, 19 F. R. 5167, shall be deemed to apply under such chapter with respect to all payments made after December 31, 1954, and before January 1, 1957.

§ 1.1442 Statutory provisions; withholding of tax on foreign corporations.

SEC. 1442. Withholding of tax on foreign corporations. In the case of foreign corporations subject to taxation under this subtitle not engaged in trade or business within the United States, there shall be deducted and withheld at the source in the same manner and on the same items of income as is provided in section 1441 or section 1451 a tax equal to 30 percent thereof; except that, in the case of interest described in section 1451 (relating to tax-free covenant bonds), the deduction and withholding shall be at the rate specified therein.

§ 1.1442–1 Withholding of tax on foreign corporations. For regulations respecting the withholding of tax at source under section 1442 in the case of nonresident foreign corporations, see §§ 1.1441–1 and 1.1451–1.

§ 1.1443 Statutory provisions; foreign tax-exempt organizations.

SEC. 1443. Foreign tax-exempt organizations. In the case of income of a foreign organization subject to the tax imposed by section 511, this chapter shall apply to rents includible under section 512 in computing its unrelated business taxable income, but only to the extent and subject to such conditions as may be provided under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 1.1443–1 Rents paid to foreign tax-exempt organizations. The gross amount of rents paid to a foreign organization subject to the tax imposed by section 511, which are includible under section 512 in computing its unrelated business taxable income, is subject to withhodling of a tax of 30 percent in the manner prescribed for withholding of the tax under § 1.1441–1, even though the organization is engaged in trade or business within the United States.

TAX-FREE COVENANT BONDS

§ 1.1451 Statutory provisions; tax-free covenant bonds.

SEC. 1451. Tax-free covenant bonds.—(a) Requirement of withholding. In any case where bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation, issued before January 1, 1934, contain a contract or provision by which the obligor agrees to pay any portion of the tax imposed by this subtitle on the obligee, or to reimburse the obligee for any portion of the tax, or to pay the interest without deduction for any tax which the obligor may be required or permitted to pay thereon, or to retain therefrom under any law of the United States, the obligor shall deduct and withhold a tax equal to 2 percent (regardless of whether the liability assumed by the obligor is less than, equal to, or greater than 2 percent) of the interest on such bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other obligations, whether such interest is payable annually or at shorter or longer periods, if payable to—

(1) An individual,

(2) A partnership, or

(3) A foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(b) Payments to foreigners. Notwithstanding subsection (a), if the liability assumed by the obligor does not exceed 2 percent of the interest, then the deduction and withholding shall be at the rate of 30 percent in the case of—

(1) A nonresident alien individual,

(2) Any partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States and composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, and

(3) A foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(c) Owner unknown. If the owners of such obligations are not known to the withholding agent, the Secretary or his delegate may authorize such deduction and withholding to be at the rate of 2 percent, or, if the liability assumed by the obligor does not exceed 2 percent of the interest, then at the rate of 30 percent.

(d) Benefit of personal exemptions. Deduction and withholding under this section shall not be required in the case of a citizen or resident entitled to receive such interest, if he files with the withholding agent on or before February 1 a signed notice in writing claiming the benefit of the deduction for personal exemptions provided in section 151; nor in the case of a nonresident alien individual if so provided for in regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate under section 874.

(e) Alien residents of Puerto Rico. For purposes of this section, the term "nonresident alien individual" includes an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

(f) Income of obligor and obligee. The obligor shall not be allowed a deduction for the payment of the tax imposed by this subtitle, or any other tax paid pursuant to the tax-free covenant clause, nor shall such tax be included in the gross income of the obligee.

§ 1.1451–1 Tax-free covenant bonds issued before January 1, 1934.—(a) Rates of withholding.—(1) Rate of 2 percent. Withholding of a tax equal to 2 percent is required in the case of interest upon bonds or other corporate obligations containing a tax-free covenant and issued before January 1, 1934, paid to an individual, a fiduciary, or a partnership, whether resident or nonresident, or to a nonresident foreign corporation, regardless of whether the liability assumed by the obligor is less than, equal to, or greater than 2 percent.

(2) Rate of 30 percent. Notwithstanding subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, if the liability assumed by the obligor does not exceed 2 percent of the interest, withholding is required at the rate of 30 percent in the case of payments to a nonresident alien individual, a nonresident partnership composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, a nonresident foreign corporation, or an owner who is unknown to the withholding agent.

(3) Obligations of resident payers. The rates of withholding specified in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are applicable to interest on such tax-free covenant bonds issued by a domestic corporation or by a resident foreign corporation.

(4) Obligations of nonresident payers. A nonresident foreign corporation having a fiscal or paying agent in the United States is required to withhold a tax of 2 percent in the case of interest upon its tax-free covenant bonds issued before January 1, 1934, which is paid to an individual or fiduciary who is a citizen or resident of the United States, to a partnership any member of which is a citizen or resident, or to an unknown owner.

(5) Interest from sources without the United States. Withholding is not required under section 1451 in the case of interest upon bonds or other corporate obligations issued before January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant if the interest is not to be treated as income from sources within the United States and the payments are made to a nonresident alien, a partnership composed wholly of nonresident aliens, or a nonresident foreign corporation.

(6) Tax treaties. The rates of tax to be withheld in accordance with this paragraph shall be reduced as may be provided by treaty with any country. See section 894, relating to income exempt under treaty.

(b) Date of issue. The withholding provisions of section 1451 are applicable only to bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation which were issued before January 1, 1934, and which contain a tax-free covenant. For the purpose of section 1451, bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation, are issued when delivered. If a broker or other person acts as selling agent of the obligor, the obligation is issued when delivered by the agent to the purchaser. If a broker or other person purchases the obligation outright for the purpose of holding or reselling it, the obligation is issued when delivered to such broker or other person.

(c) Extended maturity date. In cases where on or after January 1, 1934, the maturity date of bonds or other obligations of a corporation is extended, the bonds or other obligations shall be considered to have been issued on or after January 1, 1934. The interest on such obligations is not subject to the withholding provisions of section 1451 but falls within the class of interest described in section 1441. See paragraph (c) (5) (iii) of § 1.1441–3.

(d) Covenant in trust deed. Bonds issued under a trust deed containing a tax-free covenant are treated as if they contain such a covenant. If neither the bonds nor the trust deeds given by the obligor to secure them contained a tax-free covenant, but the original trust deeds were modified before January 1, 1934, by supplemental agreements containing a tax-free covenant executed by the obligor corporation and the trustee, the bonds issued before January 1, 1934, are subject to the provisions of section 1451, provided appropriate authority existed for the modification of the trust deeds in this manner. The authority must have been contained in the original trust deeds or actually secured from the bondholders.

(e) Notation showing date of issue. In order that the date of issue of bonds, mortgages, deeds of trust, or other similar corporate obligations containing a tax-free covenant may be readily determined by the owner for the purpose of preparing the ownership certificates required by § 1.1461–1, the issuing or debtor corporation shall indicate the date of issue by an appropriate notation, or use the phrase "issued on or after January 1, 1934," on each such obligation or in a statement accompanying the delivery of the obligation.

(f) Effect of withholding on income taxes of bondholder and issuing corporation.—(1) Federal tax. In the case of corporate bonds or other corporate obligations issued before January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant, the corporation paying a Federal tax, or any part of it, for someone else pursuant to its agreement is not entitled to deduct such payment from its gross income on any ground; nor shall the tax so paid be included in the gross income of the bondholder. The amount of the tax so paid may, nevertheless, be claimed by the bondholder in accordance with paragraph (a) of § 1.1462–1 as a credit against the total amount of income tax due. See also section 32. The tax so paid by the corporation upon tax-free covenant bond interest payable to a domestic or resident fiduciary and allocable to any nonresident alien beneficiary under section 652 or 662 is allowable, pro rata, as a credit against—

(i) The tax required to be withheld by the fiduciary in accordance with paragraph (f) of § 1.1441–3 from the income of the beneficiary, and

(ii) The total income tax computed in the return of the beneficiary, as indicated in paragraph (a) of § 1.1462–1.

(2) State taxes. In the case of corporate bonds or other obligations containing an appropriate tax-free covenant, the corporation paying for someone else, pursuant to its agreement, a State tax or any tax other than a Federal tax may deduct such payment as interest paid on indebtedness.

(g) Alien resident of Puerto Rico. For purposes of this section the term "nonresident alien individual" includes an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

(h) Other rules for withholding of tax under section 1451. The rules for withholding stated in paragraphs (c) (2) and (3), (f), and (g) of § 1.1441–3 shall also apply for purposes of withholding the tax under this section.

§ 1.1451–2 Exemptions from withholding under section 1451.—(a) Claiming personal exemptions. Withholding under § 1.1451–1 from interest on bonds or other obligations of corporations issued before January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant shall not be required if there is filed with the withholding agent when presenting coupons for payment, or not later than February 1 of the following year, an ownership certificate on Form 1000 stating—

(1) In the case of a citizen or resident of the United States, that his taxable income does not exceed his deductions for personal exemptions allowed under section 151; or

(2) In the case of an estate or trust the fiduciary of which is a citizen or resident of the United States, that its taxable income does not exceed the deduction for the personal exemption allowed under section 642 (b).

(b) Claiming residence in United States. To claim residence in the United States for purposes of section 1451, see § 1.1441–5.

(c) Other exemptions. The exemptions allowed by paragraphs (a) (2) and (d) of § 1.1441–4 shall also apply for purposes of section 1451.

APPLICATION OF WITHHOLDING PROVISIONS

§ 1.1461 Statutory provisions; return and payment of withheld tax.

SEC. 1461. Return and payment of withheld tax. Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter shall, on or before March 15, of each year, make return thereof and pay the tax to the officer designated in section 6151. Every such person is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

§ 1.1461–1 Ownership certificates for bond interest.—(a) Citizens and residents of the United States. In accordance with section 6041, citizens, resident individuals, fiduciaries, and partnerships, and nonresident partnerships all of the members of which are citizens or residents, owning bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations issued by a domestic corporation, a resident foreign corporation, or a nonresident foreign corporation having a fiscal or paying agent in the United States, shall, when presenting interest coupons for payment, file ownership certificates for each issue of such obligations issued before January 1, 1934, and containing a tax-free covenant. This rule shall apply without regard to the amount of the interest coupons.

(b) Nonresident aliens and foreign corporations. (1) In accordance with section 6041, nonresident alien individuals, nonresident partnerships composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, nonresident foreign corporations, and unknown owners, owning bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a corporation, shall, when presenting interest coupons for payment, file ownership certificates for each issue of all such obligations whether or not the obligation contains a tax-free covenant. This rule shall apply without regard to the amount of the interest coupons and without regard to the date on which the obligations were issued.

(2) Ownership certificates are not required to be filed, however, by a nonresident alien individual, a partnership composed wholly of nonresident aliens, or a nonresident foreign corporation in connection with interest payments on bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations of a nonresident foreign corporation or of any domestic or foreign corporation which qualifies under section 861 (a) (1) (B) (relating to interest from payers deriving substantially all their income from sources without the United States).

(3) Ownership certificates shall also be filed in the case of interest paid on obligations of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof, irrespective of the date on which the obligations are issued or of the amount of the interest, if the obligations are owned by a nonresident alien individual, nonresident partnership composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, nonresident foreign corporation, or an unknown owner.

(c) Overdue coupon bonds. In the case of interest payments on overdue coupon bonds, the interest coupons of which have been exhausted, ownership certificates are required to be filed when collecting the interest in the same manner as if interest coupons were presented for collection.

(d) Information shown on ownership certificate. The ownership certificate shall show the name and address of the obligor, the name and address of the owner of the obligations, a description of the obligations, the amount of interest and its due date, the rate at which tax is to be withheld, and the date upon which the interest coupons were presented for payment.

(e) Ownership certificates not required. Ownership certificates are not required to be filed in the case of interest payments on—

(1) Obligations of a State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision of any of the foregoing, or of the District of Columbia;

(2) Bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, or other similar obligations issued by an individual or a partnership; and

(3) Obligations owned by a domestic corporation, resident foreign corporation, or foreign government.

(f) Interest coupons unaccompanied by ownership certificates. (1) When interest coupons detached from corporate bonds, or from obligations of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof, are received unaccompanied by ownership certificates, the first bank to which the coupons are presented for payment shall require of the payee a statement showing the name and address of the person from whom the coupons were received by the payee and alleging that the owner of the bonds is unknown to the payee. This rule shall not apply if the owner of the bonds is known to the bank and the bank is satisfied that the owner is a person who is not required to file an ownership certificate.

(2) The bank shall also require the payee to prepare an ownership certificate on Form 1001, which shall be modified by crossing out "owner," inserting "payee," stamping or writing across the face of the certificate "Statement furnished," and adding the name of the bank.

(3) The statement furnished pursuant to this paragraph shall be forwarded to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland, with the quarterly return on Form 1012.

(g) Noncoupon bonds.—(1) General rule. Ownership certificates on Form 1000 or Form 1001 are required in connection with interest payments on noncoupon bonds as in the case of coupon bonds. If an ownership certificate is not furnished by the owner of a noncoupon bond, the certificate shall be prepared by the withholding agent but is not required to be signed by the owner.

(2) Application of tax treaties. Ownership certificates are not required, however, when claiming the benefit of an exemption from tax, or reduced rate of tax, granted by an applicable tax convention in respect of interest payments on noncoupon bonds. Regulations under the various income tax conventions require, in lieu of an ownership certificate, the use of an exemption (or reduced rate) certificate (or corresponding letter) in the case of such interest payments. Such a certificate may not be prepared by the withholding agent but must be signed by the owner of the interest, or by his trustee or agent, in accordance with the applicable tax treaty regulation.

(h) Form of ownership certificate for citizens and residents. Form 1000 shall be used in preparing ownership certificates of individuals or fiduciaries who are citizens or residents of the United States, of resident partnerships, and of nonresident partnerships all of the members of which are citizens or residents. If the obligations are issued by a nonresident foreign corporation having a fiscal or paying agent in the United States, Form 1000 shall be modified to show the name and address of the fiscal agent or the paying agent in addition to the name and address of the debtor corporation.

(i) Form of ownership certificate for nonresident aliens and foreign corporations. Form 1001 shall be used in preparing ownership certificates of nonresident alien individuals, nonresident partnerships composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, nonresident foreign corporations, and unknown owners. A special variation of Form 1001 (designated by a letter or letters following the number 1001) shall be used, however, in preparing ownership certificates of persons claiming the benefit of an exemption from tax, or reduced rate of tax, granted by an applicable income tax convention in respect of interest payments on coupon bonds. See the applicable tax treaty regulation.

(j) Ownership certificates in the case of fiduciaries and joint owners. (1) Fiduciaries having the control and custody of more than one estate or trust, the assets of which include bonds of corporations and other securities, shall execute a certificate of ownership for each estate or trust even though the bonds are of the same issue. The ownership certificate shall show both the name of the estate or trust and the name and address of the fiduciary.

(2) Separate ownership certificates shall be executed in behalf of each person owning bonds jointly with another.

§ 1.1461–2 Return and payment of tax withheld—(a) Interest on certain bonds—(1) Form 1013. Every withholding agent shall make on or before March 15 an annual return on Form 1013 of the tax withheld under chapter 3 from interest (other than interest on noncoupon bonds with respect to which a reduced rate certificate (or corresponding letter) has been filed with the withholding agent in accordance with regulations under a tax convention) on (i) bonds or other obligations of corporations and (ii) obligations issued on or after March 1, 1941, by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof. This return shall be filed with the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland.

(2) Form 1012. The withholding agent also shall make and file with the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland, a quarterly return on Form 1012 of the tax so withheld from such interest, on or before the last day of the month following the termination of the quarter for which the return is made. The ownership certificates (Form 1000, Form 1001, and all special variations of Form 1001 referred to in paragraph (i) of § 1.1461–1) shall be forwarded with the quarterly return, even though the interest in respect of which the certificate is filed is exempt from withholding of tax. Forms 1001 shall be listed on the quarterly return. All special variations of Form 1001 (referred to in paragraph (i) of § 1.1461–1) which have been used to secure a reduction in the rate of tax withheld at source shall also be listed on the quarterly return. While Forms 1000 need not be listed on the return, the number of such forms submitted, the total amount of interest paid, and the total amount of the tax required to be withheld in respect of such forms shall be entered in the spaces provided on Form 1012.

(3) Modification of Forms 1012 and 1013. If Form 1000 is modified in accordance with paragraph (h) of § 1.1461–1 to show the name and address of a fiscal or paying agent in the United States, Forms 1012 and 1013 shall be likewise modified.

(b) Payments other than interest on certain bonds—(1) Form 1042. Every withholding agent shall make on or before March 15 an annual return on Form 1042 of the tax withheld under chapter 3 from income other than bond interest in respect of which the tax is required to be reported on Form 1012. This return shall be filed with the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland. The return shall show the amount of tax required to be withheld from each nonresident alien, nonresident partnership composed in whole or in part of nonresident aliens, and nonresident foreign corporation, to which income other than such bond interest was paid during the previous calendar year.

(2) Income exempt from tax. The withholding agent shall also report on Form 1042—

(i) All such items of income, otherwise required to be returned thereon pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, upon which the tax has not been withheld at source because of an income tax convention which is in effect between the United States and a foreign country, and

(ii) Interest paid to such persons on noncoupon bonds with respect to which an exemption certificate (or corresponding letter) has been filed with the withholding agent in accordance with regulations under a tax convention.

(3) Proration of personal exemption. In a case where the personal exemption is prorated in accordance with paragraph (c) of § 1.1441–3 the amount of the compensation allocable to labor or personal services performed within the United States, together with the amount of the deduction for the prorated personal exemption, shall be shown on a separate statement attached to the annual return on Form 1042.

(c) Date of payment; penalties. The tax required to be returned on Forms 1012, 1013, and 1042 shall be paid to the district director on or before March 15 of the following year. For penalties and additions to the tax attaching upon failure to make returns or such payments, see sections 6651, 6653, 7202, and 7203.

(d) Information returns. For the extent to which ownership certificates and returns filed by withholding agents will constitute, and be treated as, returns of information required by section 6041, see the regulations issued pursuant to that section.

§ 1.1462 Statutory provisions; withheld tax as credit to recipient of income.

SEC. 1462. Withheld tax as credit to recipient of income. Income on which any tax is required to be withheld at the source under this chapter shall be included in the return of the recipient of such income, but any amount of tax so withheld shall be credited against the amount of income tax as computed in such return.

§ 1.1462–1 Withheld tax as credit to recipient of income—(a) Return of income from which tax was withheld. The entire amount of the income from which the tax is required to be withheld shall be included in gross income in the return required to be made by the recipient of the income, without deduction for the amount required to be withheld, but the tax so withheld shall be allowed as a credit against the total income tax computed in the taxpayer's return.

(b) Amounts paid to fiduciaries. Tax withheld at the source under chapter 3 upon income paid to any fiduciary is deemed to have been paid by the taxpayer ultimately liable for the tax upon such income. Thus, for example, if any taxpayer is subject to the taxes imposed by section 1, 2, 3, or 11 upon any portion of the income of a nonresident alien estate or trust, the part of any tax withheld at the source which is properly allocable to the income so taxed to such taxpayer shall be credited against the amount of the income tax computed upon his return, and any excess shall be credited against any income, war profits, or excess profits tax, or installment thereof, then due from the taxpayer, and any balance shall be refunded.

SEC. 1463. Tax paid by recipient of income. If any tax required under this chapter to be deducted and withheld is paid by the recipient of the income, it shall not be re-collected from the withholding agent; nor in cases in which the tax is so paid shall any penalty be imposed on or collected from the recipient of the income or the withholding agent for failure to return or pay the same, unless such failure was fraudulent and for the purpose of evading payment.

§ 1.1463–1 Tax paid by recipient of income. If the tax required to be withheld under chapter 3 is paid by the recipient of the income or by the withholding agent, it shall not be re-collected from the other, regardless of the original liability therefor; and, in such event, no penalty will be asserted against either person for failure to return or pay the tax where no fraud or purpose to evade payment is involved.

§ 1.1464 Statutory provisions; refunds and credits with respect to withheld tax.

SEC. 1464. Refunds and credits with respect to withheld tax. Where there has been an overpayment of tax under this chapter, any refund or credit made under chapter 65 shall be made to the withholding agent unless the amount of such tax was actually withheld by the withholding agent.

[Section 6414, which is contained in chapter 65, provides as follows: "In the case of an overpayment of tax imposed by chapter 24, or by chapter 3, refund or credit shall be made to the employer or to the withholding agent, as the case may be, only to the extent that the amount of such overpayment was not deducted and withheld by the employer or withholding agent."]

§ 1.1464–1 Refunds and credits. The refund or credit under chapter 65 of an overpayment of tax which has actually been withheld at the source under chapter 3 shall be made to the taxpayer from whose income the amount of such tax was in fact withheld. To the extent that the overpayment under chapter 3 was not in fact withheld at the source, but was paid, by the withholding agent the refund or credit under chapter 65 of the overpayment shall be made to the withholding agent. Thus, where a debtor corporation assumes liability pursuant to its tax-free covenant for the tax required to be withheld under chapter 3 upon interest and pays the tax in behalf of its bondholder, and it can be shown that the bondholder is not in fact liable for any tax, the overpayment of tax shall be credited or refunded to the withholding agent in accordance with chapter 65 since the tax was not actually deducted and withheld from the interest paid to the bondholder. In further illustration, where a withholding agent who is required by chapter 3 to withhold $300 tax from rents paid to a nonresident alien individual mistakenly withholds $320 and mistakenly pays $350 as internal revenue tax, the amount of $30 shall be credited or refunded to the withholding agent in accordance with chapter 65 and the amount of $20 shall be credited or refunded in accordance with such chapter to the person from whose income such amount has been withheld.

§ 1.1465 Statutory provisions; definition of withholding agent.

SEC. 1465. Definition of withholding agent. The term "withholding agent" means any person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter.

§ 1.1465–1 General provisions relating to withholding agents—(a) Withholding agents in case of United States obligations. In the case of interest on obligations of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof the withholding agents shall be—

(1) The Commissioner of the Public Debt, for interest paid by checks issued through the Bureau of the Public Debt;

(2) The Treasurer of the United States, for all interest paid by him, whether by check or otherwise; and

(3) Each Federal Reserve bank, for all interest paid by it, whether by check or otherwise.

(b) Person designated to act for withholding agent. (1) A debtor corporation having an issue of bonds or other similar obligations which appoints a duly authorized agent to act on its behalf under the withholding provisions of chapter 3 is required to file a notice of such appointment with the District Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore 2, Maryland, giving the name and address of the agent; except that on and after January 1, 1957, such notice shall be filed with the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D. C.

(2) If the person designated by a debtor corporation to act for it as withholding agent has not withheld any tax from the income nor received any funds from the debtor corporation to pay the tax which the debtor corporation assumed in connection with its tax-free covenant bonds, then that person cannot be held liable for the tax assumed by the debtor corporation merely by reason of the designee's appointment as withholding agent.

(3) If a duly authorized withholding agent has become insolvent or for any other reason fails to make payment under section 1461 of money deposited with it by the debtor corporation to pay taxes, or of money withheld from bondholders, the debtor corporation is not discharged of its liability under chapter 3 since the withholding agent is merely the agent of the debtor corporation.

(c) Payments other than money. In any case where income is payable in any medium other than money the withholding agent shall not release the property so received until the property has been converted into funds sufficient to enable the withholding agent to pay over in money the tax required to be withheld under chapter 3 with respect to such income.

RULES APPLICABLE TO RECOVERY OF EXCESSIVE PROFITS ON GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

RECOVERY OF EXCESSIVE PROFITS ON GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

§ 1.1471 Statutory provisions; recovery of excessive profits on government contracts.

SEC. 1471. Recovery of excessive profits on government contracts—(a) Method of collection. If the amount of profit required to be paid into the Treasury under section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934, as amended (34 U. S. C. 496), with respect to contracts completed within taxable years subject to this code is not voluntarily paid, the Secretary or his delegate shall collect the same under the methods employed to collect taxes under this subtitle.

(b) Laws applicable. All provisions of law (including penalties) applicable with respect to the taxes imposed by this subtitle and not inconsistent with section 3 of the Act of March 27, 1934, as amended, shall apply with respect to the assessment, collection, or payment of excess profits to the Treasury as provided by subsection (a), and to refunds by the Treasury of overpayments of excess profits into the Treasury.

§ 1.1471–1 Recovery of excessive profits on government contracts. The inclusion of the statutory provisions of section 1471 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 in this part does not supersede the provisions of Treasury Decision 4906, 26 CFR (1939) Part 17, and Treasury Decision 4909, 26 CFR (1939) Part 16, as made applicable to section 1471 of the 1954 Code by Treasury Decision 6091, 19 F. R. 5167.

MITIGATION OF EFFECT OF RENEGOTIATION OF GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

SEC. 1481. Mitigation of effect of renegotiation of government contracts—(a) Reduction for prior taxable year—(1) Excessive profits eliminated for prior taxable year. In the case of a contract with the United States or any agency thereof, or any subcontract thereunder, which is made by the taxpayer, if a renegotiation is made in respect of such contract or subcontract and an amount of excessive profits received or accrued under such contract or subcontract for a taxable year (referred to in this section as "prior taxable year") is eliminated and, the taxpayer is required to pay or repay to the United States or any agency thereof the amount of excessive profits eliminated or the amount of excessive profits eliminated is applied as an offset against other amounts due the taxpayer, the part of the contract or subcontract price which was received or was accrued for the prior taxable year shall be reduced by the amount of excessive profits eliminated. For purposes of this section—

(A) The term "renegotiation" includes any transaction which is a renegotiation within the meaning of the Federal renegotiation act applicable to such transaction, any modification of one or more contracts with the United States or any agency thereof, and any agreement with the United States or any agency thereof in respect of one or more such contracts or subcontracts thereunder.

(B) The term "excessive profits" includes any amount which constitutes excessive profits within the meaning assigned to such term by the applicable Federal renegotiation act, any part of the contract price of a contract with the United States or any agency thereof, any part of the subcontract price of a subcontract under such a contract, and any profits derived from one or more such contracts or subcontracts.

(C) The term "subcontract" includes any purchase order or agreement which is a subcontract within the meaning assigned to such term by the applicable Federal renegotiation act.

(D) The term "Federal renegotiation act" includes section 403 of the Sixth Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Act (Public Law 528, 77th Cong., 2d Sess.), as amended or supplemented, the Renegotiation Act of 1948, as amended or supplemented, and the Renegotiation Act of 1951, as amended or supplemented.

(2) Reduction of reimbursement for prior taxable year. In the case of a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract between the United States or any agency thereof and the taxpayer, if an item for which the taxpayer has been reimbursed is disallowed as an item of cost chargeable to such contract and the taxpayer is required to repay the United States or any agency thereof the amount disallowed or the amount disallowed is applied as an offset against other amounts due the taxpayer, the amount of the reimbursement of the taxpayer under the contract for the taxable year in which the reimbursement for such item was received or was accrued shall be reduced by the amount disallowed.

(3) Deduction disallowed. The amount of the payment, repayment, or offset described in paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) shall not constitute a deduction for the year in which paid or incurred.

(4) Exception. The foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply in respect of any contract if the taxpayer shows to the satisfaction of the Secretary or his delegate that a different method of accounting for the amount of the payment, repayment, or disallowance clearly reflects income, and in such case the payment, repayment, or disallowance shall be accounted for with respect to the taxable year provided for under such method, which for the purposes of subsections (b) and (c) shall be considered a prior taxable year.

(b) Credit against repayment on account of renegotiation or allowance—(1) General rule. There shall be credited against the amount of excessive profits eliminated the amount by which the tax for the prior taxable year under this subtitle is decreased by reason of the application of paragraph (1) of subsection (a); and there shall be credited against the amount disallowed the amount by which the tax for the prior taxable year under this subtitle is decreased by reason of the application of paragraph (2) of subsection (a).

(2) Credit for barred year. If at the time of the payment, repayment, or offset described in paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of subsection (a), refund or credit of tax under this subtitle for the prior taxable year is prevented (except for the provisions of section 1311) by any provision of the internal revenue laws other than section 7122, or by rule of law, the amount by which the tax for such year under this subtitle is decreased by the application of paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of subsection (a) shall be computed under this paragraph. There shall first be ascertained the tax previously determined for the prior taxable year. The amount of the tax previously determined shall be the excess of—

(A) The sum of—

(i) The amount shown as the tax by the taxpayer on his return (determined as provided in section 6211 (b) (1) and (3)), if a return was made by the taxpayer and an amount was shown as the tax by the taxpayer thereon, plus

(ii) The amounts previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as a deficiency, over—

(B) The amount of rebates, as defined in section 6211 (b) (2), made.

There shall then be ascertained the decrease in tax previously determined which results solely from the application of paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of subsection (a) to the prior taxable year. The amount so ascertained, together with any amounts collected as additions to the tax or interest, as a result of paragraph (1) or paragraph (2) of subsection (a) not having been applied to the prior taxable year, shall be the amount by which such tax is decreased.

(3) Interest. In determining the amount of the credit under this subsection no interest shall be allowed with respect to the amount ascertained under paragraph (1); except that if interest is charged by the United States or the agency thereof on account of the disallowance for any period before the date of the payment, repayment, or offset, the credit shall be increased by an amount equal to interest on the amount ascertained under such paragraph at the same rate and for the period (prior to the date of the payment, repayment, or offset) as interest is so charged.

(c) Credit in lieu of other credit or refund. If a credit is allowed under subsection (b) with respect to a prior taxable year no other credit or refund under the internal-revenue laws founded on the application of subsection (a) shall be made on account of the amount allowed with respect to such taxable year. If the amount allowable as a credit under subsection (b) exceeds the amount allowed under such subsection, the excess shall, for purposes of the internal revenue laws relating to credit or refund of tax, be treated as an overpayment for the prior taxable year which was made at the time the payment, repayment, or offset was made.

(d) Renegotiation of government contracts affecting taxable years prior to 1954. If a recovery of excessive profits through renegotiation as described in this section relates to profits of a taxable year subject to the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, the adjustments in respect of such renegotiation shall be made under section 3806 of such code.

[SEAL] O. GORDON DELK,
Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Approved: June 29, 1956.

DAN THROOP SMITH,
Special Assistant to the Secretary in Charge of Tax Policy.

864.53 Eligibility.
864.54 Submission of applications.

AUTHORITY: §§ 864.51 to 864.54 issued under R. S. 161, sec. 202, 61 Stat. 500, as amended; 5 U. S. C. 22, 171a. Interpret or apply sec. 233d, 66 Stat. 490; 50 U. S. C. 961d.

DERIVATION: AFR 45-21, March 20, 1956.

§ 864.51 Purpose. Sections 864.51 to 864.54 explain how warrant officers and airmen of the Air Force Reserve and the Air National Guard may volunteer for extended active duty. It does not apply to airmen retired and transferred to the Reserve after twenty years of active military service.

§ 864.52 Use of reserve personnel. (a) The needs for specific grades and skills throughout the Air Force determine the recall requirement.

(1) Airmen selected for extended active duty must possess an Air Force Specialty in needed, needed overseas only, scarce, or scarce overseas only categories.

(2) Master Sergeants and Technical Sergeants are eligible for recall provided they possess a 7-skill level in the Air Force Specialty in which they will be ordered to extended active duty.

(3) Applicants who possess the 5-skill level in the Air Force Specialty in which they will be ordered to extended active duty are eligible for recall in a grade no higher than Staff Sergeant.

(4) Airmen in pay grades E–1 through E–4 who reside in the Zone of Interior and who do not possess an Air Force Specialty in one of the categories listed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, may apply for entry on extended active duty for the purpose of attending technical training which leads to the award of an Air Force Specialty in the scarce or needed category.

(b) Section 233d, Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 (66 Stat. 490; 50 U. S. C. 961 (d)) is the statutory authority governing the voluntary entry on extended active duty by reservists.

§ 864.53 Eligibility. The approval of an application by a unit commander indicates only that the reservist concerned meets the general requirements established by §§ 864.51 to 864.54. This approval does not mean the applicant possesses the qualifications required by the Air Force at any given time. The factors listed in this section affect eligibility as indicated:

(a) Extended active duty for purpose of technical training. In addition to other requirements of §§ 864.51 to 864.54, airmen applying for extended active duty to attend technical training as outlined in § 864.52 (a) (4) must have an Airman Classification Battery or Airman Qualifying Examination aptitude index equal to or higher than those desired minimums as shown in the USAF training prospectus for the appropriate course. However, airmen who possess the minimum desired aptitudes only in equipment operator or craftsman of the Airman Classification Battery are not eligible for recall for technical training. Airmen who do not have a recorded Airman Classification Battery or Airman Qualifying Examination test on their records will be required to take an Airman Qualifying Examination. Individuals scoring below the desired minimums will not be accepted for extended active duty.

(b) Dependents—(1) Male airmen. (i) In pay grade E–1, E–2 or E–3, having more than one dependent, are not eligible.

(ii) In pay grade E–4, having more than two dependents, are eligible if at least four years of service for pay purposes have accrued.

(iii) In pay grade E–5, E–6 or E–7, having one or more dependents, are eligible.

(2) Female airmen. (i) The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph apply to female airmen.

(ii) Women with minor dependents as indicated in (a) through (c) of this subdivision are not eligible.

(a) Women who are parents by birth or adoption of a child under 18 years of age of whom they have legal or personal custody.

(b) Women who are stepparents of a child under 18 years of age and if the child is within their household for a period of more than 30 days a year.

(c) Women who have personal custody of any child under 18 years of age.

(3) Waivers of any of the restrictive conditions of subparagraph (2) of this paragraph will not be granted.

(c) Previous release for hardship or dependency reasons. Reservists whose last release from active duty resulted for hardship or dependency factors are not normally eligible for recall within 1 year from date of release. They may request waivers if they can furnish sworn statements and other evidence that the conditions which caused the release no longer exist.

(d) Reserve airmen residing outside of the Zone of Interior. Reserve airmen who are bona-fide residents of the territories and possessions of the United States may apply for extended active duty. However, reserve airmen residing in other areas outside the Zone of Interior will not be ordered to extended active duty under the provisions of §§ 864.51 to 864.54.

(e) Medical standards. All applicants must meet the medical standards for general service. Warrant officers on active duty as airmen will undergo examinations at the installations to which they are assigned. All other applicants may request examination at any convenient installation. Appointments should be made in advance of reporting to the installation. Travel required for this purpose must be accomplished without any expense to the Government.

(f) Purpose of extended active duty. Sections 864.51 to 864.54 do not authorize the recall to extended active duty of reservists to:

(1) Stand trial by court martial.

(2) Appear as a witness in a military trial.

(3) Correct an error made by the individual during a previous tour of active duty.

(4) Complete a job left unfinished at the time of last release from active duty.

(5) Appear before a physicial evaluation board.

(g) Tours of duty—(1) A warrant officer applicant. (i) With a minimum of one year extended active duty in W/O or commissioned grade, must agree to serve in a voluntary indefinite status and submit the following statement:

I agree to remain on active duty for an indefinite period. I understand that this does not preclude my requesting separation from active military service under applicable directives and that approval of any request for separation will be dependent upon the requirements of the Air Force.

(ii) With less than one year extended active duty in W/O or commissioned grade, must agree to serve three years and sign a written agreement.

(2) An airman applicant. (i) With a minimum of 90 days active duty, must agree to serve four years and sign a written agreement. Short, special or school tours may be credited.

(ii) With a minimum of 30 days active duty and a minimum of 18 consecutive months satisfactory training in Training Category "A" or an Air National Guard United States unit, must agree to serve four years and sign a written agreement. Short, special or school tours may be credited.

(3) No previous duty or training is required for an airman applicant to enter technical training. He must serve four years and sign a written agreement.

(4) Applicants in the Reserve who have fewer than four year remaining in their enlistment may be discharged and reenlist for a period of five years upon authorization by Headquarters Air Reserve Records Center, 3800 York St., Denver 5, Colorado. Members of Air National Guard United States, whose term of enlistment is limited by the National Defense Act of 1916 to three years, may apply for a conditional release to enlist in the Air Force Reserve for five years.

(h) Reserve grade and date of rank. Applicants must agree to enter extended active duty in their Reserve grades. Date of rank will be determined in accordance with existing instructions and entered on extended active duty orders.

(i) Security clearance. Warrant officer applicants must possess favorable National Agency Check. Unless there is reason to believe that an up-to-date National Agency Check would be in the best interest of the Air Force, the completion of a favorable National Agency Check at any time in the past, as indicated in the master personnel record, will satisfy this requirement.

§ 864.54 Submission of applications. Reservists are responsible for the accuracy of all information furnished on their applications for extended active duty. If any of the information changes after submission of the application, they must report this in writing to the commander to whom the data was originally sent. Reservists cannot withdraw applications after extended active duty orders have been issued.

(a) Warrant officers must submit AF Form 125, Application for Extended Active Duty with the United States Air Force in Commissioned Officer Grade.

(b) Airmen must submit a typewritten letter of application including the following:

(1) Full name _____
(2) Permanent home address _____
(3) Mailing address _____
(4) Primary Air Force specialty code and title _____
(5) Education level _____
(6) Number of months of overseas duty _____
(7) Date of birth _____
(8) Marital status _____ Number of dependents, and their relationship _____
(9) Dates of prior active military service, including tours of active duty for training _____
(10) Present unit of reserve assignment _____
(11) List Three Zone of Interior Station Choices: (No assurance of assignment to Station of choice may be given since recalls are based on Air Force-wide requirements.)
(12) My skill is in the scarce only overseas or needed only overseas category and providing Air Force requirements permit, my choice of oversea theater is:

( ) FEAF ( ) USAFE ( ) NEAC ( ) AAC

I clearly understand that recall for a specific area within an overseas theater is not authorized.

(13) If I am selected for assignment overseas, I understand that my dependents are not authorized to accompany or join me at the personnel processing activity to which I am being assigned for overseas processing. I understand also that concurrent travel or advance application for movement of my dependents overseas is not authorized prior to my arrival overseas. I understand application may be submitted subsequent to my arrival at my overseas destination in accordance with applicable directives of the oversea command.

(14) I understand that I will be retained at the first station to which I am sent for processing and further assignment provided that I can be utilized in my Air Force Specialty. I also understand that no assurance can be given that I will be retained for the duration of my active duty tour at my first station of assignment.

(15) Subparagraphs (11), (12), (13) and (14) of this paragraph do not apply to personnel applying for extended active duty to enter technical training courses.

Colonel, U. S. Air Force, Air Adjutant General.

TOLERANCES AND EXEMPTIONS FROM TOLERANCES FOR PESTICIDE CHEMICALS IN OR ON RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES

NOTICE OF FILING OF PETITION FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF EXEMPTION FROM NECESSITY OF TOLERANCE FOR RESIDUES OF DIPHENYL

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 408 (d) (1), 68 Stat. 512; 21 U. S. C. 346a (d) (1)), the following notice is issued:

A petition has been filed by Crown Zellerbach Corporation, 343 Sansome Street, San Francisco 19, California, proposing that the pesticide chemical diphenyl be exempted from the requirement of a tolerance when it is applied as a post-harvest treatment to grapefruit, lemons, and oranges.

Three analytical methods are proposed in the petition for determining residues of diphenyl, as follows:

1. The method published in the Journal of Agricultural and Food Chemistry, Volume 2, page 1031 (1954).

2. The method published in Analytical Chemistry, Volume 26, page 1234 (1954).

3. A method in which diphenyl is extracted in a liquid-liquid extractor (modified Clevenger) so constructed that the distillate from citrus juice or from a water slurry of the sample is continuously extracted by heptane during the operation. Interfering substances are removed from the heptane extract by oxidizing with a solution of potassium permanganate in 50-percent acetic acid. The diphenyl in the heptane fraction is then determined spectrophotometrically at 248 mμ by comparison with a standard solution of diphenyl in heptane that has been treated in the same way as the sample.

[Project No. 2000]

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC UTILITIES OF COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS v. POWER AUTHORITY OF STATE OF NEW YORK

ORDER INVESTIGATING COMPLAINT AND FIXING HEARING

The Department of Public Utilities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts (the Department) filed a complaint on February 24, 1956, stating that the commonwealth of Massachusetts has designated the Department as the bargaining agency on behalf of the Commonwealth for the procurement of a portion of the power capacity and power output of Project No. 2000, that the Power Authority of the State of New York (the Power Authority) has disapproved application made by the Department for a portion of such power in the amount of 250,000 Kw of firm demand, and that consequently the Department is requesting that the Federal Power Commission determine and fix the applicable portion of power capacity and power output of project No. 2000 to be made available to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by the Power Authority, as Licensee for Project No. 2000, pursuant to Article 28 of the license.

A copy of the complaint was served on the Power Authority which filed its answer thereto on May 3, 1956. In its answer the Power Authority states among other things, that there is no valid reason to extend the market area of Project No. 2000 beyond a 150-mile area from the Project at Massena, New York. Article 28 of the license issued to the Power Authority for the construction, operation, and maintenance of Project No. 2000 in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, reads as follows:

ARTICLE 28. The Licensee shall make a reasonable portion of the power capacity and a reasonable portion of the power output available for use within the economic market area in neighboring States and shall cooperate with agencies in such States to insure compliance with this requirement. In the event of disagreement between the Licensee and the power marketing agencies (public and private) in any of the other States within the economic market area, the Licensee further agrees that the Commission may determine and fix the applicable portion of power capacity and power output to be made available hereunder and the terms applicable thereto: Provided, That if any State shall have designated a bargaining agency for the procurement of such power capacity and power output on behalf of such State, the Licensee shall cooperate and deal only with such agency in that State.

In addition to its view that no part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is within the economic market area of Project No. 2000, it appears that the Power Authority is also of the view that the request made by the Department was not for a reasonable portion of the power capacity and power output of the project.

The Commission finds: It is appropriate and in the public interest in carrying out the provisions of the Federal Power Act, and the provisions of the license for project No. 2000 issued thereunder, that a hearing be held on the aforesaid complaint and answer, as hereinafter provided.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by the Federal Power Act, particularly sections 306 and 308 thereof, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a public hearing shall be held on September 11, 1956 at 10:00 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., for the purpose of investigating the matters involved and the issues presented by the aforesaid complaint and answer and determining and fixing the applicable portion of power capacity and power output of Project No. 2000, if any, to be made available to the Department of Public Utilities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the terms applicable thereto, pursuant to Article 28 of the license.

(B) Petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8) on or before August 20, 1956.

Issued: June 28, 1956.

By the Commission.

[Docket No. G-2281]

OHIO FUEL GAS CO.

FINDINGS AND ORDER DENYING MOTION TO DISMISS, REVERSING DECISION OF PRESIDING EXAMINER AND PRESCRIBING THE FILING OF TARIFF SHEETS

This is a rate proceeding under the Natural Gas Act involving our review of a rate filing by the Ohio Fuel Gas Company (Ohio Fuel). On September 18, 1953, Ohio Fuel tendered for filing its FPC Gas Tariff, Second Revised Volume No. 1, embodying an increase in the then effective rates and charges to its wholesale customers. The tariff would increase the rates then being collected subject to refund in Docket No. G–1965 by approximately $1,418,940, or 7.6 percent annually, based on sales for the year ended June 30, 1953. Importantly, the filing also would apply a contract demand (CD), rate form to sales made to Ohio Fuel's distribution company customers. Under this rate form, determination of billing demand would be based on the customer's single day peak during the twelve-month period ending with the current billing month but would not be less than 90 percent of the customer's contract demand nor more than the contract demand. The customers would be required to pay for at least 90 percent of the contract demand over the life of the service agreement, usually twenty years.

By order issued October 16, 1953, as amended by order of October 26, 1953, we suspended the use of the proposed tariff until March 1, 1954, and fixed a date for public hearing concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications and services set forth therein. The rate schedule contained in the tariff (Rate Schedule CDS–1), which would be applicable to Ohio Fuel's twenty-five wholesale customers, was composed of a demand charge of $1.85 per Mcf and a commodity charge of 32.5 cents per Mcf. This compared with a rate of $1.75 per Mcf of demand and 30.0 cents per Mcf of commodity in effect subject to refund in Docket No. G–1965 at the time of the filing.

Subsequently, by order issued March 26, 1954, we permitted Ohio Fuel to substitute a revised tariff sheet which reduced the demand charge to $1.75 per Mcf without changing the commodity charge of 32.5 cents per Mcf. By the same order we made Ohio Fuel's FPC Gas Tariff, Second Revised Volume No. 1, as revised, effective subject to refund as of March 1, 1954.

As we have indicated, at the time of Ohio Fuel's filing in this docket, the Commission had under consideration earlier rate increase filings of Ohio Fuel. Those proceedings resulted in our Opinion No. 273, issued July 26, 1954, and an order on rehearing issued December 22, 1954, in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965 approving a settlement agreement. We there rejected the proposed use of the CD rate form and prescribed rates for the refund period March 1, 1952, through February 28, 1953 ($2.00/29.80 cents), and for the refund period March 1, 1953, through February 28, 1954 ($2.00/33.38 cents), both subject to further refunds and adjustments as therein provided. These rates utilized a billing demand based upon the greatest average daily delivery of gas to Buyer during any billing month in the twelve (12) billing months ending with the close of the current billing month (hereinafter referred to as the "average demand" basis).

Extensive hearings were held in this docket (No. G–2281) and, after briefs were filed by interested parties[1] and Commission Staff Counsel, the Presiding Examiner issued his initial decision on April 2, 1956.

In his decision, the Presiding Examiner found the proposed increase in the rate level and the proposed application of the CD rate form to be unjust and unreasonable. For the period March 1, 1954 (the date on which the proposed rates went into effect subject to refund), through the December 1954 billing month, the Presiding Examiner would prescribe a rate of $1.52 per Mcf of demand and 34.90 cents per Mcf of commodity, using the average demand basis. For the next twelve months, the January 1955 billing month through the December 1955 billing month, he would prescribe a rate of $1.60 per Mcf of demand and 35.76 cents per Mcf of commodity, likewise on the average demand basis. Without applicable adjustments for refunds, the latter rate for all wholesale sales as a group would result in the same rate level as the $2.00/33.33 cents rate which we accepted as just and reasonable upon a different record in our order issued December 22, 1954, in Docket Nos. G–1786 and G–1965. However, since the refund relates only to a past period, the Presiding Examiner recommends a balanced unit rate so that the demand and commodity components would recover only the amounts classified in each category. From the January 1956 billing month for the remainder of the refund period and for the future, the Presiding Examiner would prescribe a rate of $2.00 per Mcf of demand and 33.38 cents per Mcf of commodity. Absent applicable refund adjustments this is identical, both as to level and as to form, with the rate we accepted by our order issued December 22, 1954, in Docket Nos. G–1786 and G–1965 and results from the Presiding Examiner's finding that Ohio Fuel failed to sustain its burden of proof in justifying its proposed rate schedule changes.

Exceptions to the initial decision of the Presiding Examiner were filed by Ohio Fuel, The Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, and the City of Cincinnati (referred to herein collectively as Cincinnati) and The Dayton Power and Light Company (Dayton). The exceptions raise several issues for our determination, the most important of which is the question of rate form. We also determine the question of the proper rates for the future and for the refund period, including the rate of return for that period. Additionally, we resolve questions as to the proper classification of costs between the demand and commodity components as they are associated with (a) gas purchased from Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, (b) LPG Plant—Depreciation, Return and Taxes, and (c) Natural Gas Production Plant—Depreciation, Return and Taxes.

[1] By order issued March 12, 1954, we permitted the following to intervene: The Dayton Power and Light Company, The Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, City of Lancaster, Ohio, and Ohio Gas Company.

Finally, in arriving at a cost of service, we resolve herein two adjustments to Ohio Fuel's cost of service which are questioned by Dayton.

After contesting Ohio Fuel's rate filing on its merits over a period of two and one-half years, Dayton, on June 1, 1956, filed a motion to dismiss and reject Ohio Fuel's filing so far as it relates to a change in rate form. Dayton now claims that the Commission has no jurisdiction to entertain the filing, basing its contention on the theory that the filing constitutes a unilateral change in its contract with Ohio Fuel forbidden by the recent decisions in United Gas Pipe Line Co. v. Mobile Gas Service Corp., 350 U. S. 332, and F. P. C. v. Sierra Pacific Power Co., 350 U. S. 348. Ohio Fuel, by answer filed on June 11, 1956, opposes the motion principally on the ground that the billing demand provision proposed to be changed in its filing had previously, in itself, altered and superseded the billing demand provision in the original contract now relied upon by Dayton. Ohio Fuel therefore contends that the billing demand provision in the contract is no longer applicable.

In the circumstances of these proceedings we deem it unnecessary for the purposes of our decision herein to decide between the foregoing opposing contentions. It is our opinion that the Sierra Pacific and Mobile decisions do not require us, at this stage of the proceedings where we have a complete record before us, to undo the work of the last two and one-half years. Significantly, the Supreme Court modified the instructions of the Court of Appeals in the Sierra Pacific case which would have required the Commission to begin anew with a proceeding under Section 206 of the Federal Power Act (comparable to section 5 of the Natural Gas Act). The Supreme Court directed that (350 U. S. at 353):

> If the proceedings here satisfied in substance the requirements of § 206 (a), it would seem immaterial that the investigation was begun as one into the reasonableness of the proposed rate rather than the existing contract rate.

Here, the proceedings satisfy, in substance, the requirements of section 5 of the Natural Gas Act. As we show below, continued billing by Ohio Fuel under the average demand basis heretofore used is no longer in the public interest. Since our order approves the CD rate form for the future only, no change in rate form is made effective prior to the date of issuance of our order.

We have given careful consideration to each of the issues presented to us by the exceptions of the various parties and by the motion to dismiss. We have decided that, for the reasons hereinafter stated, the decision of the Presiding Examiner in its major aspects should be reversed and the motion should be denied. The extent of our reversal of the Presiding Examiner's decision is clear from our findings and conclusions which follow.

Rate form. The Presiding Examiner rejected Ohio Fuel's proposal to make the CD rate form applicable to its jurisdictional customers.[1] He apparently felt bound by our previous decision in Opinion No. 273, where we rejected the use of the CD rate form by Ohio Fuel. He found the CD rate form to be unjust and unreasonable even though by his own statement the record contains "facts and expert opinions extant upon which a different result could be based." Those facts, and the conclusions we draw from them, lead us to reverse the Presiding Examiner and to find that the use of CD rate form for the future is just and reasonable under the circumstances of this case.

We have had recent occasion In the Matter of United Fuel Gas Company, et al., Docket No. G–2451 et al., order issued May 11, 1956, to pass upon application of the CD rate form to the sales of natural gas by United Fuel and Central Kentucky to their distribution company customers. The significant factors leading to our approval of the CD rate form as applied to the jurisdictional sales of those affiliates of Ohio Fuel in the Columbia Gas System are also present in this case.

The primary factor, as disclosed in the record, which influences our decision is the effect of the tremendous increase in the space-heating load by ultimate consumers purchasing gas from the distribution company customers of Ohio Fuel. As an example, the record shows that the space-heating saturation on Dayton's system was approximately 77 percent in 1955, representing 110,800 residential customers. This compares with a 21 percent saturation in 1946. The peak-day requirements of Dayton, as shown by actual experience and as projected into the future, illustrate a comparable increase. The same condition pertains to the rate of growth of the space-heating load of other wholesale customers of Ohio Fuel.

It is characteristic of this space-heating load to fluctuate widely with changing weather conditions. These fluctuations are not only winter peaks but, more importantly, year-to-year variations in peak loads. When demand revenues accruing to Ohio Fuel are made dependent upon actual purchases by the wholesale customers which, in turn, are dependent upon the weather, it is clear that Ohio Fuel will be subjected to a "feast or famine" recovery of costs collected through demand charges. As the space-heating load with consequent high-peak requirement increases, the year-to-year fluctuations in recovery of costs collected through demand charges would become more accentuated by the weather conditions. In our judgment, a rate form which does not recognize this situation and bring a measure of stability in recovery of those costs collected through demand charges is no longer just and reasonable.

The CD rate form, as proposed by Ohio Fuel and which we find just and reasonable under the circumstances of this case, will tend to stabilize recovery of demand charges collected from the distribution company customers.[2] Additionally, the CD rate form, with its 90 percent ratchet provision, will encourage control of the peak demands by distribution company customers either thorugh construction and use of peak-shaving facilities or through use of other means available to them. Since distribution company customers will be obligated to pay for 90 percent of their contract demands over the period of the contract term they will be encouraged not only to keep their load factors high, but also to avoid year-to-year fluctuations in requirements from Ohio Fuel.[4] To the extent economical, the customers will stabilize peak demands from Ohio Fuel and Ohio Fuel will not be required to absorb, through varying demand revenues, the entire effect of year-to-year fluctuations.[5] At the same time, customers companies are afforded considerable protection in the provision of the tariff permitting them to reduce their contract demands in two successive 5 percent stages as a matter of right. The tariff further provides that the contract quantity can be reduced by additional amounts provided the capacity so released can be otherwise used.

Further, the uniform application of CD rate form will tend to reduce discrimination among customers. A rate form geared to average demand would work to the advantage of the low-load factor customer. Under the fluctuating weather conditions shown in this record to exist, we can anticipate that without the control afforded by the CD rate form this discrimination would be aggravated in the future.

Rate level. Since Ohio Fuel's proposed rate increase went into effect subject to refund as of March 1, 1954, our prescription of just and reasonable rates relates back to that date. Of course, the rate prescribed for periods prior to the effective date of this order will determine the amount of refunds to be paid to the jurisdictional customers.[6]

In order to prescribe the just and reasonable rates for the refund period and for the future it is necessary, of course, to determine the proper amount includible in cost of service for jurisdictional customers and to classify those costs between demand and commodity components. Exceptions to the initial decision of the Presiding Examiner raise several issues, both in regard to items properly includible in the cost of service and to the classification of certain costs between demand and commodity. There are set forth on sheets appended to this order (Appendices A and B) the costs of service, classified to demand and commodity, which we find to be proper upon evidence of record. Appendix A shows the cost of service based upon the year 1954, actual. In arriving at the cost of service in Appendix B we used the same allocation and classification procedures that form the basis for the cost of service for the year 1954, actual. However, Appendix B reflects pro forma changes from the actual cost experience.

Examination of Appendix B will show the extent to which the allocation and classification we deem to be proper result in a rate different from that prescribed by the Presiding Examiner. It should be noted that the total cost of service allocated to jurisdictional customers which we find to be proper, $21,127,008, varies slightly from the cost of service of $21,157,044 used by the Presiding Examiner. This adjustment results from our exclusion of $16,388 Documentary Stamp Tax expense from the cost of service and from the effect of our different cost classification. The Presiding Examiner included the Documentary Stamp Tax likening it to a financing cost. Exception was properly taken by Dayton on the ground that FPC Balance Sheet Account No. 140, FPC Balance Sheet Instruction No. 6C, and Income Account No. 531 of our Uniform System of Accounts prohibit its inclusion as an expense item in the cost of service. Therefore, we have reduced the cost of service by $16,388 and made the consequent adjustments.

The only other item relating to cost of service which merits specific mention here is the inclusion of $126,979, reflecting one-half the increase in the 1955 property tax over the 1954 property tax. This is an adjustment for known increases over the 1954 test year. The Presiding Examiner included this adjustment proposed by Ohio Fuel in its exhibit showing the cost of service. Since it reflects a known cost, we find that its inclusion is reasonable.

In determining the break-down between demand and commodity, there is one item which we would classify in a manner different from the Presiding Examiner. Under Purchased Gas Expense—purchases from Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation—we classify all demand charges to the demand component. The Presiding Examiner included the demand charges in the rate for gas purchased from Texas Eastern in the commodity component. This difference in classification results in a significant shift of costs from the commodity to the demand side. The amount involved is $6,296,373 prior to adjustments to gas placed in and withdrawn from storage.

[1] Pursuant to Ohio Fuel's proposal, jurisdictional customers taking less than 5,000 Mcf on peak day are eligible to purchase under the Small General Service (SGS) Rate Schedule containing a straight commodity rate. Twenty of the twenty-five jurisdictional customers are eligible for service under this rate schedule instead of under the CDS–1 Rate Schedule with its contract demand rate form. Our findings with respect to the rate level of the SGS Rate Schedule are set forth in a later portion of this order.

[2] It should be noted that although only 26 percent (by revenue) of Ohio Fuel's sales are made at wholesale, they are, nevertheless, significant. See Appendices A and B.

[4] A CD rate with a short-term commitment, such as a one-year contract, would not provide long-term stability in demand revenues.

[5] In time the reduction of the year-to-year fluctuations in Ohio Fuel's demand revenues should reflect a salutary effect on future financing by the Columbia Gas System which, in turn, will also redound to the benefit of Ohio Fuel's wholesale customers.

[6] It should be noted that all rates prescribed herein are based on costs of service which have not yet been finally determined because rate case proceedings of Ohio Fuel's suppliers have not been finally concluded. Hence, the rates prescribed herein are contingent upon refunds from suppliers of Ohio Fuel.

The record shows that during the test year purchases from Texas Eastern were made at significantly less than 100 percent load factor. Under this situation, we come to a different decision from the Presiding Examiner. The fact that Ohio Fuel is purchasing jointly with its affiliate, The Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, does not eliminate the effect of Texas Eastern's demand charges to Ohio Fuel. We find that the demand charges in the cost of gas purchased from Texas Eastern are properly classified as a demand element in Ohio Fuel's cost of service.

With respect to two items Ohio Fuel takes exception to the classification by the Presiding Examiner. These are Depreciation, Return and Taxes relating to its LPG Plant and Depreciation, Return and Taxes relating to its own production. The first, the Presiding Examiner classified entirely to demand; the second, entirely to commodity. We agree with each classification. The record shows that the LPG plant is used for peaking purposes. We find that all costs of LPG production, including over-head costs, should be classified to demand. We also uphold the Presiding Examiner in finding that there is no justification in the record for classifying part of Ohio Fuel's own production costs to demand. Its own production, serving a commodity function like that of gas purchased in the field on a straight commodity basis, should be classified entirely to commodity.

The Presiding Examiner used a 6¼ percent rate of return in determining rates both for the refund period and for the future. In its exceptions, Dayton argues for a 5¼ percent rate of return for the refund period but does not except to the use of the 6¼ percent rate of return for the future. Dayton presented no rate of return evidence in support of its position.

For the refund period, from March 1, 1954, through the June 1956 billing month, the substantial evidence supports a 6¼ percent rate of return for Ohio Fuel. Importantly, the 6¼ percent rate of return is coupled with billing on an average demand basis. We have previously held in our Opinion No. 273 in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965, issued July 26, 1954, that a rate of return of 6¼ percent was appropriate for Ohio Fuel for the refund periods there involved. The reasons for approving a 6¼ percent rate of return for the refund periods involved in the earlier proceedings are equally applicable to the refund period here. Of particular note is the fact that in both instances we approve the use of the average demand form of billing as distinguished from the contract demand rate form.

We have recognized in our recent order In the Matter of United Fuel Gas Co. et al., Docket No. G–2451 et al., that approval of the CD rate form will tend to shift the risk of weather fluctuations to the distribution company customers. Therefore, we stated we would give consideration to that shift in the risk in determining the rate of return in the rate level stage of those proceedings. While the record here supports a rate of return of 6¼ percent for the refund period on an average demand billing basis, there is not sufficient evidence in the record to show the effect our approval of the CD rate form will have upon the elements of risk affecting rate of return for the future. Therefore, we shall reopen the record in this proceeding for the purpose of taking additional rate of return evidence, including the effect of the application of the CD rate form to sales by Ohio Fuel to its resale customers.

Ohio Fuel and United Fuel are affiliates, both part of the Columbia Gas System. In many aspects, the elements entering into the determination of rates of return of both affiliates are common because both Ohio Fuel and United Fuel are dependent upon the Columbia Gas System for their financial requirements.

It is appropriate, therefore, since this same issue is involved in the proceedings In the Matter of United Fuel Gas Co. et al., Docket No. G–2451 et al., scheduled for hearing on July 5, 1956, that the record in this Docket No. G–2281 be consolidated with those proceedings for the purpose of taking evidence with respect to the reasonable rate of return for Ohio Fuel for the future to be effective prospectively from the date our order issues upon conclusion of the reopened proceeding.

With the adjustments to the wholesale cost of service mentioned above and the change in classification of costs, we arrive at a total cost of service for wholesale sales for the year 1954, pro forma, of $21,127,008. (Appendix B). This is classified $5,967,176 to demand and $15,159,832 to commodity. Using the billing units based upon wholesale sales for the year 1954, as shown on Ohio Fuel's Exhibit No. 33, we arrive at a rate for the future of $1.56 per Mcf of demand and 32.45 cents per Mcf of commodity on a contract demand basis. We find that this rate which covers Ohio Fuel's wholesale cost of service, including a 6¼ percent rate of return, is the just and reasonable rate for the future, to take effect as of the July 1956 billing month.

Calculation of the rates to be prescribed for the refund period presents an added problem in that refunds from suppliers of Ohio Fuel have yet to be determined in several proceedings. We stated in our order issued December 22, 1954, in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965, that a $2.00/33.38 cents rate, as adjusted by possible refunds from Ohio Fuel's suppliers, should be the underlying rate for this proceeding.[1] The Presiding Examiner would divided the refund period into three parts: (1) From March 1, 1954, through the December 1954 billing month; (2) the January 1955 billing month through the December 1955 billing month; and (3) the January 1956 billing month to the effective date of this order (for which he would prescribe the same rate as that for the future). For the first period he would prescribe a rate of $1.52/34.90 cents; for the second period, $1.60/35.76 cents; and for the third period, $2.00/33.38 cents. In its exceptions, Ohio Fuel objects to the $1.52/34.90 cents rate for the first portion of the refund period and proposes use of the $2.00/33.38 cents rate for that period. For the remainder of the refund period Ohio Fuel would abandon the underlying rate for a rate of $1.75/30.96 cents under the CD rate form.

In prescribing rates for the refund period, it should be kept clearly in mind that it is the dollar amount received by Ohio Fuel that is important—the rate level, not the rate form. As the record shows (compare Appendix A with Appendix B), a substantially different cost situation could be expected to prevail after the December 1954 billing month as compared with the costs actually incurred during the ten-month period in 1954. Therefore, we have prescribed different rates for the two parts of the refund period. The two rates result in a rate level closely approximating costs of service and at least equal to the contingent level of the underlying $2.00/32.75 cents rate.

As shown in Appendix A, the cost of service for the year 1954, actual, allocated to jurisdictional customers is $20,504,805. Our classification of costs results in $5,759,992 in demand and $14,744,813 in commodity. The resultant balanced unit rate, on an average demand basis, is $2.08 per Mcf of demand and 31.52 cents per Mcf of commodity. We prescribe this rate to apply to Ohio Fuel's jurisdictional sales for the period March 1, 1954, through the December 1954 billing month.

Appendix B shows the cost of service for the year 1954, pro forma, to be $21,127,008, classified $5,967,176 to demand and $15,159,832 to commodity. On an average demand basis this results in a balanced unit rate of $2.15 per Mcf of demand and 32.43 cents per Mcf of commodity. We prescribe this rate as applicable to the volumes sold during the remainder of the refund period. In combination with the $2.08/31.52 cents rate for the ten months in 1954, it will result in a rate level for the entire refund period at least equal to the underlying $2.00/32.75 cents rate after adjustments. Both of the foregoing rates for the refund period are subject to reductions giving effect to any reductions in the respective costs of service arising from refunds which Ohio Fuel has received or may receive from its suppliers and which are allocable to the refund period here involved.

Another matter remains for our consideration. Although the initial decision of the Presiding Examiner does not deal with this issue, Ohio Fuel proposes to make a Small General Service (SGS) Rate Schedule available to wholesale customers, the maximum daily takes of which do not exceed 5,000 Mcf, on an optional basis with the CD rate. Ohio Fuel proposes a straight commodity rate under the SGS schedule of 48 cents per Mcf, which is equivalent to its CD rate at a 35 percent load factor.

We find that a 48-cent rate would impose an undue burden upon the small wholesale customers which will be eligible for this service. The record shows that a straight commodity rate for all wholesale customers would be slightly in excess of 45 cents per Mcf (see Appendix B). However, if the large wholesale customers which would not be eligible for service under the SGS Rate Schedule are excluded from the computation, the rate would average slightly under 45 cents per Mcf (44.865 cents per Mcf). The 48-cent rate proposed by Ohio Fuel would impose too heavy a burden upon the small customer which is less able to protect itself through installation of peak-shaving equipment. We find 45 cents per Mcf to be the just and reasonable rate for service under the SGS Rate Schedule to be effective prospectively.

Consistent with our decision herein, customer companies should be permitted to negotiate new contract quantities under the contract demand rate form.

For the reasons stated above and based upon consideration of the substantial evidence of the entire record, the Commission further finds:

(1) Ohio Fuel owns and operates an integrated natural gas system located in the State of Ohio through which it transports and sells natural gas for resale in interstate commerce, and is a natural-gas company within the meaning of the Natural Gas Act.

(2) The granting of Dayton's motion to dismiss the proceedings with respect to the change in rate form as applied to sales to Dayton would not be in the public interest and should be denied.

(3) The rates and charges contained in Ohio Fuel's FPC Gas Tariff, Second Revised Volume No. 1, as filed on September 18, 1953, and as modified by revised tariff sheets permitted to be filed by Commission order issued March 26, 1954, are unjust and unreasonable and should be disallowed from March 1, 1954, the date upon which the filing first became effective subject to a corporate undertaking to refund.

(4) Continued billing by Ohio Fuel under the rate form previously prescribed does not give sufficient firmness to the demand revenues nor provide long-term commitments by the customers, both of which are essential for continued financial stability of Ohio Fuel; nor does such billing encourage use of peak shaving by the customers. Therefore, further use of this rate form, prospective from the July 1956 billing month, would not be in the public interest.

(5) Continued billing by Ohio Fuel at the rate level prescribed in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965 would result in rates for the future which would not return to Ohio Fuel all costs associated with rendering service to its jurisdictional customers thus impairing Ohio Fuel's financial ability to continue service. Therefore, continued billing at the rate level prescribed in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965 would not be in the public interest.

(6) For purposes of refund from March 1, 1954, through the June 1956 billing month, the rates and charges (on the average demand basis) set forth herein are just and reasonable for the periods noted:

(i) For the period March 1, 1954, through the December 1954 billing month, a demand charge of $2.08 per Mcf and a commodity charge of 31.52 cents per Mcf;

(ii) For the period beginning with the January 1955 billing month through the June 1956 billing month, a demand charge of $2.15 per Mcf, and a commodity charge of 32.43 cents per Mcf.

(7) Subject to the limitations imposed by the ultimately effective underlying rate set forth in our order issued December 22, 1954, in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965, Ohio Fuel should refund to each of its customers with interest at 6 percent (6%) per annum, from the date of payment to Ohio Fuel to date of refund, the excess of the total amounts charged from March 1, 1954, under the rates in effect subject to refund, over the total amount which would have been charged for sales to such customers under the rates found just and reasonable in Finding (6) above, for the respective portions of the refund period.

(8) Ohio Fuel should refund to its wholesale customers on an equitable basis the proper part of any reductions in costs of service as used herein, received by it as refunds or otherwise which are not already reflected in rates herein determined, which it already has received or may receive in the future from its suppliers, as a result of disposition of proceedings involving the rates of its suppliers applicable to the period from March 1, 1954.

(9) Ohio Fuel should file revised tariff sheets reflecting rates and charges, to be effective commencing with the July 1956 billing month, of $1.56 per Mcf of demand and 32.45 cents per Mcf of commodity, based upon a contract demand rate form including the modifications proposed by Ohio Fuel in Exhibit No. 38 to this proceeding.

(10) Ohio Fuel should file revised tariff sheets reflecting rates and charges, to be effective commencing with the July 1956 billing month, of 45 cents per Mcf on a straight commodity basis to be available on an optional basis to small general service customers, the maximum daily takes of which do not exceed 5,000 Mcf.

(11) Ohio Fuel should make refunds and file changes in rates prescribed in Finding (9) above in the event that United Fuel Gas Company and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company, or either of these, are required by any final orders of the Commission in Dockets Nos. G–2451, G–2506, and G–5475, to make refunds to Ohio Fuel or to make any reductions in the rates applicable to their sales of natural gas to Ohio Fuel; Ohio Fuel should also make refunds and file changes in rates prescribed in Finding (9) above at such time as Texas Gas Transmission Corporation gives effect to the Commission's order in Docket No. G–2017 and Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation gives effect to the Commission's order in Docket No. G–1964.

(12) In the event that the corporate income tax rate for the year 1956 is fixed at less than the current rate of fifty-two percent (52%) used in the Ohio Fuel cost-of-service statements, Ohio Fuel shall file changes in its cost of service occasioned by the reduction of the Federal Income Tax rate, and such changes shall have the same effective date as the mission the amount of refunds to each date upon which such tax rate reduction becomes effective.

(13) The record in this proceeding should be reopened for the purpose of taking additional evidence concerning the effect upon rate of return of Ohio Fuel of our approval of the application of the CD rate form to the sales to Ohio Fuel's resale customers. For the purpose of taking this additional evidence this proceeding should be consolidated with the hearing In the Matter of United Fuel Gas Co. et al., Docket No. G–2451 et al., commencing on July 5, 1956.

The Commission orders:

(A) Dayton's motion to dismiss filed June 1, 1956, is hereby denied.

(B) The rates and charges contained in Ohio Fuel's Second Revised Volume No. 1, as filed on September 18, 1953, and modified pursuant to the order of March 26, 1954, which were in effect subject to refund from March 1, 1954, are unjust and unreasonable and are hereby disallowed.

(C) Within 45 days from the effective date of this order, Ohio Fuel shall file revised tariff sheets to its FPC Gas Tariff consistent with this order, satisfactory to the Commission, reflecting rates as follows:

Period	Demand	Commodity
		Cents
Mar. 1, 1954, through the December 1954 billing month (average demand basis)	$2.08	31.52
January 1955 billing month through the June 1956 billing month (average demand basis)	2.15	32.43
July 1956 billing month and the future (contract demand rate form and in conformity with exhibit No. 38)	1.56	32.45
July 1956 billing month (SGS rate schedule) and the future		.45

(D) Subject to the limitations imposed by the ultimately effective underlying rate as set forth in the order issued December 22, 1954, in Dockets Nos. G–1786 and G–1965, Ohio Fuel shall refund to each wholesale customer, with interest at six percent (6%) per annum from the date of payment to Ohio Fuel to the date of refund by it, the difference between the amounts which would have been collected by Ohio Fuel under the rates found herein to be just and reasonable and set forth in (C) above and the amounts actually received. Ohio Fuel shall bear all costs of refunding.

(E) Ohio Fuel shall refund to its wholesale customers, on an equitable basis to be approved by the Commission, the proper part of any reductions in purchased gas costs used in costs of service herein received by it as refunds or otherwise which are not already reflected in the rates herein determined and which it already has or may receive in the future from its suppliers. Ohio Fuel shall make refunds applicable to sales for the period beginning with March 1, 1954, to reflect any reductions in costs of gas purchased as used herein, which reductions would result from the disposition of proceedings involving rates of its suppliers. Ohio Fuel shall file revisions of its tariff sheets reflecting such refunds in the commodity component of its rates.

(F) Within 45 days from the effective date of this order Ohio Fuel shall report, in writing and under oath, to the Comcustomer for each of the periods, March 1, 1954, through the December 1954 bill-

[1] We take administrative notice that on May 9, 1956, Ohio Fuel tendered for filing revised tariff sheets which would reduce the $2.00/33.38 cents tentative rate to $2.00/32.75 cents. Further downward adjustments may be anticipated.

ing month and the January 1955 billing month through the June 1956 billing month.

(G) For the purpose of taking additional evidence referred to in finding (13), the record in this proceeding shall be reopened and this proceeding shall be consolidated with the hearing in Docket No. G-2451 et al., In the Matter of United Fuel Gas Co. et al., commencing on July 5, 1956.

Issued: June 29, 1956.

KEY OIL & GAS (1955) LTD. (N. P. L.)

ORDER TEMPORARILY DENYING EXEMPTION, STATEMENTS OF REASONS THEREFOR, AND NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

JUNE 29, 1956.

I. Key Oil & Gas (1955) Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the "issuer"), 800 Hall Building, 789 West Pender Street, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, having filed with the Commission on May 4, 1956, a Notification on Form 1-D relating to a proposed public offering of not exceeding 300,000 shares of its 50 cents par value stock at 30 cents per share, for the purpose of obtaining an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933 as amended, pursuant to the provisions of section 3 (b) thereof and Regulation D promulgated thereunder; and

II. The Commission having reasonable cause to believe:

A. That the terms and conditions of Regulation D have not been complied with in that:

1. The Notification on Form 1-D, Item 5, fails to disclose that Raymond Shaw is an affiliate of the issuer;

2. The non-resident officers and directors of the issuer failed to furnish the Commission at the time of the filing of the Notification on Form 1-D consents to service of process required by Rule 507 (a);

3. The offering circular fails to describe the method by which the securities are to be offered as required by Rule 504 (b) (4);

4. The offering circular fails to state in tabular form on the outside front cover page of the offering circular the price to the public, underwriting commissions, and proceeds to the issuer as to the securities covered by the notification and securities concurrently to be offered in Canada, as required by Rule 504 (b) (5);

5. The offering circular fails to disclose the respective amounts of proceeds from the sale to be applied for each purpose for which the net cash proceeds from the sale of the securities are to be used, the priority of application of such amounts, and the disposition of proceeds in the event that the proceeds are insufficient for the purposes stated;

6. The offering circular fails to state, as required by Rule 504 (b) (7) and Supplemental Instructions to Regulation D referred to therein, the nature of issuer's interest in the properties to be developed and the development which has occurred to date on or near the properties held;

7. Issuer has failed to file for the information of the Commission, as required by the Supplemental Instructions to Regulation D, copies of pertinent reports and other data to support statements made in the offering circular concerning geology and engineering;

8. The offering circular fails to include financial statements in appropriate form as required by Rule 504 (b) (10).

B. That the offering circular is false and misleading in the following particulars:

1. In stating, "The most noted discoveries of oil producing lands have usually been preceded by indications of oil or gas seepages on, or very close to the surface";

2. In characterizing gamma ray surveys and aerial photography as "the finest exploration methods obtainable today";

3. In stating that "oil of commercial proportions is obtainable" upon drilling to the so-called "lower Burrard Formation";

4. In stating that according to many experts the issuer's property "could be the more productive extremity of the same formation producing oil in such abundance 2,500 miles farther south in California";

5. In stating that many years of exploratory work and past experience together with modern methods of geological surveying "enable us to minimize risk and abortive effort and locate our drillings in the more logical places";

6. In omitting to state in connection with promises of continuous and complete exploration of the properties the estimated cost of such a program and the proposed method of financing it;

7. In omitting to state that the State of Washington has issued a cease and desist order against the issuer, making it illegal to sell or offer to sell the securities in that state until further order.

C. That the use of said offering circular in connection with the offering of the issuer's securities would operate as a fraud and deceit upon the purchasers of such securities.

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule 509 of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, that the exemption under section 3 (b) and Regulation D be, and it hereby is temporarily denied.

Notice is hereby given that any person having any interest in the matter may file with the Secretary of the Commission a written request for a hearing; that, within 20 days after receipt of such request, the Commission will, or at any time upon its own motion may, set the matter down for hearing at a place to be designated by the Commission for the purpose of determining whether this order of denial should be vacated or made permanent, without prejudice however, to the consideration and presentation of additional matters at the hearing; and that notice of the time and place for said hearing will be promptly given by the Commission.

By the Commission.

MICHIGAN WISCONSIN PIPE LINE CO. AND AMERICAN NATURAL GAS CO.

NOTICE OF FILING REGARDING PROPOSALS BY SUBSIDIARY OF REGISTERED HOLDING COMPANY TO ISSUE AND SELL AT COMPETITIVE BIDDING ADDITIONAL FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, TO INCREASE ITS AUTHORIZED COMMON STOCK, AND TO ISSUE AND SELL ADDITIONAL COMMON STOCK; AND PROPOSAL BY PARENT TO ACQUIRE SUCH STOCK

JUNE 29, 1956.

Notice is hereby given that Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company ("Michigan Wisconsin"), a non-public-utility company, and its parent, American Natural Gas Company ("American Natural"), a registered holding company, have filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), a joint application-declaration regarding a proposal by Michigan Wisconsin to issue and sell $25,000,000 principal amount of its first mortgage bonds, and 60,000 shares of its $100 par value common stock. Applicants-declarants designate sections 6 (b), 9, 10, and 12 (f) of the act and Rules U-43 and U-50 (a) (3) thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions.

All interested persons are referred to the joint application-declaration on file in the offices of the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed, which are summarized as follows:

Michigan Wisconsin proposes to issue and sell, subject to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50, $25,000,000 principal amount of its First Mortgage Pipe Line Bonds, __ percent Series due 1976. The interest rate (which shall be a multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent and the price to be received by the company for the bonds (which, exclusive of accrued interest, shall be not less than 100 percent nor more than 102¾ percent of the principal amount) are to be determined by competitive bidding. The bonds will be issued under and secured by the company's outstanding Mortgage and Deed of Trust, dated September 1, 1948, as heretofore supplemented, and as to be further supplemented by an Eighth Supplemental Indenture to be dated August 1, 1956.

Michigan Wisconsin also proposes, prior to or simultaneously with the issuance of the new bonds, to increase the authorized number of shares of its $100 par value common stock from 255,000 to 310,000, and to issue and sell to American Natural, and American Natural proposes to acquire, 60,000 additional shares of Michigan Wisconsin's authorized but unissued common stock for a cash consideration of $6,000,000. Prior to the purchase by American Natural of the additional shares of common stock, Michigan Wisconsin proposes to declare and pay American Natural a cash dividend of $6,000,000. The effect of this dividend declaration and contemporaneous purchase of stock is to convert $6,000,000 of retained earnings into common stock.

Michigan Wisconsin has outstanding $14,000,000 principal amount of notes due July 1, 1956, issued under a credit agreement heretofore approved by the Commission (File No. 70-3382) and has obtained approval of a new credit agreement under which it could borrow up to $25,000,000 on short-term bank notes, of which $14,000,000 will be used to pay the outstanding notes due July 1, 1956 (File No. 70-3483). The remainder will be applied to the payment of costs of construction, estimated at $12,500,000, of needed additional facilities to enable Michigan Wisconsin to deliver to its markets the additional gas which will become available upon completion of the new pipe line being constructed by American Louisiana Pipe Line Company, an associate company.

Applicants-declarants state that the Michigan Public Service Commission may be deemed to have jurisdiction over the proposed issuance of the securities by Michigan Wisconsin; that an application for approval thereof will be filed with such commission, and a copy thereof and of any order entered thereon, will be filed as an amendment herein. It is further stated that, apart from the foregoing, no regulatory authority other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than July 19, 1956, at 5:30 p. m., e. d. s. t., request in writing that a hearing be held on such matters, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application-declaration which he desires to controvert, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission orders a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C. At any time after said date the application-declaration, as filed or as it may be amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100, or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

It is ordered, Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act and the rules and regulations thereunder, that said declaration be, and it hereby is, permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed by Rule U-24, and subject to the following additional terms and conditions:

That Standard Shares shall:

(1) Notify its shareholders to what extent the payment is being made out of capital or unearned surplus;

(2) Notify its shareholders that the Commission's action in permitting the declaration to become effective is not to be construed as a determination by the Commission that all or any portion of such payment is or is not taxable to the recipients pursuant to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code; and

(3) Disclose in all published financial statements the extent to which the payment was made out of capital or unearned surplus.

By the Commission.

(2) Is serving in an obligated position;

(3) Is serving with reemployment rights granted under this chapter;

(4) Has received a notice of involuntary separation because of reduction in force or otherwise; or

(5) Has already submitted a resignation.

§ 10.102 Letter of Authority—(a) Definition. A Letter of Authority is an authorization from the Commission to an agency appointing officer to grant reemployment rights.

(b) Scope of authority. A Letter of Authority shall specify the conditions under which it may be used, including the types of positions covered and the organizational and geographic areas to which it is restricted.

(c) Time limit of authority. A Letter of Authority shall remain in force for one year from date of issuance unless previously revoked by the Commission. Renewals or extensions will not be issued unless justified by exceptional circumstances.

§ 10.103 Standards for issuing Letters of Authority. The Commission will determine the standards to be used in issuing Letters of Authority, which shall include the following:

(1) The positions to be filled must be related to emergency situations for which the usual recruiting methods are inadequate;

(2) The positions must be a part of a specific program immediately essential to the national interest;

(3) The positions must be essential to the functioning of the program;

(4) There must be substantial basis for the belief that reemployment rights will be a significant and reasonable aid in meeting the emergency situation.

§ 10.104 Request for Letter of Authority. When an agency believes that the emergency situation is so critical as to justify offers of reemployment rights, it may request the Commission to issue a Letter of Authority. In submitting such a request, the agency shall present its justification in terms of the foregoing standards.

§ 10.105 Appeal of losing agency. An appointing officer who intends to employ with reemployment rights an employee of another executive agency must give the losing agency written notice at least ten (10) work days before the effective date of the proposed action. If the losing agency believes the grant of reemployment rights would be detrimental to the public interest, it may appeal the proposed grant to the Commission within five (5) work days after receipt of such notice. The losing agency shall, at the same time, furnish a copy of the appeal to the prospective appointing officer, who shall withhold the proposed grant pending decision on the appeal. The Commission will determine whether the employee will be given reemployment rights and notify both agencies accordingly. If the losing agency does not appeal within five (5) work days, the employee shall be granted reemployment rights.

§ 10.106 Expiration of reemployment rights. Reemployment rights granted under a Letter of Authority shall expire at the end of two (2) years following the date of the personnel action, unless exercised or otherwise terminated before that time, except that the reemployment rights of an employee serving outside continental United States shall extend for an additional period of three (3) months.

§ 10.107 Exercise or termination of reemployment rights—(a) Exercise. An employee must apply for reemployment within the time limits set forth below.

(1) Within thirty (30) calendar days prior to the expiration of the term of reemployment rights.

(2) Within thirty (30) calendar days after receipt of notice of involuntary separation.

(3) At least thirty (30) calendar days in advance of his scheduled entry into active military duty. In such cases the person shall be reemployed and separated or furloughed for military service by the reemploying agency.

(4) At any time prior to the expiration of the term of reemployment rights with the written consent of the current employing agency if application for reemployment is made within thirty (30) days after date of separation, or after receipt of advance notice of proposed demotion by the current employing agency.

(b) Termination. An employee's rights shall be terminated if:

(1) He fails to apply within the time limits stated above,

(2) He resigns without the written consent of the current employing agency, or

(3) Within ten (10) calendar days, he fails to accept an offer of reemployment made under section 10.108 which is determined to be a proper offer of reemployment by the reemploying agency or by the Commission upon appeal.

§ 10.108 Agency's obligation to reemploy. (a) An employee entitled to reemployment shall be reemployed by the responsible agency as promptly as possible, but not more than thirty (30) calendar days after receipt of his application. The employee is entitled to reemployment in the occupational field and at the same grade or level and in the same geographical area as the position which the employee last held in that agency. If the reemployment would cause the separation or demotion of another employee, the applicant shall then be considered an employee for the purpose of applying the Retention Preference Regulations to determine to what, if any, position he is entitled.

(b) The reemploying agency may reemploy the employee in a position of higher grade than that to which he is entitled, but not if such reemployment would cause the displacement of another employee.

(c) Upon reemployment in the Postal Service, the employee shall be given the seniority he would have attained had he remained in the Postal Service.

(d) An agency may refuse action to reemploy under this section only when the employee was last separated for serious cause evidencing his unsuitability for reemployment.

§ 10.109 Employee appeals to the Commission. Any employee with reemployment rights who is denied reemployment must be so informed in writing by the agency. In the same notice, the agency must inform him of his right to appeal to the Commission within ten (10) calendar days after receipt of the notice. This time limit may be extended upon a showing by the employee that circumstances beyond his control prevented him from filing his appeal within the time limit. Final decision of his right to reemployment shall be made by the Commission.

§ 10.110 Exercise or termination of reemployment rights granted under previous regulations. (a) Reemployment rights granted upon defense transfer prior to August 1, 1956, under authority of Executive Order 10180 or 10577 shall terminate on January 31, 1957, except as provided below. Employees serving with such rights on August 1, 1956, or who are on active military duty on that date, may apply for reemployment at any time prior to February 1, 1957. Reemployment rights of the classes of employees listed below shall be terminated if not exercised within the time limits specified:

(1) Employees restored under Part 35 of this Chapter must exercise their reemployment rights by February 1, 1957, or at the end of any statutory retention period, whichever is later.

(2) Employees serving outside the continental United States under a transportation agreement must exercise such rights by February 1, 1957, or three (3) months after the date they become eligible for return transportation at Government expense, whichever is later.

(3) Persons notified that they cannot be restored under Part 35 to their latest grades or levels in the agencies they left to enter active military duty must apply for reemployment within forty (40) calendar days after receipt of such notification.

(4) Employees who enter upon active military duty on or after August 1, 1956, must apply for reemployment at least thirty (30) calendar days in advance of their scheduled entry upon active military duty. In such cases, these persons will be reemployed and separated or furloughed for military service by the reemploying agency.

(b) Employees who were involuntarily separated by a defense activity prior to August 1, 1956, must apply for reemployment within forty (40) calendar days after the date of separation or their reemployment rights shall be terminated.

(c) Application for reemployment under this section shall be honored by responsible agencies in accordance with § 10.108. Denial of reemployment shall be subject to appeal under § 10.109.

(a) Cranberries shall be considered damaged by foreign material when the appearance of the cranberries in the container is materially affected.

(b) Cranberries shall be considered damaged by moisture when the cranberries in the container are wet from moisture caused by crushed, leaking or decayed berries or from rain or flooding. Cranberries which are moist from condensation such as that caused by removing cranberries from a refrigerator car or cold storage to a warmer location, shall not be considered as damaged by moisture.

(c) Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as damage:

(1) Bruises which materially affect the appearance of the individual cranberry;

PART 301—DOMESTIC QUARANTINE NOTICES

SUBPART—MEDITERRANEAN FRUIT FLY

ADMINISTRATIVE INSTRUCTIONS DESIGNATING CERTAIN LOCALITIES AS REGULATED AREA

Pursuant to § 301.78–2 of the regulations supplemental to the Mediterranean Fruit Fly Quarantine (7 CFR Supp. 301.78–2, 21 F. R. 3214), under sections 8 and 9 of the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161, 162), administrative instructions issued as 7 CFR Supp. 301.78–2a (21 F. R. 3216), effective May 16, 1956, as amended effective June 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 3722), are hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 301.78–2a Administrative instructions designating regulated area under the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine and regulations. Infestations of the Mediterranean fruit fly have been determined to exist in the civil divisions listed below. Accordingly, such civil divisions are hereby designated as the Mediterranean fruit fly regulated area within the meaning of the provisions in this subpart:

Florida. The counties of Broward, Collier, Dade, Hendry, Lee, and Palm Beach.

These amended administrative instructions shall become effective July 7, 1956.

The purpose of the amendment is to add the Florida counties of Collier, Hendry, and Lee to the list of counties in which Mediterranean fruit fly infestations have been determined to exist, and designate these three counties as part of the area regulated under the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine and regulations.

Recent survey and trapping records show that Mediterranean fruit fly infestation is more prevalent in Lee County than was apparent earlier. Hendry and Collier counties are not infested to the same extent as Lee County, but it is considered necessary to add these two counties to the regulated area because of their inseparability for quarantine enforcement purposes from other infested localities. Although there are spot infestations north of the six counties included in the extended regulated area, all of these have been treated with a malathion bait spray and are under regulation by the State in accordance with their Florida Plant Act of 1927. Consequently, it is not necessary to designate these isolated infestations as part of the regulated area.

This amendment imposes restrictions supplementing Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine regulations already effective. It must be made effective promptly in order to carry out the purposes of the regulations. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the foregoing amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making the effective date thereof less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 9, 37 Stat. 318; 7 U. S. C. 162. Interprets or applies sec. 8, 37 Stat. 318, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 161)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 2d day of July 1956.

Chapter XI—Agricultural Conservation Program Service, Department of Agriculture

PART 1101—NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION

SUBART—1957

Our agricultural resources produce about two-thirds of the raw materials on which our national economy is based. As our nation grows, an expanding economy and the raw materials essential to it become ever increasingly important to the welfare of every citizen.

Through the Agricultural Conservation Program, all the people of the nation share in the cost of protecting the most vital of our natural resources—our farm and ranch lands. This program is one of the many forms of public assistance essential to this protection. Research, education, technical services, and cost-sharing all are designed to help preserve or restore the physical characteristics of our agricultural lands so that a stable agriculture will be assured. The need for achievements beyond those which come just from wise use of the land for crop production is very great. Full utilization of the 1957 Agricultural Conservation Program should be made in every county in the nation.

INTRODUCTION

§ 1101.800 Introduction. (a) Through the 1957 Agricultural Conservation Program (referred to in this subpart as the "1957 program") administered by the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Government will share with farmers and ranchers in the continental United States the cost of carrying out approved soil and water conservation practices in accordance with the provisions contained in this subpart and such modifications thereof as may hereafter be made.

(b) Information with respect to the several practices for which costs will be shared when carried out on a particular farm or ranch, and the exact specifications and rates of cost-sharing for such practices, may be obtained from the county committee for the county in which the farm or ranch is located or from the State committee.

GENERAL PROGRAM PRINCIPLES

§ 1101.801 General program principles. The 1957 National Agricultural Conservation Program has been developed and is to be carried out on the basis of the following general principles:

(a) The national program contains broad authorities to help meet the varied soil and water conservation problems of the Nation. State and county committees and participating agencies shall design a program for each State and county. Such programs should include any additional limitations and restrictions necessary for the maximum conservation accomplishment in the area. The programs should be confined to the soil and water conservation practices on which Federal cost-sharing is most needed in order to achieve the maximum conservation benefit in the State or county.

(b) The State and county programs should be designed to encourage those soil and water conservation practices which provide the most enduring conservation benefits practicably attainable in 1957 on the lands where they are to be applied.

(c) Costs will be shared with a farmer or rancher only on satisfactorily performed soil and water conservation practices for which Federal cost-sharing was requested by the farmer or rancher before the conservation work was begun.

(d) Costs should be shared only on soil and water conservation practices which it is believed farmers or ranchers would not carry out to the needed extent without program assistance. In no event should costs be shared on practices except those which are over and above those farmers or ranchers would be compelled to perform in order to secure a crop.

(e) That rates of cost-sharing in a county or State are to be the minimum required to result in substantially increased performance of needed soil and water conservation practices within the limits prescribed in the national program.

(f) The purpose of the program is to help achieve additional conservation on land now in agricultural production rather than to bring more land into agricultural production. The program is not applicable to the development of new or additional farmland as a result of drainage. Such of the available funds that cannot be wisely utilized for this purpose will be returned to the public treasury.

(g) If the Federal Government shares the cost of the initial application of soil and water conservation practices which farmers and ranchers otherwise would not perform but which are essential to sound soil and water conservation, the farmers and ranchers should assume responsibility for the unkeep and maintenance of those practices through their life span. The State and county programs shall specify the life span of eligible practices.

DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS

§ 1101.802 State funds. Funds available for conservation practices will be distributed among States on the basis of conservation needs, but the proportion allocated for use in any State shall not be reduced more than 15 percent from its proportionate 1956 distribution.

§ 1101.803 County funds. The State committee will allocate the funds available for conservation practices among the counties within the State, taking into consideration, to the extent practicable, the conservation needs in the counties within the State.

STATE AND COUNTY AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAMS

§ 1101.804 Agencies to participate in development of State programs. (a) A State agricultural conservation program (referred to in this subpart as "State program") shall be developed in each State in accordance with the provisions contained in this subpart and such modifications thereof as may hereafter be made. The program shall be developed by the State committee (including the State Director of Extension), the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service official having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the State. The President of the Land-Grant College and the State Director of the Farmers Home Administration shall be invited to designate representatives to counsel with the group in the formulation of the State program. The chairman of the State committee shall invite representatives of the State Soil Conservation Committee (Board or Commission), the State Agricultural Extension Service, and other State and Federal agricultural agencies to participate in its deliberations on the State program.

(b) The program for the State shall be that recommended by the State committee, the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service official having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the State, and approved by the Administrator, ACPS.

§ 1101.805 Agencies to participate in development of county programs. (a) A county agricultural conservation program (referred to in this subpart as "county program") shall be developed in each county in accordance with the provisions of the State program and such modifications thereof as may be made. The county committee with the community committeemen, the designated representative of the Soil Conservation Service in the county with the governing body of the Soil Conservation District, and the Federal Forest Service representative having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the county with the farm forestry representatives of the State, working with the County Agricultural Extension Agent for the county (if he is not included in the foregoing group as ex officio member of the county committee) and the County Supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration, shall develop recommendations for the county program.

(b) The program for the county then shall be formulated by the county committee, the local Soil Conservation Service technician, and the Forest Service representative having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the county, in consultation with the governing body of the Soil Conservation District on the overall conservation problems in the county and, especially, on the work plans of the Soil Conservation District and of the Federal agencies involved to assure the most effective use of the available technical assistance and funds for cost-sharing. The program as formulated shall be recommended to the State committee for approval by the State committee, the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service official having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the State, and upon such approval shall become the 1957 program for the county. The program recommendation shall be signed by the chairman of the county committee, the Soil Conservation Service technician, and the Forest Service representative where present in the county, and shall state that the program was developed in consultation with the governing body of the Soil Conservation District.

§ 1101.806 Selection of practices. Practices to be included in the State program or in the county program shall be only those practices for which cost-sharing is essential to permit accomplishment of needed conservation work which would not otherwise be carried out in the desired volume.

§ 1101.807 Adaptation of practices. (a) The practices included in the State program must meet all conditions and requirements of the national program. Additional conditions and requirements may be included where necessary for effective use in meeting the conservation problems in the State.

(b) The practices included in the county program must meet all conditions and requirements of the State program. Provisions shall be made in the State program for the adaptation of practices in the county program for effective use in meeting the conservation problems in the county, consistent with recognized performance standards and program policies and requirements.

§ 1101.808 Practice specifications. (a) Minimum specifications which practices must meet to be eligible for Federal cost-sharing shall be set forth in the State handbook or in the county program, or be incorporated therein by specific reference to a standard publication or other written document containing such specifications.

(b) For practices involving the establishment or improvement of vegetative cover, the specifications shall include, where applicable, liming, fertilization, and seeding rates, eligible seeds and mixtures, seeding dates, requirements for cultural operations and inoculation, and other steps essential to the successful establishment or improvement of the vegetative cover. The needed liming materials, rock phosphate, and gypsum may be applied under the practice contained in § 1101.852 or under a practice which includes all of the measures essential to the successful establishment or improvement of the vegetative cover. For mechanical or construction type practices, the specifications shall include, where applicable, the types and sizes of material, installation or construction requirements, and other steps essential to the proper functioning of the structure. For other practices, the specifications shall include those steps essential to the successful performance of the practice.

(c) Practice specifications shall provide minimum performance requirements which will qualify the practice for cost-sharing and, where applicable, may also provide maximum limits of performance which will be eligible for cost-sharing. The minimum performance requirements established for a practice shall represent those levels of performance which are necessary to assure a satisfactory practice. The maximum limits of performance for cost-sharing established for a practice shall represent those levels of performance which are needed in order for the practice to be most effective in meeting the conservation problem and which are not in excess of levels for which cost-sharing can be justified.

§ 1101.809 Use of liming materials and commercial fertilizers. (a) For practices which authofize Federal cost-sharing for applications of liming materials and commercial fertilizers, the minimum application, and maximum application where applicable, on which cost-sharing is authorized shall, in each case, be determined on the basis of a current soil test: Provided, however, That if the State committee determines that available facilities are not adequate to permit the desired use of these practices under the program, it shall authorize, to the extent necessary, an alternative basis for determination by the county committee of such applications. Such alternative basis shall be such as to insure beneficial use of Federal cost-sharing approved and shall be formulated by the State committee in full consultation with the representatives of the State and Federal agencies participating in the development of the State program.

(b) The application of liming materials contained in commercial fertilizers, rock phosphate, or basic slag will not qualify for Federal cost-sharing. The application of manure will not qualify for Federal cost-sharing; however, manure may be used, where applicable, to meet all or a part of the fertilizer requirement for a practice.

§ 1101.810 Responsibility for technical phases of practices. (a) The Soil Conservation Service is responsible for the technical phases of the practices contained in §§ 1101.863 and 1101.871 to 1101.883, This responsibility shall include (1) a finding that the practice is needed and practicable on the farm, (2) necessary site selection, other preliminary work, and layout work of the practice, (3) necessary supervision of the installation, and (4) certification of performance. For the practice contained in § 1101.868, the Soil Conservation Service is responsible (1) for determining that the practice is needed and practicable on the farm, and (2) for necessary site selection, other preliminary work, and layout work of the practice. For the practices contained in §§ 1101.862, 1101.864, and 1101.870, the Soil Conservation Service is responsible for determining that the practice is needed and practicable on the farm. In addition, upon agreement of the State committee and the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, responsibility for all or part of the unassigned technical phases of these or other practices may be assigned to the Soil Conservation Service for all counties in the State or for specified counties. The State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service may utilize assistance from private, State, or Federal agencies in carrying out these assigned responsibilities. These assigned responsibilities will not apply in counties with respect to which the Administrator, ACPS, and the Administrator, SCS, agree that it would not be administratively practicable for the Soil Conservation Service to discharge these responsibilities. In such counties, these responsibilities shall be assumed by the county committees.

(b) The Forest Service is responsible for the technical phases of the practices contained in §§ 1101.855 and 1101.866. This responsibility shall include (1) providing necessary specialized technical assistance, (2) development of specifications for forestry practices, and (3) working through State and county committees, determining performance in meeting these specifications. The Forest Service may utilize assistance from private, State, or Federal agencies in carrying out these assigned responsibilities.

§ 1101.811 Rates of cost-sharing. (a) The maximum Federal cost-share for each practice shall be the percentage of the average cost of performing the practice considered necessary to obtain the needed performance of the practice, but which will be such that the farmer or rancher will make a substantial contribution to the cost of performing the practice. Rates of cost-sharing shall not be in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of performing the practices, except that:

(1) For the practices contained in §§ 1101.853 to 1101.855, 1101.866, 1101.868, 1101.869, 1101.871 to 1101.874, and 1101.883, which have long lasting conservation benefits and from which the returns to the farmer or rancher are remote, the State committee, the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service official having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the State may establish rates of cost-sharing in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of performing the practices.

(2) Upon justification by the State committee, the State Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service official having jurisdiction of farm forestry in the State, and approval of the Administrator, ACPS, rates of cost-sharing in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of performing the practices may be established for other practices having long lasting conservation benefits and from which the returns to the farmer or rancher are remote.

(3) Upon justification by the State and county committees and designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at both the State and county levels, the Administrator, ACPS, may approve a rate of cost-sharing for one or more additional practices in a county in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of performing the practice, but only if the increased rate of cost-sharing is essential to introduce a greatly needed new conservation practice into the county or to bring about a greatly needed increase in the extent to which the practice otherwise would be carried out.

(b) For the purpose of establishing rates of cost-sharing, the average cost of performing a practice may be the average cost for a State, a county, a part of a county, or a farm or ranch, as determined by the State committee.

(c) The rates of cost-sharing for practices included in the county program may be lower than the rates approved for general use in the State.

§ 1101.812 Items of cost on which rates of cost-sharing may be based. Except as otherwise provided by the wording of the practices or elsewhere in this subpart, the cost of any direct and significant factor in the performance of a practice may be considered in establishing the rate of cost-sharing for the practice.

§ 1101.813 State handbooks, bulletins, instructions, and forms. The Administrator, ACPS, is authorized to prepare and issue State handbooks, bulletins, instructions, and forms required in administering the 1957 program. Copies of State handbooks, bulletins, instructions, and forms containing detailed information with respect to the 1957 program as it applies to specific States, counties, areas, and farms and ranches will be available in the office of the State committee and the office of the county committee. Persons wishing to participate in the program should obtain from the State committee or county committee all information needed in order to comply with all provisions of the program.

APPROVAL OF CONSERVATION PRACTICES ON INDIVIDUAL FARMS OR RANCHES

§ 1101.814 Opportunity for requesting cost-sharing. Each farm or ranch operator shall be given an opportunity to request that the Federal Government share in the cost of those practices on which he considers he needs such assistance in order to permit their performance in adequate volume on his farm or ranch. The county committee, taking into consideration the farmer's or rancher's request and any conservation plan developed by the farmer or rancher with the assistance of any State or Federal agency, shall direct the available funds for cost-sharing to those farms and ranches and to those practices where cost-sharing is considered most essential to the accomplishment of the basic conservation objective of the Department—the use of each acre of agricultural land within its capabilities and the treatment of each acre in accordance with its needs for protection and improvement.

§ 1101.815 Prior request for cost-sharing. Costs will be shared only for those practices, or components of practices, for which cost-sharing is requested by the farm or ranch operator before performance thereof is started, except that for the practices contained in §§ 1101.892 and 1101.896, the Administrator, ACPS, may authorize the acceptance of requests for cost-sharing filed within a reasonable period after performance thereof is started, such period to be stated in the practice wording. For practices for which (a) approval was given under the 1956 Agricultural Conservation Program, (b) performance was started but not completed during the 1956 program year, and (c) the county committee believes the extension of the approval to the 1957 program is justified under the 1957 program regulations and provisions, the filing of the request for cost-sharing under the 1956 program may be regarded as meeting the requirement of the 1957 program that a request for cost-sharing be filed before performance of the practice is started.

§ 1101.816 Method and extent of approval. The county committee, in accordance with a method approved by the State committee, will determine the extent to which Federal funds will be made available to share the cost of each approved practice on each farm or ranch, taking into consideration the county allocation, the conservation problems in the county and of the individual farm or ranch, and the conservation work for which requested Federal cost-sharing is considered by the county committee as most needed in 1957. The method approved shall provide for the issuance of notices of approval showing for each approved practice the number of units of the practice for which the Federal Government will share in the cost and the amount of the Federal cost-share for the performance of that number of units of the practice. To the extent practicable, notices of approved practices shall be issued before performance of the practices is started.

§ 1101.817 Initial establishment or installation of practices. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized under the 1957 program only for the initial establishment or installation of the practices contained in this subpart. The initial establishment or installation of a practice, for the purposes of the 1957 program, shall be deemed to include the replacement, enlargement, or restoration of practices for which cost-sharing has been allowed, if all of the following conditions exist:

(a) Replacement, enlargement, or restoration of the practice is needed to meet the conservation problem.

(b) The failure of the original practice was not due to the lack of proper maintenance by the current operator.

(c) The county committee believes that the replacement, enlargement, or restoration of the practice merits consideration under the program to an equal extent with other practices for which cost-sharing has not been allowed under a previous program.

§ 1101.818 Repair, upkeep, and maintenance of practices. Federal cost-sharing is not authorized for repairs or for normal upkeep or maintenance of any practice.

§ 1101.819 Pooling agreements. Farmers or ranchers in any local area may agree in writing, with the approval of the county committee, to perform designated amounts of practices which, by conserving or improving the agricultural resources of the community, will solve a mutual conservation problem on the farms of the participants. For purposes of eligibility for cost-sharing, practices carried out under such an approved written agreement will be regarded as having been carried out on the farms or ranches of the persons who performed the practices.

PRACTICE COMPLETION REQUIREMENTS

§ 1101.822 Completion of practices. Federal cost-sharing for the practices contained in this subpart is conditioned upon the performance of the practices in accordance with all applicable specifications and program provisions. Except as provided in §§ 1101.823 to 1101.825, practices must be completed during the program year in order to be eligible for cost-sharing.

§ 1101.823 Practices substantially completed during program year. Approved practices may be deemed, for purposes of payment of cost-shares, to have been carried out during the 1957 program year, if the county committee determines that they are substantially completed by the end of the program year. However, no cost-shares for such practices shall be paid until they have been completed in accordance with all applicable specifications and program provisions.

§ 1101.824 Practices requiring more than one program year for completion. (a) Cost-sharing may be approved under the 1957 program for a component of a practice completed during the program year in accordance with all applicable specifications and program provisions, provided:

(1) The farmer or rancher agrees in writing to complete all remaining components of the practice in accordance with all applicable specifications and program provisions within the time prescribed by the county committee, if cost-sharing is offered to him therefor under a subsequent program; and

(2) The county committee determines that under the circumstances prevailing on the farm in 1957, completion of that component is a reasonable attainment in 1957 toward the ultimate completion of all components of the practice.

(b) Any advance cost-share so paid shall be refunded if the remaining components of the practice are not completed in accordance with all specifications and program provisions within the time prescribed by the county committee, provided the farmer or rancher is offered cost-sharing under a subsequent program for completing such components. The extension of the period for completion of the remaining components of the practice will not constitute a commitment to approve cost-sharing therefor under a subsequent program. Approval of cost-sharing for other practices under subsequent programs may be denied until the remaining components are completed.

§ 1101.825 Practices involving the establishment or improvement of vegetative cover. Costs for practices involving the establishment or improvement of vegetative cover may be shared even though a good stand is not established, if the county committee determines, in accordance with standards approved by the State committee, that the practice was carried out in a manner which would normally result in the establishment of a good stand, and that failure to establish a good stand was due to weather or other conditions beyond the control of the farm or ranch operator. The county committee may require as a condition of cost-sharing in such cases that the area be reseeded or that other needed protective measures be carried out. Cost-sharing in such cases may be approved also for repeat applications of measures previously carried out or for additional eligible measures. Cost-sharing for such measures shall be approved to the extent such measures are needed to assure a good stand even though less than that required by the applicable practice wording for initial approvals.

§ 1101.826 Failure to meet minimum requirements. Notwithstanding other provisions of the 1957 program, costs may be shared for practices treating with the establishment or improvement of vegetative cover for the performance actually rendered even though the minimum requirements with regard to the rate of seeding or the application of liming materials or commercial fertilizers are not met, if the farmer or rancher establishes to the satisfaction of the county committee and the State committee or its designee (a) that he made every reasonable effort to meet the minimum requirements, and (b) that the practice as performed adequately meets the conservation problem.

Federal Cost-Shares

§ 1101.827 Conservation materials and services—(a) Availability. (1) Part or all of the Federal cost-share for an approved practice may be in the form of conservation materials or services furnished through the program for use in carrying out the practice. Materials or services may not be furnished to persons who are indebted to the Federal Government, as indicated by the register of indebtedness maintained in the office of the county committee, except in those cases where the agency to which the debt is owed waives its rights to setoff in order to permit the furnishing of materials and services.

(2) Title to any material furnished through the program shall vest in the Federal Government until the material is applied or planted, or all charges for the material are satisfied.

(b) Cost to farmer or rancher. The farmer or rancher will pay that part of the cost of the material or service, as established under instructions issued by the Administrator, ACPS, which is in excess of the Federal cost-share attributable to the use of the material or service or, upon request by the farmer or rancher and approval by the county committee, the farmer or rancher will pay that part of the cost of the material or service which is in excess of the farmer's or rancher's Federal cost-share for all components of the practice which will likely be completed during the program year. The Federal cost-share increase on the amount of the Federal cost-share so determined may be advanced as a credit against that part of the cost of the material or service required to be paid by the farmer or rancher.

(c) Discharge of responsibility for materials and services. (1) The person to whom a material or service is furnished under the 1957 program will be relieved of responsibility for the material or service upon determination by the county committee that the material or service was used for the purpose for which it was furnished and that any other components of the practice, on which the amount of the Federal cost-share advance toward the cost of the material or service was determined, have been carried out in accordance with all applicable specifications and program provisions. If the person uses any material or service for any purpose other than that for which it was furnished, he shall be indebted to the Federal Government for that part of the cost of the material or service borne by the Federal Government and shall pay such amount to the Treasurer of the United States direct or by withholdings from Federal cost-shares otherwise due him under the program.

(2) Any person to whom materials are furnished shall be responsible to the Federal Government for any damage to the materials, unless he shows that the damage was caused by circumstances beyond his control. If materials are abandoned or not used during the program year, they may, in accordance with instructions issued by the Administrator, ACPS, be transferred to another person or otherwise disposed of at the expense of the person who abandoned or failed to use the material, or be retained by the person for use in a subsequent program year.

§ 1101.828 Practices carried out with State or Federal aid. The total extent of any practice performed shall be reduced for the purpose of computing cost-shares by the percentage of the total cost of the items of performance on which costs are shared which the county committee determines was furnished by a State or Federal agency. Materials or services furnished through the program, materials or services furnished by any agency of a State to another agency of the same State, or materials or services furnished or used by a State or Federal agency for the performance of practices on its land shall not be regarded as State or Federal aid for the purposes of this section.

§ 1101.829 Division of Federal cost-shares—(a) Federal cost-shares. The Federal cost-share attributable to the use of conservation materials or services shall be credited to the person to whom the materials or services are furnished. Other Federal cost-shares shall be credited to the person who carried out the practices by which such other Federal cost-shares are earned. If more than one person contributed to the carrying out of such practices, the Federal cost-share shall be divided among such persons in the proportion that the county committee determines they contributed to the carrying out of the practices. In making this determination, the county committee shall take into consideration the value of the labor, equipment, or material contributed by each person toward the carrying out of each practice on a particular acreage, and shall assume that each contributed equally unless it is established to the satisfaction of the county committee that their respective contributions thereto were not in equal proportion. The furnishing of land or the right to use water will not be considered as a contribution to the carrying out of any practice.

(b) Death, incompetency, or disappearance. In case of death, incompetency, or disappearance of any person, any Federal share of the cost due him shall be paid to his successor, determined in accordance with the provisions of the regulations in ACP–122, as amended (Part 1108 of this chapter).

§ 1101.830 Increase in small Federal cost-shares. The sum of the Federal cost-shares computed for any person with respect to any farm or ranch under the Agricultural Conservation Program and the Naval Stores Conservation Program shall be increased as follows: Provided, however, That in the event legislation is enacted which repeals or amends the authority for making such increases, the Secretary may, in such manner and at such time as is consistent with such legislation, discontinue such increases:

(a) Any Federal cost-share amounting to $0.71 or less shall be increased to $1.

§ 1101.831 Maximum Federal cost-share limitation. (a) The total of all Federal cost-shares under the 1957 program to any person with respect to farms, ranching units, and turpentine places in the United States (including Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands) for approved practices which are not carried out under pooling agreements shall not exceed the sum of $1,500, and for all approved practices, including those carried out under pooling agreements, shall not exceed the sum of $10,000.

(b) All or any part of any Federal cost-share which otherwise would be due any person under the 1957 program may be withheld, or required to be refunded, if he has adopted, or participated in adopting, any scheme or device, including the dissolution, reorganization, revival, formation, or use of any corporation, partnership, estate, trust, or any other means, designed to evade, or which has the effect of evading, the provisions of this section.

§ 1101.832 Persons eligible to file application for payment of Federal cost-shares. Any person who, as landlord, tenant, or sharecropper on a farm or ranch, bore a part of the cost of an approved conservation practice is eligible to file an application for payment of the Federal cost-share due him.

§ 1101.833 Time and manner of filing application and required information. (a) It shall be the responsibility of persons participating in the program to submit to the county office forms and information needed to establish the extent of the performance of approved conservation practices and compliance with applicable program provisions. Time limits with regard to the submission of such forms and information shall be established where necessary for efficient administration of the program. Such time limits shall afford a full and fair opportunity to those eligible to file the forms or information within the period prescribed. At least 2 weeks' notice to the public shall be given of any general time limit prescribed. Such notice shall be given by mailing notice to the office of each county committee and making copies available to the press. Other means of notification, including radio announcements and individual notices to persons affected, shall be used to the extent practicable. Notice of time limits which are applicable to individual persons, such as time limits for reporting performance of approved practices, shall be issued in writing to the persons affected. Exceptions to time limits may be made in cases where failure to submit required forms and information within the applicable time limits is due to reasons beyond the control of the farmer or rancher.

(b) Payment of Federal cost-shares will be made only upon application submitted on the prescribed form to the county office by December 31, 1958, or such earlier date as is prescribed by the Administrator, ACPS. Any application for payment may be rejected if any form or information required of the applicant is not submitted to the county office within the applicable time limit.

§ 1101.834 Appeals. (a) Any person may, within 15 days after notice thereof is forwarded to or made available to him, request the county committee or State committee in writing to reconsider its recommendation or determination in any matter affecting the right to or the amount of his Federal cost-shares with respect to the farm or ranch. The county committee or State committee shall notify him of its decision in writing within 15 days after receipt of written request for reconsideration. If the person is dissatisfied with the decision of the county committee, he may, within 15 days after the decision is forwarded to or made available to him, appeal in writing to the State committee. The State committee shall notify him of its decision in writing within 30 days after the submission of the appeal. If he is dissatisfied with the decision of the State committee, he may, within 15 days after its decision is forwarded to or made available to him, request the Administrator, ACPS, to review the decision of the State committee. The decision of the Administrator, ACPS, shall be final. Written notice of any decision rendered under this section by the county or State committee shall also be issued to each other landlord, tenant, or sharecropper on the farm or ranch who may be adversely affected by the decision.

(b) Appeals considered under this section shall be decided in accordance with the provisions of this subpart and of the applicable State and county programs on the basis of the facts of the individual case: Provided, That the Secretary, upon the recommendation of the Administrator, ACPS, and the State and county committees, may waive the requirements of any such provision, where not prohibited by statute, if, in his judgment, such waiver under all the circumstances is justified to permit a proper disposition of an appeal where the farmer, in reasonable reliance on any instruction or commitment of any member, employee, or representative of a State or county committee, in good faith performed an eligible conservation practice and such performance reasonably accomplished the purpose of the practice.

General Provisions Relating to Federal Cost-Sharing

§ 1101.835 Compliance with regulatory measures. Persons who carry out conservation practices under the 1957 program shall be responsible for obtaining the authorities, rights, easements, or other approvals necessary to the performance and maintenance of the practices in keeping with applicable laws and regulations. The person with whom the cost of the practice is shared shall be responsible to the Federal Government for any losses it may sustained because he infringes on the rights of others or fails to comply with applicable laws or regulations.

§ 1101.836 Maintenance of practices. The sharing of costs, by the Federal Government, for the performance of approved conservation practices on any farm or ranch under the 1957 program will be subject to the condition that the person with whom the costs are shared will maintain such practices throughout their normal life span in accordance with good farming practices as long as the land on which they are carried out is under his control.

§ 1101.837 Practices defeating purposes of programs. If the county committee finds, with the concurrence of the State committee, that any person has adopted or participated in any practice which tends to defeat the purposes of the 1957 or any previous program, including, but not limited to, failure to maintain, in accordance with good farming practices, practices carried out under a previous program, it may withhold, or require to be refunded, all or any part of the Federal cost-share which otherwise would be due him under the 1957 program.

§ 1101.838 Depriving others of Federal cost-share. If the State committee finds that any person has employed any scheme or device (including coercion, fraud, or misrepresentation), the effect of which would be or has been to deprive any other person of the Federal cost-share due that person under the program, it may withhold, in whole or in part, from the person participating in or employing such a scheme or device, or require him to refund in whole or in part, the Federal cost-share which otherwise would be due him under the 1957 program.

§ 1101.839 Filing of false claims. If the State committee finds that any person has knowingly filed claim for payment of the Federal cost-share under the program for practices not carried out, or for practices carried out in such a manner that they do not meet the required specifications therefor, such person shall not be eligible for any Federal cost-share under the 1957 program and shall refund all amounts that may have been paid to him under the 1957 program. The withholding or refunding of Federal cost-shares will be in addition to and not in substitution of any other penalty or liability which might otherwise be imposed.

§ 1101.840 Misuse of purchase orders. If the State committee finds that any person has knowingly used a purchase order issued to him for conservation materials or services for a purpose other than that for which it was issued, and that such misuse of the purchase order tends to defeat the purpose for which it was issued, such person shall not be eligible for any Federal cost-share under the 1957 program and shall refund all amounts that may have been paid to him under the 1957 program. The withholding or refunding of Federal cost-shares will be in addition to and not in substitution of any other penalty or liability which might otherwise be imposed.

§ 1101.841 Federal cost-shares not subject to claims. Any Federal cost-share, or portion thereof, due any person shall be determined and allowed without regard to questions of title under State law; without deduction of claims for advances (except as provided in § 1101.842, and except for indebtedness to the United States subject to setoff under orders issued by the Secretary (Part 1109 of this chapter)); and without regard to any claim or lien against any crop, or proceeds thereof, in favor of the owner or any other creditor.

§ 1101.842 Assignments. Any person who may be entitled to any Federal cost-share under the 1957 program may assign his right thereto, in whole or in part, as security for cash loaned or advances made for the purpose of financing the making of a crop in 1957, including the carrying out of soil and water conservation practices. No assignment will be recognized unless it is made in writing on Form ACP–69 and in accordance with the regulations issued by the Secretary (Part 1110 of this chapter).

DEFINITIONS

§ 1101.845 Definitions. For the purposes of the 1957 program:

(a) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States or any officer or employee of the Department to whom authority has been delegated, or to whom authority may hereafter be delegated, to act in his stead.

(b) "Administrator, ACPS," means the Administrator of the Agricultural Conservation Program Service.

(c) "State" means any one of the continental United States,

(d) "State committee" means the persons in the State designated by the Secretary as the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State committee.

(e) "County" means parish or county.

(f) "County committee" means the persons elected within a county as the county committee pursuant to regulations governing the selection and functions of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county and community committees.

(h) "Farm" or "ranch" means all adjacent or nearby farm or range land under the same ownership which is operated by one person, including also (1) any other adjacent or nearby farm or range land which the county committee, in accordance with instructions issued by the Administrator, ACPS, determines is operated by the same person as part of the same unit in producing range livestock or with respect to the rotation of crops, and with work stock, machinery, and labor substantially separate from that for any other land, and (2) any field-rented tract (whether operated by the same or another person) which, together with any other land included in the farm or ranch, constitutes a unit with respect to the rotation of crops. Notwithstanding any limitation in this paragraph concerning the type or use of land, a farm may include or may consist entirely of woodland which is being operated for the production and sale of forest products. A farm or ranch shall be regarded as located in the county in which the principal dwelling is situated or, if there is no dwelling thereon, it shall be regarded as located in the county in which the major portion of the farm or ranch is located.

(i) "Cropland" means farmland which in 1956 was tilled or was in regular crop rotation, including also land which was established in permanent vegetative cover, other than trees, since 1953 and which was classified as cropland at the time of seeding, but excluding (a) bearing orchards and vineyards (except the acreage of cropland therein), (b) plowable noncrop open pasture, and (c) any land which constitutes, or will constitute if tillage is continued, an erosion hazard to the community.

(j) "Program year" means the period, designated in the State handbook, during which conservation practices, or components thereof, must be carried out to be eligible for cost-sharing. The program year may begin on or after July 1, 1956, and end not later than December 31, 1957.

AUTHORITY, AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS, AND APPLICABILITY

§ 1101.846 Authority. The program contained in this subpart is approved pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture under sections 7–17 of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended (49 Stat. 1148; 16 U. S. C. 590g–590q), and the Department of Agriculture and Farm Credit Administration Appropriation Act, 1957, and is contingent upon legislative authority to the Secretary to exercise after December 31, 1956, the powers now conferred on him by section 8 of the act.

§ 1101.847 Availability of funds. (a) The provisions of the 1957 program are necessarily subject to such legislation as the Congress of the United States may hereafter enact; the paying of the Federal cost-shares provided in this subpart is contingent upon such appropriation as the Congress may hereafter provide for such purpose; and the amounts of such Federal cost-shares will necessarily be within the limits finally determined by such appropriation.

(b) The funds provided for the 1957 program will not be available for paying Federal cost-shares for which applications are filed in the county office after December 31, 1958.

§ 1101.848 Applicability. (a) The provisions of the 1957 program contained in this subpart are not applicable to (1) any department or bureau of the United States Government or any corporation wholly owned by the United States; (2) noncropland owned by the United States which was acquired or reserved for conservation purposes, or which is to be retained permanently under Government ownership, including, but not limited to, grazing lands administered by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, or by the Bureau of Land Management (including lands administered under the Taylor Grazing Act) or the Fish and Wildlife Service of the United States Department of the Interior, except as indicated in paragraph (b) (7) of this section; (3) nonprivate persons for performance on any land owned by the United States or a corporation wholly owned by it; and (4) farms outside the continental United States.

(b) The program is applicable to (1) privately owned lands; (2) lands owned by a State or political subdivision or agency thereof; (3) lands owned by corporations which are partly owned by the United States, such as production credit associations; (4) lands temporarily owned by the United States or a corporation wholly owned by it, which were not acquired or reserved for conservation purposes, including lands administered by the Farmers Home Administration, the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, the United States Department of Defense, or by any other Government agency designated by the Administrator, ACPS; (5) any cropland farmed by private persons which is owned by the United States or a corporation wholly owned by it; (6) Indian lands, except that where grazing operations are carried out on Indian lands administered by the Department of the Interior, such lands are within the scope of the program only if covered by a written agreement approved by the Department of the Interior giving the operator an interest in the grazing and forage growing on the land and a right to occupy the land in order to carry out the grazing operations; and (7) noncropland owned by the United States for performance by private persons of conservation practices which directly conserve or benefit nearby or adjoining privately owned lands of such persons who maintain and use such federally owned noncropland under agreement with the Federal agency having jurisdiction thereof.

CONSERVATION PRACTICES

CONSERVATION PRACTICES WITH ENDURING BENEFITS—WHERE PROPERLY APPLIED AND MAINTAINED

Practices Primarily for Establishment of Permanent Protective Cover

§ 1101.849 Practice A–1: Initial establishment of a permanent vegetative cover in orchards and vineyards for control of erosion. Volunteer stands and acreages cut for hay are not eligible for cost-sharing.

§ 1101.850 Practice A–2: Initial establishment of a permanent vegetative cover for soil protection or as a needed land-use adjustment. This practice is applicable only to land which should be established in permanent vegetative cover for protection against wind or water erosion, and to cropland which, as a part of a needed land-use adjustment, is being shifted to permanent protective vegetative cover other than as a part of a regular crop rotation. This practice is not applicabe to land occupied by a merchantable stand of timber or pulpwood, or to land which, if cleared, would be suitable for continued production of cultivated crops. Federal cost-sharing may be approved for constructing fences where fences are necessary to protect the seeded area and only for the extent necessary to fence that area. Federal cost-sharing for fences shall be limited to permanent fences, excluding boundary and road fences.

§ 1101.851 Practice A–3: Establishment of additional acreages of vegetative cover in crop rotation to retard erosion and to improve soil structure, permeability, or water-holding capacity. This practice is applicable only to land which needs such cover to retard erosion or to improve soil structure, permeability, or water-holding capacity. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to that acreage which the county committee determines represents a desirable increase over what would be the normal plantings of eligible crops on the farm in 1957 under the normal crop rotation for the farm. In making this determination, consideration should be given to the need for this practice on cropland which the farmer or rancher intends to divert from the production of crops for which allotments are established for the farm for 1957.

§ 1101.852 Practice A–4: Initial treatment of farmland to permit the use of legumes and grasses for soil improvement and protection. This practice is applicable only to farmland devoted in 1957 to legumes (other than vegetable or truck crops, soybeans, mungbeans, and peanuts) or perennial grasses, and to farmland which the county committee determines will be devoted to such eligible uses in 1958. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to the application of liming materials, rock phosphate, and gypsum.

§ 1101.853 Practice A–5: Initial establishment of contour stripcropping to protect soil from wind or water erosion. All cultural operations must be performed as nearly as practicable on the contour. The crop stubble or crop residue must be left standing over winter, or a winter cover crop established, or necessary protective tillage operations carried out, on acreage devoted to row crops. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for removing stone walls or hedgerows where such removal is necessary to the establishment of an effective contour stripcropping system.

§ 1101.854 Practice A–6: Initial establishment of field stripcropping to protect soil from wind or water erosion. The crop stubble or crop residue must be left standing over winter, or a winter cover crop established, or necessary protective tillage operations carried out, on acreage devoted to row crops.

§ 1101.855 Practice A–7: Initial establishment of a stand of trees or shrubs on farmland for erosion control, watershed protection, or forestry purposes. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for planting orchard trees, or for plantings for ornamental purposes. If shrubs are used, those that benefit wildlife should be given preference wherever practicable. Plantings must be protected from fire and grazing. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for clearing land occupied largely by scrubby brush of no economic value to permit planting of desirable tree species. Technical assistance must be utilized to determine the suitability of the land for clearing and the measures necessary to prevent erosion. Federal cost-sharing for fencing shall be limited to permanent fences needed to protect the planted area from grazing, excluding boundary and road fences.

Practices Primary for Improvement and Protection of Established Vegatative Cover

§ 1101.857 Practice B–1: Improvement of an established vegatative cover for soil or watershed protection. This practice is applicable only to land in permanent vegetative cover which needs more than normal maintenance measures in order to provide adequate soil or watershed protection. The improvement measures approved for cost-sharing shall be those which will extend materially the life of the vegetative cover. Federal cost-sharing may not be approved for normal maintenance measures such as annual topdressings with fertilizer or other mineral elements. This practice is not applicable to land on which the needed improvement measures will constitute complete reestablishment of the vegetative cover.

§ 1101.858 Practice B–2: Improvement of vegetative cover on rangeland by artificial reseeding for soil protection. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed if it is determined that the area seeded is grazed before the stand is well established.

§ 1101.859 Practice B–3: Controlling competitive shrubs to permit growth of adequate desirable vegetative cover for soil protection on range or pasture land. On areas where it is determined that the control of competitive shrubs will reduce the vegetative cover to such an extent as to induce erosion, the practice will not be approved unless followed by seeding or other approved erosion control measures.

§ 1101.860 Practice B–4: Furrowing, chiseling, ripping, scarifying, pitting, or listing noncrop grazing land to prevent soil loss, retard runoff, and improve water penetration. The operation must be performed as nearly as practicable on the contour.

§ 1101.861 Practice B–5: Constructing wells for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover. The wells must be at locations which will bring about the desired protection of vegetative cover through proper distribution of grazing or better grassland management. Adequate storage facilities must be provided. Pumping equipment must be installed, except for artesian wells. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for wells constructed primarily for the use of headquarters, or for costs other than for constructing or deepening wells and for water storage facilities.

§ 1101.862 Practice B–6: Developing springs or seeps for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover. The springs or seeps must be at locations which will bring about the desired protection of vegetative cover through proper distribution of grazing or better grassland management.

§ 1101.863 Practice B–7: Constructing or sealing dams, pits, or ponds as a means of protecting vegetative cover. The dams, pits, or ponds must be at locations which will bring about the desired protection of vegetative cover through proper distribution of grazing or better grassland management.

§ 1101.864 Practice B–8: Installing pipelines for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover. The pipelines must deliver water to locations which will bring about the desired protection of vegetative cover through proper distribution of grazing or better grassland management.

§ 1101.865 Practice B–9: Constructing permanent fences as a means of protecting vegetative cover. This practice may be approved only where fencing will contribute to better distribution of livestock and seasonal use of the forage. Fences between pasture and other land will not qualify for cost-sharing.

§ 1101.866 Practice B–10: Improvement of a stand of forest trees for erosion control, watershed protection, or forestry purposes. Federal cost-sharing may be allowed for any of the following measures: (a) Thinning, (b) pruning crop trees, (c) release of desirable tree seedlings by removing or killing competing and undesirable vegetation, (d) site preparation for natural reseeding, (e) fencing, and (f) erosion control measures on logging roads and trails.

The area must be protected from fire. Where seedlings are present or needed, the area must be protected from grazing. Federal cost-sharing for site preparation will be limited to areas which have a sufficient number of desirable seed trees for natural reseeding, which will not restock unless brush, dense litter, and other material on the forest soil is broken up or removed so that soil is exposed, and on which the seed trees will be left until the areas is restocked. Technical assistance shall be utilized, if available; otherwise the practice must be carried out in accordance with approved technical forestry standards. Federal cost-sharing for fencing shall be limited to permanent fences needed to protect the area from grazing, excluding boundary and road fences.

Practices Primarily for the Conservation and Disposal of Water

§ 1101.868 Practice C–1: Initial establishment of permanent sod waterways to dispose of excess water without causing erosion.

§ 1101.869 Practice C–2: Initial establishment of permanent vegetation as protection against erosion. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to the establishment of permanent vegetation on gullies, dams, dikes, levees, ditch banks, farm roadsides, filter strips, and field borders. Consideration should be given to choice of plants favorable to wildlife.

§ 1101.870 Practice C–3: Initial establishment of orchards, vineyards, bush fruits, strawberries, or perennial vegetables on the contour to prevent erosion. All cultural operations must be performed as nearly as practicable on the contour.

§ 1101.871 Practice C–4: Constructing terraces to detain or control the flow of water and check soil erosion. Necessary protective outlets or waterways must be provided. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for removing stone walls or hedgerows where such removal is necessary to the establishment of an effective terrace system. Costs of construction may include necessary leveling and filling to permit installation of an effective system.

§ 1101.872 Practice C–5: Constructing diversion terraces, ditches, or dikes to intercept runoff and divert excess water to protected outlets. Necessary protective outlets or waterways must be provided. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for removing stone walls or hedgerows where such removal is necessary to the establishment of an effective terrace system. Costs of construction may include necessary leveling and filling to permit installation of an effective system.

§ 1101.873 Practice C–6: Constructing erosion control, detention, or sediment retention dams to prevent or heal gullying or to retard or reduce runoff of water.

§ 1101.874 Practice C–7: Constructing channel lining, chutes, drop spillways, pipe drops, drop inlets, or similar structures for the protection of outlets and water channels that dispose of excess water.

§ 1101.875 Practice C–8: Streambank or shore protection, channel clearance, enlargement or realinement, or construction of floodways, levees, or dikes, to prevent erosion or flood damage to farmland. This practice shall not be approved in cases where there is any likelihood that it will create an erosion or flood hazard to other adjacent land, or where its primary purpose is to bring new land into agricultural production.

§ 1101.876 Practice C–9: Constructing permanent open drainage systems to dispose of excess water. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for clearing the necessary minimum width right-of-way. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for the spreading of spoil banks where this is necessary for the effective utilization of the drainage system. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for ditches, the primary purpose of which is to bring additional land into agricultural production, or for cleaning a ditch, or for structures installed for crossings, or for other structures primarily for the convenience of the farm operator. In the installation of drainage systems, due consideration shall be given to the maintenance of wildlife habitat.

§ 1101.877 Practice C–10: Installing underground drainage systems to dispose of excess water. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for systems, the primary purpose of which is to bring additional land into agricultural production. In the installation of drainage systems, due consideration shall be given to the maintenance of wildlife habitat.

§ 1101.878 Practice C–11: Shaping or land grading to permit effective surface drainage. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for any shaping or grading which is performed through farming operations in connection with land preparation for planting or cultivation of crops.

§ 1101.879 Practice C–12: Reorganizing irrigation systems to conserve water and prevent erosion. The practice must be carried out in accordance with a reorganization plan approved by the responsible technician. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for cleaning a ditch, or for structures installed for crossings, or for other structures primarily for the convenience of the farm operator, or for portable pipe.

§ 1101.880 Practice C–13: Leveling land for more efficient use of irrigation water and to prevent erosion. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for floating or restoration of grade; however, the leveling operation may be completed over a period of more than one program year on a component basis where the size of cuts and fills is such that a heavy leveling operation will be needed following settlement of the original fills. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for leveling land if the primary purpose of the leveling is to bring new land into agricultural production. The leveling must be carried out in accordance with a plan approved by the responsible technician.

§ 1101.881 Practice C–14: Constructing or lining dams, pits, or ponds for irrigation water. The purpose of this practice is to conserve agricultural water or to provide water necessary for the conservation of soil resources. No Federal cost-sharing will be allowed for constructing or lining dams, pits, or ponds, the primary purpose of which is to bring additional land into agricultural production.

§ 1101.882 Practice C–15: Lining irrigation ditches to prevent erosion and loss of water by seepage. This practice is limited to ditches that are properly located and constructed as a part of an existing irrigation system.

§ 1101.883 Practice C–16: Constructing spreader ditches or dikes to divert and spread water to prevent erosion, to permit beneficial use of runoff, or to replenish ground water supply.

CONSERVATION PRACTICES WITH BENEFITS OF LIMITED DURATION—GENERALLY REQUIRING PERIODIC REPETITION

Practices Primarily for Establishing Temporary Protective Vegetative Cover

§ 1101.885 Practice D–1: Establishment of vegetative cover for winter protection from erosion. A good stand and good growth must be obtained in sufficient time to protect the area in the fall and winter of 1956 or 1957 and must be maintained on the land to a date specified in the county program. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted, but none of the growth may be harvested for hay or seed, except that the State committee may authorize the harvesting of the growth for hay or silage in areas where it determines that a serious shortage of hay or silage exists due to adverse weather conditions and the growth harvested is needed for use on farms in the area. Volunteer stands will not qualify for cost-sharing. The Federal cost-share for this practice shall not be in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of seed and fertilizer. The quantity of fertilizer, if any, on which costs are shared shall be only that quantity needed for successful establishment of the cover crop.

§ 1101 886 Practice D–2: Establishment of vegetative cover for summer protection from erosion. A good stand and good growth must be obtained and left on the land or turned under. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted, but none of the growth may be harvested for hay or seed, except that the State committee may authorize the harvesting of the growth for hay or silage in areas where it determines that a serious shortage of hay or silage exists due to adverse weather conditions and the growth harvested is needed for use on farms in the area. Volunteer stands will not qualify for cost-sharing. The Federal cost-share for this practice shall not be in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of seed and fertilizer. The quantity of fertilizer, if any, on which costs are shared shall be only that quantity needed for successful establishment of the cover crop.

§ 1101.887 Practice D–3: Establishment of vegetative cover for green manure and for protection from erosion. Federal cost-sharing will be limited to acreages of biennial or perennial legumes or perennial grasses, or mixtures of such legumes with adapted grasses, seeded during the 1957 program year. A good stand and good growth must be obtained. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted, but none of the growth may be harvested for hay or seed, except that the State committee may authorize the harvesting of the growth for hay or silage in areas where it determines that a serious shortage of hay or silage exists due to adverse weather conditions and the growth harvested is needed for use on farms in the area. Volunteer stands will not qualify for cost-sharing. The Federal cost-share for this practice shall not be in excess of 50 percent of the average cost of seed and fertilizer. The quantity of fertilizer, if any, on which costs are shared shall be only that quantity needed for successful establishment of the green manure or cover crop.

§ 1101.888 Practice D–4: Establishment of vegetative cover to protect cropland throughout the 1957 crop year. This practice is applicable only to cropland which is being shifted for the entire 1957 crop year from crop production to green manure or cover crops. Eligible seedings may consist of single seedings or successive seedings of grasses, legumes, small grains, or other crops which will provide adequate soil protection for the required period. Where annuals alone are used, at least two successive seedings must be made. Pasturing consistent with good management may be permitted. No crop may be harvested for seed in 1957. No annual crop seeded in the fall of 1957 may be harvested for seed in 1958 if such seeding is one of the two required seedings of such annual crops. No crop may be harvested for hay or silage in 1957 and no annual crop seeded in the fall of 1957 may be harvested for hay or silage in 1958 if such seeding is one of the two required seedings of such annual crops, except that the State committee may authorize the harvesting of the growth for hay or silage in areas where it determines that a serious shortage of hay or silage exists due to adverse weather conditions and the growth harvested is needed for use on farms in the area. One of the two required seedings of annuals may be a volunteer seeding which provides adequate soil protection, but no Federal cost-sharing may be allowed for the volunteer seeding.

Practices Primarily for the Temporary Protection of Soil From Wind and Water Erosion

§ 1101.890 Practice E–1: Stubble mulching to improve soil permeability and to protect soil from wind and water erosion. Tillage operations must be such as to leave sufficient crop or weed residue on the surface or mixed in the upper part of the soil to provide protection against wind and water erosion.

§ 1101.891 Practice E–2: Initial establishment of contour farming operations on nonterraced land to protect soil from wind or water erosion. All cultural operations must be performed as nearly as practicable on the contour. The crop stubble or crop residue must be left standing over winter, or a winter cover crop established, or necessary protective tillage operations carried out, on acreage devoted to row crops. This practice is not applicable on any acreage for which Federal cost-sharing is approved under § 1101.853. Federal cost-sharing may be authorized for removing stone walls or hedgerows where such removal is necessary to the establishment of an effective contour farming system.

§ 1101.892 Practice E–3: Wind erosion control operations in serious wind erosion areas. Applicable only in areas where the Administrator, ACPS, upon the recommendation of the State committee and the designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at the State level, determines there is a serious wind erosion problem for 1957. Eligible operations shall be confined to those having the most enduring benefits practicably attainable under existing conditions.

CONSERVATION PRACTICES WITH LIMITED AREA APPLICABILITY

Practices to Meet Special County Conservation Needs

§ 1101.894 Practice F–1: Special conservation practices. Consistent with the principles set forth in § 1101.801, the county committee and designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at the county level may recommend, and the State committee and designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at the State level may approve, for use in a county, practices included in this subpart for which there is need locally on a substantial number of farms but which are not selected for use in the State. Such approval shall be subject to review by the Administrator, ACPS, as to compliance with the provisions contained in this subpart.

§ 1101.895 Practice F–2: County conservation practices. Consistent with the principles set forth in § 1101.801, the Administrator, ACPS, may approve for use in a county, practices which are not included in this subpart which are needed to meet particular conservation problems in the county. Such approval may be given only upon the recommendation of the State and county committees and designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at both the county and State levels, and upon their finding (a) that the conservation problem exists on a substantial number of farms in the county, (b) that the practices contained in this subpart will not provide adequate treatment of the problem, (c) that the proposed practice will adequately meet the problem, (d) that the proposed practice would not be performed to the desired extent without Federal cost-sharing, (e) that the proposed practice will provide the most enduring solution to the problem practicably attainable under existing circumstances, (f) that the proposed practice is one on which the offering of financial assistance is fully justified as being in the public interest, and (g) that the proposed practice meets the standards and requirements of comparable practices contained in this subpart. Costs will not be shared under this practice for elements of performance for which cost-sharing is specifically precluded by the wording of a similar practice or elsewhere in this subpart.

§ 1101.896 Practice F–3: Practices to meet new conservation problems. Consistent with the principles set forth in § 1101.801, the Administrator, ACPS, may approve for use in a county, practices for the treatment of critical conservation problems, primarily those which have arisen subsequent to the initiation of the program in the county. Such approval may be given only upon the recommendation of the State and county committees and designated representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service at both the county and State levels, and upon their finding (a) that the conservation problem exists on a substantial number of farms in the county, (b) that the practices contained in this subpart will not provide adequate treatment of the problem, (c) that the proposed practice will adequately meet the problem, (d) that the proposed practice would not be performed to the desired extent without Federal cost-sharing, (e) that the offering of Federal cost-sharing for the proposed practice is justified as within the scope of national conservation objectives, (f) that adequate facilities, including technical services, will be available to permit the practice to be carried out effectively, and (g) that treatment of the problem cannot be safely delayed until a subsequent program.

TITLE 13—BUSINESS CREDIT AND ASSISTANCE[1]

Chapter II—Small Business Administration

PART 101—LOAN POLICY STATEMENT[2]

Sec.
101.1 Introduction.
101.2 Business loans.
101.3 Terms and conditions of loans to small business concerns.
101.4 Limited loan participation plan.
101.5 Disaster and drought loans.

AUTHORITY: §§ 101.1 to 101.5 issued under sec. 204, 67 Stat. 233; 15 U.S. C. 634. Interpret or apply sec. 207, 69 Stat. 548; 15 U. S. C. 636.

§ 101.1 Introduction. This general policy statement is established by the Loan Policy Board of the Small Business Administration pursuant to section 204 (d) of Public Law 163, 83d Congress (Small Business Act of 1953), as amended by Public Law 268, 84th Congress, 1st Session. It sets forth the principles and policies which will be followed by the Small Business Administration in the granting and denial of applications by small-business concerns for financial assistance. It is not intended that this General Policy Statement provide answers to all questions which may arise in connection with specific applications. This general policy statement supersedes the consolidated loan policy statement dated August 16, 1954 (19 F. R. 5440).

§ 101.2 Business loans. Basic principles governing and granting and denial of applications for financial assistance:

(a) Applications for financial assistance may be considered only when there is evidence that the desired credit is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. The financial assistance applied for shall be deemed to be otherwise available on reasonable terms, unless it is satisfactorily demonstrated that:

(1) Proof of refusal of the required credit has been obtained from:

(i) The applicant's bank of account;

(ii) If the amount of the loan applied for is in excess of the legal lending limit of the applicant's bank or in excess of the amount that the bank normally lends to any one borrower, then a refusal from a correspondent bank or from any other lending institution whose lending capacity is adequate to cover the loan applied for, and

(iii) Not less than two banks in cities where the population exceeds 200,000.

Proof of refusal must contain the date, amount and terms requested, and the reasons for not granting the desired credit.

Bank refusals to advance credit should not be considered the full test of unavailability of credit and, where there is knowledge or reason to believe that credit is otherwise available on reasonable terms from sources other than such banks, the credit applied for cannot be granted notwithstanding the receipt of written refusals from such banks.

(2) The funds required do not appear to be obtainable on reasonable terms through the public offering or private placing of securities of the applicant.

(3) The funds required do not appear to be obtainable through the disposal at a fair price of assets not required by the applicant in the conduct of its existing business or not reasonably necessary to its potential healthy growth.

(4) The funds required do not appear to be obtainable without undue hardship, through utilization of the personal credit or resources of the owner, partners, management or principal shareholders of the applicant.

(5) V-loan, or other applicable Government financing, is not available to the applicant.

(b) All loans made shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No such loan shall be made unless there exists reasonable assurance that it can and will be repaid pursuant to its terms. Reasonable assurance of repayment will exist only where the loan is of sound value, or is adequately secured in the judgment of the Small Business Administration. It will be deemed not to exist when the proposed loan is to accomplish an expansion which is unwarranted in the light of the applicant's past experience and management ability, or when the effect of making the loan is to subsidize inferior management.

(c) It is the policy to stimulate and encourage loans by banks and other lending institutions.

(1) An applicant for a loan must show that a participation by a bank or other lending institution is not available; no immediate participation may be purchased unless it is shown that a deferred participation is not available.

(2) Agreements by the Small Business Administration to participate in any loan on a deferred basis shall not obligate the Administration to advance in excess of 90 percent of the balance of the loan.

(3) No agreement to participate shall establish any preferences in favor of the bank or other lending institution participating in the loan with the Small Business Administration.

(d) Financial assistance will not be granted by the Small Business Administration:

(1) If the direct or indirect purpose or result of granting such assistance would be to:

(i) Pay off a creditor or creditors of the applicant who are inadequately secured or are in position to sustain a loss, or

(ii) Provide funds for distribution or payment to the owner, partners, or shareholders of the applicant, or

(iii) Replenish working capital funds theretofore used for either of such purposes;

(2) If the purpose of the applicant in applying for such assistance is to effect a change in ownership of a business.[3]

(3) If the financial assistance will provide or free funds for speculation in any kind of property, real or personal, tangible or intangible;

(4) If the applicant is an eleemosynary institution;

(5) If the purpose of the loan is to finance the construction, acquisition, conversion or operation of facilities which are or will be used for recreational or amusement purposes: Provided, however, That this subparagraph shall not prohibit financial assistance for such facilities when they are or will be incidental and appropriate to the business of the applicant;

(6) If the applicant is a newspaper, magazine, radio broadcasting company or television broadcasting company or similar enterprise;

(7) If any substantial portion of the gross income of the applicant (or of any of its principal owners) is derived from the sale of alcoholic beverages;

(8) If any part of the gross income of the applicant (or of any of its principal owners) is derived from gambling purposes;

(9) If the loan is to provide capital to an enterprise primarily engaged in the business of lending or investment;

(10) If the effect of the granting of the financial assistance will be to encourage monopoly or will be inconsistent with the accepted standards of the American system of free competitive enterprise.

§ 101.3 Terms and conditions of loans—(a) Maturities. The maturity of each loan shall be restricted to the minimum consistent with sound business practice.[4]

(b) Charges and interest — (1) Charges. In deferred participation loans (those made by bank in which Small Business Administration has entered into an agreement with the bank to purchase thereafter a participating share in the Loan), a participation charge shall be payable by the bank to Small Business Administration for the latter's agreement to purchase a share in the loan. The participation charges shall be on a sliding scale, depending upon the percentage of the loan which Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase. Such participation charges, which shall not be reimbursable by borrower, shall be as follows:

(i) For an amount not in excess of 50 percent of the loan, 1 percent per annum on the portion of the loan which Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase;

(ii) For an amount in excess of 50 percent of the loan, but not in excess of 75 percent of the loan 1½ percent per annum on the portion of the loan which Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase; and

(iii) For an amount in excess of 75 percent of the loan but not in excess of 90 percent of the loan, 2 percent on the portion of the loan which Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase.

(2) Interest—(i) Deferred and immediate participation loans. Except as provided in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph, interest on all loans in which the Small Business Administration participates with a bank or other lending institution, whether the participation is on a deferred or immediate basis, and whether in the first instance the bank or the Small Business Administration makes the loan in which the other purchases an immediate participation, shall not exceed 6 per cent per annum, fixed by the bank or other lending institution if not disapproved by the Small Business Administration.

(ii) Direct loans. Except as provided in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph, interest on all direct loans which may be made by the Small Business Administration shall be at the rate of 6 percent per annum, except as may be otherwise required by reason of the provisions of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended.

(iii) Interest on construction loans which may be made or participated in by the Small Business Administration to group corporations shall be at the rate of 5 percent per annum.

§ 101.4 Limited loan participation plan. Limited participation loans are authorized for maturity of not more than five years with a monthly repayment schedule including interest at the rate of not more than 6 percent per annum with the following limitations:

(a) The share of the Small Business Administration participation in any such loan shall not exceed $15,000 or 75 percent of the total amount of the loan whichever is the smaller.

(b) The bank shall participate to a minimum of 25 percent of the total amount of the loan which participation shall be composed of new exposure by the bank: Provided, That there may be included in computing the participation percentage of the bank any short-term loans or long-term loans on which payments have been made according to the original schedule if the bank participates to the extent of its present exposure and if, in the case of a short-term loan, it has been outstanding not more than six months.

(c) Emphasis shall be on the repayment ability of the borrower as determined from the record of past earnings.

(d) All such loans shall be secured; however, the participating bank shall be responsible for obtaining the pledge of collateral as well as determining the adequacy thereof. Security may include, but shall not be limited to, mortgage on real or personal property, assignment of accounts receivable or monies due on contracts, pledge of warehouse receipts, negative pledge agreements, and corporate guaranties or personal endorsements.

(e) Except as provided in this section all other provisions of this Loan Policy Statement shall apply to loans considered under the Limited Loan Participation Plan.

§ 101.5 Disaster and drought loans. (a) Disaster and drought loans will be considered on an individual basis in the light of circumstances of the applicant and of the particular flood, drought or other catastrophe. Such loans will be made to relieve the distress and hardships attendant upon the disasters.

(b) Interest on the Small Business Administration share of disaster and drought direct and participation loans shall be at the rate of 3 percent per annum, except that where a disaster loan is made for the acquisition or construction (including acquisition of site therefor) of housing for the personal occupancy of the Borrower, the interest rate on both Small Business Administration's share and bank's share of such loan shall be at the rate of 3 percent per annum.[5]

(c) Agreements by the Small Business Administration to participate in disaster and drought loans on a deferred basis shall not obligate the Administration to advance in excess of 90 percent of the balance of the loan.

(d) In deferred participation loans to disaster or drought victims in which the interest rate on the Bank's portion thereof is fixed at 3 percent per annum, no participation charge shall be made on the portion of such loans which the Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase. In deferred participation loans to such victims in which the interest rate on Bank's portion of the loan exceeds 3 percent per annum, Bank shall pay to Small Business Administration a participation charge of ¼ percent per annum on that portion of the loan which the Small Business Administration is obligated to purchase, which charge shall not be reimbursable by Borrower.[6]

1. Section 183.4 is amended to read as follows:

§ 183.4 Sale of oil and gas leases. (a) At such times and in such manner as he may deem appropriate, the Area Director shall publish notices at least thirty days prior to the sale, unless a shorter period is authorized by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that oil and gas leases on specific tracts, each of which shall be in a reasonably compact body, will be offered to the highest responsible bidder for a bonus consideration, in addition to stipulated rentals and royalties. Each bid must be accompanied by a cashier's check, certified check, or postal money order, payable to the payee designated in the invitation to bid, in an amount not less than 25 percent of the bonus bid.

Within 30 days after notification of being the successful bidder, said bidder must remit the balance of the bonus, the first year's rental, and his share of the advertising costs, and shall file with the Area Director the lease in completed form. The Area Director may, for good and sufficient reasons, extend the time for the completion and submission of the lease form, but no extension shall be granted for remitting the balance of monies due. If the successful bidder fails to pay the full consideration within said period, or fails to file the completed lease within said period or extension thereof, or if the lease is disapproved through no fault of the lessor or the Department of the Interior, 25 percent of the bonus bid will be forfeited for the use and benefit of the Indian lessor.

(b) In cases where any part of the bonus bid for a lease is paid directly to the Indian lessor, upon his signing the lease, the lessee must procure and file with the lease an affidavit of the lessor, sworn to before a United States Commissioner, Postmaster, Area Director, local representative of the Area Director, county or district judge, Federal judge or clerk of a Federal court, showing the amount of bonus so paid, and the balance thereof must be paid into the office of the Area Director upon filing the lease. Where leases are executed by guardians, under order of court, the affidavit of lessor may be executed before a notary public.

(c) All notices or advertisements of sales of oil and gas leases shall reserve to the Secretary of the Interior the right to reject all bids when in his judgment the interests of the Indians will be best served by so doing, and that if no satisfactory bid is received, or if the accepted bidder fails to complete the lease, or if the Secretary of the Interior shall determine that it is unwise in the interests of the Indians to accept the highest bid, the Secretary may readvertise such lease for sale, or if deemed advisable, with the consent of the tribal council or other governing tribal authorities, a lease may be made by private negotiations. The successful bidder or bidders will be required to pay his or their share of the advertising costs. Amounts received from unsuccessful bidders will be returned; but when no bid is accepted on a tract, the costs of advertising will be assessed against the applicant who requested that said tract be advertised.

PART 609—STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURES

PROCEDURE ALTERATIONS

The standard instrument approach procedure alterations appearing hereinafter are adopted to become effective when indicated in order to promote safety. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

Part 609 is amended as follows:

NOTE: Where the general classification (LFR, VAR, ADF, ILS, GCA, or VOR), location, and procedure number (if any) of any procedure in the amendments which follow, are identical with an existing procedure, that procedure is to be substituted for the existing one, as of the effective date given, to the extent that it differs from the existing procedure; where a procedure is cancelled, the existing procedure is revoked; new procedures are to be placed in appropriate alphabetical sequence within the section amended.

1. The low frequency range procedures prescribed in § 609.6 are amended to read in part:

TITLE 18—CONSERVATION OF POWER

Chapter I—Federal Power Commission

[Docket No. R. 156]

[Order 189]

PART 1—RULES OF PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE

TYPEWRITTEN FORM

The Commission has under consideration in this proceeding the amendment of § 1.15 (c) (1) of its rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.15 (c) (1)). The purpose of this amendment is to permit typewritten pleadings, documents, or other papers filed in proceedings before the Commission to be typed or otherwise impressed on both sides of the paper where they are more than four pages in length.

It appears that adoption of such an amendment is a matter of procedure which does not require notice or hearing under section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act.

The Commission finds the amendment hereinafter adopted is appropriate to carry out the provisions of the Federal Power Act and the Natural Gas Act and to aid in the discharge of the Commission's duties under other statutory provisions and executive orders conferring powers or duties upon the Commission.

The Commission, acting pursuant to the authority vested in it by law including sections 308 and 309 of the Federal Power Act (49 Stat. 858, 16 U. S. C. 825g, 825h) and sections 15 and 16 of the Natural Gas Act (52 Stat. 829, 830, 15 U. S. C. 717n, 717o) orders: § 1.15 (c) (1) is hereby amended by inserting in the second sentence thereof after the words "one side of the paper" the following: ", unless there are more than four pages, ".

As so amended § 1.15 (c) (1) will read as follows:

(c) Form—(1) Typewritten. Pleadings, documents, or other papers filed in proceedings, if not printed, shall be typewritten on paper cut or folded to letter size, 8 to 8½ inches wide by 10½ to 11 inches long, with left-hand margin not less than 1½ inches wide and other margins not less than 1 inch. The impression shall be on only one side of the paper, unless there are more than four pages, and shall be double spaced, except that quotations in excess of a few lines shall be single spaced and indented. Mimeographed, multigraphed, hectographed, or planographed copies will be accepted as typewritten, provided all copies are clearly legible.

(Sec. 309, 49 Stat. 858, sec. 16, 52 Stat. 830; 16 U. S. C. 825h, 15 U. S. C. 170 o)

Issued: July 6, 1956.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

TITLE 29—LABOR

Chapter V—Wage and Hour Division, Department of Labor

PART 526—INDUSTRIES OF A SEASONAL NATURE

AMENDMENT OF DETERMINATION REGARDING CLEANING AND PREPARING OF CERTAIN GRASS AND FORAGE SEEDS

In a determination published in the July 23, 1940, issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 F. R. 2640) it was found that the cleaning and preparing of certain specified grass, clover and other forage seed crops in cleaning plants engaged primarily in such cleaning and preparing is a branch of an industry and is of a seasonal nature within the meaning of section 7 (b) (3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938.

Applications were filed, under § 526.5 of the regulations (29 CFR Part 526), by the Southern Seedmen's Association, Northrup, King and Company, and by other parties for the amendment of that determination to include the cleaning and preparation of additional seeds. Upon consideration of the facts stated in the applications the Administrator determined that a prima facie case had been shown for the amendment of the determination made on July 23, 1940, to include the cleaning and preparing of all varieties of alfalfa, bermuda grass, bluegrass, clover, cow peas, fescue, grain sorghum, lespedeza, lupine, orchard grass, sudan grass, vetch and wheat grass seeds. The Administrator also stated that it appeared desirable to incorporate into this determination the determination issued on March 19, 1940, for the cleaning and processing of redtop seed (5 F. R. 1096), and the determination issued on March 21, 1940 for the cleaning, bagging, and handling in cleaning plants of sugar beet seed (5 F. R. 1117). This preliminary determination was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on March 10, 1956 (21 F. R. 1543), and interested persons were given a period of 15 days in which to submit objections and to request a hearing.

No request for hearing or objection to the preliminary determination has been received.

One request was made for the revision of the determination which inadvertently did not include the curing of bluegrass seed at curing yards. Bluegrass seed is received directly from farmers immediately after harvesting and is cured by country cleaning plants (in curing yards located some distance from the plants) before cleaning operations take place in the plants. Operations at such curing yards are clearly within the industry and do not affect the finding that the industry is seasonal in nature within the meaning of the regulations.

A request was also made to include timothy and brome grass seeds in the group specified in the preliminary determination. In the absence of sufficient information to justify the inclusion of these seeds, action on this request is deferred until such information is received.

Accordingly, pursuant to authority under section 7 (b) (3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.), and as provided in § 526.6 (b) (2) of the regulations (29 CFR Part 526), the determination of July 23, 1940, is amended as proposed in the preliminary determination except as herein modified to specifically include the curing of bluegrass seed at curing yards.

As amended, the determination applies to the receiving, cleaning and preparing of all varieties of alfalfa, Austrian winter peas, bermuda grass, bent grass, bluegrass, clover, cow peas, fescue, grain sorghum, lespedeza, lupine, orchard grass, redtop, ryegrass, sudan grass, sugar beet, vetch and wheat grass seeds by country cleaning plants primarily engaged in such cleaning and preparing, and at bluegrass seed curing yards; the receiving, cleaning and preparing of other kinds of seeds by such plants; and any operations or services necessary or incident to the foregoing, including packing and shipping, during the period or periods when seeds are being received, cleaned and prepared.

For the purpose of this determination, the term "cleaning and preparing" means curing, cleaning, purifying, sorting, drying, grading and otherwise conditioning seed for planting purposes. The term "country cleaning plant primarily engaged in such cleaning and preparing" means a seed cleaning and preparing establishment in which all the seeds cleaned and prepared are received directly from farmers or farm assemblers (and no part of which is shipped from other cleaning plants), and in which the specifically named seeds either individually or in combination constitute 75 percent or more of the seeds cleaned and prepared.

Since the cleaning and preparing of grass, clover, and other forage seed crops, specified herein, will have commenced at the time this amendment is published, I find good cause to waive the 30-day period provided in § 526.10 of the regulations, and this amendment shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 7, 52 Stat. 1063, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 207)

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 3d day of July 1956.

NEWELL BROWN, Administrator,
Wage and Hour Division.

PART 779—RETAIL OR SERVICE ESTABLISHMENT AND RELATED EXEMPTIONS

APPLICATION OF CERTAIN EXEMPTIONS

After conferences with interested persons and on examination of available evidence, including an economic study of the trade, notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (20 F. R. 8425) on November 10, 1955 that the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, proposed to amend Part 779, Code of Federal Regulations (29 CFR Part 779). Interested persons were given 30 days in which to submit views, arguments or data on the proposal.

Comments have been received from several interested persons. After consideration of all relevant matter presented, I conclude that the proposal should be adopted except for changes which may be noted in §§ 779.36 (b) (3) (a), 779.36 (b) (3) (b), 779.36 (b) (4) (b) and by the addition of § 779.36 (c).

Accordingly, pursuant to General Order No. 45–A (15 F. R. 3290) and under its authority, Part 779 of Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations is amended by adding § 779.36 to read as follows:

§ 779.36 Application of the 13 (a) (2) exemption to the automotive trade. (a) It is the purpose of this section to show generally how the principles governing the application of the section 13 (a) (2) exemption apply to establishments engaged in the sale of automobiles, trucks, parts, accessories and repair services.

(b) All sales of automobiles, trucks, automobile parts, accessories, servicing and repair work will be considered retail except those set out below:

(1) Sales for resale: For example, sales for resale include sales to garages, service stations, repair shops and automobile dealers where these establishments resell the various items or where they use them in repairing customers' vehicles or in reconditioning used cars for resale. However, this does not apply to transfers of such items between departments within the dealer's establishment. Thus, transfers of parts from the parts department to the service department of the automobile dealer's establishment are not sales to the service department and are not, therefore, sales for resale. Such transfers from one department to another will be disregarded in computing the establishment's sales for determining the applicability of the 13 (a) (2) exemption. So also accommodation transfers of automobiles between dealers will be disregarded in computing the establishment's sales under section 13 (a) (2). Accommodation transfers refer to occasional exchanges or transfers of automobiles between dealers and not to situations wherein a dealer supplies cars to other dealers as part of what may be described as a distribution system.

(2) Sales made pursuant to a formal invitation to bid: Such sales are made under a procedure involving the issuance by the buyer of a formal invitation to bid on certain merchandise for delivery in accordance with prescribed terms and specifications. Sales to the Federal, State, and local governments are typically made in this manner.

(3) Fleet sales:

(i) Automobiles and trucks. Sales of automobiles and trucks to national fleet accounts as designated by the various automotive manufacturers, at fleet discounts, and sales to other fleet accounts (customers operating five or more automobiles or trucks for business purposes) at discounts equivalent to those provided in sales to national fleet owners.

(ii) Automotive parts and accessories. Sales of parts and accessories to fleet accounts (customers operating five or more automobiles or trucks for business purposes) at wholesale prices. Wholesale prices are prices equivalent to, or less than, those typically charged on sales for resale.

(4) Sales of specialized heavy motor vehicles or bodies (16,000 pounds and over gross vehicle weight): The following is a complete list of these items:

(i) Single unit trucks:

Armored (money carrying).
Buses (integral).
Coal.
Drilling.
Dump.
Hook and ladder (fire department).
Chemical wagons (fire department).
Garbage.
Mixer.
Refrigerator.
Rotary snowplow.
Special public utility.
Street cleaning.
Tank.
Wrecker.

(ii) Full trailers and semitrailers (tractor and semitrailer and truck and trailer combinations):

Auto carrier.
Coal.
Dump.
Garbage.
House carrier.
Low bed carry all.
Pole (lumber).
Refrigerator.
Tank.
Van.

(5) Sales of servicing and repair work performed under a fleet maintenance arrangement on trucks and other automotive vehicles whereby the establishment undertakes to maintain a customer's fleet at a price below the prevailing retail price.

(c) If 50 percent or more of the establishment's annual dollar volume of sales of goods and services is made within the state in which the establishment is located and if 75 percent or more of the annual dollar volume of sales of the establishment consists of sales which are not for resale and are recognized as retail, the exemption under section 13 (a) (2) will apply to all employees employed by the establishment.

Introduction. The purpose of this Defense Mobilization Order is to assign certain mobilization functions to the Small Business Administration, to clarify the relationship of the Small Business Administration to other departments and agencies having assigned mobilization functions, and to provide for measures designed to broaden the mobilization base.

1. a. Mobilization planning and operating responsibilities will be assigned to the departments and agencies regularly charged with similar peacetime functions;

b. These departments and agencies, before issuing orders or policies significantly affecting small business, will consult with the Small Business Administration in order that small business enterprises may make the fullest possible contributions to the mobilization program;

c. These departments and agencies will extend appropriate mobilization programs to the small business sector of the economy and the Small Business Administration will make its facilities available to the other departments and agencies in extending their mobilization programs to all segments of small business.

Assignment of responsibilities. By virtue of the authority vested in me pursuant to the National Security Act of 1947, as amended; Reorganization Plan No. 3, effective June 12, 1953; the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended; Executive Order 10480 of August 14, 1953; and in order to facilitate the development and coordination of Federal policies and programs for current defense activities and readiness for any future mobilization, it is hereby ordered:

3. To assure such consistency and coordinated planning, proposed measures and programs will be developed in consultation with the appropriate delegate agencies and will be submitted to the Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization for review and approval. [Rules Amdt. 15–2; FCC 56–615]

PART 15—INCIDENTAL AND RESTRICTED RADIATION DEVICES.

POWER LINE INTERFERENCE LIMIT AND CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENT WITH RESPECT TO NEW MODEL TELEVISION RECEIVERS

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C., on the 29th day of June 1956;

The Commission having under consideration a request from the Radio-Electronics - Television Manufacturers Association to extend the time within which television receivers must comply with the power line interference limits of Part 15 of the Rules governing Incidental and Restricted Radiation Devices; and

It appearing that § 15.68 (c) of the Rules provides that the power line interference limit and the certification requirement with respect thereto shall be met by all new models of television broadcast receiver chassis placed in production after June 30, 1956, and by all television broadcast receivers manufactured after December 31, 1956; and

It further appearing that a series of tests conducted by the Institute of Radio Engineers and the Radio-Electronics-Television Manufacturers Association on sample receivers under various conditions and in various locations resulted in reasonably good correlation on frequencies below 3 Mc but resulted in wide variations (from 6 db. to 16 db.) on frequencies between 3 and 25 Mc; and

It further appearing that this large variation does not allow the determination of compliance with the Commission's power line interference limit with sufficient accuracy; and

It further appearing that the manufacturers have been making reasonable efforts to meet the power line interference limitations of Part 15; and

It further appearing that the public interest would be served by granting an extension of time to allow a suitable solution of the measurement problem; and

It further appearing that in view of the time element involved compliance with the notice provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedures Act would be impracticable, and that because the amendment relieves a restriction, it may be made effective immediately;

It is ordered, That pursuant to the authority of section 4 (i), 301 and 303 (f) of the Communications Act, § 15.68 (c) of the Commission's rules is amended as set forth below, effective immediately.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interprets or applies secs. 301, 303, 48 Stat. 1081, 1082; 47 U. S. C. 301, 303)

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] MARY JANE MORRIS,
Secretary.

The provisions of § 15.68 (c) of the Commission's rules are amended to revise the effective date of the rules with respect to the power line interference limit on frequencies between 3 and 25 Mc applicable to television broadcast receivers.

As amended § 15.68 (c) reads as follows:

(c) The power line interference limit and the certification requirement with respect thereto shall be met by all new models of television broadcast receiver chassis placed in production after June 30, 1956, and by all television broadcast receivers manufactured after December 31, 1956: Provided, however, That this limit and certification thereof for frequencies between 3 and 25 Mc shall be met by all new models of television broadcast receiver chassis placed in production after December 31, 1956, and by all television broadcast receivers manufactured after June 30, 1957.

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

Subchapter F—Alaska Commercial Fisheries

PART 104—BRISTOL BAY AREA

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Basis and purpose. On the basis of showings in the salmon runs in Bristol Bay and to facilitate enforcement, it has been determined that the following actions are justified.

Therefore, effective immediately upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

1. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (a) of § 104.5, fishing will be allowed 3 days per week in the Naknek-Kvichak district and 2 days per week in the Nushagak district commencing Thursday, July 5, 1956.

2. Section 104.5 is amended in paragraph (b) in the third sentence of text to read as follows: "When the allowable fishing time is between 2 days and 4 days, fishing will commence at 9 o'clock antemeridian Monday and 9 o'clock antemeridian Thursday and will be continuous thereafter for one-half of the total time allowed."

Since immediate action is necessary, notice and public procedure on these amendments are impracticable (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.).

PART 130—HIGH SEAS SALMON FISHERY

Basis and purpose. The red salmon runs of Bristol Bay, once the most important in the world, are seriously depleted, yielding only about one-third their former production. As a consequence, severe regulations have been imposed on the established fishery, greatly restricting the number of fishing boats and fishing time. These measures have been necessary to reserve a breeding population and prevent further depletion.

It has been determined that a fishery beyond the Territorial waters of Alaska and not subject to existing protective regulations, would nullify such conservation measures and cause irreparable damage to the already depleted red salmon runs to Bristol Bay. It was learned on July 3 that such high seas fishing was planned by certain operators, although there has been adequate notice at public hearings, in trade journals, and press notices that such fishing would be prohibited, and it was generally accepted by all segments of the Alaska fishing industry.

The United States Section of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission has recommended that fishing for salmon on the high seas off the Alaska coast, except by trolling, be prohibited. Furthermore, the Chairman of the U. S. Section, by telephone July 4, urged emergency action to provide this protection to the Bristol Bay runs now.

Since an emergency has arisen and immediate action is necessary, further notice and public procedure on these regulations are impracticable and they shall become effective immediately upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 54 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.).

A new part, designated Part 130, is added to read as follows:

§ 130.1 Salmon fishing prohibited, exception. No person or fishing vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States shall fish for or take salmon, except by trolling, on the high seas north of the Alaska Peninsula east of 162 degrees west longitude, including Bristol Bay.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Internal Revenue Service

[26 CFR (1954) Part 1]

INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1953

CLAIM OF RIGHT

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D. C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U. S. C. 7805).

[SEAL] O. GORDON DELK,
Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The following regulations for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, and ending after August 16, 1954, except where otherwise specifically provided, are hereby prescribed under parts V and VI of subchapter Q of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954:

Sec.
1.1341 Statutory provisions; computation of tax where taxpayer restores substantial amount held under claim of right.
1.1341–1 Restoration of amounts received or accrued under claim of right.
1.1342 Statutory provisions; computation of tax where taxpayer recovers substantial amount held by another under claim of right.
1.1342–1 Computation of tax where taxpayer recovers substantial amount held by another under claim of right; effective date.
1.1346 Statutory provisions; recovery of unconstitutional Federal taxes.
1.1346–1 Recovery of unconstitutional taxes.
1.1347 Statutory provisions; claims against United States involving acquisition of property.
1.1347–1 Tax on certain amounts received from the United States.

CLAIM OF RIGHT

§ 1.1341 Statutory provisions; computation of tax where taxpayer restores substantial amount held under claim of right.

SEC. 1341. Computation of tax where taxpayer restores substantial amount held under claim of right—(a) General rule. If—

(1) An item was included in gross income for a prior taxable year (or years) because it appeared that the taxpayer had an unrestricted right to such item;

(2) A deduction is allowable for the taxable year because it was established after the close of such prior taxable year (or years) that the taxpayer did not have an unrestricted right to such item or to a portion of such item; and

(3) The amount of such deduction exceeds $3,000, then the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year shall be the lesser of the following:

(4) The tax for the taxable year computed with such deduction; or

(5) An amount equal to—

(A) The tax for the taxable year computed without such deduction, minus

(B) The decrease in tax under this chapter (or the corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws) for the prior taxable year (or years) which would result solely from the exclusion of such item (or portion thereof) from gross income for such prior taxable year (or years).

For purposes of paragraph (5) (B), the corresponding provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 shall be chapter 1 of such code (other than subchapter E, relating to self-employment income).

(b) Special rules. (1) If the decrease in tax ascertained under subsection (a) (5) (B) exceeds the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year (computed without the deduction) such excess shall be considered to be a payment of tax on the last day prescribed by law for the payment of tax for the taxable year, and shall be refunded or credited in the same manner as if it were an overpayment for such taxable year.

(2) Subsection (a) does not apply to any deduction allowable with respect to an item which was included in gross income by reason of the sale or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer (or other property of a kind which would properly have been included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the prior taxable year) or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of his trade or business. This paragraph shall not apply if the deduction arises out of refunds or repayments made by a regulated public utility (as defined in section 1503 (c) without regard to paragraph (2) thereof) if such refunds or repayments are required to be made by the government, political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality referred to in such section.

§ 1.1341–1 Restoration of amounts received or accrued under claim of right—(a) In general. (1) If, during the taxable year, the taxpayer is entitled under other provisions of chapter 1 to a deduction of more than $3,000 because of the restoration to another of an item which was included in the taxpayer's gross income for a prior taxable year (or years) under a claim of right, the tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year shall be the tax provided in paragraph (b).

(2) For the purpose of this section "income included under a claim of right" means an item included in gross income because it appeared from all the facts available in the year of inclusion that the taxpayer had an unrestricted right to such item, and "restoration to another" means a restoration resulting because it was established after the close of such prior taxable year (or years) that the taxpayer did not have an unrestricted right to such item (or portion thereof).

(b) Determination of tax. (1) Under the circumstances described in paragraph (a), the tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year shall be the lesser of—

(i) The tax for the taxable year computed under section 1341 (a) (4), i. e., with the deduction taken into account, or

(ii) The tax for the taxable year computed under section 1341 (a) (5), i. e., without taking such deduction into account, minus the decrease in tax (under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or under chapter 1 (other than subchapter E) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or under the corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws) for the prior taxable year (or years) which would result solely from the exclusion from gross income of all or that portion of the income included under a claim of right to which the deduction is attributable. For the purpose of this subdivision, the amount of the decrease in tax is not limited to the amount of the tax for the taxable year. See paragraph (h) of this section where the decrease in tax for the prior taxable year (or years) exceeds the tax for the taxable year.

(2) If the taxpayer computes his tax for the taxable year under the provisions of section 1341 (a) (5) and subdivision (ii) of subparagraph (1), the amount of the restoration shall not be taken into account in computing taxable income or loss for the taxable year, including the computation of any net operating loss carryback or carryover or any capital loss carryover.

(3) If the tax determined under subparagraph (1) (i) is the same as the tax determined under subparagraph (1) (ii), the tax imposed for the taxable year under chapter 1 shall be the tax determined under subparagraph (1) (i), and section 1341 and this section shall not otherwise apply.

(c) Application to deductions which are capital in nature. Section 1341 and this section shall also apply to a deduction which is capital in nature otherwise allowable in the taxable year. If the deduction otherwise allowable is capital in nature, the determination of whether the taxpayer is entitled to the benefits of section 1341 and this section shall be made without regard to the net capital loss limitation imposed by section 1211. For example, if a taxpayer restores $4,000 in the taxable year and such amount is a long-term capital loss, the taxpayer will, nevertheless, be considered to have met the $3,000 deduction requirement for purposes of applying this section, although the full amount of the loss might not be allowable as a deduction for the taxable year. However, if the tax for the taxable year is computed with the deduction taken into account, the deduction allowable will be subject to the limitation on capital losses provided in section 1211, and the capital loss carryover provided in section 1212.

(d) Determination of decrease in tax for prior taxable years—(1) Prior taxable years. The prior taxable year (or years) referred to in paragraph (b) of this section is the year (or years) in which the income included under a claim of right to which the deduction is attributable was included in gross income and, in addition, any other taxable year (or years) the tax for which will be affected by the exclusion from gross income in such prior taxable year (or years) of such income.

(2) Amount of exclusion from gross income in prior taxable years. (i) The amount to be excluded from gross income for the prior taxable year (or years) in determining the decrease in tax under section 1341 (a) (5) (B) and paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of this section shall be the amount restored in the taxable year, but shall not exceed the amount included in gross income in the prior taxable year (or years) under the claim of right to which the deduction for the restoration is attributable, and shall be adjusted as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph.

(ii) If the amount included in gross income for the prior taxable year (or years) under the claim of right in question was reduced in such year (or years) by a deduction allowed under section 1202 (or section 117 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws), then the amount determined under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph to be excluded from gross income for such year (or years) shall be reduced in the same proportion that the amount included in gross income under a claim of right was reduced.

(3) Determination of amount of deduction attributable to prior taxable years. (i) If the deduction otherwise allowable for the taxable year relates to income included in gross income under a claim of right in more than one prior taxable year and the amount attributable to each such prior taxable year cannot be readily identified, then the portion attributable to each such prior taxable year shall be that proportion of the deduction otherwise allowable for the taxable year which the amount of the income included under the claim of right in question for the prior taxable year bears to the total of all such income included under the claim of right for all such prior taxable years.

(ii) The rule provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated as follows:

Example. Under a claim of right, A included in his gross income over a period of three taxable years an aggregate of $9,000 for services to a certain employer, in amounts as follows: $2,000 for taxable year 1952, $4,000 for taxable year 1953, and $3,000 for taxable year 1954. In 1955 it is established that A must restore $6,750 of these amounts to his employer, and that A is entitled to a deduction of this amount in the taxable year 1955. The amount of the deduction attributable to each of the prior taxable years cannot be identified. Accordingly, the amount of the deduction attributable to each prior taxable year is:

$$1952—$6{,}750 \times \frac{$2{,}000}{$9{,}000} = $1{,}500$$

$$1953—$6{,}750 \times \frac{$4{,}000}{$9{,}000} = $3{,}000$$

$$1954—$6{,}750 \times \frac{$3{,}000}{$9{,}000} = $2{,}250$$

(4) Computation of amount of decrease in tax. (i) In computing the amount of decrease in tax for a prior taxable year (or years) resulting from the exclusion from gross income of the income included under a claim of right, there must first be ascertained the amount of tax previously determined for the taxpayer for such prior taxable year (or years). The tax previously determined shall be the sum of the amounts shown by the taxpayer on his return or returns, plus any amounts which have been previously assessed (or collected without assessment) as deficiencies or which appropriately should be assessed or collected, reduced by the amount of any refunds or credits which have previously been made or which appropriately should be made. After the tax previously determined has been ascertained, a recomputation must then be made to determine the decrease in tax, if any, resulting from the exclusion from gross income of all or that portion of the income included under a claim of right to which the deduction otherwise allowable in the taxable year is attributable. The determination of the amount of the exclusion from gross income of the prior taxable year shall be made without regard to the capital loss limitation contained in section 1211 applicable in computing taxable income for the current taxable year. The amount of the exclusion from gross income in a prior taxable year (or years) shall not exceed the amount which would, but for the application of section 1211, be allowable as a deduction in the taxable year of restoration. For example, in 1952, an individual taxpayer had long-term capital gains of $50,000 and long-term capital losses of $10,000, a net long-term gain of $40,000. He also had other income of $5,000. In 1956, taxpayer restored the $50,000 of long-term gain. He had no capital gains or losses in 1956 but had other income of $5,000. If his tax liability for 1956, the taxable year of restoration, is computed by taking the deduction into account, the taxpayer would be entitled to a deduction under section 1211 of only $1,000 on account of the capital loss. However, if the taxpayer computes his tax under section 1341 (a) (5) and paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of this section, it is necessary to determine the decrease in tax for 1952. In such a determination, $50,000 is to be excluded from gross income for that year, resulting in a net capital loss for that year of $10,000, and a capital loss deduction of $1,000 under section 117 (d) of the 1939 Code (corresponding to section 1211 of the 1954 Code) with carry-over privileges. The difference between the tax previously determined and the tax as recomputed after such exclusion for the years affected will be the amount of the decrease.

(ii) No item other than the exclusion of the income previously included under a claim of right shall be considered in computing the amount of decrease in tax if reconsideration of such other item is prevented by the operation of any provision of the internal revenue laws or any other rule of law. However, if the amounts of other items in the return are dependent upon the amount of adjusted gross income, taxable income, or net income (such as charitable contributions, foreign tax credit, deductions for depletion, and net operating loss), appropriate adjustment shall be made as part of the computation of the decrease in tax. For the purpose of determining the decrease in tax for the prior taxable year (or years) which would result from the exclusion from gross income of the item included under a claim of right, the exclusion of such item shall be given effect not only in the prior taxable year in which it was included in gross income but in all other prior taxable years affected by the inclusion of the item (for example, prior taxable years affected by a net operating loss carryback or carryover or capital loss carryover).

(iii) The rules provided in this subparagraph may be illustrated as follows:

Example (1). For the taxable year 1954, a corporation had taxable income of $35,000, on which it paid a tax of $12,700. Included in gross income for the year was $20,000 received under a claim of right as royalties. In 1957, the corporation is required to return $10,000 of the royalties. It otherwise has taxable income in 1957 of $5,000, so that without the application of section 1341 it has a net operating loss of $5,000 in that year. Facts also come to light in 1957 which entitle the corporation to an additional deduction of $5,000 for 1954. When a computation is made under § 1.1341–1 (b) (1) (i), the corporation has no tax for the taxable year 1957. When a computation is made under § 1.1341–1 (b) (1) (ii), the tax for 1957, without taking the restoration into account, is $1,500, based on a taxable income of $5,000. The decrease in tax for 1954 is computed as follows:

Tax shown on return for 1954	$12,700
Taxable income for 1954 upon which tax shown on return was based	35,000
Less: Additional deduction (on account of which credit or refund could be made)	5,000
Total	30,000
Tax on $30,000 (adjusted taxable income for 1954)	10,100
Tax on $30,000 (adjusted taxable income for 1954)	10,100
Taxable income for 1954, as adjusted $30,000 Less exclusion of amount restored 10,000
Taxable income for 1954 by applying § 1.1341–1 (b) (1) (ii) 20,000
Tax on $20,000	6,000
Decrease in tax for 1954 by applying § 1.1341–1 (b) (1) (ii)	4,100
Tax for 1957 without taking the restoration into account	1,500
Amount by which decrease exceeds the tax for 1957 computed without taking restoration into account	2,600

(The $2,600 is treated as having been paid on the last day prescribed by law for the payment of the tax for 1957 and is available as a refund. In addition the taxpayer has made an overpayment of tax for 1954 because of the additional deduction of $5,000.)

Example (2). For the taxable year 1946 a married man with no dependents, who kept his books on the cash receipts and disbursements basis, filed a return (claiming two exemptions) disclosing adjusted gross income of $42,000, deductions amounting to $12,000, and a net income of $30,000. Gross income included among other items salary in the amount of $15,000 and rental income in the amount of $5,000. During the taxable year he donated $10,000 to the American Red Cross and in his return claimed a deduction of $6,300 on account thereof, representing the maximum deduction allowable under the 15-percent limitation imposed by section 23 (o) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 for the year 1946. In computing his net income he omitted interest income amounting to $6,000 and neglected to take a deduction for interest paid in the amount of $4,500. The return disclosed a tax liability of $11,970, which was assessed and paid. In 1955, after the expiration of the period of limitations upon the assessment of a deficiency or the allowance of a refund for 1946, the taxpayer had to restore the $5,000 included in his gross income in 1946 as rental income. The amount of the decrease in tax for 1946 is $2,467.62, computed as follows:

Tax previously determined for 1946	$11,970.00
Net income for 1946 upon which tax previously determined was based	30,000.00
Less: Rents included under claim of right	5,000.00
Balance	25,000.00
Adjustment for contributions (add 15 percent of $5,000)	$750.00
Net income as adjusted	25,750.00
Tax on $25,750	9,502.38
Amount of decrease in tax for 1946:
Tax previously determined	11,970.00
Tax as recomputed	9,502.38
Decrease in tax	2,467.62

The recomputation to determine the amount of the decrease in tax for 1946 does not take into consideration the item of $6,000 representing interest received, which was omitted from gross income, or the item of $4,500 representing interest paid for which no deduction was allowed.

(e) Method of accounting. The provisions of section 1341 and this section shall be applicable in the case of a taxpayer on the cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting only to the taxable year in which the item of income included in a prior year (or years) under a claim of right is actually repaid. Such provisions shall be applicable in the case of other taxpayers only to the taxable year which is the proper taxable year (under the method of accounting used by the taxpayer in computing taxable income), for taking into account the deduction resulting from the restoration of the item of income included in a prior year (or years) under a claim of right. For example, if the taxpayer is on the accrual method of accounting, the provisions of this section shall apply to the year in which the obligation for the repayment of the item included under a claim of right properly accrues, without regard to the time when repayment is actually made.

(f) Inventory items, stock in trade, and property held primarily for sale in the ordinary course of trade or business. (1) Except for amounts specified in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph the provisions of section 1341 and this section do not apply to deductions attributable to items which were included in gross income by reason of the sale or other disposition of stock in trade of the taxpayer (or other property of a kind which would properly have been included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the prior taxable year) or property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's trade or business. This section is, therefore, not applicable to sales returns and allowances and similar items.

(2) The provisions of section 1341 and this section apply to deductions which arise out of refunds or repayments made by a regulated public utility, as defined in section 1503 (c) (1) or (3) and § 1.1502–2 (g), if such refunds or repayments are required to be made by the government, political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality referred to in such section. Thus, deductions attributable to refunds of charges for the sale of natural gas under rates approved temporarily by a proper governmental authority are eligible for the benefits of section 1341 and this section, if such refunds are required by the governmental authority.

(g) Bad debts. The provisions of sections 1341 and this section do not apply to deductions attributable to bad debts.

(h) Refunds. If the decrease in tax for the prior taxable year (or years) determined under section 1341 (a) (5) (B) and paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of this section exceeds the tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year computed without the deduction, the excess shall be considered to be a payment of tax for the taxable year of the deduction. Such payment is deemed to have been made on the last day prescribed by law for the payment of tax for the taxable year and shall be refunded or credited in the same manner as if it were an overpayment of tax for such taxable year.

SEC. 1342. Computation of tax where taxpayer recovers substantial amount held by another under claim of right—(a) General rule. If—

(1) An item was deducted from gross income for a prior taxable year (or years) because it appeared that another person held an unrestricted right to such item as a result of a court decision in a patent infringement suit (whether or not the taxpayer is a party to such suit); and

(2) Gross income is increased for the taxable year because it was established after the close of such prior taxable year (or years) that such other person did not have an unrestricted right to such item or to a portion of such item because of the subsequent reversal of such court decision on the ground that such decision was induced by fraud or undue influence; and

(3) The amount of such increase in gross income exceeds $3,000, then the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year shall be the lesser of the following:

(4) The tax for the taxable year computed with the gross income so increased; or

(5) An amount equal to—

(A) The tax for the taxable year computed without such increase in gross income, plus

(B) The increase in tax (including interest) under this chapter (or the corresponding provisions of prior revenue laws) for the prior taxable year (or years) which would result solely from the elimination of such item (or portion thereof) as a deduction from gross income for such prior taxable year (or years).

(b) Special rule. For purposes of subsection (a) (5) (B) interest shall be computed from the due date of the return for such prior taxable year to the due date of the return for the taxable year.

[Added to the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 by sec. 3 of P. L. 386, 84th Congress, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1954.]

§ 1.1342–1 Computation of tax where taxpayer recovers substantial amount held by another under claim of right; effective date. Section 1342 shall apply with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1954.

OTHER LIMITATIONS

§ 1.1346 Statutory provisions; recovery of unconstitutional Federal taxes.

SEC. 1346. Recovery of unconstitutional Federal taxes. Income (excluding interest) attributable to the recovery during the taxable year of a tax imposed by the United States which has been held unconstitutional, and in respect of which a deduction was allowed in a prior taxable year, may be excluded from gross income for the taxable year, and the deduction allowed in respect thereof in such prior taxable year treated as not having been allowable, if—

(1) The taxpayer elects in writing (at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate) to treat such deduction as not having been allowable for such prior taxable year, and

(2) The taxpayer consents in writing to the assessment, within such period as may be agreed on, of any deficiency resulting from such treatment, even though the statutory period for the assessment of any such deficiency had expired before the filing of such consent.

§ 1.1346–1 Recovery of unconstitutional taxes—(a) In general. (1) A taxpayer who recovers unconstitutional Federal taxes which were paid or accrued and for which a deduction was allowed in a prior taxable year may elect, as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, to exclude the income (exclusive of interest) attributable to such recovery from his gross income in the taxable year of recovery. Any such exclusion of income is subject to the requirements of section 1346 and this section.

(2) If a taxpayer elects to receive the benefits of section 1346, the income (exclusive of interest) attributable to the recovery of the unconstitutional Federal tax will be treated as an offset to the deduction allowed therefor in a prior taxable year (or years). The taxpayer's return for the prior taxable year (or years) with respect to which the statutory period for the assessment of a deficiency has expired will be opened only for the purpose of reducing the deduction allowed for the unconstitutional Federal tax and assessing the resulting deficiency or deficiencies, if any. (An election under section 1346 may be made only if the taxpayer consents in writing to such assessment. See paragraph (b) of this section.) No other adjustment will be allowed.

(3) If the disallowance of the deduction allowed in respect of a prior taxable year results in a deficiency for that year, the deficiency will be assessed against the taxpayer within the period agreed upon between the taxpayer and the district director with respect to the taxable year of the prior deduction, even though the statutory period for the assessment may have expired prior to the filing of the consent.

(4) If a taxpayer does not elect under the provisions of section 1346 and this section to exclude the tax recovered from gross income in the taxable year of recovery, the tax recovered shall, from the standpoint of its inclusion in or exclusion from gross income, be governed by the provisions of section 111.

(b) Manner of making election. (1) The election provided for in paragraph (a) of this section shall be made by the taxpayer filing a statement in writing that he elects to treat the deduction allowed in a prior taxable year for the unconstitutional tax as not having been allowable for such taxable year. Such a statement must be filed with the taxpayer's return for the taxable year in which the recovery of the unconstitutional tax or taxes occurs. No other method of making the election is permitted. The statement of election must contain a description of the tax recovered, the date of recovery, the taxable year in which paid or accrued, and the taxable year for which the deduction was allowed. The statement of election must also contain a statement signifying the taxpayer's consent (i) to treat the deduction or portion thereof allowed in a prior year with respect to the unconstitutional tax as not allowable for that year and (ii) to the assessment, in respect of the taxable year for which the deduction was allowed, of any deficiency, together with interest thereon as provided by law, resulting from disallowance of the deduction or portion thereof, even though the statutory period for the assessment of any such deficiency may have expired before the filing of such consent.

(2) The term "recovery," as used in this section, includes not only refund or credit of taxes previously paid, but also the cancellation of a purported tax liability which was accrued and deducted for a prior taxable year but never actually paid.

§ 1.1347 Statutory provisions; claims against United States involving acquisition of property.

SEC. 1347. Claims against United States involving acquisition of property. In the case of amounts (other than interest) received by a taxpayer from the United States with respect to a claim against the United States involving the acquisition of property and remaining unpaid for more than 15 years, the tax imposed by section 1 attributable to such receipt shall not exceed 30 percent of the amount (other than interest) so received.

§ 1.1347–1 Tax on certain amounts received from the United States. (a) In the case of an amount (other than interest) received from the United States by an individual under a claim involving acquisition of property and remaining unpaid for more than 15 years, the tax imposed by section 1 attributable to such amount shall not exceed 30 percent of the amount (other than interest) so received. For the purpose of section 1347 and this section, such amount shall not include any amount received from the United States which constitutes interest, whether such interest was included in the claim or in any judgment thereon or has accrued on such judgment.

(b) To determine the application of section 1347 and this section to a particular amount, the taxpayer shall first compute the tax imposed by section 1 upon his entire taxable income, including the amount specified in paragraph (a) of this section, without regard to the limitation on tax provided in section 1347. The proportion of the tax, so computed, indicated by the ratio which the taxpayer's taxable income attributable to the amount specified in paragraph (a), computed as prescribed in paragraph (c) of this section, bears to his total taxable income, is the portion of the tax attributable to such amount. If this portion of the tax exceeds 30 percent of the amount specified in paragraph (a), that portion of the tax shall be reduced to 30 percent of such amount.

(c) In determining the portion of the taxable income attributable to any amount specified in paragraph (a), the taxpayer shall allocate to such amount received and to the gross income derived from all other sources, the expenses, losses, and other deductions properly attributable thereto, and shall apply any general expenses, losses, and other deductions (which cannot be properly apportioned otherwise) ratably to the gross income from all sources. The amount specified in paragraph (a), less the deductions properly attributable thereto and less its proportion of any general deductions, shall be the taxable income attributable to such amount. The taxpayer shall submit with his return a statement fully explaining the manner in which such expenses, losses, and deductions are allocated or apportioned.

MILK IN NORTH TEXAS MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED EMERGENCY AMENDMENT TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held at the Dallas Hotel, Dallas, Texas, beginning at 10:00 a. m., July 11, 1956.

Subjects and issues involved in the hearing. This public hearing is for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to the economic and emergency conditions which relate to the handling of milk in the North Texas, milk marketing area. More specifically consideration will be given to the pricing of Class I milk to determine (1) the extent to which drought conditions, shortage of hay and feeds, and increasing prices of available supplies of hay and feeds, constitute a threat to the adequacy of supplies of pure and wholesome milk, and (2) whether temporary emergency price relief is necessary to promote orderly marketing.

This request for emergency action has been received from the North Texas Milk Producers Association whose members constitute a majority of the producers supplying milk to the North Texas marketing area.

Copies of this notice of hearing may be procured from the Market Administrator, 6619 Denton Drive, Dallas, Texas, or from the Hearing Clerk, Room 112, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. or may be there inspected.

1957 CROP OF UPLAND COTTON

NOTICE OF DETERMINATIONS TO BE MADE WITH RESPECT TO A NATIONAL MARKETING QUOTA, NATIONAL, STATE, AND COUNTY ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS, AND FORMULATION OF REGULATIONS PERTAINING TO ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS

Pursuant to the authority contained in applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301–1388), hereinafter referred to as the "act", including amendments contained in the Agricultural Act of 1956 (Pub. Law 540, 84th Cong., approved May 28, 1956), the Secretary of Agriculture is preparing to determine, as soon as possible after August 8, 1956, whether a national marketing quota is required to be proclaimed for the 1957 crop of upland cotton. If such a quota is required, the Secretary will also determine and proclaim the amount of the quota and the amount of the national acreage allotment for the 1957 crop of upland cotton, and will issue regulations providing for apportionment of the national acreage allotment to States and the State acreage allotment to counties, for establishing farm acreage allotments, and for other related matters.

Section 342 of the act requires the proclamation of the national marketing quota to be made by the Secretary not later than October 15. In past years the proclamation has not been made until the October 8 crop report is available, in order that the latest official estimate of production during the current year could be used in calculating the "total supply" of cotton and the amount of the national marketing quota. However, because of the additional work and determinations which are required in connection with the 1957 crop by amendments contained in the Agricultural Act of 1956, it will be necessary for the Secretary to issue his proclamation with respect to the national marketing quota and to determine the national, State, and county acreage allotments as soon as possible after the first official estimate of the 1956 cotton crop is made on August 8, 1956. By beginning the 1957 program work at an earlier date, the State and county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees should be able to perform their assigned functions under the program in an orderly manner and to issue notices of individual farm allotments prior to the referendum to be held not later than December 15, 1956, even though the workload this year in the offices of these committees will be substantially heavier than in past years.

Section 342 of the act provides that whenever during any calendar year the Secretary of Agriculture determines that the total supply of cotton for the marketing year beginning in such calendar year will exceed the normal supply for such marketing year, the Secretary shall proclaim such fact and a national marketing quota shall be in effect for the crop of cotton produced in the next calendar year. This section provides further that the Secretary shall also determine and specify in such proclamation the amount of the national marketing quota in terms of the number of bales of cotton adequate, together with (1) the estimated carry-over at the beginning of the marketing year which begins in the next calendar year and (2) the estimated imports during such marketing year, to make available a normal supply of cotton. Under the provisions of this section of the act the national marketing quota for any year may not be less than 10 million bales or 1 million bales less than the estimated domestic consumption plus exports of cotton for the marketing year ending in the calendar year in which such quota is proclaimed, whichever is smaller. Section 302 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 amended section 342 to provide that the national marketing quota for 1957 and 1958 shall be not less than the number of bales required to provide a national acreage allotment for 1957 and 1958 equal to the national acreage allotment for 1956. The proclamation of the national marketing quota is required to be made not later than October 15 of the calendar year in which the determination is made that the total supply of cotton exceeds the normal supply.

As defined in section 301 of the act, for purposes of the determinations provided for in section 342 of the act, "total supply" of cotton for any marketing year is the carry-over at the beginning of such marketing year, plus the estimated production of cotton in the United States during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins, and the estimated imports of cotton into the United States during such marketing year; "carry-over" of cotton for any marketing year is the quantity of cotton on hand in the United States at the beginning of such marketing year, not including any part of the crop which was produced in the United States during the calendar year then current; "normal supply" of cotton for any marketing year is the estimated domestic consumption of cotton for the marketing year for which such normal supply is being determined, plus the estimated exports of cotton for such marketing year, plus 30 per centum of such consumption and exports as an allowance for carry-over; and "marketing year" for cotton is the period August 1–July 31.

Section 344 (a) of the act provides that whenever a national marketing quota is proclaimed under section 342, the Secretary shall determine and proclaim a national acreage allotment for the crop of cotton to be produced in the next calendar year. The national acreage allotment for cotton is that acreage, based upon the national average yield per acre of cotton for the 5 years immediately preceding the calendar year in which the national marketing quota is proclaimed, is required to make available from such crop an amount of cotton equal to the national marketing quota.

As indicated above in connection with section 342 of the act, the national acreage allotment for 1957 is required to be at least as large as the 1956 national acreage allotment, which was 17,391,304 acres.

If a national acreage allotment is proclaimed for the 1957 crop of upland cotton, such allotment will be apportioned among the States, as provided by section 344 (b) of the act, on the basis of the acreage planted to cotton during the 5 calendar years 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, and 1955, with adjustments for abnormal weather conditions during such period. However, section 342 of the act, as amended by section 302 of the Agricultural Act of 1956, provides that if the acreage allotment for any State for 1957 or 1958 is less than its allotment for the preceding year by more than 1 percent, such State allotment shall be increased so that the reduction shall not exceed 1 percent per annum. Therefore, the 1957 cotton acreage allotment for each State will be at least 99 percent of the 1956 State acreage allotment. The additional acreage which a State receives under this minimum allotment provision will be in addition to the national acreage allotment and will not be taken into account in establishing future State allotments.

There appear below the language of several additional amendments to the act which are contained in the Agricultural Act of 1956. These amendments are applicable only to the 1957 and 1958 crops of upland cotton.

1. Section 344 (b) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof a colon and the following: "Provided, That there is hereby established a national acreage reserve consisting of one hundred thousand acres which shall be in addition to the national acreage allotment; and such reserve shall be apportioned to the States on the basis of their needs for additional acreage for establishing minimum farm allotments under subsection (f) (1), as determined by the Secretary without regard to State and county acreage reserves (except that the amount apportioned to Nevada shall be one thousand acres), and the additional acreage so apportioned to the State shall be apportioned to the counties on the same basis and added to the county acreage allotment for apportionment to farms pursuant to subsection (f) of this section (except that no part of such additional acreage shall be used to increase the country reserve above 15 per centum of the county allotment determined without regard to such additional acreage). Additional acreage apportioned to a State for any year under the foregoing proviso shall not be taken into account in establishing future State acreage allotments. Needs for additional acreage under the foregoing proviso and under the last proviso in subsection (e) shall be determined as though allotments were first computed without regard to subsection (f)-(1)."

2. Section 344 (e) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof a colon and the following: "Provided further, That if the additional acreage allocated to a State under the proviso in subsection (b) is less than the requirements as determined by the Secretary for establishing minimum farm allotments for the State under subsection (f) (1), the acreage reserved by the State committee under this subsection shall not be less than the smaller of (1) the remaining acreage so determined to be required for establishing minimum farm allotments or (2) 3 per centum of the State acreage allotment; and the acreage which the State committee is required to reserve under this proviso shall be allocated to counties on the basis of their needs for additional acreage for establishing minimum farm allotments under subsection (f) (1), and added to the county acreage allotment for apportionment to farms pursuant to subsection (f) of this section (except that no part of such additional acreage shall be used to increase the county reserve above 15 per centum of the county allotment determined without regard to such additional acreages)."

3. Section 344 (f) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, is amended by changing paragraph (1) to read as follows: "Insofar as such acreage is available, there shall be allotted the smaller of the following: (A) four acres; or (B) the highest number of acres planted to cotton in any year of such three-year period."

4. The first sentence of section 344 (f) (6) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, is amended to read as follows: "Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (2) of this subsection, if the county committee recommends such action and the Secretary determines that such action will result in a more equitable distribution of the county allotment among farms in the county, the remainder of the county acreage allotment (after making allotments as provided in paragraph (1) of this subsection) shall be alloted to farms other than farms to which an allotment has been made under paragraph (1) (B) of this subsection so that the allotment to each farm under this paragraph together with the amount of the allotment of such farm under paragraph (1) (A) of this subsection shall be a prescribed percentage (which percentage shall be the same for all such farms in the county) of the average acreage planted to cotton on the farm during the three years immediately preceding the year for which such allotment is determined, adjusted as may be necessary for abnormal conditions affecting plantings during such three-year period: Provided, That the county committee may in its discretion limit any farm acreage allotment established under the provisions of this paragraph for any year to an acreage not in excess of 50 per centum of the cropland on the farm, as determined pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (2) of this subsection: Provided further, That any part of the county acreage allotment not apportioned under this paragraph by reason of the initial application of such 50 per centum limitation shall be added to the county acreage reserve under paragraph (3) of this subsection and shall be available for the purposes specified therein."

The regulations which the Secretary will issue to govern the apportionment of the 1957 national acreage allotment to States, counties, and farms, as well as related matters, will contain such provisions as are necessary to implement the four amendments set out above. Otherwise, except as discussed herein, such regulations are expected to be substantially the same as the regulations issued for the 1956 crop of upland cotton (20 F. R. 8247, 8737, 8951).

Section 344 (e) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, provides that "the State committee may reserve not to exceed 10 per centum of its State acreage allotment (15 per centum if the State's 1948 planted acreage was in excess of one million acres and less than half its 1943 allotment) which shall be used to make adjustments in county allotments for trends in acreage, for counties adversely affected by abnormal conditions affecting plantings, or for small or new farms, or to correct inequities in farm allotments and to prevent hardship." This State reserve provision was added to the act by amendments enacted in 1949 and 1953 (63 Stat. 670, 68 Stat. 4). Acreage allotments have been in effect for the 1954, 1955, and 1956 crops of cotton, and, in view of the data and information now available in connection with the use of State reserves during the three years specified, it is proposed that the regulations for the 1957 crop will limit the size of the State acreage reserve (except the acreage reserved for small farms) to two percent of the State acreage allotment unless the Secretary, on the basis of recommendations and data submitted by the State committee, approves the use of a larger State reserve for the State. Under section 344 (f) (3) of the act the county committee is authorized to reserve not to exceed 15 percent of the county acreage allotment for establishing new farm allotments and adjusting allotments established for old farms. It is expected that the regulations for the 1957 crop will leave the county committees largely free to decide the percentage of the county acreage allotment to be reserved for the specified uses. The Secretary will provide for the approval and publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of the State and county acreage allotments and the acreages reserved by the State and county committees. The regulations for the 1957 crop will also contain provisions implementing section 377 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, which provides that a farm owner or operator may preserve the allotment for his farm by complying with certain provisions regarding notice to the county committee. In addition, the regulations for 1957 will implement section 106 (a) of the Agricultural Act of 1956, which provides, in effect, that in the establishment of 1957 farm acreage allotments, any acreage placed in the acreage reserve and conservation reserve programs for 1956 shall be credited to the farm as though such acreage had actually been devoted to the production of cotton in 1956, except that no such acreage credit shall be given to a farm for acreage allotments reapportioned to it under the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, that have been placed in the acreage reserve program.

Section 343 of the act provides that not later than December 15 following the issuance of the proclamation of the national marketing quota provided for in section 342 of the act, the Secretary shall conduct a referendum, by secret ballot, of farmers engaged in the production of cotton in the calendar year in which the referendum is held, to determine whether such farmers are in favor of or opposed to the quota so proclaimed. If a quota is proclaimed for the 1957 crop of cotton, it is expected that the Secretary will fix the date of the referendum reasonably close to the final date of December 15, 1956, for holding it in order to allow maximum time for establishing 1957 farm acreage allotments and issuing notices thereof to farmers. Section 362 of the act provides that notice of the farm acreage allotment established for each farm shown by the records of the county committee to be entitled to such allotment shall, insofar as practicable, be mailed to the farm operator in sufficient time to be received prior to the date of the referendum.

Prior to making any of the foregoing determinations with respect to the national marketing quota, the national acreage allotment, the apportionment of the national acreage allotment to States and the State, acreage allotments to counties, and the formulation of regulations for the measurement of farms, for the establishment of farm acreage allotments for the 1957 crop of upland cotton, and other related matters, consideration will be given to any data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Cotton Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within 15 days following the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The date of the postmark will be considered as the date of any submission.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 3d day of July 1956.

Acting Administrator.

KTAR BROADCASTING CO. (KVAR)

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER DESIGNATING APPLICATION FOR HEARING ON STATED ISSUES

In re application of KTAR Broadcasting Company (KVAR), Mesa, Arizona, Docket No. 11760, File No. BMLCT-33; for modification of license to change main studio location to Phoenix, Arizona.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration (1) a "Protest and Petition for Reconsideration" filed on May 28, 1956, pursuant to sections 309 (c) and 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, by Arizona Television Company, permittee of Television Station KTVK, Channel 3, Phoenix, Arizona, directed against the Commission's action of April 25, 1956, granting without hearing the above-entitled application of KTAR Broadcasting Company, licensee of Television Station KVAR, Channel 12, Mesa, Arizona, to move the main studio from approximately one mile outside of Mesa to within the Phoenix city limits; and (2) a "Motion to Dismiss", filed on June 7, 1956, by KTAR Broadcasting Company.

2. KVAR is currently operating, pursuant to a license issued on March 11, 1955, with visual effective radiated power of 31.5 kw and antenna height of 1,550 feet above average terrain from a location approximately 8.7 miles from the center of Phoenix. On April 25, 1956, the Commission granted the above-entitled application for modification of license to move main studio from a location approximately one mile west of Mesa to a location in downtown Phoenix.

3. The protestant claims standing as a "party in interest" under section 309 (c) and as a "person aggrieved" under section 405 of the Communications Act, because, as a result of the Commission's action granting the subject application, Television Station KVAR will for the first time "* * * be able to compete with the existing Phoenix stations for national and regional advertising on a basis which is recognized by the advertisers." KTVK alleges that, as the newest Phoenix station, it will be the hardest hit by such competition, and that it will suffer "immeasurably increased competition" and resultant economic injury. In its "Motion to Dismiss", KVAR denies that the competitive situation has been changed in any way by the Commission's action. It points out that the transmitters of KVAR and KTVK are located in the same place, and that each provides city grade service to Phoenix. It further contends that the protestant has alleged no facts in support of its claim to standing and that, therefore, its protest and petition for reconsideration must be dismissed.

4. In support of its pleading, KTVK alleges that the relocation of a station's main studio from one community to another within the service area of the station constitutes reassignment of the station to the latter community in the Commission's Table of Assignments; that a change in the Table of Assignments can be accomplished only through appropriate rule making proceedings, which were not instituted in this case; and that, therefore, the Commission's action is inconsistent with § 3.606 (b) (Table of Assignments) of the rules, which lists Channel 12 as a Mesa assignment, and with § 3.607, which provides that applications may be filed only for channels listed in the Table of Assignments. The protestant contends, further, that § 3.613 (b) of the Commission's rules,[1] pursuant to which the subject application was granted, cannot be used to accomplish a result inconsistent with §§ 3.606 and 3.607, since channel assignments were made under the mandate of section 307 (b) of the Communications Act[2] and may not be reassigned on the basis of "another or inferior standard". In other words, the protestant urges that the Commission has moved to Phoenix the only channel assigned to Mesa without taking into account any of the factors relevant to section 307 (b) determinations. Finally, KTVK alleges that KVAR, in prosecuting its application before the Commission, filed misleading information and omitted pertinent data. In view of the above, KTVK requests that the Commission dismiss the above-entitled application, or designate the application for hearing upon specified issues, make KTVK a party to the proceeding, stay the effective date of the grant pending a final decision after hearing, and place the burden of proof and of proceeding under each of the specified issues upon KVAR.

5. KTVK has specified the following issues:

(1) To determine whether the application of KTAR Broadcasting Company is inconsistent with Rules 3.606 and 3.607 and should be dismissed.

(2) To determine whether the Commission had the legal authority to grant the application of KTAR Broadcasting Company based upon waiver of Rule 3.613.

(3) To determine whether the provisions for waiver in Rule 3.613 are consistent with Rules 3.606 and 3.607.

(4) To determine, in the light of section 307 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, § 3.613 of the Commission's rules, and the policy and legal standards set forth in the Sixth Report and Order, whether a grant of KTAR Broadcasting Company's application would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

(5) To determine whether KTAR Broadcasting Company and its principals have acted in good faith in the prosecution of their applications for assignment of license and for waiver of § 3.613 of the Commission's rules, and, whether, in the light of the facts adduced, the Commission should, pursuant to section 312 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, issue an order to KTAR Broadcasting Company to show cause why its license should not be revoked.

(6) To determine, in the light of the above issues, whether a grant of the KTAR Broadcasting Company application will serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

6. Inasmuch as the protestant is the permittee of Television Station KTVK in Phoenix and has alleged that it will suffer economic injury by reason of more effective competition from Television Station KVAR as a result of the Commission's action granting the above-entitled application, we find KTVK to be a "party in interest" and a "person aggrieved" within the meaning of sections 309 (c) and 405 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, T. E. Allen and Sons, Inc., 9 Pike and Fischer RR 197; Federal Communications Commission v. Sanders Brothers Radio Station, 309 U. S. 470 (c) Pike and Fischer RR 2008. The Commission's decision in Southwestern Publishing Company, Inc., 11 Pike and Fischer RR 466, cited by KVAR as authority on the issue of standing, is not here controlling because of the material distinction between the respective factual situations.

7. We further find that the protestant has with sufficient particularity taken issue with the basis upon which the grant without hearing was made and that designation for hearing is warranted. In appraising the nature of the hearing required, it is apparent that Issues 2 and 3 raise questions of law only. But since we are herein ordering an evidentiary hearing with respect to other issues, we are, in the interest of expedition including, with the qualification noted below, all the issues specified by the protestant. Issue 5, as framed by the protestant, is in part directed against the June 16, 1954, grant of an application for the assignment of the authorization for Television Station KVAR, a grant which cannot at this late date be brought into issue via the section 309 (c) protest procedure. Accordingly, we are redrafting Issue 5 to restrict its scope to the matters alleged with respect to KVAR's representations to the Commission in connection with its prosecution of the subject application. We do not believe that the allegations in support of the issues contemplating proof on disputed facts justify shifting the burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence and the burden of proof to the applicant, and, therefore, we are not adopting these issues. With respect to the other issues, too, we are imposing upon the protestant the burden of demonstrating error.

8. In view of the foregoing: It is ordered, That the subject Protest and Petition for Reconsideration is granted to the extent provided for below and is denied in all other respects; that, pursuant to section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, effective immediately, the effective date of the grant of the above-captioned application is postponed pending a final decision by the Commission in the hearing described below; that the above-captioned application is designated for hearing, at a date to be specified later, at the offices of the Commission in Washington, D. C., upon the following issues:

(1) To determine whether the application of KTAR Broadcasting Company is inconsistent with Rules 3.606 and 3.607 and should be dismissed.

(2) To determine whether the Commission had the legal authority to grant the application of KTAR Broadcasting Company based upon waiver of Rule 3.613.

(3) To determine whether the provisions for waiver in Rule 3.613 are consistent with Rules 3.606 and 3.607.

[1] Section 3.613 (b): In cases where an adequate showing is made that there is good cause for locating a main studio outside the principal community to be served and that to do so would not be inconsistent with the operation of the station in the public interest, the Commission will permit the use of a main studio location other than that specified in paragraph (a) of this section. The licensee or permittee of a television broadcast station shall not move his main studio outside the principal community in which it is located without first securing a modification of construction permit or license. Such licensee or permittee shall notify the Commission promptly of any change of the location of the main studio within the community. In any case where the main studio is located outside the principal community to be served, the licensee or permittee of a television broadcast station shall not move his main studio without first securing a modification of construction permit or license.

[2] Section 307 (b): In considering applications for licenses, and modifications and renewals thereof, when and insofar as there is demand for the same, the Commission shall make such distribution of licenses, frequencies, hours of operation, and of power among the several States and communities as to provide a fair, efficient, and equitable distribution of radio service to each of the same.

(4) To determine, in the light of section 307 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, § 3.613 of the Commission's rules, and the policy and legal standards set forth in the Sixth Report and Order, whether a grant of KTAR Broadcasting Company's application would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

(5) To determine whether KTAR Broadcasting Company and its principals have acted in good faith in the prosecution of their application for waiver of § 3.613 of the Commission's rules.

(6) To determine, in the light of the above issues, whether a grant of the KTAR Broadcasting Company application will serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

It is further ordered, That Arizona Television Company, permittee of Television Station KTVK, Channel 3, Phoenix, Arizona, and the Chief, Broadcast Bureau, are made parties to the above-ordered hearing; and that

1. The parties to the proceeding herein shall have fifteen (15) days after the issuance of the Examiner's decision to file exceptions thereto and seven (7) days thereafter to file replies to any such exceptions.

2. The parties intending to participate in the hearing shall file their appearances not later than July 9, 1956.

Adopted: June 27, 1956.

Released: July 3, 1956.

O. R. MITCHELL MOTORS ET AL.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER DESIGNATING APPLICATION FOR HEARING ON STATED ISSUES

In re application of O. R. Mitchell Motors, San Antonio, Texas, Docket No. 11762, File No. BTC-2203; for transfer of control to McLendon Investment Corporation, Dallas, Texas, of Sunshine Broadcasting Company (KTSA), San Antonio, Texas.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration (a) a "Protest of Radio KITE, Incorporated" filed June 1, 1956, pursuant to section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, directed against the Commission's action of May 3, 1956, granting without hearing the above-entitled application for consent to the voluntary transfer of control of Sunshine Broadcasting Company (hereinafter referred to as the licensee), licensee of Stations KTSA, KTSA-FM [2] and remote pickup KB-6894, San Antonio, Texas, from O. R. Mitchell Motors to McLendon Investment Corporation (hereinafter sometimes referred to as McLendon or the transferee); (b) an "Opposition to 'Protest of Radio KITE, Incorporated'" filed on June 11, 1956, by McLendon Investment Corporation; (c) a letter dated June 13, 1956, transmitting an affidavit dated June 12, 1956, of O. R. Mitchell; and (d) a "Reply of Radio KITE, Incorporated to Opposition to Protest" filed June 18, 1956.

2. On October 27, 1954, the Commission granted its consent to the transfer of control of the licensee from the Express Publishing Company to O. R. Mitchell Motors by sale to the latter of all of the licensee's issued and outstanding stock (3,000 shares) for $175,000 cash, which stock, as of April 30, 1954, had a net book value, exclusive of goodwill, of approximately $170,762. On May 3, 1956, the Commission granted its consent to the transfer of control of said licensee from O. R. Mitchell Motors to McLendon Investment Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the transferee) by the sale of the said 3,000 shares for $306,000, which stock, as of January 31, 1956, had a net book value of $111,350 (excluding goodwill of $127,180.92). The agreement of sale calls for payment of the purchase price by cash payments of $15,000 immediately and $60,000 at the time of closing (within 45 days from the date of Commission approval of the subject transfer). The balance of $231,000 is payable by the delivery of secured 5 percent promissory notes (endorsed by Messrs. Gordon and B. R. McLendon) in that amount, payable in quarterly installments of $15,000 each beginning 90 days after the closing date. The notes are "secured by all of the stock being transferred to the buyer" who, following consummation of the transfer, shall have the right as sole owner of the licensee corporation to liquidate such corporation and transfer its assets to the transferee. Consent to such liquidation was given by the transferor which agreed to surrender the stock "held as collateral securities," at which time the transferee shall then secure the indebtedness due the transferor by giving it a first mortgage on all the assets transferred from the licensee as security in lieu of the stock that the transferor shall surrender. In the event of default on the notes, "the said shares of mortgaged assets shall be sold at public sale" subject to Texas law and Commission approval. The transfer was consummated on the closing date of May 4, 1956, at which time the above-mentioned sums of $15,000 and $60,000 were paid to the transferor who now holds the stock as security for payment of the said notes totalling $231,000.

3. The transferee is a Texas corporation 50 percent of the stock of which is owned by B. R. McLendon, the corporation's Vice President and a director, and 49.98 percent of which is owned by B. R. McLendon's son, Gordon B. McLendon, who is President and a director. The remaining stock (1 share) is owned by the corporation's Secretary, Treasurer and director, Dorothy Manning. In addition to the subject stations (KTSA, which was established in 1928 and KOKE-FM), the transferee corporation and/or Messrs. McLendon own a controlling interest in four AM stations and one TV station.[3] Gordon McLendon is married to the daughter of James A. Noe who is the licensee of two AM stations and one TV station.[4]

4. The protestant corporation, licensee of Station KITE, San Antonio, Texas, is owned 94.49 percent by Charles W. Balthrope who is also the individual owner of Station KENN, Kennedy, Texas, and approximately 4 percent owner of Stations KPAR (AM and TV), Sweetwater, Texas, and KDUB (AM and TV), Lubbock, Texas. In San Antonio, Texas there are presently in operation two VHF television stations and one UHF television station [5] (a construction permit for a third VHF station, KONO-TV, has been granted by a Commission decision of May 23, 1956), and eight AM and three FM stations [6] in addition to KTSA (5 kw, unlimited time, on 550 kc) and KOKE-FM.

5. Protestant claims to be a "party in interest" under section 309 (c) of the Communications Act and in support of such claim alleges, in substance that KITE started operation in 1947 with its programing including Spanish, Negro and western-music programs, all of which it has been forced to discontinue because of ensuing competition from other San Antonio stations (not KTSA) which broadcast such programs; that KITE became "essentially, a music-and-news station" and that another San Antonio station (KONO) expanded its activities to a 24-hour a day operation, with still another station (KMAC) becoming a full time music-and-news station; that "the competition has thus become increasingly keen in the KITE specialized field of programing;" that protestant has been unable to determine any practical method whereby it may extend its hours of operation to unlimited time and "thus improve its competitive position;" that "KTSA becomes eighth in the group of so-called 'NOEMAC' [8] stations owned and/or operated by the McLendon Investment Corporation" (named were all stations listed hereinabove in footnotes 2 and 3, except KILT-TV which is not yet in operation); that the transferee because of its multiple-purchasing power as the operator of seven standard stations and one television station, will be able to buy and/or produce broadcast materials at a much lower rate than protestant, including such services as wire news, singing jingles both for program production and commercial sponsors, specially-produced spot announcements, which can be offered as an extra production aid to advertisers, and more economical per-station advertising through the use of page ads in national trade publications covering all eight stations in the NOEMAC group. Also, through the promise of their use on all NOEMAC stations, McLendon will be in a position to induce record manufacturers to give KTSA better disc jockey service than protestant and also to obtain free records for promotional purposes.

As further support for the claim of "party in interest," protestant alleges that "because of the operation of eight stations and the attendant ability to switch personnel and equipment from one station to another, McLendon can effect savings in operation which will put it in better position to compete unfairly;" that McLendon has changed the programming of KTSA to be substantially like that of KITE; that KTSA announcers "ask listeners not to listen to specific programs which are carried over other San Antonio stations, but to listen instead to KTSA;" that "through the McLendon policy of double-spotting commercials, KTSA is in a position to offer time which is not available elsewhere;" that instead of following a commercial policy of three spots in a 14½ minute period, "by double-spotting announcements" during the "preferred hours" and by use of "shortie tunes," which are specifically made for over-commercialized periods and run from 1½ minutes instead of the normal 3 minutes per record, KTSA can attract from protestant spot announcements on a basis that is not generally accepted by the industry or by the Commission; that certain newspaper advertising statements or phrasing used by KITE, such as "color radio" were substantially copied in radio broadcasts by KTSA, as was a certain audience participation program of KITE, all of which "will cause serious economic injury to Station KITE by improperly influencing both advertisers and audiences to leave KITE in favor of KTSA."

6. Protestant refers to the fact that the transferor and transferee were advised on April 27, 1956 (before the grant of Commission consent to the subject transfer), by a letter from the Commission "that a complaint had been filed relating to the improper prior manifestations of control by McLendon" [7] and states that the "immediate transfer of control was affected at the peril of a protest which the parties were obviously forewarned might be filed and result in an indefinite postponement of the effective date of the Commission's action." Protestant contends that the transfer is not in the public interest, alleging that prior to Commission action in granting its consent to the transfer, McLendon "manifested control over the operation of the station;" that "McLendon arbitrarily cancelled, or caused to have cancelled, all agricultural, sports, and news programs, both local and network, that interfered with the NOEMAC station format followed in other cities;" that both ABC and Mutual Network programs were abandoned on May 20, "only 16 days after the transfer was consummated;" that these changes "were made to conform to the normal pattern of NOEMAC station operation in other cities and were occasioned by McLendon influence before the Commission consent was given" (emphasis added); that McLendon's prior assumption of control was evidenced by publication of full-page ads in two Broadcasting-Telecasting magazine issues [8] wherein KTSA was listed among the NOEMAC stations, thus being "an effort to cause the average reader to believe that KTSA was already in the NOEMAC group even though • • • at the bottom of the page appeared the statement 'FCC approval of transfer pending;'" that the transferor, realizing a profit of approximately $131,000 on the sale of the station, "had a responsibility as a licensee to determine whether or not the operation proposed by the purchaser-transferee would serve the public interest • • • but the facts submitted with the application were an insufficient disclosure to that end" in that the "standardized, non-localized, NOEMAC station programming, as substituted by McLendon at KTSA, does not serve the San Antonio public interest because several of the same types of programming services are available" whereas certain "public-interest" program features which were needed by the community, such as agricultural programs, were cancelled by the station. Protestant also alleges by giving samples that "under McLendon operational policies, there are deliberately broadcast over KTSA remarks which are of questionable propriety, if not indecent, and contrary to the best interests of the public and of the broadcasting industry;" that "the NOEMAC programming, as already followed by KTSA, does not conform to the program representations made to the Commission" in the transfer application.

7. Protestant requests the Commission to designate the subject application for hearing on the following four issues:

(a) To determine whether or not the transferee improperly manifested control over the operation of Station KTSA pending the granting of the Commission's consent to the transfer of control.

(b) To determine whether or not the transferee has carried out, or made arrangements to carry out, the programming representations made in the application.

(c) To determine whether or not the transferee's method of operating the station is and will be in the San Antonio public interest.

(d) To determine whether or not the granting of the application would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity as required by section 310 (b) of the Communications Act.

8. In its Opposition, McLendon "concedes the technical 'standing' of protestant" to file its Protest under section 309 (c) of the act. However, it is argued that in regard to every issue, the protestant has failed to comply with the requirement of such section of the act to "specify with particularity the facts relied upon by the protestant as showing that the grant was improperly made or would otherwise not be in the public interest" since the protest contains nothing "but bald conclusionary statements" and "generalized objections (which) are obviously insufficient under the Statute without some specifications of events and circumstances;" that in regard to the first issue, the statement of protestant that the cancellation of the network contracts, 16 days after the transfer was consummated "were (sic) occasioned by McLendon influence before Commission consent was given" does not give any facts as to when, by whom, and where the alleged influence was exercised and, furthermore, since the contracts were cancelled after McLendon took over, "either the alleged influence never did exist or if it did exist then obviously it was ineffectual."

9. In regard to the second issue, McLendon insists that there is not one word of fact, conclusion or allegation anywhere in the Protest which would support or give any credence to the issue; that there is no reference to the subject application or the program proposals of McLendon therein; that, in fact, in submitting a new program schedule, McLendon "explicitly and implicitly represented to the Commission that some programs would be cancelled;" and that, for example, McLendon specifically states in the application that it would not any longer be affiliated with any networks whatsoever.

10. In regard to the third issue, McLendon states that with respect to the remarks of "questionable propriety" broadcast by KTSA, McLendon has, since the filing of the Protest, ascertained that such remarks were made but that they were made by a youthful announcer who has, along with all other announcers, since been informed that should such an incident occur again, the announcer would be summarily dismissed. McLendon categorically denies that the remarks were made "under McLendon operational policies" and insists that there is not one iota of allegation of fact or conclusions in the Protest supporting such a charge or the charge that the remarks were "deliberately broadcast." It is then argued that there is not one fact stated to support protestant's allegation that the "NOEMAC programming, as already followed by KTSA, does not conform to the program representations" made in the application; that as to the "color radio" and audience participation program charges (see paragraph 5 herein), McLendon first used these two promotions on its Dallas Station, KLIF, long before they were even used by any station in San Antonio and that KTSA has "simply adopted promotions which other McLendon stations have used in the past;" that in regard to protestant's allegation that "the McLendon policy of double-spotting commercials" proved that "KTSA is in a position to offer time which is not available elsewhere," such words obviously lacked the required specificity of facts.

[7] A "complaint" was filed on April 23, 1956, in the form of an unverified letter to the Commission which alleged that McLendon had manifested control over the licensee prior to Commission consent to the transfer of control. The Commission on April 27, 1956, requested full explanations from the applicants. A response was filed in the form of affidavit-supported representations which were submitted as an amendment to the application and which denied the allegations in the "complaint."

11. In regard to the fourth issue, McLendon contends that it is impossible to ascertain upon "what statement of 'fact' this issue is requested;" that assuming it is based on the allegation of quick profit made by the transferor, it is hardly sufficient as a basis for denial of an application; that in regard to the protestant's references to "NOEMAC," and examination of the applications and license records of all of such designated stations will show that they are not stations of "standardized non-localized programming," nor is KTSA the eighth in the group of so-called "NOEMAC" stations owned and/or operated by the McLendon Investment Corporation; that neither B. R. or Gordon McLendon has any proprietary interest of any kind, nature, or description in any of Mr. Noe's stations; that none of such stations is directly or indirectly operated in any manner whatsoever by McLendon; that "there are no contracts, agreements, or understandings of any kind, nature or description" between the transferee (or the two McLendons) and the licensee of the Noe stations, "whereby the former receive or pay any consideration;" that Gordon McLendon, in response to his father-in-law's request (about 15 months ago), has discussed with Mr. Noe his operating problems but did not exercise any control over Mr. Noe's operations nor did he receive reimbursement for the expenses incurred; that the only "format which is common to the seven radio stations is that they emphasize music, news, and the respective indigenous and respective local events and community interests;" that all of the McLendon stations "have the same general type of format but each emphasizes the coverage of the particular local needs;" that there are no combination or discount rates of any kind, nature or description as between the McLendon and the Noe stations; that there is no joint buying or selling between these two groups of stations; and, finally, that as to joint magazine advertising, "the eight stations together cannot buy full-page ads for a lesser sum than can the protestant, if it desired to do so."

12. In regard to the request for postponement of the effective date of Commission action, McLendon asserts that the transferor has completely divorced itself from the operations of KTSA; that "it would, as a practical matter, be impossible for the transferor and transferees to now cancel the consummation of the transaction;" that stock has been transferred, money exchanged, taxes paid, new officers and directors of licensee elected, payroll increased, contracts cancelled pursuant to program representations in the application, cash expenditures made and/or contracted for in the amount of more than $100,000 toward the acquisition and operation, unrecoupable payments made which are directly related to construction work in the O. R. Mitchell Motor Company building and to studio installations, etc., and that several new employees have been hired away from other broadcast positions who would be out of work if the station operation had to revert to the transferor. McLendon then contends that the Congressional intent in amending section 309 (c) so as to give the Commission discretion not to stay the effectiveness of protested grants "clearly indicates that Congress had in mind the very type of situation involved in the instant proceeding." McLendon further contends that the protestant offers no reason how or why a stay would be in the public interest; that "the only interest which would be served would be a private one: the temporary elimination of McLendon as a competitor;" and that a stay would defeat the fundamental purpose behind the recent revision of section 309 (c)—"to deprive those who have economic standing from using that position to harass licensees and permittees;" and that protestant's statement that the consummation prior to 30 days involved the peril of a protest with the resultant indefinite postponement of the effective date of the Commission's action when read in the light of protestant's complaints that it had been unable to improve its competitive position and that McLendon's acquisition would increase the competition could only mean that the very purpose of the protest was to cause an "indefinite postponement" of competition which has arisen by McLendon's acquisition. Finally, McLendon contends that if the Commission concludes that facts have been set forth with the required "particularity" then this is exactly the kind of a case that Congress had in mind where the only relief that protestant should be granted is the right of oral argument.

13. An affidavit was filed by Mr. O. R. Mitchell two days after the timely filing of the Opposition ("due to the fact that Mr. Mitchell was on the West Coast and unavailable from May 28 to June 11, 1956") which states, in the event a stay is granted, Mr. Mitchell "would have grave doubts" as to whether he would want to continue to operate the station during the interim period; that a stay would create serious economic and programming confusion; and that operation by the transferee "would insure to the public that the station would be operating continuously and there could be no possibility of a temporary suspension."

14. In its Reply to the Opposition, protestant reiterates and reemphasizes certain of its allegations, such as the fact that the transferor and transferee should have known that all consummation action and change of position effectuated by them prior to the expiration of the 30-day protest period was done at their own risk and could not justify denial of a stay in spite of the resultant private economic loss or confusion which would be caused by such a stay; that Mitchell does not contend that he "cannot or would not resume the operation of KTSA" but only that he would have doubts as to whether he wanted to continue operation. The following statements were also made in the Reply:

> The only question is whether, as alleged in the Protest (Pars. 8–13), McLendon unlawfully manifested control prior to Commission consent by causing cancellation of network agreement and of local programs, and then proceeded to operate KTSA contrary to the public interest;
> The question is not whether specific cancellations violated the program representations but whether they or any of them were due to improper McLendon influence manifested prior to the giving of consent by the Commission, and also whether the resulting operation is in the public interest;
> • • • the public interest is paramount to McLendon's interest and may only be served through the medium of a hearing for the introduction of evidence relating to the allegations of improper manifestations of control by McLendon and of operation contrary to the public interest.

The Reply also contains other and new matter which is apparently designed to expand or supplement the allegations set forth in the protest in light of arguments contained in the Opposition. Such new matter has not been considered herein since it was not submitted within the 30-day period provided for in the Communications Act.

15. In view of the fact that the protestant is the licensee of standard broadcast Station KITE, San Antonio, Texas, where Station KTSA (and KTSA-FM, now KOKE-FM) will operate and that it has alleged facts showing that it will suffer economic injury as a result of the grant complained of, we find the protestant to be a "party in interest" within the meaning of section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. FCC v. Sanders Brothers Radio Station, 309 U. S. 470 (1940); Camden Radio, Inc. v. FCC, 220 F. 2d 191, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 312; In re Application of General-Times Television Corporation, 13 Pike & Fischer RR 1049. We find further that protestant has specified with particularity the facts relied upon so as to warrant designating the application for hearing on Issues (a), (c) and (d) as specified by protestant. See Federal Broadcasting System v. Federal Communications Commission, — U. S. App. D. C., —, 231 F. 2d 246 (1956). However, we are not adopting these issues and the burden of proof thereon, both in proving the facts alleged and in demonstrating their materiality and relevancy, will be on protestant. As to protestant's Issue (b), we find that no facts have been specified in the Protest with any degree of particularity to support such an issue.

16. The protestant has requested that the effective date of the grant be postponed until a decision is handed down after a hearing on the matter. Section 309 (c) presents two tests controlling the question of when the Commission may authorize the applicant to utilize the facilities or authorization in question pending decision after hearing. The first is when the Commission can find that the "authorization involved is necessary to the maintenance or conduct of an existing service." No facts have been presented which would dictate such a finding. The inability of the transferor to resume control of the station has not been established. Therefore, cessation of the broadcast service of KTSA has not been shown to be inevitable under the circumstances. The second is when the Commission can affirmatively find "for reasons set forth in the decision that the public interest requires that the grant remain in effect." The Commission does not believe that the facts before it permit such a finding. The change in the position of the parties was a voluntary one, effectuated with full knowledge that the grant remained subject to protest by any party in interest for a period of 30 days. They were on notice that a change in the status quo might result in financial loss, confusion, inconvenience, personnel displacement or other problems. While we appreciate the extent to which private interests will be affected by a stay of our grant, we are of the view that such circumstance was not within the contemplation of Congress when it provided for a "public interest" finding by the Commission to support an avoidance of a stay.

17. In light of the above: It is ordered, That the subject protest is granted to the extent provided for below and is denied in all other respects; that, pursuant to section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the effective date of the grant of the above-entitled application is postponed pending a final determination by the Commission in the hearing described below; and that the above-entitled application is designated for hearing at the offices of the Commission in Washington, D. C., on the following issues:

(1) To determine whether or not the transferee improperly manifested control over the operation of Station KTSA pending the granting of the Commission's consent to the transfer of control.

(2) To determine whether or not the transferee's method of operating the station is and will be in the San Antonio public interest.

(3) To determine whether or not the granting of the application would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity as required by section 310 (b) of the Communications Act.

The burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence and the burden of proof as to each of the above issues shall be on the protestant;

It is further ordered, That the protestant and the Chief of the Broadcast Bureau are hereby made parties to the proceedings herein, and that:

1. The hearing on the above issues shall commence at 10:00 a. m. on September 10, 1956, before an Examiner to be designated by subsequent order;

2. The parties to the proceedings herein shall have fifteen (15) days after the issuance of the Examiner's decision to file exception thereto and seven (7) days thereafter to file replies to any such exceptions; and

3. The appearances by the parties intending to participate in the above hearing shall be filed not later than September 4, 1956.

It is further ordered, That the parties to the above-entitled application shall have until July 16, 1956, to return control of Sunshine Broadcasting Company to O. R. Mitchell Motors.

Adopted: June 27, 1956.

Released: July 3, 1956.

CONSOLIDATED NATURAL GAS CO. ET AL.

ORDER AUTHORIZING BANK BORROWINGS AND ISSUANCE BY SUBSIDIARIES OF SHORT-TERM AND LONG-TERM NOTES AND ACQUISITION THEREOF BY PARENT

JULY 2, 1956.

In the matter of Consolidated Natural Gas Company, The East Ohio Gas Company, Hope Natural Gas Company, The Peoples Natural Gas Company, New York State Natural Gas Corporation,

The River Gas Company, File No. 70–3473.

Consolidated Natural Gas Company ("Consolidated"), a registered holding company, and its wholly owned subsidiaries, The East Ohio Gas Company ("East Ohio"), Hope Natural Gas Company ("Hope"), The Peoples Natural Gas Company ("Peoples"), New York State Natural Gas Corporation ("New York State") and The River Gas Company ("River"), have filed a joint application-declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to sections 6 (b), 7, 10, 12 (b) and 12 (f) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rules U-43, U-45 and U-50 thereunder as applicable to various proposed transactions including those summarized as follows:

Consolidated proposes to provide funds to meet the construction requirements of its subsidiaries for 1956 through the sale of debentures at competitive bidding and by loans from banks and has requested that an order be issued forthwith granting and permitting to become effective the joint application-declaration as amended, in so far as it relates to the proposed borrowings from banks and intercompany transactions with its subsidiaries as indicated below:

As a standby arrangement and pending completion of the debenture financing Consolidated proposes to borrow, as required, up to $30,000,000 from banks before the debenture financing takes place. This borrowing would be made on a promissory note or notes having a maturity of one year or less from July 5, 1956, without collateral at the prime interest rate and with a repayment privilege upon five days' notice. Consolidated presently plans to make an initial borrowing of $10,000,000 on July 5, 1956, under this arrangement.

If Consolidated should postpone the issue and sale of the debentures beyond August 1, 1956, Consolidated would obtain additional amounts from the banks as required on various dates to September 30, 1956, up to the total of $30,000,000. The total amount borrowed on such bank loans would be repaid from the proceeds of the debenture issue when sold.

Consolidated proposes to use the funds obtained from these bank loans to make short-term standby loans to its subsidiaries up to the same amounts as is indicated above on notes of one year maturity or less from the date the first note is issued by each company, with interest at the prime interest rate obtained by Consolidated on its related bank loan, said notes to be issued from time to time as funds are needed, up to December 31, 1956. The amounts borrowed by the subsidiaries on the short-term standby loans will be repaid through the issuance of their long-term notes upon completion of Consolidated's proposed sale of debentures.

Consolidated also proposes to provide funds to finance seasonal storage gas purchases by its subsidiaries through borrowing $25,000,000 from banks on various dates between the period September 15, 1956, and December 31, 1956. These funds will be obtained through the issuance of an unsecured promissory note or notes, at the prime interest rate, maturing one year from the date of the first borrowing with a repayment privilege upon five days' notice.

The funds thus obtained together with treasury funds will be loaned to Consolidated's subsidiaries on notes of one year or less from the date of the first note issued by each subsidiary with interest at the prime rate obtained by Consolidated and in the following amounts:

East Ohio	$6,000,000

NOTICE OF PROPOSED INCREASE IN AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK, AND ISSUANCE AND SALE OF 7,500 SHARES THEREOF BY SUBSIDIARY, AND ACQUISITION AND PLEDGE OF SUCH SHARES BY PARENT COMPANY

JULY 2, 1956.

Notice is hereby given that Monongahela Power Company ("Monongahela"), a public-utility company and an exempt holding company which is a subsidiary of The West Penn Electric Company, a registered holding company, and Monongahela's wholly owned public utility subsidiary, The Marietta Electric Company ("Marietta"), have filed an application-declaration and an amendment thereto pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), designating sections 6, 7, 9, 10 and 12 of the act and Rules U-43 and U-44 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions, which are summarized as follows:

Pursuant to an amendment of its Articles of Incorporation effective April 18, 1956, Marietta proposes to increase its authorized capital stock from 12,500 to 32,500 shares of $100 par value each, and to issue and sell 7,500 of such additional shares, and Monongahela proposes to acquire same for a cash consideration of $750,000, the aggregate par value thereof.

Marietta will apply the proceeds of sale (1) to repay open account advances in the amount of $100,000 made to it by Monongahela for temporarily financing the construction of facilities during the period December 1955 through March 1956, and (2) to provide funds for further property additions and improvements. Marietta's construction budget for the last nine months of 1956 is stated at $688,800 and for 1957 at $348,200.

Monongahela will purchase the additional shares from available treasury funds, and will forthwith pledge such shares with City Bank Farmers Trust Company as Trustee (along with the presently outstanding 12,500 shares of Marietta's capital stock, heretofore pledged) pursuant to the terms of the Indenture dated August 1, 1945, as supplemented, securing Monongahela's First Mortgage Bonds.

The fees and expenses in connection herewith are estimated at $1,250, including Federal stamp taxes $825, and miscellaneous expenses $425—of which $1,200 will be allocated to Marietta and $50 to Monongahela.

Monongahela renders electric utility service in West Virginia, and Marietta serves a contiguous area in Ohio. The issuance and sale of the additional shares by Marietta have been appoved by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio; and the acquisition of said shares by Monongahela has been approved by the Public Service Commission of West Virginia.

The applicants request that the order of the Commission herein be made effective upon issuance.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than July 16, 1956, at 5:30 p. m., e. d. s. t., request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said application-declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. DULUTH, WINNEPEG AND PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.

DIVERSION OR REROUTING OF TRAFFIC

In the opinion of Charles W. Taylor, Agent, the Duluth, Winnepeg and Pacific Railway Company, because of work stoppage, is unable to transport traffic routed over and to points on its lines: It is ordered, That:

(a) Rerouting traffic: The Duluth, Winnepeg and Pacific Railway Company, and its connections, is hereby authorized to divert or reroute such traffic over any available route to expedite the movement, regardless of routing shown on the waybill. The billing covering all such cars rerouted shall carry a reference to this order as authority for the rerouting.

(b) Concurrence of receiving roads to be obtained: The railroads desiring to divert or reroute traffic under this order shall confer with the proper transportation officer of the railroad or railroads to which such traffic is to be diverted or rerouted, and shall receive the concurrence of such other railroads before the rerouting or diversion is ordered.

(c) Notification to shippers: The carriers rerouting cars in accordance with this order shall notify each shipper at the time each car is rerouted or diverted and shall furnish to such shipper the new routing provided under this order.

(d) Inasmuch as the diversion or rerouting of traffic by said Agent is deemed to be due to carrier's disability, the rates applicable to traffic diverted or rerouted by said Agent shall be the rates which were applicable at the time of shipments on the shipments as originally routed.

(e) In executing the directions of the Commission and of such Agent provided for in this order, the common carriers involved shall proceed even though no contracts, agreements, or arrangements now exist between them with reference to the divisions of the rates of transportation applicable to said traffic; divisions shall be, during the time this order remains in force, those voluntarily agreed upon by and between said carriers; or upon failure of the carriers to so agree, said divisions shall be those hereafter fixed by the Commission in accordance with pertinent authority conferred upon it by the Interstate Commerce Act.

(f) Effective date: This order shall become effective at 10:00 a. m., June 30, 1956.

(g) Expiration date: This order shall expire at 12:01 a. m., July 1, 1956, unless otherwise modified, changed, suspended or annulled.

It is further ordered, That this order shall be served upon the Association of American Railroads, Car Service Division, as agent of all railroads subscribing to the car service and per diem agreement under the terms of that agreement and by filing it with the Director, Division of the Federal Register.

partment of Agriculture through the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Commodity Stabilization Service (hereinafter called CCC and CSS, respectively) and is a part of the 1956 Emergency Feed Program formulated by the Department of Agriculture. The eligibility of applicants for assistance under the 1956 Emergency Feed Program will be determined by the Farmers Home Administration pursuant to the regulations contained in §§ 388.1 to 388.6 of this title (19 F. R. 5199). The regulations contained in this part state the terms and conditions (a) under which approved applicants in designated areas will be issued Farmer's Purchase Orders which may be tendered to dealers as part payment for designated surplus feed grains for use as livestock feed, (b) under which dealers who accept Farmer's Purchase Orders will be issued Dealer's Certificates, and (c) under which Dealer's Certificates may be presented to CCC for the purchase of available designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains.

§ 475.26 Administration. The program provided for in this part will be administered by CSS, under the general direction and supervision of the Executive Vice President, CCC, and in the field will be carried out by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committees and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committees (hereinafter called State and county ASC Committees) and CSS commodity offices. Each county ASC committee will authorize in writing one or more representatives to approve and issue documents on behalf of the county ASC committee. State and county ASC committees and CSS commodity offices and representatives and employees of any of the above, do not have authority to modify or waive any of the provisions of this part or any amendments or supplements hereto.

§ 475.27 Definitions. Unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires, as used in all forms and documents in connection herewith, except as otherwise specifically defined in the "Feed Dealer's Agreement—1956 Emergency Feed Program," and as used in this part the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(a) "Designated surplus feed grains" means barley, corn, grain sorghums and oats as such terms are defined in the Official Grain Standards of the United States. The term "corn" includes ear corn. At the time of issuance of a Farmer's Purchase Order, the county ASC committee will enter on such Purchase Order the conversion factor to be used to convert the quantity of ear corn, which may be delivered, to shelled corn. Such conversion factor shall be the one used in the locality as determined by the county ASC committee, except that if the county ASC committee determines that no recognized conversion factor is used in the locality or that the conversion factor used is out of line with prevailing conditions, the conversion factor entered on the Purchase Order shall be that established by the State ASC Committee.

(b) "Approved mixed feed" means Mixed Feed A which must contain at least 75 percent by weight of designated surplus feed grain(s) or Mixed Feed B which must contain at least 60 percent by weight of designated surplus feed grain(s), or both. Prior to delivery to farmers, bags containing approved mixed feeds must be appropriately labeled to show substantially as follows, depending on the type of approved mixed feed involved.

(1) "Mixed Feed A—containing at least 75 percent by weight of designated surplus feed grain(s)," or

(2) "Mixed Feed B—containing at least 60 percent by weight of designated surplus feed grain(s)."

(c) "Designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains" means barley, corn, grain sorghums and oats.

(d) "Farmer" means a farmer, rancher or stockman whose application (Form FHA 937) for assistance under the 1956 Emergency Feed Program has been approved by a Farmers Home Administration county committee.

(e) "Dealer" means any person (including but not limited to an individual, partnership, corporation, cooperative, or other business entity) engaged in selling designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feeds.

(f) "Eligible Dealer" means a dealer who has entered into a Feed Dealer's Agreement with CCC and is entitled to present Purchase Orders to county ASC committees in exchange for Dealer Certificates.

(g) "CCC storage sites" means CCC-owned structures, CCC-leased facilities, and those facilities operated by CCC under right of entry. (Such structures and facilities are commonly called CCC Binsites.)

§ 475.28 Farmer's Purchase Order—(a) Area. Farmer's Purchase Orders (hereinafter referred to as "Purchase Orders") will be issued only in areas which have been designated by the President under Public Law 875, 81st Congress, as areas of major disaster, and also by the Secretary of Agriculture under Public Law 38, 81st Congress, as amended by Public Law 115, 83d Congress, and section 301 of Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as areas in which assistance of the nature provided for herein is needed.

(b) Issuance. (1) The original of an application (Form FHA 937) approved by a Farmers Home Administration county committee pursuant to the regulations contained in 19 F. R. 5199 (§§ 388.1 to 388.6 of this title) shall be presented within fifteen calendar days after the date of approval shown on such application to the office of the county ASC committee of the county in which such application was filed.

(2) Upon receipt of such an approved application within the time specified in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the county ASC committee will issue a Purchase Order to the farmer named in the application. At the farmer's request, the county ASC committee may issue two or more Purchase Orders based on one application. If only one Purchase Order is issued with respect to an application, the Purchase Order will show the number of hundredweight of designated surplus feed grains for which the application was approved. If more than one Purchase Order is issued with respect to an application, the total number of hundredweight of designated surplus feed grains shown on such Purchase Orders shall not exceed the number of hundredweight for which the application was approved. If a Purchase Order has been issued and the farmer requests two or more Purchase Orders in lieu thereof, the first Purchase Order must be returned to the county ASC committee for voiding prior to the issuance of the new Purchase Order. In the event that more than one Purchase Order is issued with respect to one application, all such Purchase Orders shall show the same date of issuance as the first Purchase Order, and, as required by paragraph (c) (2) of this section, all such Purchase Orders will be invalid unless transferred by the farmer to the dealer within 60 calendar days after the date of issuance shown thereon. It shall be solely the responsibility of the farmer to request the issuance of additional Purchase Orders with respect to an application in sufficient time to permit transfer by him of such Purchase Orders within the required period of time.

(c) Transfer by farmer. (1) A Purchase Order may be used by the farmer to whom issued only for purchases made on or after the date of approval of the application (Form FHA 937), of designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed by his transfer of such Purchase Order to a dealer as part payment on the purchase price of such grains and feed. A dealer to whom a Purchase Order is transferred is required, in order to obtain a Dealer's Certificate based thereon, to accept such Purchase Order as part payment to the full extent of the value thereof, as specified in paragraph (d) of this section, for each hundredweight of designated surplus feed grains and approved mixed feed shown thereon, up to the maximum value of the Purchase Order.

(2) The date of transfer of a Purchase Order by a farmer to a dealer shall not be later than 60 calendar days after the date of issuance shown on the Purchase Order. The date of transfer shall be that date on which the farmer signed Section IV of the Purchase Order, which must be on or after the actual sale by the dealer and purchase by the farmer, and delivery, either physical or constructive, to the farmer of all of the designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feeds specified in Section III of the Purchase Order.

(i) An actual sale shall be deemed to have been made when the dealer and farmer have agreed on the kinds, quantities and prices of designated surplus feed grains and approved mixed feed, the proper value of the purchase order has been credited on the purchase price for each hundredweight of such feed grains and feed, and the balance of the total price has been paid in cash by the farmer to the dealer or charged by the dealer against the farmer.

(ii) Physical delivery shall be deemed to have been completed when the farmer has permanently removed from the dealer's premises the total quantity of designated surplus feed grains and approved mixed feed included in an actual sale.

(iii) Constructive delivery shall be deemed to have been made when an actual sale has been made and some indicia of ownership of the designated surplus feed grains and approved mixed feed has been given to the farmer by the dealer. Such indicia of ownership shall be in the form of a non-negotiable warehouse receipt, a dealer's due bill or other comparable document, evidencing transfer of ownership from the dealer to the farmer.

(d) Value. The maximum total value of any purchase order shall be an amount equal to the number of hundredweight shown in Section I of the purchase order multiplied by $1.00. Subject to such maximum, the actual total value of a purchase order shall be determined by the number of hundredweight of designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed listed in the table set forth in Section III of the purchase order. Each such hundredweight of designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed shown therein shall be evaluated as follows:

(1) Designated surplus feed grains (excluding ear corn and approved mixed feed): $1.00.

(2) Ear corn: the conversion factor (e. g., if the conversion factor is 70 percent, the value shall be $0.70).

(3) Mixed Feed A: $0.75.

(4) Mixed Feed B: $0.60.

Mixed feeds containing less than sixty percent of designated surplus feed grain(s) shall have no value whatsoever. Eligible dealers shall not be entitled to a Dealer's Certificate based in whole or part on any such mix. In the event that a Dealer's Certificate is issued based on any such mix the dealer shall not be entitled to any credit or allowance whatsoever for the quantity of designated surplus feed grain(s) contained in any such mix, and if credit or allowance has been made, the dealer will be obligated to reimburse CCC for the amount of such credit. Approved mixed feed may contain more than the minimum percentage of designated surplus feed grains, but approved mixed feed will in no event be valued at other than the amounts stated in subparagraphs (3) and (4) of this paragraph.

§ 475.29 Dealer's Certificates—(a) Basis of issuance. An eligible dealer may present a Purchase Order transferred to him by a farmer to the county ASC committee which issued it and obtain a Dealer's Certificate based thereon, provided he has entered into a "Feed Dealer's Agreement—1956 Emergency Feed Program" signed on behalf of CCC by an authorized representative of the county ASC committee which issued the Purchase Order, and is entitled under the terms and conditions of such Agreement to present such Purchase Order. A dealer must enter into a separate "Feed Dealer's Agreement—1956 Emergency Feed Program" for each county in which he presents Purchase Orders. A dealer who accepts the transfer of a Purchase Order prior to the time that he enters into an applicable "Feed Dealer's Agreement—1956 Emergency Feed Program" does so at his own risk and CCC shall not be liable to the dealer in any way for refusal to enter into such an Agreement with the dealer. There must be compliance with the following conditions with respect to each Purchase Order presented:

(1) The date of transfer of a Purchase Order from a farmer to the dealer must have been within 60 calendar days after the date of issuance shown on the Purchase Order. The date of transfer shall be determined as specified in § 475.28 (c) (2).

(2) A Purchase Order must be received at the office of the county ASC committee which issued it within 30 calendar days after the date of transfer of the Purchase Order from the farmer to the dealer.

(3) The dealer must have actually sold and the farmer must have actually purchased and received delivery, either physical or constructive, of the quantity of designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed listed in the table set forth in Section III of the Purchase Order. In the event that any designated surplus feed grains were delivered trackside to the farmer named in the Purchase Order, the sales price to the farmer must have been no more than the cost of such feed grains to the dealer plus a handling margin no larger than that which has been determined by the State ASC Committee to be reasonable. (Information as to the handling margin determined by the State ASC Committee to be reasonable will be available at the county ASC committee office and should be obtained from such office).

(4) The dealer must have accepted the transfer of the Purchase Order in part payment for the quantity of designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed listed in the table set forth in Section III of the Purchase Order to the full extent of the value, as specified in § 475.28 (d) for each hundredweight so listed up to the maximum value of the Purchase Order.

(5) The dealer must submit to the county ASC office with each Purchase Order copies of sales tickets, sales slips, invoices, or other appropriate documents, for the designated surplus feed grains or approved mixed feed purchased by the farmer, showing the kinds and quantities of grains or feeds purchased, the date of such purchase, the price per hundredweight charged the farmer, and the credit allowed on the purchase price for the Purchase Order.

(6) Sections III and IV of the Purchase Order must have been duly executed.

(b) Face value. The face value of a Dealer's Certificate shall be an amount equal to the actual total value of the Purchase Order or Purchase Orders which form the basis for issuance of the Dealer's Certificate.

(c) Transfer. Dealer's Certificates may be transferred by the dealer to any supplier, broker, agent or other person, and may subsequently be transferred from person to person. The transfer of Dealer's Certificates shall be made by endorsement on the reverse side thereof, giving the address of the endorser, and the date of the endorsement.

§ 475.30 Presentation of Dealer's Certificates to CCC. Subject to all of the provisions of this part, valid Dealer's Certificates, if presented to CCC by the holder within 120 calendar days after the date of issuance, will be accepted at face value for the purchase of available designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains.

(a) Where to purchase. Holders of Dealer's Certificates (1) may purchase carload lots of designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains from any CSS Commodity Office which has such surplus feed grains available for sale, or (2) may purchase carload lots or less of designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains stored in CCC storage sites from any county ASC committee located in a designated disaster area, as defined in § 475.28 (a), which has such surplus feed grains available for sale. Information as to CSS Commodity Offices having such surplus feed grains available for sale may be obtained from the following CSS Commodity Offices: Chicago CSS Commodity Office, 623 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago 5, Illinois; Dallas CSS Commodity Office, 500 South Ervay Street, Dallas 1, Texas; Kansas City CSS Commodity Office, Federal Office Bldg., 911 Walnut Street, Kansas City 6, Missouri; Minneapolis CSS Commodity Office, 1006 West Lake Street, Minneapolis 8, Minnesota, and Portland CSS Commodity Office, 1218 Southwest Washington Street, Portland 5, Oregon. Information as to the location of CCC storage sites within the State in the designated disaster area may be obtained from the State ASC Committee. Information as to the availability of designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains in CCC storage sites may be obtained from the county ASC committee of the county in which the CCC storage site is located.

(b) Purchase from CSS Commodity Office—(1) Offer to purchase. In making an offer to purchase, the holder of a Dealer's Certificate must specify the class, grade, quality and quantity of the designated CCC-owned surplus feed grain which he desires to purchase, together with the destination and the consignee to whom such feed grain is to be shipped.

(2) Confirmation of sale. The CSS Commodity Office will accept or reject the offer within 72 hours from the time the offer is received (such acceptance or rejection will be by collect wire if requested): Provided, That any acceptance shall be conditioned on the signing and return by the purchaser to the CSS Commodity Office of a confirmation of sale issued by such office containing terms and conditions applicable to the sale. Such confirmation of sale, together with the provisions contained in this Section shall constitute the sales contract.

(3) Price. Sales will be made by the CSS Commodity Office in carload lots at the prevailing market price, as determined by CCC, "in store" or f. o. b. car at point determined by CCC.

(4) Election to cancel. CCC shall have the election to cancel the sales contract if Dealer's Certificates of a value at least equal to the value of the designated CCC owned surplus feed grains contracted for are not received by the CSS Commodity Office within 10 calendar days after the date of its issuance of the confirmation of sale.

(5) Delivery. (i) Delivery of designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains will be made "in store" or f. o. b. cars at point determined by CCC. In advance of delivery of any such feed grains, the purchaser must submit valid Dealer's Certificates of face value sufficient to cover the sales value of the feed grain purchased. CCC does not guarantee delivery within any specified period of time following receipt of the Dealer's Certificate(s) but will utilize all practicable means to secure prompt delivery. The purchaser, if he so requests, will be advised by collect wire of cars being shipped.

(ii) The basis for determination of the quality and quantity of feed grains delivered shall be stated in the confirmation of sale issued by the CSS Commodity Office.

(6) Basis of settlement—(i) At end of each sale. (a) In the event that the Dealer's Certificates submitted to CCC have a total face value which is less than the value of the feed grains delivered, because of over-delivery or other cause, the purchaser shall pay to CCC, in cash, the difference between the total face value of the Certificates submitted and the value of the feed grain delivered, calculated on the basis of the specified sales price.

(b) In the event the purchaser submits Dealer's Certificates having a total face value in excess of the value of the feed grain delivered, the purchaser will be issued a new Dealer's Certificate for the excess value.

(c) To avoid administrative costs of issuing Dealer's Certificates in small denominations, Dealer's Certificates for excess value of $3 or less will be issued only upon request. Deficiencies of $3 or less owed to CCC may be disregarded unless demand for payment is made by CCC.

(ii) At termination of program. Upon termination of the 1956 Emergency Feed Program, any holder of valid Dealer's Certificates having a total face value insufficient to purchase a carload lot of any of the available designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains may (a) purchase from a CSS Commodity Office a carload lot of any such feed grain and submit to the CSS Commodity Office the Dealer's Certificates held by him, plus an amount of cash sufficient to cover the remainder of the price of the carload of feed grain purchased, or (b) purchase from a CSS Commodity Office for delivery "in store" a quantity of available designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains equal in price to the face value of such Dealer's Certificates and submit such Dealer's Certificates to the CSS Commodity Office in payment therefor. The foregoing provisions of this section shall be applicable to such purchases, except to the extent that such provisions are inconsistent with this subdivision.

(c) Purchase from County ASC Committees. Sales of available designated CCC-owned surplus feed grain from CCC storage sites will be made, under the direction of the county ASC committee responsible for the operation of the storage site, only in counties within a designated disaster area.

(1) Price. All sales from CCC storage sites will be made in carload lots or less at the prevailing market price as determined by the county ASC committee on the date of sale.

(2) Time of payment. Payment shall be made by presentation to the county ASC committee, prior to delivery of the feed grain, of valid Dealer's Certificates of an aggregate face value equal to the total price of the feed grain purchased. The provisions of paragraph (b) (6) (i) of this section shall be applicable to sales from CCC storage sites.

§ 475.31 Limitation on rights of transferees. The right of a transferee in due course of a Dealer's Certificate to present the Dealer's Certificate and obtain designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains shall not be limited except as follows:

(a) A Dealer's Certificate will not be accepted if presented later than 120 calendar days after the date of issuance.

(b) In the event that, after issuance of a Dealer's Certificate, there has been any alteration increasing the face value thereof, such Certificate will be accepted only for the face value thereof at the time of issuance.[1]

[1] Any false certification or representation, willful alteration, or other fraudulent act may be subject to prosecution under Federal Criminal statutes and to action under Federal Civil frauds statutes.

(c) Any transferee who acquires the Dealer's Certificate knowing or having good cause to know that the dealer who originally obtained such Certificate from the county ASC committee did so on the basis of false or fraudulent certifications or representations shall not be entitled to present the Dealer's Certificate. A transferee of a Dealer's Certificate who acquires such Certificate without knowing or having good cause to know of any such false or fraudulent certifications or representations shall be entitled to present the Certificate and obtain designated CCC-owned surplus feed grains.

§ 475.32 Suspension of Feed Dealer's Agreements. CCC may suspend the right of an eligible dealer who has entered into Feed Dealer's Agreement or Agreements to participate in the 1956 Emergency Feed Program by notification in writing to the dealer if it has good reason to believe that the dealer has failed to comply with the provisions of such Agreement(s) with respect to any Purchase Order presented by him to the county ASC committee, or if the dealer has failed to comply with the provisions of a previous Emergency Feed Program or Feed Dealer's Agreement which failure was not known to the county ASC committee when the Feed Dealer's Agreement—1956 Emergency Feed Program—was executed. Any such suspension shall be effective as to all Feed Dealer's Agreements entered into by the dealer under the 1956 Emergency Feed Program. In the event of suspension, the dealer shall not be entitled to present any Purchase Order to any county ASC committee unless and until such suspension is removed by CCC. In the event a suspension is removed only in part, the dealer shall be entitled to present only Purchase Orders covered by such removal of suspension.

§ 475.33 Maintenance of books and records. The dealer shall maintain and preserve until July 1, 1960, and for such additional period as CCC may request in writing, complete and accurate books and records which will permit verification of all transactions with regard to Farmer's Purchase Orders and Dealer's Certificates. An examination of such books and records by a duly authorized representative of the United States shall be permitted at any time during business hours.

§ 475.34 Extension of time. The Executive Vice President, CCC, may when he deems it to be in the best interests of the program, extend the time within which a Purchase Order or Dealer's Certificate may be transferred or presented and he may, under such terms and conditions as he determines will serve the best interests of the program, delegate to others the authority to extend the time within which a Purchase Order or Dealer's Certificate may be transferred or presented.

§ 475.35 Termination. The program provided for in this part may be terminated at any time upon issuance of public notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Such termination shall not apply with respect to any Purchase Order or Dealer's Certificate issued prior to the effective date of such termination.

Issued this 3d day of July 1956.

[SEAL] WALTER C. BERGER,
Acting Executive Vice President,
Commodity Credit Corporation.

GRADES

§ 51.300 U. S. Extra Fancy. U. S. Extra Fancy consists of apples of one variety which are mature, but not overripe, carefully hand-picked, clean, well formed; free from decay, internal browning, internal breakdown, scald, scab, bitter pit, Jonathan spot, freezing injury, broken skins and bruises (except those that are slight and incident to proper handling and packing), and visible water core. The apples shall also be free from injury caused by russeting, sunburn or spray burn, limb rubs, hail, drought spots, scars, stem or calyx cracks, other diseases, insects, or mechanical or other means. Each apple of this grade shall have the amount of color specified in § 51.308 for the variety. (See §§ 51.308, 51.310, and 51.313.)

§ 51.301 U. S. Fancy. U. S. Fancy consists of apples of one variety which are mature but not overripe, carefully hand-picked, clean, fairly well formed; free from decay, internal browning, internal breakdown, bitter pit, Jonathan spot, scald, freezing injury, broken skins and bruises (except those incident to proper handling and packing), and visible water core. The apples shall also be free from damage caused by russeting, sunburn or spray burn, limb rubs, hail, drought spots, scars, stem or calyx cracks, other diseases, insects, or mechanical or other means. Each apple of this grade shall have the amount of color specified in § 51.308 for the variety. (See §§ 51.308, 51.310, and 51.313.)

51.302 U. S. No. 1. The requirements for this grade are the same as U. S. Fancy except for color and russeting. In this grade less color is required for all varieties except yellow and green varieties, for which the requirements for both grades are the same. Apples of this grade shall be free from excessive damage caused by russeting which means that they shall meet the russeting requirements for U. S. Fancy as defined under the definitions of "damage by russeting": Provided, That, the aggregate area of an apple which may be covered by smooth net-like russeting shall not exceed 25 percent; And further provided, That, the aggregate area of an apple which may be covered by smooth solid russeting shall not exceed 10 percent. (See §§ 51.308, 51.310, and 51.313.)

§ 51.303 U. S. No. 1 Cookers. U. S. No. 1 Cookers consists of apples of one variety which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except as to color. This grade is provided for apples which are mature but which may not have sufficient color to meet the specifications of U. S. No. 1. (See §§ 51.310 and 51.313.)

§ 51.304 U. S. No. 1 Early. U. S. No. 1 Early consists of apples of one variety which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except as to color, maturity and size. Apples of this grade have no color requirements, need not be mature, and shall be not less than 2 inches in diameter. This grade is provided for varieties such as Duchess, Gravenstein, Red June, Twenty Ounce, Wealthy, Williams, Yellow Transparent, and Lodi, or other varieties which are normally marketed during the summer months. (See §§ 51.310 and 51.313.)

§ 51.305 U. S. Utility. U. S. Utility consists of apples of one variety which are mature but not overripe, carefully hand-picked, not seriously deformed; free from decay, internal browning, internal breakdown, scald and freezing injury. The apples shall also be free from serious damage caused by dirt or other foreign matter, broken skins, bruises, russeting, sunburn, spray burn, limb rubs, hail, drought spots, scars, stem or calyx cracks, visible water core, other diseases, insects, or mechanical or other means. (See §§ 51.310 and 51.313.)

§ 51.306 Combination grades. (a) Combinations of the above grades can be used as follows:

(1) Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy.

(2) Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1.

(3) Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility.

(b) Combinations other than these are not permitted in connection with the United States apple grades. When Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy is packed, at least 25 percent of the apples in any lot shall meet the requirements of the higher grade in the combination. When Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1 or Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility are packed, at least 50 percent of the apples in any lot shall meet the requirements of the higher grade in the combination. (See §§ 51.308, 51.310 and 51.313.)

§ 51.307 U. S. Hail grade. U. S. Hail grade consists of apples which meet the requirements of U. S. No. 1 grade except that hail marks where the skin has not been broken and well healed hail marks where the skin has been broken shall be permitted, provided the apples are fairly well formed. (See §§ 51.308, 51.310, and 51.313.)

COLOR

§ 51.308 Color requirements. In addition to the requirements specified for the grades set forth in §§ 51.300 to 51.307, apples of these grades shall have the percentage of color specified for the variety in Table I appearing in this section. For the solid red varieties the percentage stated refers to the area of the surface which must be covered with a good shade of solid red characteristic of the variety: Provided, That, an apple having color of a lighter shade of solid red or striped red than that considered as a good shade of red characteristic of the variety may be admitted to a grade, provided it has sufficient additional area covered so that the apple has as good an appearance as one with the minimum percentage of good red characteristic of the variety required for the grade. For the striped red varieties the percentage stated refers to the area of the surface in which the stripes of good shade of red characteristic of the variety shall predominate over stripes of lighter red, green, or yellow. However, an apple having color of a lighter shade than that considered as a good shade of red characteristic of the variety may be admitted to a grade: Provided, That, it has sufficient additional area covered so that the apple has as good an appearance as one with the minimum percentage of stripes of a good red characteristic of the variety required for the grade. Faded brown stripes shall not be considered as color except in the case of the Gray Baldwin variety.

UNCLASSIFIED

§ 51.309 Unclassified. Unclassified consists of apples which are not graded in conformity with any of the foregoing grades. The term "unclassified" is not a grade within the meaning of these standards but is provided as a designation to show that no definite grade has been applied to the lot.

TOLERANCES

§ 51.310 Tolerances. (a) In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, not more than a total of 10 percent of the apples in any lot may fail to meet the requirements of the grade: Provided, That, not more than one-half of this amount, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for apples which are seriously damaged by insects and including not more than 1 percent for apples affected by decay or internal breakdown or both.

(b) When applying the foregoing tolerances to Combination U. S. Extra Fancy and U. S. Fancy grade, no part of any tolerance shall be allowed to reduce, for the lot as a whole, the 25 percent of apples of the higher grade required in the combination, but individual containers shall have not less than 15 percent of the higher grade.

(c) When applying the foregoing tolerances to Combination U. S. Fancy and U. S. No. 1 grade and to Combination U. S. No. 1 and U. S. Utility grade, no part of any tolerance shall be allowed to reduce, for the lot as a whole, the 50 percent of apples of the higher grade required in the combination, but individual containers shall have not less than 40 percent of the higher grade.

§ 51.311 Application of tolerances to individual packages. The contents of individual packages in the lot, based on sample inspection, are subject to the following limitations, provided the averages for the entire lot are within the tolerances specified for the grade:

(a) For packages which contain more than 10 pounds, and a tolerance of 10 percent or more is provided (as in the case of size, where a tolerance of 15 percent is provided) individual packages in any lot shall have not more than one and one-half times the tolerance specified. For packages which contain more than 10 pounds and a tolerance of less than 10 percent is provided, individual packages in any lot shall have not more than double the tolerance specified, except that at least one apple which is seriously damaged by insects or affected by decay or internal breakdown may be permitted in any package.

(b) For packages which contain 10 pounds or less, individual packages in any lot are not restricted as to the percentage of defects: Provided, That, not more than one apple which is seriously damaged by insects or affected by decay or internal breakdown may be permitted in any package.

§ 51.312 Basis of calculating percentages. (a) When the numerical count is marked on the container, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of count.

(b) When the minimum diameter or minimum and maximum diameters are marked on the container, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of weight.

(c) When the apples are in bulk, percentages shall be calculated on the basis of weight.

CONDITION

§ 51.313 Condition after storage or transit. Decay, scald, or any other deterioration which may have developed on apples after they have been in storage or transit shall be considered as affecting condition and not the grade.

SIZE

§ 51.314 Size requirements. The numerical count or the minimum diameter of the apples packed in a closed container shall be indicated on the container.

(b) When the numerical count is marked on the container the minimum size of the largest apple shall be not more than one-fourth inch larger than the minimum size of the smallest apple.

(c) When the numerical count is not shown the minimum diameter shall be plainly stamped, stenciled, or otherwise marked on the container in terms of whole inches, whole and half inches, whole and quarter inches, or whole and eighth inches, as 2½ inches minimum, 2¼ inches minimum, or 2⅜ inches minimum, in accordance with the facts. It is suggested that both minimum and maximum diameters be marked on the container, as 2¼ to 2¾ inches, or 2½ to 2¾ inches, as such marking is especially desirable for apples marketed in the export trade.

(d) The measurement for minimum size shall be the largest diameter of the apple taken at right angles to a line from the stem end to the blossom end. The measurement for maximum size shall be the smallest dimension of the apple determined by passing the apple through a round opening.

(e) In order to allow for variations incident to proper sizing, not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot may not meet the size requirements: Provided, That, when the maximum and minimum sizes are both stated, an additional 10 percent tolerance shall be allowed for apples which are larger than the maximum size stated.

PACKING AND MARKING

§ 51.315 Packing requirements.—(a) Representative face packing. Each package shall be packed so that the apples on the shown face shall be reasonably representative in size, color and quality of the contents of the package.

(b) Boxes. (1) Apples packed in the standard northwestern apple boxes shall be arranged in the containers according to the approved and recognized methods with the stems pointing toward the ends of the boxes, except when jumbled. All packages shall be well filled but not to the extent as to cause excessive or unnecessary bruising to the apples because of overfilled packages. Apples packed in the standard northwestern apple boxes shall be tightly packed with sufficient bulge to prevent any appreciable movement of the apples within the containers when lidded. Each wrapped apple shall be completely enclosed by its individual wrapper.

(2) Apples packed in other type boxes, such as nailed wooden boxes, wire-bound boxes, and fibreboard boxes, may be place packed, jumble packed faced, or jumble packed, and all packs shall be well filled.

(3) Apples packed in boxes equipped with cell compartments or molded trays shall be of the proper size for the cells or the molds in which they are packed.

(4) Apples packed in consumer unit cartons and packed into shipping containers shall completely fill the shipping container.

(c) Baskets. Apples packed in U. S. standard bushel baskets, one half bushel baskets and five-eighths bushel baskets may be ring faced and shall be tightly packed with sufficient bulge to prevent any appreciable movement of the apples within the containers when lidded.

(d) Tolerances. In order to allow for variations incident to proper packing, not more than 5 percent of the containers in any lot may not meet these requirements.

§ 51.316 Suggestions for marking containers. (a) In order to conserve space, abbreviations may be used for marking United States grade names on containers. The following abbreviations are suggested where it is not desired to use the full grade name:

(1) U. S. Ex. Fcy. for U. S. Extra Fancy.
(2) U. S. Fcy. for U. S. Fancy.
(3) U. S. No. 1 for U. S. No. 1.
(4) U. S. Util. for U. S. Utility.

(5) Combination grades may be designated by abbreviations of the grades preceded by the abbreviation "Comb.", as "Comb. U. S. Fcy. U. S. No. 1".

STANDARDS FOR EXPORT

§ 51.317 Standards for export, as applied to condition factors. (a) The apples in any lot shall be generally tightly packed when in baskets, and generally fairly tightly or tightly packed when in boxes.

(b) Not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be further advanced in maturity than firm ripe.

(c) Not more than 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be damaged by storage scab.

(d) Not more than a total of 5 percent of the apples in any lot shall be damaged by bitter pit, Jonathan spot, scald, internal breakdown, water core, freezing, decay, or other such condition factors: Provided, That,

(1) Not more than 2 percent shall be allowed for apples affected by decay;

(2) Not more than 2 percent shall be allowed for damage by internal breakdown;

(3) Not more than 2 percent of slight scald shall be permitted for apples properly packed in oiled paper or which have been especially treated with oil to prevent scald; otherwise, the apples must be free from scald.

(e) Any lot of apples shall be considered as meeting the standards for export if the entire lot averages within the requirements specified: Provided, That no sample from the containers in any lot is found to exceed double the percentages specified, except that for packages which contain 10 pounds or less, individual packages in any lot are not restricted as to the percentage of defects if the entire lot averages within the tolerances specified.

DEFINITIONS

§ 51.318 Mature. "Mature" means that the apples have reached the stage of growth which will insure the proper completion of the ripening process. Before a mature apple becomes overripe it will show varying degrees of firmness, depending upon the stage of the ripening process. The following terms are used for describing these different stages of firmness of apples:

(a) "Hard" means apples with a tenacious flesh and starchy flavor.

(b) "Firm" means apples with a tenacious flesh but which are becoming crisp with a slight starchy flavor, except the Delicious variety.

(a) Russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin which cannot be seen when the apple is placed stem end or calyx end down on a flat surface, shall not be considered in determining whether or not an apple is injured by russeting, except that rough or bark-like russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin shall be considered as injury when the appearance of the apple is materially affected. The following types and amounts of russeting outside of the stem cavity or calyx basin, shall be considered as injury:

(1) Smooth net-like russeting, when an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the surface is covered, and the color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicious net-like russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.

(2) Smoth, solid russeting which covers an aggregate area of more than one-half inch in diameter, and the pattern and color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicuous solid russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.[1]

(1) Sunburn or spray burn, when the discolored area does not blend into the normal color of the fruit.

(2) Dark brown or black limb rubs which affect a total area of more than one-eighth inch in diameter, except that light brown limb rubs of a russet character shall be considered under the definition of injury by russeting.[1]

(3) Hail marks, drought spots or other similar depressions or scars where there is appreciable discoloration other than russeting, or when the indentations are not superficial, or when an individual indentation exceeds one-eighth inch in diameter, or the total affected area exceeds one-fourth inch in diameter.[1]

§ 51.325 Damage. "Damage" means any defect which materially affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the apples.

(a) Russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin which cannot be seen when the apple is placed stem end or calyx end down on a flat surface shall not be considered in determining whether or not an apple is damaged by russeting, except that excessively rough or bark-like russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin shall be considered as damage when the appearance of the apple is materially affected. The following types and amounts of russeting outside of the stem cavity or calyx basin, shall be considered as damage:

(1) Russeting which is excessively rough on Roxbury Russet and other similar varieties.

(2) Smooth net-like russeting, when an aggregate area of more than 15 percent of the surface is covered, and the color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicuous net-like russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.

(3) Smooth solid russeting, when an aggregate area of more than 5 percent of the surface is covered, and the pattern and color of the russeting shows no very pronounced contrast with the background color of the apple, or lesser amounts of more conspicuous solid russeting when the appearance is affected to a greater extent than the above amount permitted.

(i) Any healed sting or healed stings which affect a total area of more than three-sixteenths inch in diameter including any encircling discolored rings.[1]

(ii) Worm holes.

§ 51.326 Seriously deformed. "Seriously deformed" means that the apple is so badly misshapen that its appearance is seriously affected.

§ 51.327 Serious damage. "Serious damage" means any defect which seriously affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the apples.

(a) The following types and amounts of russeting shall be considered as serious damage:

(1) Smooth solid russeting, when more than one-half of the surface in the aggregate is covered, including any russeting in the stem cavity or calyx basin or slightly rough, or excessively rough or bark-like russeting which detracts from the appearance of the fruit to a greater extent than the amount of smooth solid russeting permitted: Provided, That, any amount of russeting shall be permitted on Roxbury Russet and other similar varieties.

(b) Any one of the following defects, or any combination thereof, the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as serious damage:

(1) Sunburn or spray burn which seriously detracts from the appearance of the fruit.

(2) Limb rubs which affect more than one-tenth of the surface in the aggregate.

(3) Hail marks, drought spots, or scars, if they materially deform or disfigure the fruit, or if such defects affect more than one-tenth of the surface in the aggregate: Provided, That, no hail marks which are unhealed shall be permitted and not more than an aggregate area of one-half inch shall be allowed for well-healed hail marks where the skin has been broken.[1]

(4) Stem or calyx cracks which are not well healed, or well healed stem or calyx cracks which exceed an aggregate length of one-half inch.

(iv) Red skin spots which affect more than one-third of the surface.

(v) Bitter pit and Jonathan spot which is thinly scattered over more than one-tenth of the surface and does not materially deform or disfigure the fruit.

(7) Insects:

(i) Healed stings which affect a total area of more than one-fourth inch in diameter including any encircling discolored rings.[1]

(ii) Worm holes.

It is hereby found and determined that advance notice and public rule making proceedings with respect to the aforementioned revised standards are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest because: (1) With two exceptions, such changes delete provisions which are explanatory, but which do not actually constitute requirements of the standards; and (2) the two exceptions involve a mitigation of present requirements in regard to containers of 10 pounds, or less (i. e., consumer packages), and remove the application of such standards to barrels of apples and, to these extents, relieve from present requirements.

This amendment shall become effective 30 days after the publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Dated: July 5, 1956.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter II—Civil Aeronautics Administration, Department of Commerce

[Amdt. 25 to Revision of May 10, 1949]

PART 550—FEDERAL AID TO PUBLIC AGENCIES FOR DEVELOPMENT OF PUBLIC AIRPORTS

PROJECT COSTS

This amendment clarifies the provision of Part 550 which makes ineligible as a project cost the cost of resealing bituminous pavements and the cost of replacing joint sealing compounds in rigid pavements. This it does by distinguishing between resealing work that is normal maintenance and therefore ineligible, and resurfacing, surface treatment, or resealing work that amounts to reconstruction, repair or replacement, which is eligible as a project cost.

Acting pursuant to the authority vested in me by the Federal Airport Act, I hereby amend Part 550 of the Regulations of the Civil Aeronautics Administration as follows:

Section 550.4 (a) (9) is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 550.4 Project costs—(a) Eligibility. • • •

(9) The cost of resealing bituminous pavements and joints in rigid pavements when such work is normal maintenance as distinguished from reconstruction, repair or replacement; Provided, That this shall not exclude the cost of (i) bituminous resurfacing of pavements where such resurfacing consists of a minimum of 100 lbs. of plant-mixed material per square yard, (ii) the application of a bituminous surface treatment (application of bituminous material and cover aggregate per CAA Specification P-609) on a pavement, the existing surface of which consists of such a bituminous surface treatment, or (iii) the resealing of a runway that has been substantially extended or partially reconstructed, where such resealing is necessary to achieve uniform color and appearance of the entire runway.

(Secs. 1-15, 60 Stat. 170-178, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 1101-1114)

This amendment shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Administrator of Civil Aeronautics.

TITLE 15—COMMERCE AND FOREIGN TRADE

Chapter I—Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce

PART 50—SPECIAL SERVICES AND STUDIES BY THE BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

FEE STRUCTURE FOR HOUSING DATA FROM 1950 CENSUS OF HOUSING

In accordance with the provisions of section 4 (a) and (c) of the Administrative Procedure Act, it has been found that notice and hearing on this schedule of fees and postponement of the effective date thereof is impracticable and unnecessary for the reason that such procedure, because of the nature of the rules, serves no useful purpose.

In accordance with the provisions of the acts authorizing the Department of Commerce to make special statistical surveys and studies, and to perform other specified services upon the payment of the cost thereof, the following fee structure is hereby established. No transcript of any record will be furnished under authority of these acts which would disclose data on individual dwelling units or violate existing or future acts requiring that information furnished be held confidential.

§ 50.20 Fee structure for housing data from the 1950 Census of Housing. The Bureau of the Census is authorized to provide, for a place or area, counts of all dwelling units and of all dwelling units considered substandard by definition of the Public Housing Administration. (A dwelling unit is considered substandard if it either is dilapidated or does not have the following plumbing facilities: hot and cold running water, flush toilet and bath inside the structure for the unit's exclusive use.) Both counts will be by race, tenure, and occupancy. Figures also are included for units for which the condition and plumbing were not reported. The fee structure is as follows:

Size group (based on 1950 census of population):	Fee
For each urban place (2,500 persons or more).	$10.
For places of less than 2,500 persons and areas, other than urban places, of less than 10,000 persons.	$15 per 1,000 population or fraction thereof.
For areas of less than 10,000 persons with urban places.	$10 for each urban place and $15 per 1,000 population or fraction thereof for the remaining population.
Other	(1).

[1] An individual estimate will be prepared for areas, other than urban places, of 10,000 or more persons and for urban places or other areas which have added territory since 1950 or for which data are needed for contiguous areas outside their 1950 boundaries.

(Sec. 3, 49 Stat. 293, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 192a. Interprets or applies sec. 1, 49 Stat. 292; 15 U. S. C. 189a)

Effective: June 30, 1956.

To obtain tabulations of data, request should be made by letter to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington 25, D. C., stating the place or area for which the data are desired and enclosing a check or money order based on the foregoing table and payable to Census, Department of Commerce, or requesting an estimate when appropriate.

ROBERT W. BURGESS,
Director, Bureau of the Census.

Subchapter C—Drugs

PART 146a—CERTIFICATION OF PENICILLIN AND PENICILLIN-CONTAINING DRUGS

PROCAINE PENICILLIN AND STREPTOMYCIN (OR DIHYDROSTREPTOMYCIN) IN OIL

By virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 507, 59 Stat. 463, 61 Stat. 11; 21 U. S. C. 357) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (20 F. R. 1996), the regulations for the certification of penicillin and penicillin-containing drugs (21 CFR Part 146a) are amended in paragraph (a) (2) of § 146a.57 Procaine penicillin and streptomycin in oil • • •, by inserting after the words "It may contain" the following: "cortisone or a suitable derivative of cortisone,".

Notice and public procedure are not necesary prerequisites to the promulgation of this order, and I so find, since it was drawn in collaboration with interested members of the affected industry and since it would be against public interest to delay providing for the amendment set forth above.

Effective date. This order shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, since both the public and the affected industry will benefit by the earliest effective date, and I so find.

TITLE 33—NAVIGATION AND NAVIGABLE WATERS

Chapter II—Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army

PART 204—DANGER ZONE REGULATIONS

MONA PASSAGE, PUERTO RICO

Pursuant to the provisions of section 7 of the River and Harbor Act of August 8, 1917 (40 Stat. 266; 33 U. S. C. 1), § 204.225 governing the use and navigation of waters of Mona Passage in the vicinity of Monito and Desecheo Islands, Puerto Rico, comprising Air Force bombing and gunnery ranges, is hereby amended to rescind the danger zone in the vicinity of Desecheo Island and to retain the danger zone in the vicinity of Monito Island with necessary changes in the title and regulations, as follows:

§ 204.225 Mona Passage in vicinity of Monito Island, Puerto Rico; aerial bombing range, United States Air Force, Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto Rico—(a) The danger zone. (1) All waters within a circle ten miles in diameter with its center at latitude 18°09'42.5", longitude 67°57'00", the approximate center of Monito Island.

(2) The outer boundary of the danger zone will not be marked, but signs will be posted at conspicuous places on the shore of Monito Island to warn against trespassing on the target area. Aircraft and watercraft will be presumed to know the location of the danger zone by its principal landmarks, Monito Island at the center of the area and Mona Island one-half mile off the southeast edge of the area.

(b) The regulations. (1) The danger zone shall be open to navigation at all times except when bombing practice is being conducted. At such times no vessel or other craft shall enter or remain within the area.

(2) The fact that aerial bombing practice is to take place over the designated area will be advertised to the public through the usual media for the dissemination of such information. Inasmuch as such practice is to be carried on throughout the year, without regard to season, such advertising will be repeated at intervals not exceeding three months, and at more frequent intervals when in the opinion of the Commanding Officer responsible for the use of the area, such frequent repetition is advisable in the interest of public safety.

(3) Prior to conducting each bombing practice the entire danger zone will be patrolled by aircraft to insure that no watercraft are within the danger zone. Any watercraft found in the vicinity will be warned that bombing practice is about to take place. Any such watercraft shall, upon being so warned, leave the danger zone immediately and shall not return until such practice shall have been terminated, and notification to that effect shall have been given by the patrol aircraft.

(4) The regulations in this section shall be enforced by the Commanding Officer, Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto Rico, and such agencies as he may designate.

PART 152—INDEMNITY PAYMENTS

In § 152.1 Registered postal union articles amend paragraph (c) to read as follows:

(c) Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Switzerland. You may be paid any amount claimed not exceeding $3.17 for loss (contents and wrapper), regardless of value, and, on the basis of actual value, irrespective of country or origin or country responsible, for rifling or total damage of an article in a registered packet, but not exceeding $3.17. If United States responsibility, payment may also be made not exceeding $8.17 for partial damage.

(R. S. 161, 396, 398, as amended; 5 U. S. C. 22, 369, 372)

a. In § 161.2 Delivery and collection of duty redesignate paragraphs (b) and (c) and paragraphs (c) and (d), respectively; and insert new paragraph (b), to read as follows:

(b) Receipts for duty paid. You must sign the original customs mail entry form, as well as the required receipt for registered and insured mail where applicable. The delivering postal employee will sign the duplicate mail entry and give it to you as a receipt.

b. In § 161.3 Payment of duty protested amend paragraph (c) to read as follows:

(c) Unaccompanied articles. (1) Returning residents of the United States frequently mail to themselves or arrange for the mailing of personal effects and/or merchandise acquired abroad. These articles are entered on the customs baggage declaration as unaccompanied articles or articles to follow.

(2) The customs officer who processes you at the port of arrival in the United States will furnish you with one copy of Customs Form 6059–C for each shipment to follow, on which will be noted the pertinent information regarding port of arrival, date of arrival, name of vessel and baggage declaration number, and he will advise you how to complete the form and use it in accordance with the printed instructions on the reverse of the form. In other instances you may prepare your baggage declaration in duplicate and the duplicate copy will be certified by the customs officer and returned to you for use in clearing the goods.

(3) If your parcel is offered for delivery assessed with duty or internal revenue tax, the postmaster is authorized to deliver it free of duty or tax under one of the following conditions:

(i) You must submit a completed declaration on Customs Form 6059–C on which the description and value of the articles listed and your name and address agree with the information shown on the customs mail entry form accompanying the parcel. If Form 6059–C is signed by someone other than yourself your name must appear in the body of the form.

(ii) You must submit your duplicate certified baggage declaration which identifies the articles involved with those listed on the customs mail entry accompanying the parcel. Also, you must state in writing that the articles in the parcel are listed on the declaration and are entitled to free entry under your $200 or $300 personal exemption, and that you will pay promptly on demand any duties or taxes which may be found to be due.

(4) Customs Form 6059–C, or the duplicate certified baggage declaration, as the case may be, will be retained by the postmaster and transmitted with the mail entry and the addressee's written statement, if any, to the collector of customs who assessed the duty.

(5) If you are unable to produce Customs Form 6059–C or the duplicate certified baggage declaration, or if there is a discrepancy between the information on those forms and the customs mail entry, the postmaster will not deliver the parcel immediately without collection of duty. The postmaster will refer the matter to the collector of customs who assessed the duty for decision as to whether or not the parcel is entitled to free entry. In the absence of Customs Form 6059–C or the duplicate certified baggage declaration, submit to the postmaster a written statement as to the date and port through which you reentered the country, the name of the ship or the name of the airline and flight number, and the number borne by the baggage declaration filed at the time of your arrival, if possible. The parcel will then be held awaiting the decision of the collector of customs, unless you elect to follow the procedure set forth in paragraph (b) of this section.

PART 172—COMMERCE DEPARTMENT REGULATIONS (COMMODITIES AND TECHNICAL DATA)

a. In § 172.2 General licenses make the following changes:

1. Amend paragraph (b) to read as follows:

(b) Restricted destinations. The Commerce Department imposes particular restrictions on exports to Hong Kong, Macao, and the following Soviet bloc countries: Albania, Bulgaria, China (mainland including Manchuria), Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Germany (Soviet Zone including Soviet sector of Berlin), Hungary, Laos (Communist-controlled areas), Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Rumania, Tibet, U. S. S. R., and Viet-Nam (Communist-controlled areas). Packages for those countries may not bear any general-license symbol other than GIFT (not permitted to mainland China); GUS, G-Pub; GTDP; GHK and GHS (for Hong Kong), or GLSA (for the destinations named in paragraph (g) of this section).

2. Redesignate paragraph (g) as paragraph (h), and insert new paragraph (g), to read as follows:

(g) General license GLSA. You may use this license for mailing commercial shipments of certain commodities to Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Germany (Soviet Zone including Soviet sector of Berlin), Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Rumania, and the U. S. S. R. except the Maritime Province which comprises the Pacific Coastal region of Siberia from the Bering Strait to and including Vladivostok.

b. In § 172.3 Validated licenses amend paragraph (d) to read as follows:

(d) Technical data (TD) licenses. Licenses issued by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for exportations of technical data are similar in form to the usual type of validated license, but are handled somewhat differently. No shipper's export declaration is required, except for partial shipments.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

[26 CFR (1954) Part 1]

INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DEC. 31, 1953

ITEMIZED DEDUCTIONS FOR INDIVIDUALS AND CORPORATIONS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth below in tentative form are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention T: P, Washington 25, D. C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U. S. C. 7805).

[SEAL] RUSSELL C. HARRINGTON, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The following regulations are hereby prescribed under sections 161, 162, 168, and 169 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954:

ITEMIZED DEDUCTIONS FOR INDIVIDUALS AND CORPORATIONS

§ 1.161 Statutory provisions; allowance of deductions.

SEC. 161. Allowance of deductions. In computing taxable income under section 63 (a), there shall be allowed as deductions the items specified in this part, subject to the exceptions provided in part IX (sec. 261 and following, relating to items not deductible).

§ 1.161–1 Allowance of deductions. Section 161 provides for the allowance as deductions, in computing taxable income under section 63 (a) of the items specified in Part VI of subchapter B of chapter 1 (sections 161–175), subject to the exceptions provided in part IX (sections 261–273, relating to items not deductible). Double deductions are not permitted. Amounts deducted under one provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 cannot again be deducted under any other provision thereof. See also section 7852 (c), relating to the taking into account, both in computing a tax under subtitle A and a tax under chapter 1 or 2 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, of the same item of deduction.

§ 1.162 Statutory provisions; trade or business expenses.

SEC. 162. Trade or business expenses—(a) In general. There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including—

(1) A reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

(2) Traveling expenses (including the entire amount expended for meals and lodging) while away from home in the pursuit of a trade or businwess; and

(3) Rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for purposes of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity.

For purposes of the preceding sentence, the place of residence of a Member of Congress (including any Delegate and Resident Commissioner) within the State, congressional district, Territory, or possession which he represents in Congress shall be considered his home, but amounts expended by such Members within each taxable year for living expenses shall not be deductible for income tax purposes in excess of $3,000.

(b) Charitable contributions and gifts excepted. No deduction shall be allowed under subsection (a) for any contribution or gift which would be allowable as a deduction under section 170 were it not for the percentage limitations, or the requirements as to the time of payment, set forth in such section.

(c) Cross reference. For special rule relating to expenses in connection with subdividing real property for sale, see section 1237.

§ 1.162–1 Business expenses. (a) Business expenses deductible from gross income include the ordinary and necessary expenditures directly connected with or pertaining to the taxpayer's trade or business, except items which are used as the basis for a deduction or a credit under provisions of law other than section 162. The cost of goods purchased for resale, with proper adjustment for opening and closing inventories, is deducted from gross sales in computing gross income. See § 1.61 (a)–5. Among the items included in business expenses are management expenses, commissions (but see section 263 and the regulations thereunder), labor, supplies, incidental repairs, operating expenses of automobiles used in the trade or business, traveling expenses while away from home solely in the pursuit of a trade or business (see § 1.162–2), advertising and other selling expenses, together with insurance premiums against fire, storm, theft, accident, or other similar losses in the case of a business, and rental for the use of business property. No such item shall be included in business expenses, however, to the extent that it is used by the taxpayer in computing the cost of property included in its inventory or used in determining the gain or loss basis of its plant, equipment, or other property. Penalty payments with respect to Federal taxes, whether on account of negligence, delinquency, or fraud, are not deductible from gross income. The full amount of the allowable deduction for ordinary and necessary expenses in carrying on a business is nevertheless deductible, even though such expenses exceed the gross income derived during the taxable year from such business. In the case of any sports program to which section 114 (relating to sports programs conducted for the American National Red Cross) applies, expenses described in section 114 (a) (2) shall be allowable as deductions under section 162 (a) only to the extent that such expenses exceed the amount excluded from gross income under section 114 (a).

(b) Cross references. (1) For charitable contributions by individuals and corporations not deductible under section 162, see § 1.162–15.

(2) For items not deductible, see sections 261–273, inclusive, and regulations thereunder.

(3) For research and experimental expenditures, see section 174 and regulations thereunder.

(4) For soil and water conservation expenditures, see section 175 and regulations thereunder.

(5) For expenditures attributable to grant or loan by United States for encouragement of exploration for, or development or mining of, critical and strategic minerals or metals, see section 621 and regulations thereunder.

§ 1.162–2 Traveling expenses. (a) Traveling expenses, as ordinarily understood, include travel fares, meals and lodging, and expenses incident to travel such as expenses for sample rooms, telephone and telegraph, public stenographers, etc. If the trip is undertaken for other than business purposes, the travel fares and expenses incident to travel are personal expenses and the meals and lodging are living expenses. If the trip is solely on business, the reasonable and necessary traveling expenses, including travel fares, meals and lodging, and expenses incident to travel, are business expenses. For the allowance of traveling expenses as deductions in determining adjusted gross income, see section 62 (2) (B) and the regulations thereunder.

(b) If, then, an individual, whose business requires him to travel, receives a salary as full compensation for his services, without reimbursement for traveling expenses, or is employed on a commission basis with no expense allowance, his traveling expenses, including the entire amount expended for meals and lodging, are deductible from gross income.

(c) If an individual receives a salary and is also paid his actual traveling expenses, he shall include in gross income the amount so repaid and may deduct such expenses.

(d) If an individual receives a salary and also an allowance for meals and lodging, as, for example, a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence, the amount of the allowance should be included in gross income and the cost of such meals and lodging may be deducted therefrom.

(e) Only such traveling expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it may be deducted.

(f) (1) Expenses paid or incurred by a taxpayer in attending a convention or other business meeting may constitute an ordinary and necessary business expense under section 162 depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. No distinction will be made between professional, self-employed, persons and employees. The fact that an employee uses vacation or leave time or that his attendance at the convention is voluntary will not necessarily prohibit the allowance of the deduction. The allowance of deductions for such expenses will depend upon whether there is a sufficient relationship between the taxpayer's trade or business and his attendance at the convention or other business meeting that he is benefiting or advancing the interests of his trade or business by such attendance. If the convention is not devoted to matters related to the trade or business of the taxpayer, but is for political, social or other personal purposes, the expenses are not deductible.

(2) Where a taxpayer attends a convention or other business meeting and, as an incident of such trip, engages in some personal activity such as sightseeing, social visiting or entertaining, that part of the total expense of the trip which is directly attributable to the taxpayer's trade or business will be deductible notwithstanding the incidental personal activity. That part of the total expense which is properly allocable to such incidental personal activities will be nondeductible personal or living expenses. Where the purposes of a trip are primarily personal, the entire expense involved will be nondeductible personal or living expenses notwithstanding that the taxpayer engages or participates in some incidental activity related to his trade or business.

(3) Where a taxpayer's wife accompanies him on a business trip, these expenses attributable to her travel are not deductible unless it can be adequately shown that the wife's presence on the trip has a bona fide business purpose. The wife's performance of some incidental service does not cause her expenses to qualify as deductible business expenses. The same rules apply to any other members of the taxpayer's family who accompany him on such a trip.

(g) A taxpayer claiming the deductions for traveling expenses referred to in this section must attach to his income tax return a statement showing (1) the nature of the business in which engaged; (2) the number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business; (3) the total amount of expenses incident to meals and lodging while absent from home on business during the taxable year; and (4) the total amount of other expenses incident to travel and claimed as a deduction.

(h) Claim for the deductions referred to in this section must be substantiated when required by the district director, by evidence showing in detail the amount and nature of the expenses incurred.

(i) Commuters' fares are not considered as business expenses and are not deductible.

§ 1.162–3 Cost of materials. Taxpayers carrying materials and supplies on hand should include in expenses the charges for materials and supplies only in the amount that they are actually consumed and used in operation during the taxable year for which the return is made, provided that the costs of such materials and supplies have not been deducted in determining the net income or loss or taxable income for any previous year. If a taxpayer carries incidental materials or supplies on hand for which no record of consumption is kept or of which physical inventories at the beginning and end of the year are not taken, it will be permissible for the taxpayer to include in his expenses and to deduct from gross income the total cost of such supplies and materials as were purchased during the taxable year for which the return is made, provided the taxable income is clearly reflected by this method.

§ 1.162–4 Repairs. The cost of incidental repairs which neither materially add to the value of the property nor appreciably prolong its life, but keep it in an ordinarily efficient operating condition, may be deducted as an expense, provided the cost of acquisition or production or the gain or loss basis of the taxpayer's plant, equipment, or other property, as the case may be, is not increased by the amount of such expenditures. Repairs in the nature of replacements, to the extent that they arrest deterioration and appreciably prolong the life of the property, should be capitalized and depreciated in accordance with section 167. The assets replaced should be removed from the asset account.

§ 1.162–5 Expenses for education. (a) (1) In general, a taxpayer's expenditures for his education are personal and are not deductible.

(2) Expenditures for education which are made primarily for the purpose of, or which have the result of, obtaining a position for the taxpayer; qualifying him to enter an employment or otherwise become established in a trade or business or a specialty therein; establishing or enhancing substantially his reputation in his trade or business; substantially advancing him in earning capacity, salary, status, or position; or primarily fulfilling the general cultural aspirations or other personal purposes of the taxpayer are personal expenditures and are not deductible.

(b) As an exception to the general rule in paragraph (a) (1), expenditures by a taxpayer for his education are deductible under section 162 if—

(1) The expenditures are ordinary and necessary for the maintenance of the taxpayer's employment or other trade or business or specialty therein and are directly and immediately related thereto; and

(2) The degree of business necessity and relationship of the expenditures clearly outweighs any personal aspects of the expenditures.

In no event, however, are expenditures which fall under paragraph (a) (2) of this section deductible.

(c) Expenditures by a taxpayer for his education may be deductible under the provisions of paragraph (b) if they are for education of a "refresher" or similar type necessary to maintain (but not to advance) the skills directly and immediately required by the taxpayer in his trade or business. Among the factors which will be considered as indicating that education is of a refresher or similar type are that it is especially designed for, and attended primarily by, established practitioners or members of a trade or business for purposes such as keeping abreast of current developments in such trade or business; is of short duration; is not taken on a continuing basis; and does not carry academic credit. Similarly, among factors indicating that the education is not of a refresher or similar type are that it is generally designed for persons preparing to enter an employment or otherwise become established in a trade or business or specialty therein; is of more than short duration; is for the continuing improvement and advancement of the taxpayer's talent or skills; or carries academic credit.

(d) Expenditures made by an employee for his education as a requisite to the continued retention of his salary, status, or employment as a result of an express requirement of his employer may be deductible under the provisions of paragraph (b) whether or not the education is of a refresher or similar type. Thus, expenditures for courses which carry academic credit may be deductible under the provisions of this paragraph. However, expenditures are not deductible under the provisions of this paragraph if, in more than an incidental and relatively minor manner, they have the result of obtaining a different position for the taxpayer; qualifying him to enter an employment or otherwise become established in a trade or business or specialty therein; establishing or enhancing substantially his reputation in his trade or business; or substantially advancing him in earning capacity, salary, status, or position. A taxpayer is considered to have made expenditures as a result of an express requirement by his employer, as a requisite to continued retention of his salary, status, or employment only if the requirement is imposed primarily for a bona fide business purpose of the taxpayer's employer and not primarily for the taxpayer's benefit, and the education has a direct relationship to the duties of the taxpayer's present position.

(e) In general, a taxpayer's expenditures for travel as a form of education shall be considered as primarily personal in nature and therefore not deductible.

(f) Where a taxpayer travels away from home primarily to obtain education the expenses of which are deductible, his expenditures for travel, meals, and lodging while away from home are deductible. However, where as an incident of such trip the taxpayer engages in some personal activity such as sightseeing, social visiting or entertaining, or other recreation, the expenses of such personal activity constitute nondeductible personal or living expenses and will not be allowed as deductions. Where the purposes of a taxpayer's travel away from home are primarily personal, the taxpayer's expenditures for travel, meals, and lodging will be disallowed whether or not the taxpayer participates incidentally in some educational pursuit meeting the requirements of paragraph (c) or (d) of this section. Whether the purposes of a particular trip are primarily personal or primarily to obtain education meeting the requirements of paragraph (c) or (d) of this section will depend upon all the facts and circumstances of each case. An important factor in making the determination will be the relative amount of time devoted to personal activity as compared with the time devoted to educational pursuits. Expenses in the nature of commuters' fares are not business expenses and are not deductible.

(g) The provisions of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A is employed as a bookkeeper by an accounting firm. In order to advance in salary he takes courses in accounting and becomes a certified public accountant. A's expenditures for such courses and for any transportation expenses and living expenses while away from home are not deductible.

Example (2). A, a general practitioner of medicine, takes a course of study to become a pediatrician. B, a general practitioner of medicine, takes a two-week "refresher" type course reviewing developments in several specialized fields, including pediatrics, for the purpose of carrying on his general practice. A's expenses are not deductible. B's expenses (including any transportation expenses and living expenses while away from home) are deductible.

Example (3). A, teacher, is expressly required by the regulations of the State board of education either to read a list of books or to take certain summer school courses to retain his employment. A fulfills this requirement by taking the summer school courses. The courses do not qualify A to advance substantially in earning capacity, salary, status, or position. A's expenses are deductible, including transportation expenses and living expenses while away from home.

Example (4). A, a teacher, takes a summer school course which is required by his employer in order to retain his employment. The course qualifies A to advance substantially in salary. A's expenses are not deductible.

Example (5). A, a self-employed tax consultant, decides to take a one-week "refresher" type course in taxation, which is offered in City X, 500 miles away from his home. His primary purpose in going to X is to take the course, but he also takes a side trip to City Y (50 miles from X) for one day, takes a sightseeing trip while in X, and entertains some personal friends at his hotel. A's transportation and living expenses will be allocated between his educational pursuits and his personal activities. Those expenses which are entirely personal, such as entertaining friends, will not be deductible to any extent.

Example (6). The facts are the same as in example (5), except that A's primary purpose in going to City X is to take a vacation. This purpose is indicated by the fact that he spends only one week attending the "refresher" type course and devotes five weeks entirely to personal activities. A's entire transportation expenses and living expenses while away from home will be disallowed.

§ 1.162–6 Professional expenses. A professional man may claim as deductions the cost of supplies used by him in the practice of his profession, expenses paid or accrued in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to professional societies and subscriptions to professional journals, the rent paid or accrued for office rooms, the cost of the fuel, light, water, telephone, etc., used in such offices, and the hire of office assistance. Amounts currently paid or accrued for books, furniture, and professional instruments and equipment, the useful life of which is short, may be deducted.

§ 1.162–7 Compensation for personal services. (a) There may be included among the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred in carrying on any trade or business a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered. The test of deductibility in the case of compensation payments is whether they are reasonable and are in fact payments purely for services.

(b) The test set forth in paragraph (a) of this section and its practical application may be further stated and illustrated as follows:

(1) Any amount paid in the form of compensation, but not in fact as the purchase price of services, is not deductible. An ostensible salary paid by a corporation may be a distribution of a dividend on stock. This is likely to occur in the case of a corporation having few shareholders, practically all of whom draw salaries. If in such a case the salaries are in excess of those ordinarily paid for similar services, and the excessive payments correspond or bear a close relationship to the stockholdings of the officers or employees, it would seem likely that the salaries are not paid wholly for services rendered, but that the excessive payments are a distribution of earnings upon the stock. An ostensible salary may be in part payment for property. This may occur, for example, where a partnership sells out to a corporation, the former partners agreeing to continue in the service of the corporation. In such a case it may be found that the salaries of the former partners are not merely for services, but in part constitute payment for the transfer of their business.

(2) The form or method of fixing compensation is not decisive as to deductibility. While any form of contingent compensation invites scrutiny as a possible distribution of earnings of the enterprise, it does not follow that payments on a contingent basis are to be treated fundamentally on any basis different from that applying to compensation at a flat rate. Generally speaking, if contingent compensation is paid pursuant to a free bargain between the employer and the individual made before the services are rendered, not influenced by any consideration on the part of the employer other than that of securing on fair and advantageous terms the services of the individual, it should be allowed as a deduction even though in the actual working out of the contract it may prove to be greater than the amount which would ordinarily be paid.

(3) In any event the allowance for the compensation paid may not exceed what is reasonable under all the circumstances. It is in general just to assume that reasonable and true compensation is only such amount as would ordinarily be paid for like services by like enterprises under like circumstances. The circumstances to be taken into consideration are those existing at the date when the contract for services was made, not those existing at the date when the contract is questioned.

(4) For disallowance of deduction in the case of certain transfers of stock pursuant to employees stock options, see section 421 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.162–8 Treatment of excessive compensation. The income tax liability of the recipient in respect of an amount ostensibly paid to him as compensation, but not allowed to be deducted as such by the payor, will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Thus, in the case of excessive payments by corporations, if such payments correspond or bear a close relationship to stockholdings, and are found to be a distribution of earnings or profits, the excessive payments will be treated as a dividend. If such payments constitute payment for property, they should be treated by the payor as a capital expenditure and by the recipient as part of the purchase price. In the absence of evidence to justify other treatment, excessive payments for salaries or other compensation for personal services will be included in gross income of the recipient.

§ 1.162–9 Bonuses to employees. Bonuses to employees will constitute allowable deductions from gross income when such payments are made in good faith and as additional compensation for the services actually rendered by the employees, provided such payments, when added to the stipulated salaries, do not exceed a reasonable compensation for the services rendered. It is immaterial whether such bonuses are paid in cash or in kind or partly in cash and partly in kind. Donations made to employees and others, which do not have in them the element of compensation or which are in excess of reasonable compensation for services, are not deductible from gross income.

§ 1.162–10 Certain employee benefits—(a) In general. Amounts paid or accrued by a taxpayer on account of injuries received by employees, and lump-sum amounts paid or accrued as compensation for injuries, are proper deductions as ordinary and necessary expenses. Such deductions are limited to the amount not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year for dismissal wages, unemployment benefits, guaranteed annual wages, vacations, or a sickness, accident, hospitalization, medical expense, recreational, welfare, or similar benefit plan, are deductible under section 162 (a) if they are ordinary and necessary expenses of the trade or business. However, except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, such amounts shall not be deductible under section 162 (a) if, under any circumstances, they may be used to provide benefits under a stock bonus, pension, annuity, profit-sharing, or other deferred compensation plan of the type referred to in section 404 (a). In such an event, the extent to which these amounts are deductible from gross income shall be governed by the provisions of section 404 and the regulations issued thereunder.

(b) Certain negotiated plans. (1) Subject to the limitations set forth in subparagraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph, contributions paid by an employer under a plan under which such contributions are held in a welfare trust for the purpose of paying (either from principal or income or both) for the benefit of employees, their families, and dependents, at least medical or hospital care, and pensions on retirement or death of employees, are deductible when paid as business expenses under section 162 (a).

(2) For the purpose of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the word "plan" means any plan established prior to January 1, 1954, as a result of an agreement between employee representatives and the Government of the United States, during a period of Government operation, under seizure powers, of a major part of the productive facilities of the industry in which the employer claiming the deduction is engaged. The phrase "plan established prior to January 1, 1954, as a result of an agreement" is intended primarily to cover a trust established under the terms of such an agreement. It also includes a trust established under a plan of an employer, or group of employers, who, by reason of producing the same commodity, are in competition with the employers whose facilities were seized and who would therefore be expected to establish such a trust as a reasonable measure to maintain a sound position in the labor market producing the commodity. For example, if a trust was established under such an agreement in the bituminous coal industry, a similar trust established in the anthracite coal industry within a reasonable time, but before January 1, 1954, would qualify under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph.

(3) If any trust described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph becomes qualified for exemption from tax under the provisions of section 501 (a), the deductibility of contributions by an employer to such trust on or after any date of such qualification shall no longer be governed by the provisions of section 162, even though the trust may later lose its exemption from tax under section 501 (a).

(c) Other plans providing deferred compensation. For rules relating to the deduction of amounts paid to or under a stock bonus, pension, annuity, or profit-sharing plan or amounts paid or accrued under any other plan deferring the receipt of compensation, see section 404 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.162–11 Rentals. (a) If a leasehold is acquired for business purposes for a specified sum, the purchaser may take as a deduction in his return an aliquot part of such sum each year, based on the number of years the lease has to run. Taxes paid by a tenant to or for a landlord for business property are additional rent and constitute a deductible item to the tenant and taxable income to the landlord, the amount of the tax being deductible by the latter. For disallowance of deduction for income taxes paid by a lessee corporation pursuant to a lease arrangement with the lessor corporation, see section 110 and the regulations thereunder.

(b) (1) The cost to a lessee of erecting buildings or making permanent improvements on property of which he is the lessee is a capital investment, and is not deductible as a business expense. If the estimated useful life in the hands of the taxpayer of the building erected or of the improvements made, determined without regard to the terms of the lease, is longer than the remaining period of the lease, an annual deduction may be made from gross income of an amount equal to the total cost of such improvements divided by the number of years remaining in the term of the lease, and such deduction shall be in lieu of a deduction for depreciation. If, on the other hand, the useful life of such buildings or improvements in the hands of the taxpayer is equal to or shorter than the remaining period of the lease, this deduction shall be computed under the provisions of section 167 (relating to depreciation). Where there is a possibility that the lease may be renewed, the matter of spreading such costs over the term of the original lease, together with the renewal period or periods, depends upon the facts in the particular case, including the presence or absence of an option of renewal and the relationship between the parties. As a general rule, unless the lease has been renewed or the facts show with reasonable certainty that the lease will be renewed, the cost or other basis of the lease, or the cost of improvements shall be spread only over the number of years the lease has to run without taking into account any right of renewal.

(2) Subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A subsidiary corporation leases land from its parent at a fair rental for a 25-year period. The subsidiary erects on the land valuable factory buildings having a normal useful life of 50 years. These facts show with reasonable certainty that the lease will be renewed, even though the lease contains no option of renewal. Therefore, the cost of the buildings shall be depreciated over the estimated useful life of the buildings in accordance with section 167 and the regulations thereunder.

Example (2). A retail merchandising corporation leases land at a fair rental from an unrelated lessor for the longest period that the lessor is willing to lease the land (30 years). The lessee erects on the land a department store having a normal useful life of 40 years. These facts do not show with reasonable certainty that the lease will be renewed. Therefore, the cost of the building shall be spread over the remaining term of the lease. An annual deduction may be made of an amount equal to the cost of the building divided by the number of years remaining in the term of the lease, and such deduction shall be in lieu of a deduction for depreciation.

§ 1.162–12 Expenses of farmers. A farmer who operates a farm for profit is entitled to deduct from gross income as necessary expenses all amounts actually expended in the carrying on of the business of farming. The cost of ordinary tools of short life or small cost, such as hand tools, including shovels, rakes, etc., may be deducted. The purchase of feed and other costs connected with raising livestock may be treated as expense deductions insofar as such costs represent actual outlay, but not including the value of farm produce grown upon the farm or the labor of the taxpayer. Where a farmer is engaged in producing crops which take more than a year from the time of planting to the process of gathering and disposal, expenses deducted may, with the consent of the Commissioner (see section 446 and the regulations thereunder), be determined upon the crop basis, and such deductions must be taken in the taxable year in which the gross income from the crop has been realized. The cost of farm machinery, equipment, and farm buildings represents a capital investment and is not an allowable deduction as an item of expense. Amounts expended in the development of farms, orchards, and ranches prior to the time when the productive state is reached may be regarded as investments of capital. For the treatment of soil and water conservation expenditures as expenses which are not chargeable to capital account, see section 175 and the regulations thereunder. Amounts expended in purchasing work, breeding, or dairy animals are regarded as investments of capital, and may be depreciated unless such animals are included in an inventory in accordance with § 1.61 (a)–7. The purchase price of an automobile, even when wholly used in carrying on farming operations, is not deductible, but is regarded as an investment of capital. The cost of gasoline, repairs, and upkeep of an automobile if used wholly in the business of farming is deductible as an expense; if used partly for business purposes and partly for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer or his family, such cost may be apportioned according to the extent of the use for purposes of business and pleasure or convenience, and only the proportion of such cost justly attributable to business purposes is deductible as a necessary expense. If a farm is operated for recreation or pleasure and not on a commercial basis, and if the expenses incurred in connection with the farm are in excess of the receipts therefrom, the entire receipts from the sale of farm products may be ignored in rendering a return of income, and the expenses incurred, being regarded as personal expenses, will not constitute allowable deductions. (See also section 270 and §§ 1.61 (a)–7, 1.165–1 (e), and 1.167 (a)–1 (b) (3).)

§ 1.162–13 Depositors' guaranty fund. Banking corporations which pursuant to the laws of the State in which they are doing business are required to set apart, keep, and maintain in their banks the amount levied and assessed against them by the State authorities as a "Depositors' guaranty fund," may deduct from their gross income the amount so set apart each year to this fund provided that such fund, when set aside and carried to the credit of the State banking board or duly authorized State officer, ceases to be an asset of the bank and may be withdrawn in whole or in part upon demand by such board or State officer to meet the needs of these officers in reimbursing depositors in insolvent banks, and provided further that no portion of the amount thus set aside and credited is returnable under the laws of the State to the assets of the banking corporation. If, however, such amount is simply set up on the books of the bank as a reserve to meet a contingent liability and remains an asset of the bank, it will not be deductible except as it is actually paid out as required by law and upon demand of the proper State officers.

§ 1.162–14 Expenditures for advertising or promotion of good will. A corporation which has, for the purpose of computing its excess profits tax credit under subchapter E of chapter 2, or subchapter D of chapter 1, of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, elected under section 733 or section 451 (applicable to the excess profits tax imposed by subchapter E of chapter 2, and subchapter D of chapter 1, respectively) to charge to capital account for taxable years in its base period expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will which may be regarded as capital investments, may not deduct similar expenditures for the taxable year. See section 263 (b). Such a taxpayer has the burden of proving that expenditures for advertising or the promotion of good will which it seeks to deduct in the taxable year may not be regarded as capital investments under the provisions of the regulations prescribed under section 733 or section 451 of the 1939 Code. See § 35.733–2 of Regulations 112 (26 CFR (1939) Part 35) and § 40.451–2 of Regulations 130 (26 CFR (1939) Part 40).

§ 1.162–15 Excepted contributions. (a) No deduction is allowable under section 162 (a) for a contribution or gift by an individual or a corporation if any part thereof is deductible under section 170. For example, if a taxpayer makes a contribution of $5,000 and only $4,000 of this amount is deductible under section 170 (a) (whether because of the percentage limitation under either section 170 (b) (1) or (2), the requirement as to time of payment, or both), no deduction is allowable under section 162 (a) for the remaining $1,000.

(b) The limitations provided in section 162 (b) and this section apply only to payments which are in fact contributions or gifts to organizations described in section 170. For example, payments by a street railway company to a local hospital (which is a charitable organization within the meaning of section 170) in consideration of a binding obligation on the part of the hospital to provide hospital services and facilities for the company's employees are not contributions or gifts within the meaning of section 170 and may be deductible under section 162 (a) if the requirements of section 162 (a) are otherwise satisfied. Donations to organizations other than those described in section 170 which bear a direct relationship to the taxpayer's business and are made with a reasonable expectation of a financial return commensurate with the amount of the donation may constitute allowable deductions as business expenses. For example, a street railway company may donate a sum of money to an organization (of a class not referred to in section 170) intending to hold a convention in the city in which it operates, with a reasonable expectation that the holding of such convention will augment its income through a greater number of people using its cars.

(c) Expenditures for lobbying purposes, for the promotion or defeat of legislation, for political purposes, or for the development or exploitation of propaganda (including advertising other than trade advertising) relating to any of the foregoing purposes, are not deductible from gross income. No payment made, either directly or through any organization, for the specific purpose of attempting to promote or defeat legislation shall be deductible. Other payments, not so made and otherwise meeting the requirements of the regulations under section 162, when made as dues or contributions to a trade or business organization, may be deductible under some circumstances, even though influencing, or attempting to influence, legislation is incidentally involved in the use by such organization of such payments. Thus, the payment of such amounts made as dues or contributions to—

(1) A labor, agricultural, or horticultural organization, exempt under section 501 (c) (5), or

(2) A business league, chamber of commerce, real-estate board, or board of trade, exempt under section 501 (c) (6), for the furtherance of the general purposes and program of such an organization in promoting the common economic interests represented, shall be deductible in full if the activities of such organization which consist of lawfully attempting to promote or defeat legislation are incidental to the organization's general purposes and program.

§ 1.162–16 Cross reference. For special rules relating to expenses in connection with subdividing real property for sale, see section 1237 and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.168 Statutory provisions; amortization of emergency facilities.

SEC. 168. Amortization of emergency facilities—(a) General rule. Every person, at his election, shall be entitled to a deduction with respect to the amortization of the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of any emergency facility (as defined in subsection (d)), based on a period of 60 months. Such amortization deduction shall be an amount, with respect to each month of such period within the taxable year, equal to the adjusted basis of the facility at the end of such month divided by the number of months (including the month for which the deduction is computed) remaining in the period. Such adjusted basis at the end of the month shall be comuputed without regard to the amortization deduction for such month. The amortization deduction above provided with respect to any month shall, except to the extent provided in subsection (f), be in lieu of the depreciation deduction with respect to such facility for such month provided by section 167. The 60-month period shall begin as to any emergency facility, at the election of the taxpayer, with the month following the month in which the facility was completed or acquired, or with the succeeding taxable year.

(b) Election of amortization. The election of the taxpayer to take the amortization deduction and to begin the 60-month period with the month following the month in which the facility was completed or acquired, or with the taxable year succeeding the taxable year in which such facility was completed or acquired, shall be made by filing with the Secretary or his delegate, in such manner, in such form, and within such time, as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe, a statement of such election.

(c) Termination of amortization deduction. A taxpayer which has elected under subsection (b) to take the amortization deduction provided in subsection (a) may, at any time after making such election, discontinue the amortization deduction with respect to the remainder of the amortization period, such discontinuance to begin as of the beginning of any month specified by the taxpayer in a notice in writing filed with the Secretary or his delegate before the beginning of such month. The depreciation deduction provided under section 167 shall be allowed, beginning with the first month as to which the amortization deduction does not apply, and the taxpayer shall not be entitled to any further amortization deduction with respect to such emergency facility.

(d) Definitions—(1) Emergency facility. For purposes of this section, the term "emergency facility" means any facility, land, building, machinery, or equipment, or any part thereof, the construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition of which was completed after December 31, 1949, and with respect to which a certificate under subsection (e) has been made. In no event shall an amortization deduction be allowed in respect of any emergency facility for any taxable year unless a certificate in respect thereof under this paragraph shall have been made before the filing of the taxpayer's return for such taxable year.

(2) Emergency period. For purposes of this section, the term "emergency period" means the period beginning January 1, 1950, and ending on the date on which the President proclaims that the utilization of a substantial portion of the emergency facilities with respect to which certifications under subsection (e) have been made is no longer required in the interest of national defense.

(e) Determination of adjusted basis of emergency facility. In determining, for purposes of subsection (a) or (g), the adjusted basis of an emergency facility—

(1) There shall be included only so much of the amount of the adjusted basis of such facility (computed without regard to this section) as is properly attributable to such construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition after December 31, 1949, as the certifying authority, designated by the President by Executive Order, has certified as necessary in the interest of national defense during the emergency period and only such portion of such amount as such authority has certified as attributable to defense purposes. Such certification shall be under such regulations as may be prescribed from time to time by such certifying authority with the approval of the President. An application for a certificate must be filed at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by such certifying authority under such regulations, but in no event shall such certificate have any effect unless an application therefor is filed before March 24, 1951, or before the expiration of 6 months after the beginning of such construction, reconstruction, erection, or installation or the date of such acquisition, whichever is later.

(2) After the completion or acquisition of any emergency facility with respect to which a certificate under paragraph (1) has been made, any expenditure (attributable to such facility and to the period after such completion or acquisition) which does not represent construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition included in such certificate, but with respect to which a separate certificate is made under paragraph (1), shall not be applied in adjustment of the basis of such facility, but a separate basis shall be computed therefor pursuant to paragraph (1) as if it were a new and separate emergency facility.

(f) Depreciation deduction. If the adjusted basis of the emergency facility (computed without regard to this section) is in excess of the adjusted basis computed under subsection (e), the depreciation deduction provided by section 167 shall, despite the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, be allowed with respect to such emergency facility as if its adjusted basis for the purpose of such deduction were an amount equal to the amount of such excess.

(g) Payment by United States of unamortized cost of facility. If an amount is properly includible in the gross income of the taxpayer on account of a payment with respect to an emergency facility and such payment is certified as provided in paragraph (1), then, at the election of the taxpayer in its return for the taxable year in which such amount is so includible—

(1) The amortization deduction for the month in which such amount is so includible shall (in lieu of the amount of the deduction for such month computed under subsection (a)) be equal to the amount so includible but not in excess of the adjusted basis of the emergency facility as of the end of such month (computed without regard to any amortization deduction for such month). Payments referred to in this subsection shall be payments the amounts of which are certified, under such regulations as the President may prescribe, by the certifying authority designated by the President as compensation to the taxpayer for the unamortized cost of the emergency facility made because—

(A) A contract with the United States involving the use of the facility has been terminated by its terms or by cancellation, or

(B) The taxpayer had reasonable ground (either from provisions of a contract with the United States involving the use of the facility, or from written or oral representations made under authority of the United States) for anticipating future contracts involving the use of the facility, which future contracts have not been made.

(2) In case the taxpayer is not entitled to any amortization deduction with respect to the emergency facility, the depreciation deduction allowable under section 167 on account of the month in which such amount is so includible shall be increased by such amount, but such deduction on account of such month shall not be in excess of the adjusted basis of the emergency facility as of the end of such month (computed without regard to any amount allowable, on account of such month, under section 167 or this paragraph).

(h) Life tenant and remainderman. In the case of property held by one person for life with remainder to another person, the deduction shall be computed as if the life tenant were the absolute owner of the property and shall be allowable to the life tenant.

(i) Cross reference. For special rule with respect to gain derived from the sale or exchange of property the adjusted basis of which is determined with regard to this section, see section 1238.

§ 1.168–1 Amortization of emergency facilities; general rule. (a) A person (including an estate or trust (see section 642 (f) and § 1.642–1 (b) (5)) and a partnership (see section 703 and § 1.703–1)) is entitled, at his election, to a deduction with respect to the amortization of the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of an emergency facility, such amortization to be based on a period of 60 months. As to the adjusted basis of an emergency facility, see § 1.168–5. The taxpayer may elect to begin the 60-month amortization period with (1) the month following the month in which such facility was completed or acquired, or (2) the taxable year succeeding that in which such facility was completed or acquired (see § 1.168–2). The date on which, or the month within which, an emergency facility is completed or acquired is to be determined upon the facts in the particular case. Ordinarily, the taxpayer is in possession of all the facts and, therefore, in a position to ascertain such date. A statement of the date ascertained by the taxpayer, together with a statement of the pertinent facts relied upon, should be filed with the taxpayer's election to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility.

(b) In no event shall an amortization deduction be allowed with respect to an emergency facility for any taxable year unless such facility has been certified prior to the date of filing of the taxpayer's return for such taxable year.

(c) In general, with respect to each month of the 60-month period which falls within the taxable year, the amortization deduction is an amount equal to the adjusted basis of the facility at the end of each month divided by the number of months (including the particular month for which the deduction is computed) remaining in the 60-month period. The adjusted basis at the end of any month shall be computed without regard to the amortization deduction for such month. The total amortization deduction with respect to an emergency facility for a particular taxable year is the sum of the amortization deductions allowable for each month of the 60-month period which falls within such taxable year. The amortization deduction taken for any month is in lieu of the deduction for depreciation which would otherwise be allowable under section 167. See, however, § 1.168–6, relating to depreciation with respect to any portion of the emergency facility not subject to amortization.

(d) This section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). On July 1, 1954, the X Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, begins the construction of an emergency facility which is completed on September 30, 1954, at a cost of $240,000. The certificate covers the entire construction. The X Corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with October, the month following its completion. The adjusted basis of the facility at the end of October is $240,000. The allowable amortization deduction with respect to such facility for the taxable year 1954 is $12,000, computed as follows:

Monthly amortization deductions:
October: $240,000 divided by 60	$4,000
November: $236,000 ($240,000 minus $4,000) divided by 59	4,000
December: $232,000 ($236,000 minus $4,000) divided by 58	4,000
Total amortization deduction for 1954	12,000

Example (2). The Y Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the basis of a fiscal year ending November 30, purchases an emergency facility (No. 1) on July 29, 1955. On June 15, 1955, it begins the construction of an emergency facility (No. 2) which is completed on August 2, 1955. The entire acquisition and construction of such facilities are covered by the certificate. The Y Corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to both facilities and to begin the 60-month amortization period in each case with the month following the month of acquisition or completion. At the end of the first month of the amortization period the adjusted basis of facility No. 1 is $300,000 and the adjusted basis of facility No. 2 is $54,000. In September 1955, facility No. 1 is damaged by fire, as a result of which its adjusted basis is properly reduced by $25,370. The allowable amortization deduction with respect to such facilities for the taxable year ending November 30, 1955, is $21,410, computed as follows:

Facility No. 1

Monthly amortization deductions:
August: $300,000 divided by 60	$5,000
September: $269,630 ($300,000 minus $5,000 and $25,370) divided by 59	4,570
October: $265,060 ($269,630 minus $4,570) divided by 58	4,570
November: $260,490 ($265,060 minus $4,570) divided by 57	4,570
Amortization deduction for 1955	18,710

Facility No. 2

Monthly amortization deductions:
September: $54,000 divided by 60	$900
October: $53,100 divided by 59	900
November: $52,200 divided by 58	900
Amortization deduction for 1955	2,700
Total amortization deduction for 1955	21,410

Example (3). On June 15, 1954, the Z Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, completes the construction of an emergency facility at a cost of $110,000. In its income tax return for 1954, filed on March 15, 1955, the Z Corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility and to begin the 6-month amortization period with July 1954, the month following its completion. No certificate with respect to such facility is made until April 10, 1955, and therefore no amortization deduction with respect to such facility is allowable for any month in the taxable year 1954. The Z Corporation is entitled, however, to take a deduction for depreciation of such facility for the taxable year 1954, such deduction being assumed, for the purposes of this example, to be $2,000. Accordingly, the adjusted basis of such facility at the end of January 1955 (without regard to the amortization deduction for such month) is $108,000 ($110,000 minus $2,000). For the taxable year 1955, the Z Corporation is, with respect to such facility, entitled to an amortization deduction of $24,000, computed as follows:

Monthly amortization deductions:
January: $108,000 divided by 54	$2,000
February: $106,000 ($108,000 minus $2,000) divided by 53	2,000
March: $104,000 ($106,000 minus $2,000) divided by 52	2,000
For the remaining nine months (similarly computed)	18,000
Total amortization deduction for 1955	24,000

Since the Z Corporation elected in its return for 1954 to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with July 1954, it must compute its amortization deductions for the 12 months in the taxable year 1955 on the basis of the remaining months of the established 60-month amortization period, as indicated in the above computation.

§ 1.168–2 Election of amortization—(a) General rule. An election by the taxpayer to take amortization deductions with respect to an emergency facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period either with the month following the month in which such facility was completed or acquired, or with the taxable year succeeding the taxable year in which such facility was completed or acquired, shall be made by a statement to that effect in its return for the taxable year in which falls the first month of the 60-month amortization period so elected.

(b) Election not made in prescribed manner. If the statement of election is not made by the taxpayer as prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section, it may, in the discretion of the Commissioner and for good cause shown, be made in such manner and form and within such time as may be approved by the Commissioner.

(c) Other requirements and considerations. No method of making such election other than those prescribed in this section and corresponding sections of prior regualtions is permitted. Any statement of election should contain a description clearly identifying each emergency facility for which an amortization deduction is claimed. A taxpayer which does not elect, in the manner prescribed in this section or corresponding sections of prior regulations, to take amortization deductions with respect to an emergency facility shall not be entitled to such deductions.

§ 1.168–3 Election to discontinue amortization. (a) If a taxpayer has elected to take amortization deductions with respect to an emergency facility, it may, after such election and prior to the expiration of the 60-month amortization period, discontinue the amortization deductions for the remainder of the 60-month period. An election to discontinue the amortization deductions shall be made by a notice in writing filed with the district director for the district in which the return of the taxpayer is required to be filed, specifying the month as of the beginning of which the taxpayer elects to discontinue such deductions. Such notice shall be filed before the beginning of the month specified therein, and shall contain a description clearly identifying the emergency facility with respect to which the taxpayer elects to discontinue the amortization deductions. If the taxpayer so elects to discontinue the amortization deductions, it shall not be entitled to any further amortization deductions with respect to such facility.

(b) A taxpayer which thus elects to discontinue amortization deductions with respect to an emergency facility is entitled, if such facility is depreciable property under section 167 and the regulations thereunder, to a deduction for depreciation with respect to such facility. The deduction for depreciation shall begin with the first month as to which the amortization deduction is not applicable, and shall be computed on the adjusted basis of the property as of the beginning of such month (see section 1011 and the regulations thereunder).

(c) This section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. On July 1, 1954, the X Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, purchases an emergency facility, consisting of land with a building thereon, at a cost of $306,000 of which $60,000 is allocable to the land and $246,000 to the building. The certificate covers the entire acquisition. The corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with the taxable year 1955. Depreciation of the building in the amount of $6,000 is deducted and allowed for the taxable year 1954. On March 25, 1956, the corporation files notice with the district director of its election to discontinue the amortization deductions beginning with the month of April 1956. The adjusted basis of the facility on January 31, 1955, is $300,000, or the cost of the facility ($306,000) less the depreciation allowed for 1954 ($6,000). The amortization deductions for the taxable year 1955 and the months of January, February, and March 1956, amount to $75,000, or $5,000 per month for 15 months. Since, at the beginning of the amortization period (January 1, 1955), the adjusted basis of the land ($60,000) is one-fifth of the adjusted basis of the entire facility ($300,000) and since there are no adjustments to basis other than on account of amortization during the period, the adjusted basis of the land should be reduced by $15,000, or one-fifth of the entire amortization deduction, and the adjusted basis of the building should be reduced by $60,000, or four-fifths of the entire amortization deduction. Accordingly, the adjusted basis of the facility as of April 1, 1956, is $225,000, of which $180,000 is allocable to the building for the purpose of depreciation deductions under section 167, and $45,000 is allocable to the land.

§ 1.168–4 Definitions. As used in the regulations under section 168, the term—

(a) "Certifying authority" means the certifying authority designated by the President by Executive order.

(b) "Emergency facility" means any facility, land, building, machinery, or equipment, or any part thereof, the acquisition of which occurred after December 31, 1949, or the construction, reconstruction, erection, or installation of which was completed after such date, and with respect to which a certificate under section 168 (e) has been made. In the case of an application for a certificate under section 168 (e) which is filed after March 23, 1951, only the part of any such facility which is constructed, reconstructed, erected, or installed by any person not earlier than six months prior to the filing of such application, and which is certified in accordance with section 168 (e), shall be deemed to be an emergency facility, notwithstanding that the other part of such facility was constructed, reconstructed, erected, or installed earlier than six months prior to the filing of such application. The term "emergency facility," as so defined, may include, among other things, improvements of land, such as the construction of roads, bridges, and airstrips, and the dredging of channels.

(c) "Emergency period" means the period beginning on January 1, 1950, and ending on the date on which the President proclaims that the utilization of a substantial portion of the certified emergency facilities is no longer required in the interest of national defense.

§ 1.168–5 Adjusted basis of emergency facility—(a) In general. (1) The adjusted basis of an emergency facility for the purpose of computing the amortization deduction may differ from what would otherwise constitute the adjusted basis of such emergency facility, in that it shall be the adjusted basis for determining gain (see sections 1011–1022, inclusive) and in that it may be only a portion of what would otherwise constitute the adjusted basis. It will be only a portion of such other adjusted basis if only a portion of the basis (unadjusted) is attributable to certified construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition taking place after December 31, 1949. Also, it will be only a portion of what would otherwise constitute the adjusted basis of the emergency facility if only a portion of the basis (unadjusted) is certified as attributable to defense purposes. It is therefore necessary first to determine the unadjusted basis of the emergency facility from which the adjusted basis for amortization purposes is derived.

(2) The unadjusted basis for amortization purposes is the same as the unadjusted basis otherwise determined only when the entire construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition takes place after December 31, 1949, and is certified in its entirety by the certifying authority.

(3) In cases in which only a portion of the construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition takes place after December 31, 1949, and that portion is certified in its entirety by the certifying authority, the unadjusted basis for the purpose of amortization is so much of the entire unadjusted basis as is attributable to the certified construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition which takes place after December 31, 1949. For example, the X Corporation begins the construction of a facility on November 15, 1949, and such facility is completed on April 1, 1952, at a cost of $5,000,000, of which $4,600,000 is attributable to construction after December 31, 1949. The entire construction after December 31, 1949, is certified by the certifying authority. The unadjusted basis of the emergency facility for amortization purposes is therefore $4,600,000. For depreciation of the remaining portion ($400,000) of the cost, see § 1.168–6.

(4) If the certifying authority certifies only a portion of the construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition of property which takes place after December 31, 1949, the unadjusted basis for amortization purposes is limited to such portion so certified. Assuming the same facts as in the example in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, except that only 50 percent of the construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition after December 31, 1949, is certified, the unadjusted basis for amortization purposes is 50 percent of $4,600,000, or $2,300,000.

(5) The adjusted basis of an emergency facility for amortization purposes is the unadjusted basis for amortization purposes less the adjustments properly applicable thereto. Such adjustments are those specified in sections 1016 and 1017, except that no adjustments are to be taken into account which increase the adjusted basis. (See paragraph (b) of this section.) If the taxpayer constructs, reconstructs, erects, installs, or acquires an emergency facility pursuant to a cost reimbursement contract with an obligation for reimbursement by the United States of all or a part of the cost of such facility, the unadjusted basis of such facility for amortization purposes shall not include that part of the cost for which the taxpayer is entitled to reimbursement, and the amount received as reimbursement shall be treated as a capital receipt. However, amounts received by a taxpayer which represent in fact compensation by reason of termination of a government contract or payment for articles under such a contract, though denominated reimbursements for all or a part of the cost of an emergency facility, are not to be treated as capital receipts but are to be taken into account in computing income, and are therefore not to be applied in reduction of the basis of such facility.

(6) The following examples will illustrate the computation of the adjusted basis of an emergency facility for amortization purposes:

Example (1). The X Corporation completes an emergency facility on July 1, 1954, the entire unadjusted basis of which is $500,000, and the unadjusted basis of which for the purpose of amortization is $300,000. The X Corporation elects to begin amortization as of January 1, 1955. The only adjustment to basis for the period July 1, 1954, to January 31, 1955, other than depreciation or amortization for January 1955, is $5,000 for depreciation for the last six months of 1954. The adjusted basis for the purpose of amortization is therefore $300,000 less $3,000 (300,000/500,000 × $5,000), or $297,000.

Example (2). On July 31, 1956, the Y Corporation has an emergency facility (a building) which was completed on July 1, 1952, the entire basis of which is $500,000 and the unadjusted basis of which for the purpose of amortization is $300,000. The corporation elected to begin amortization as of January 1, 1953, at which time it was entitled to $5,000 depreciation for the last six months of 1952. On July 1, 1956, the facility was damaged by fire, as the result of which its adjusted basis is properly reduced by $200,000. The adjusted basis of the emergency facility as of July 1956 for the purpose of amortization and depreciation, and the adjusted basis for other purposes, are $23,849.18, $49,250.82, and $73,100.00, respectively, computed as follows:

	For amortization	For depreciation	For other purposes
Unadjusted basis	$300,000.00	$200,000.00	$500,000
Less depreciation to Jan. 1, 1953	3,000.00	2,000.00	5,000
Adjusted basis January 1953	297,000.00	198,000.00	495,000
Less amortization for 42 months	207,900.00		207,900
Less depreciation for 42 months		14,000.00	14,000
Adjusted basis at time of fire	89,100.00	184,000.00	273,100
Less fire loss (apportioned as explained below)	65,250.82	134,749.18	200,000
Adjusted basis after fire loss	23,849.18	49,250.82	73,100

The $200,000 fire loss is applied against the adjusted basis for the purpose of amortization and the adjusted basis for the purpose of depreciation in the proportion that each such adjusted basis at the time of the fire bears to their sum, i. e., 89,100/273,100 × $200,000 or $65,250.82, against the amortization basis, and 184,000/273,100 × $200,000, or $134,749.18 against the depreciation basis.

(b) Capital additions. (1) If, after the completion or acquisition of an emergency facility which has been certified by the certifying authority, further expenditures are made for construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition attributable to such facility but not covered by such certification, such expenditures shall not be added to the adjusted basis of the emergency facility for amortization purposes under such certification. If such further expenditures are separately certified in accordance with the provisions of section 168 (e) (1) and this section, they are treated as certified expenditures in connection with a new and separate emergency facility and, if proper election is made, will be taken into account in computing the adjusted basis of such new and separate emergency facility for the purpose of amortization.

(2) The application of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. On March 1, 1954, the certifying authority certifies as an emergency facility a heating plant proposed to be constructed by the Z Corporation. Such facility is completed on July 1, 1954. The Z Corporation, on August 1, 1954, begins the installation in the plant of an additional boiler, which is not included in the certification for the plant but is certified as a new and separate emergency facility. For amortization purposes, the adjusted basis of the heating plant is determined without including the cost of the additional boiler. Such cost is taken into account in computing the adjusted basis of the new and separate emergency facility (the boiler), as to which the taxpayer has a separate election for amortization purposes and a separate amortization period.

§ 1.168–6 Depreciation of portion of emergency facility not subject to amortization. (a) The rule that an amortization deduction with respect to an emergency facility is in lieu of any deduction for depreciation which would otherwise be allowable under section 167 is subject to the exception provided in section 168 (f). Under this exception, if the property constituting such facility is depreciable property under section 167 and the regulations thereunder and if the adjusted basis of such facility as computed under section 1011 for purposes other than the amortization deductions is in excess of the adjusted basis computed for the purpose of the amortization deductions, then the excess shall be charged off over the useful life of the facility and recovered through depreciation deductions. Thus, if the construction of an emergency facility is begun on or before December 31, 1949, and completed after such date, no amortization deductions are allowable with respect to the amount attributable to such construction on or before such date (see § 1.168–5). However, if the property constituting such facility is depreciable property under section 167 and the regulations thereunder, then the depreciation deduction provided by such section and regulations is allowable with respect to the amount attributable to such construction on or before December 31, 1949.

(b) Similarly, if only a portion of the construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition after December 31, 1949, of an emergency facility has been certified by the certifying authority, and if such facility is depreciable property under section 167 and the regulations thereunder, then the depreciation deduction provided by such section and regulations is allowable with respect to the portion which has not been so certified.

(c) For illustration of the treatment of a depreciable portion of an emergency facility, see example (2) in § 1.168–5 (a) (6).

§ 1.168–7 Payment by United States of unamortized cost of facility. (a) Section 168 (g) contemplates that certain payments may be made by the United States to a taxpayer as compensation for the unamortized cost of an emergency facility. If any such payment is properly includible in gross income and has been certified, as provided in section 168 (g), as having been paid under the circumstances described therein, a taxpayer which is recovering the adjusted basis of an emergency facility through amortization rather than depreciation may elect to take an amount equal to such payment as an amortization deduction with respect to such facility for the month in which such payment is so includible. Such amortization deduction shall be in lieu of the amortization deduction otherwise allowable with respect to such facility for such month, but it shall not in any case exceed the adjusted basis of such facility (see § 1.168–5) as of the end of such month (computed without regard to any amortization deduction for such month). The election referred to in this paragraph shall be made in the return for the taxable year in which the amount of such payment is includible in gross income.

(b) If a taxpayer is recovering the adjusted basis of an emergency facility through depreciation rather than amortization, the depreciation deduction allowable under section 167 for the month in which the amount of any such payment is includible in gross income shall, at the taxpayer's election, be increased by such amount; but the total deduction with respect to the certified portion of such facility shall not in any case exceed the adjusted basis of such facility (computed as provided in section 168 (e) and § 1.168–5 for amortization purposes) as of the end of such month (computed without regard to any amount allowable for such month under section 167 or 168 (g) (2)). The election referred to in this paragraph shall be made in the return for the taxable year in which the amount of such payment is includible in gross income.

(c) This section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). On January 31, 1954, the X Corporation purchases an emergency facility at a cost of $600,000. The certificate covers the entire acquisition. The X Corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with February 1954, the month following the month of acquisition. On July 15, 1955, as a result of the cancellation of certain contracts with the X Corporation, the United States makes a payment of $300,000 to the corporation as compensation for the unamortized cost of such facility. The $300,000 payment is includible in the X Corporation's gross income for July 1955. The adjusted basis of such facility for amortization purposes as of the end of July 1955, computed without regard to any amortization deduction for such month, is $430,000. Accordingly, the corporation is entitled to take an amortization deduction of $300,000 for such month, in lieu of the $10,000 amortization deduction which is otherwise allowable.

Example (2). On November 30, 1954, the Y Corporation purchases an emergency facility, consisting of land with a building thereon, at a cost of $500,000, of which $200,000 is allocable to the land and $300,000 to the building. The certificate covers the entire acquisition. The Y Corporation does not elect to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility, but is entitled to a depreciation deduction with respect to the building at the rate of 3 percent per annum, or $750 per month. On August 12, 1956, as a result of cancellation of certain contracts, the United States makes a payment of $400,000 to the organization as compensation for the unrecovered cost of such facility. The $400,000 is includible in the Y Corporation's gross income for August 1956. The adjusted basis of the facility as of the end of August 1956, computed without regard to depreciation for such month, is $485,000, of which amount $200,000 is allocable to the land and $285,000 to the building. Accordingly, the corporation is enttiled to increase the $750 depreciation deduction for August 1956 by the full amount of the $400,000 payment.

§ 1.169 Statutory provisions; amortization of grain-storage facilities.

SEC. 169. Amortization of grain-storage facilities—(a) Allowance of deduction—(1) Original owner. Any person who constructs, reconstructs, or erects a grain-storage facility (as defined in subsection (d)) shall, at his election, be entitled to a deduction with respect to the amortization of the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of such facility based on a period of 60 months. The 60-month period shall begin as to any such facility, at the election of the taxpayer, with the month following the month in which the facility was completed, or with the succeeding taxable year.

(2) Subsequent owners. Any person who acquires a grain-storage facility from a taxpayer who—

(A) Elected under subsection (b) to take the amortization deduction provided by this subsection with respect to such facility, and

(B) Did not discontinue the amortization deduction pursuant to subsection (c), shall, at his election, be entitled to a deduction with respect to the adjusted basis (determined under subsection (e) (2)) of such facility based on the period, if any, remaining (at the time of acquisition) in the 60-month period elected under subsection (b) by the person who constructed, reconstructed, or erected such facility.

(3) Amount of deduction. The amortization deduction provided in paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be an amount, with respect to each month of the amortization period within the taxable year, equal to the adjusted basis of the facility at the end of such month, divided by the number of months (including the month for which the deduction is computed) remaining in the period. Such adjusted basis at the end of the month shall be computed without regard to the amortization deduction for such month. The amortization deduction above provided with respect to any month shall be in lieu of the depreciation deduction with respect to such facility for such month provided by section 167.

(b) Election of amortization. The election of the taxpayer under subsection (a) (1) to take the amortization deduction and to begin the 60-month period with the month following the month in which the facility was completed shall be made only by a statement to that effect in the return for the taxable year in which the facility was completed. The election of the taxpayer under subsection (a) (1) to take the amortization deduction and to begin such period with the taxable year succeeding such year shall be made only by a statement to that effect in the return for such succeeding taxable year. The election of the taxpayer under subsection (a) (2) to take the amortization deduction shall be made only by a statement to that effect in the return for the taxable year in which the facility was acquired. Notwithstanding the preceding three sentences, the election of the taxpayer under subsection (a) (1) or (2) may be made, under such regulations as the Secretary or his delegate may prescribe, before the time prescribed in the applicable sentence.

(c) Termination of amortization deduction. A taxpayer which has elected under subsection (b) to take the amortization deduction provided in subsection (a) may, at any time after making such election, discontinue the amortization deduction with respect to the remainder of the amortization period, such discontinuance to begin as of the beginning of any month specified by the taxpayer in a notice in writing filed with the Secretary or his delegate before the beginning of such month. The depreciation deduction provided under section 167 shall be allowed, beginning with the first month as to which the amortization deduction does not apply, and the taxpayer shall not be entitled to any further amortization deduction with respect to such facility.

(d) Definition of grain-storage facility. For purposes of this section, the term "grain-storage facility" means—

(1) Any corn crib, grain bin, or grain elevator, or any similar structure suitable primarily for the storage of grain, which crib, bin, elevator, or structure is intended by the taxpayer at the time of his election to be used for the storage of grain produced by him (or, if the election is made by a partnership, produced by the members thereof); and

(2) Any public grain warehouse permanently equipped for receiving, elevating, conditioning, and loading out grain, the construction, reconstruction, or erection of which was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956. If any structure described in clause (1) or (2) of the preceding sentence is altered or remodeled so as to increase its capacity for the storage of grain, or if any structure is converted, through alteration or remodeling, into a structure so described, and if such alteration or remodeling was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956, such alteration or remodeling shall be treated as the construction of a grain-storage facility. The term "grain-storage facility" shall include only property of a character which is subject to the allowance for depreciation provided in section 167. The term "grain-storage facility" shall not include any facility any part of which is an emergency facility within the meaning of section 168 of this title.

(e) Determination of adjusted basis—(1) Original owners. For purposes of subsection (a) (1)—

(A) In determining the adjusted basis of any grain-storage facility, the construction, reconstruction, or erection of which was begun before January 1, 1953, there shall be included only so much of the amount of the adjusted basis (computed without regard to this subsection) as is properly attributable to such construction, reconstruction, or erection after December 31, 1952; and

(B) In determining the adjusted basis of any facility which is a grain-storage facility within the meaning of the second sentence of subsection (d), there shall be included only so much of the amount otherwise included in such basis as is properly attributable to the alteration or remodeling.

If any existing grain-storage facility as defined in the first sentence of subsection (d) is altered or remodeled as provided in the second sentence of subsection (d), the expenditures for such remodeling or alteration shall not be applied in adjustment of the basis of such existing facility but a separate basis shall be computed in respect of such facility as if the part altered or remodeled were a new and separate grain-storage facility.

(2) Subsequent owners. For purposes of subsection (a) (2), the adjusted basis of any grain-storage facility shall be whichever of the following amounts is the smaller:

(A) The basis (unadjusted) of such facility for purposes of this section in the hands of the transferor, donor, or grantor, adjusted as if such facility in the hands of the taxpayer had a substituted basis within the meaning of section 1016 (b), or

(B) So much of the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of the facility in the hands of the taxpayer (as computed without regard to this subsection) as is properly attributable to construction, reconstruction, or erection after December 31, 1952.

(f) Depreciation deduction. If the adjusted basis of the grain-storage facility (computed without regard to subsection (e)) exceeds the adjusted basis computed under subsection (e), the depreciation deduction provided by section 167 shall, despite the provisions of subsection (a) (3) of this section, be allowed with respect to such grain-storage facility as if the adjusted basis for the purpose of such deduction were an amount equal to the amount of such excess.

(g) Life tenant and remainderman. In the case of property held by one person for life with remainder to another person, the amortization deduction provided in subsection (a) shall be computed as if the life tenant were the absolute owner of the property and shall be allowed to the life tenant.

§ 1.169–1 General scope of section 169. (a) Section 169 provides for the amortization of grain-storage facilities, as defined therein, over a period of 60 months. The amortization deduction is allowable at the election of the taxpayer and subject to the provisions of section 169. The amortization deduction is not only allowable to the original owner of a grain-storage facility, but may be allowable to any subsequent owner who acquires the facility from another person who elected to take the amortization deduction and had not discontinued such deduction under the statute. In the case of the original owner of a grain-storage facility the amortization period is 60 months. For a subsequent owner the amortization period is the period, if any, remaining at the time of his acquisition in the 60-month period elected by the person who completed construction, reconstruction, or erection of the grain-storage facility.

(b) Cross-references: For the right of estates and trusts to amortize grain-storage facilities, see section 642 (f) and the regulations thereunder. For the allowance of the amortization deduction in the case of grain-storage facilities of partnerships, see section 703 (b) and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.169–2 Definition of grain-storage facility—(a) General. For the purpose of section 169 the term "grain-storage facility" means—

(1) Any corn crib, grain bin, or grain elevator, or any similar structure suitable primarily for the storage of grain, but only if the taxpayer at the time of his election to take the amortization deduction allowed under section 169 intends such crib, bin, elevator, or structure to be used for the storage of grain produced by him or, in case the election to take the amortization deduction is made by a partnership, only if such crib, bin, elevator, or structure is intended by the partnership at the time of its election to be used for the storage of grain produced by members of the partnership; and

(2) Any public grain warehouse or elevator permanently equipped for receiving, elevating, conditioning, and loading out grain, the construction, reconstruction, or erection of which was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956. The term "grain" includes all products commonly classed as grain, such as wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, rice, soybeans, grain sorghums, flaxseed, and dry edible beans.

(b) Private grain-storage facilities. In the case of any structure described in paragraph (a) (1) of this section, the construction, reconstruction, or erection of which was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956, the taxpayer at the time of his election to take the amortization deduction with respect to the structure must intend to use the facility for the storage of grain produced or to be produced by him. If the election is made by a partnership, the structure must be intended at the time of the election to be used for the storage of grain produced by one or more members of the partnership. The statute does not require that the facility be actually used at the time of the election for the storage of grain. The intent required by the statute at the time of the taxpayer's election to take the amortization deduction is applicable not only to the original owner who completed the construction, reconstruction, or erection of the facility, but to any subsequent owner of the facility. The existence of the requisite intent is a question of fact to be ascertained from the circumstances of each particular case. The lack of the required intent with respect to the use of the facility by a subsequent owner does not affect the allowance of the amortization deduction to a preceding owner for the period during which the facility was owned by him. However, the absence of the required intent as to the use of the facility on the part of either the original owner or any intervening owner precludes any subsequent owner from taking the amortization deduction with respect to the facility. A structure is not suitable primarily for the storage of grain if it is of a type customarily used for other purposes, even though it may actually be used for storing grain. For example, no part of a residential dwelling may qualify as a grain-storage facility. Nor is a structure suitable primarily for the storage of grain unless it is so constructed as to be especially adapted to efficient storage of grain. Thus, a general utility type of building does not qualify under the statute as a grain-storage facility, even though it may be actually used for storing grain. However, structures not suitable primarily for the storage of grain may through alteration or remodeling qualify as grain-storage facilities (see paragraph (d) of this section). On the other hand, a structure which is suitable primarily for the storage of grain is not disqualified under the statute merely because it may at times be used for other purposes. The structures described in paragraph (a) (1) of this section may include trackside grain-storage facilities.

(c) Public grain-storage facilities. The term "public grain warehouse" as used in section 169 (d) includes only a grain warehouse or elevator transacting business with members of the general public. The amortization deduction, however, is not available to a person who stores only grain purchased for consumption in his business, such as a milling company which constructs storage facilities for purchased grain held for processing. The statute also requires that the grain warehouse or elevator must be equipped for receiving, elevating, conditioning, and loading out grain, and that the equipment used for these purposes must be permanently installed. Such equipment is considered a part of the grain warehouse or elevator for the purpose of section 169. A grain warehouse or elevator using portable equipment for receiving, elevating, conditioning or loading out grain cannot qualify as a "grain-storage facility" for the purposes of section 169. The term "conditioning" as used in section 169 (d) includes turning, drying, aerating, fumigating, or other processing of grain. While it is not essential for qualification as a grain-storage facility that a public grain warehouse or elevator be permanently equipped to render all services embraced within the meaning of "conditioning", the grain warehouse or elevator must be permanently equipped for turning, drying, or similar processing of grain. The fact that a public grain warehouse accepts for storage, in addition to products commonly classed as grain (see paragraph (a) of this section), other products which are ordinarily stored in grain warehouses does not disqualify the warehouse as a grain-storage facility for the purpose of section 169.

(d) Alteration or remodeling. (1) If any structure described in paragraph (a) (1) or (2) of this section is altered or remodeled so that its capacity for the storage of grain is increased, and such alteration or remodeling was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956, for the purpose of section 169 such alteration or remodeling is treated as the construction of a grain-storage facility. Such alteration or remodeling may qualify as a grain-storage facility, whether or not the original structure constituted a grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d). If the original structure did qualify as a grain-storage facility for the purpose of section 169, the amortization deduction allowable under section 169 (a) may be taken with respect to such alteration or remodeling, whether or not the taxpayer or any preceding owner elected to take the amortization deduction allowable with respect to the original structure.

(2) Likewise, if any structure not described in paragraph (a) (1) or (2) of this section is converted through alteration or remodeling into a stucture so described, and such alteration or remodeling was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956, for the purpose of section 169 such alteration or remodeling is treated as the construction of a grain-storage facility.

(3) For election to take the amortization deduction with respect to alteration or remodeling described in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, see § 1.169–4. For determination of adjusted basis for the purpose of the amortization deduction with respect to a grain-storage facility attributable to such alteration or remodeling, see § 1.169–6.

(e) Excluded property—(1) Nondepreciable property. The term "grain-storage facility" includes only property of a character which is subject to the allowance for depreciation provided in section 167. Thus, "grain-storage facility" does not include the land on which a structure defined in paragraph (a) of this section is erected.

(2) Emergency facilities. (i) The term "grain-storage facility" does not include any facility any part of which is considered an emergency facility within the meaning of section 168. For the definition of "emergency facility" for the purpose of section 168, see § 1.168–4.

(ii) If all or any part of the adjusted basis (computed under section 1011) of a structure described in paragraph (a) of this section is certified as an "emergency facility" under section 168 (e), such structure cannot qualify as a "grain-storage facility" for the purposes of section 169. However, if, prior to the making of any election to take the amortization deduction allowable under section 168 (a) with respect to such structure, the certificate made under section 168 (e) is cancelled by the certifying authority, such structure will be considered a "grain-storage facility" for the purposes of section 169.

(iii) In the case of any alteration or remodeling described in paragraph (d) (1) or (2) of this section, if all or any part of the adjusted basis (computed under section 1011) of the original structure is certified as an "emergency facility" under section 168 (e), such alteration or remodeling may, nevertheless, qualify as a "grain-storage facility" for the purposes of section 169, provided the following conditions are met:

(a) None of the expenditures attributable to such alteration or remodeling represents construction, reconstruction, erection, installation, or acquisition included in the certificate made under section 168 (e) with respect to the original structure, and

(b) A separate certificate is not made under section 168 (e) with respect to such alteration or remodeling as a new and separate emergency facility, or if a separate certificate was made, such certificate, prior to the making of any election to take the amortization deduction allowable under section 168 (a) with respect to such alteration or remodeling, is canceled by the certifying authority.

§ 1.169–3 Amortization deduction—(a) Original owner. Any person who constructs, reconstructs, or erects a grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d) is entitled at his election to a deduction with respect to the amortization of the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of such facility based on a period of 60 months. As to the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility, see § 1.169–6. The taxpayer may, with respect to a grain-storage facility, elect to begin the 60-month amortization period with (1) the month following the month in which such facility was completed, or (2) the first month of the taxable year succeeding that in which such facility was completed (see § 1.169–4). The date on which, or the month within which, a grain-storage facility is completed is to be determined upon the facts in the particular case. A statement of the date ascertained by the taxpayer, together with a statement of the pertinent facts relied upon, should be filed with the taxpayer's election to take amortization deductions with respect to such facility.

(b) Subsequent owner. Any person who acquires a grain storage facility from a taxpayer who elected to take the amortization deduction provided by section 169 (a) with respect to such facility and who, prior to the acquisition by such person, had not discontinued the amortization deduction pursuant to section 169 (c), is entitled at his election to a deduction with respect to the amortization of the adjusted basis (determined under section 169 (e) (2)) of such facility based on the period, if any, remaining at the time of his acquisition in the 60-month period elected by the original owner of such facility. For the determination of the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility in the hands of a subsequent owner for the purpose of the amortization deduction, see § 1.169–6.

(c) Amount of deduction. (1) In general, with respect to each month of the 60-month period which falls within the taxable year, the amortization deduction is an amount equal to the adjusted basis of the facility at the end of such month divided by the number of months (including the particular month for which the deduction is computed) remaining in the 60-month period. If a grain-storage facility is held successively by two or more persons during a single month, the amortization deduction, if any, allowable to each of such persons in respect of that month shall be only that portion of the amount to which each such person would be entitled for a full month which the number of days in such month during which the facility was held by him bears to the total number of days in such month. The adjusted basis of the grain-storage facility at the end of any month shall be computed without regard to the amortization deduction with respect to such facility for such month. The total amortization deduction with respect to a grain-storage facility for a particular taxable year is the sum of the amortization deductions allowable with respect to such facility for each month of the 60-month period which falls within such taxable year.

(2) The amortization deduction with respect to a grain-storage facility for any month is in lieu of the deduction for depreciation which would otherwise be allowable under section 167 with respect to the facility for that month. If the original owner of a grain-storage facility elects to begin the 60-month amortization period with the first month of the taxable year succeeding that in which the facility was completed, the deduction for depreciation provided in section 167 is allowable with respect to the facility for the period intervening between the completion of the facility and the beginning of the 60-month period. However, if the original owner elects to begin the 60-month amortization period with the month following that in which the facility was completed, no deduction under section 167 is allowable in respect of the month in which the facility was completed. For depreciation allowable with respect to any amount not subject to amortization, see § 1.169–7.

(d) Examples. This section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). On July 1, 1954, A, who makes his income tax return on a calendar year basis, begins the construction of a grain-storage facility which is completed on September 30, 1954, at a cost of $24,000, not including the cost of the land on which the facility is erected. A elects to take the amortization deduction with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with October 1954, the month following its completion. The adjusted basis of the facility at the end of October is $24,000. The allowable amortization deduction with respect to such facility for the taxable year 1954 is $1,200, computed as follows:

Monthly Amortization Deductions:
October: $24,000 divided by 60	$400
November: $23,600 ($24,000 minus $400) divided by 59	400
December: $23,200 ($23,600 minus $400) divided by 58	400
Total Amortization Deduction for 1954	1,200

Example (2). The X Corporation, which makes its income tax return on the calendar year basis, begins the construction of a grain storage facility on June 15, 1954. The facility is completed on August 2, 1954. The X Corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with September 1954, the month following its completion. At the end of the first month of the amortization period the adjusted basis of the facility is $30,000. In October 1954, the facility is damaged by fire, as the result of which the adjusted basis is properly reduced by $2,537. The allowable amortization deduction with respect to the facility for the calendar year 1954 is $1,871, computed as follows:

Monthly Amortization Deductions:
September: $30,000 divided by 60	$500
October: $26,963 ($30,000 minus $500 and $2,537) divided by 59	457
November: $26,506 ($26,963 minus $457) divided by 58	457
December: $26,049 ($26,506 minus $457) divided by 57	457
Total amortization deduction for 1954	1,871

For illustration in the case of a subsequent owner of a grain-storage facility, see example (2) in § 1.169–6 (f).

§ 1.169–4 Election of amortization—(a) General rule—(1) Original owner. The election by a taxpayer who constructs, reconstructs, or erects a grain-storage facility to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period, either with the month following the month in which the facility was completed or with the first month of the taxable year succeeding the taxable year in which such facility was completed, shall be made by a statement to that effect in the taxpayer's return for the taxable year in which falls the first month of the 60-month amortization period so elected. Such statement shall include the following information:

(i) A description clearly identifying each grain-storage facility for which an amortization deduction is claimed.

(ii) The date on which the construction, reconstruction, or erection of each such facility was completed.

(iii) The total costs and expenditures paid or incurred in the construction, reconstruction, or erection of any such facility, excluding the cost of any land.

(iv) If the construction, reconstruction, or erection of any such facility was begun before January 1, 1953, the amount of the costs and expenditures properly attributable to such construction, reconstruction, or erection after December 31, 1952.

(v) In the case of a private grain-storage facility described in § 1.169–2 (b), a statement that the taxpayer intends to use the facility for the storage of grain produced or to be produced by him or, in case the election is being made by a partnership, that the structure is intended to be used for the storage of grain produced by one or more members of the partnership.

(2) Subsequent owner. The election by a subsequent owner (that is, a person who acquires a grain-storage facility from a taxpayer who elected to take the amortization deduction with respect to the facility and who, prior to the acquisition by the subsequent owner, had not discontinued the amortization deduction under section 169 (c)) to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility shall be made by a statement to that effect in the taxpayer's return for the taxable year in which falls the month in which the facility was acquired. Such statement shall include the following information:

(i) The name and address of the preceding owner.

(ii) The date and the manner of the acquisition of the grain-storage facility from such preceding owner.

(iii) A statement of the basis (unadjusted) of the facility in the hands of the preceding owner for amortization purposes, adjusted to the date of acquisition by the taxpayer.

(iv) A statement of the adjusted basis of the facility in the hands of the taxpayer for amortization purposes, computed as of the date of acquisition by the taxpayer.

(v) In the case of a private grain-storage facility described in § 1.169–2 (b), a statement that the taxpayer intends to use the facility for the storage of grain produced or to be produced by him or, in case the election is being made by a partnership, that the structure is intended to be used for the storage of grain produced by one or more members of the partnership.

(b) Special rules for making election prior to filing of return. If, prior to the time prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section for making the election to take amortization deductions with respect to a grain-storage facility, such facility is acquired by a subsequent owner, the preceding owner of the facility may make such election within 60 days after the date of acquisition of such facility by the subsequent owner. In the event that the preceding owner dies or ceases to exist prior to making an election, the election may be made within such time by the duly authorized representatives of the preceding owner. Unless the election to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility is made by the preceding owner or on his behalf, the subsequent owner of the facility shall not be entitled to take the amortization deductions allowable under section 169 (a) with respect to such facility. A statement of election under this paragraph shall be filed with the district director for the district in which the return of the taxpayer is required to be filed, and shall contain the same information required with respect to a statement of election under paragraph (a) of this section. However, in the case of a private grain-storage facility described in § 1.169–2 (b), in lieu of the statement regarding the intended use of the facility at the time of the election, the statement of election under this paragraph shall include a statement that the preceding owner, at the time of the construction, reconstruction, erection, or acquisition of the facility by him, intended to use the facility for the storage of grain produced or to be produced by him. If the preceding owner of the facility was the original owner, the statement of election must specify the beginning of the 60-month amortization period. Unless the grain-storage facility is acquired from the original owner after the beginning of his taxable year succeeding the taxable year in which such facility was completed, an election made under this paragraph must begin the 60-month amortization period with the month following the month in which the facility was completed.

(c) Election not made at the time or in the manner prescribed by this section. (1) The district director has no authority to extend the time prescribed in section 169 (b) and paragraph (a) of this section for making an election to take amortization deductions allowable under section 169 (a). However, the district director in his discretion may, for good cause shown, grant a reasonable extension of time for the making of an election under paragraph (b) of this section.

(2) Except as provided in the preceding subparagraph, if a statement of election under paragraph (a) or (b) of this section does not comply with the requirements prescribed therein, it may, in the discretion of the district director and for good cause shown, be made in such manner and form as may be approved by him.

(3) No method of making the election to take the amortization deductions with respect to a grain-storage facility other than those prescribed in this section shall be permitted. A taxpayer who fails to elect to take amortization deductions with respect to such a facility shall not be entitled to amortization deductions with respect to such facility.

(d) Alteration or remodeling of existing grain-storage facility. If an existing grain-storage facility, as defined in section 169 (d), is altered or remodeled and such alteration or remodeling is treated under section 169 (d) as the construction of a grain-storage facility (see §§ 1.169–2 (d) and 1.169–6 (e)), the part of the facility altered or remodeled is treated as a new and separate grain-storage facility. In such case, unless the taxpayer who completes such alteration or remodeling makes a separate election, in the manner and within the time provided in this section, to take amortization deductions and to begin a new 60-month period with respect to such alteration or remodeling, he shall not be entitled to amortization deductions with respect to such alteration or remodeling. Such alteration or remodeling is also treated as a separate grain-storage facility in the hands of a subsequent owner.

§ 1.169–5 Termination of amortization deduction. (a) If a taxpayer has elected to take amortization deductions with respect to a grain-storage facility he may, prior to the expiration of the 60-month amortization period and prior to the acquisition of such facility by another person, discontinue the amortization deductions with respect to such facility for the remainder of the 60-month period. An election to discontinue the amortization deductions shall be made by notice in writing filed with the district director for the district in which the return of the taxpayer is required to be filed, specifying the month as of the beginning of which the taxpayer elects to discontinue such deductions. Such notice shall be filed before the beginning of the month specified therein, and shall contain a description clearly identifying the grain-storage facility with respect to which the taxpayer elects to discontinue the amortization deductions. If the taxpayer elects in the manner provided herein to discontinue the amortization deductions with respect to a grain-storage facility, he shall not be entitled to any further amortization deductions with respect to such facility.

(b) A taxpayer who elects to discontinue amortization deductions with respect to a grain-storage facility is entitled to a deduction for depreciation under section 167 with respect to such facility. The deduction for depreciation shall begin with the first month as to which the amortization deduction is not applicable and shall be computed on the adjusted basis of the property as of the beginning of such month (see section 1011 and the regulations thereunder).

(c) This section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. On February 1, 1954, the Y Corporation, which makes its income tax returns on the calendar year basis, begins the construction of a grain-storage facility. The facility is completed on June 30, 1954, at a cost of $306,000, of which $60,000 is allocable to the land and $246,000 to the facility. The corporation elects to take amortization deductions with respect to the facility and to begin the 60-month amortization period with July 1954, the month following its completion. On March 25, 1955, the corporation files notice with the district director of its election to discontinue the amortization deductions beginning with the month of April 1955. The adjusted basis of the facility on July 31, 1954, is $246,000. The amortization deductions for the taxable year 1954 and the months of January, February, and March 1955, amount to $36,900, or $4,100 per month for nine months. Accordingly, the adjusted basis of the facility as of April 1, 1955, is $209,100. Beginning as of that date, the deduction for depreciation under section 167 is allowable with respect to the property. Such deduction shall be computed on the adjusted basis ($209,100) of the property as of April 1, 1955.

§ 1.169–6 Adjusted basis of grain-storage facility—(a) General. Section 169 (e) provides rules which apply in the determination of the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility for the purpose of computing the amortization deductions allowable under section 169 (a). Section 169 (e) does not purport to provide an all-inclusive formula for the computation of adjusted basis for amortization purposes, but only prescribes certain modifications in the amount which would otherwise constitute the adjusted basis of the facility. As a result of these modifications, the adjusted basis for the purpose of computing the amortization deductions allowable with respect to the facility will differ in some cases from the adjusted basis of the facility determined under section 1011 without regard to section 169 (e). The adjusted basis for amortization purposes may also differ from the adjusted basis of the facility for other purposes in that it shall be the adjusted basis for determining gain (see sections 1011–1022, inclusive). The adjusted basis for amortization purposes is derived from the unadjusted basis of the grain-storage facility determined in accordance with the provisions of section 1012. The special rules provided in section 169 (e) are applicable in translating the unadjusted basis determined in accordance with the provisions of section 1012 into the unadjusted basis for amortization purposes under section 169. The unadjusted basis for amortization purposes, less the adjustments properly allocable thereto, becomes the adjusted basis for amortization purposes. These adjustments are those specified in sections 1016 and 1017. However, adjustments which increase the adjusted basis under section 1011 are not to be taken into account in determining the adjusted basis for amortization purposes (see paragraph (d) of this section).

(b) Original owners. Section 169 (e) (1) provides rules which apply in the determination of the adjusted basis for amortization purposes of a grain-storage facility in the hands of an original owner (see § 1.169–3 (a)). As the result of the application of the rules stated in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, the adjusted basis of the facility for amortization purposes will be smaller than the amount which would otherwise constitute the adjusted basis of the facility. The rules are the following:

(1) If the construction, reconstruction, or erection of the facility was begun before January 1, 1953, there is to be included only so much of the entire unadjusted basis of the facility as is properly attributable to construction, reconstruction, or erection after December 31, 1952.

(2) If a structure which is not an existing grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d) is altered or remodeled and such alteration or remodeling is treated under section 169 (d) as the construction of a grain-storage facility (see § 1.169–2 (d)), there is to be included only so much of the entire unadjusted basis of such structure as is properly attributable to such alteration or remodeling as was completed after December 31, 1952, and on or before December 31, 1956. In the case of alteration or remodeling of an existing grain-storage facility, see paragraph (e) of this section.

(c) Subsequent owners. A special rule is provided in section 169 (e) (2) for the determination of the adjusted basis for amortization purposes of a grain-storage facility in the hands of a subsequent owner (see § 1.169–3 (b)). Such adjusted basis is the smaller of the following amounts:

(1) The adjusted basis determined by including an amount in respect of unadjusted basis equal to the adjusted basis of the facility for amortization purposes in the hands of the preceding owner, determined as of the date of acquisition of the facility by the taxpayer. For the purpose of this paragraph, in determining the adjusted basis of the facility for amortization purposes in the hands of the preceding owner the adjustments required under section 1016 shall include an adjustment in respect of the amount of the amortization deduction allowable to the preceding owner for the month in which the facility was acquired by the taxpayer. See § 1.169–3 (c). For the rule excluding capital additions from the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility for amortization purposes, see paragraph (d) of this section.

(2) The adjusted basis (computed under section 1011 for determining gain) of the facility in the hands of the taxpayer. If the construction, reconstruction, or erection of the facility was begun before January 1, 1953, in determining such adjusted basis there is to be included only so much of the entire unadjusted basis of the facility (in the hands of the taxpayer) as is properly attributable to construction, reconstruction, or erection after December 31, 1952.

(d) Capital additions. If after the completion or acquisition of a grain-storage facility further expenditures are made for construction, reconstruction, or erection, such expenditures shall not be added to the adjusted basis of the facility for amortization purposes. If such expenditures result in alteration or remodeling which under section 169 (d) is treated as the construction of a grain-storage facility, see paragraph (e) of this section.

(e) Alteration or remodeling of existing grain-storage facility. If an existing grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d) is altered or remodeled and such alteration or remodeling is treated under section 169 (d) as the construction of a grain-storage facility (see § 1.169–2 (d)), the expenditures for such alteration or remodeling shall not be applied in adjustment of the basis of the existing facility, but a separate basis shall be computed by reference to such expenditures as if such alteration or remodeling represented a new and separate grain-storage facility. A structure which was not an existing grain-storage facility prior to alteration or remodeling which is treated under section 169 (d) as the construction of a grain-storage facility becomes an existing grain-storage facility for the purposes of this paragraph. Thus, if a structure which is an existing grain-storage facility by reason of such alteration or remodeling is again altered or remodeled and such alteration or remodeling is treated under section 169 (d) as the construction of a grain-storage facility, the provisions of this subparagraph are also applicable to such later alteration or remodeling.

(f) Examples. The computation of the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility for amortization purposes may be illustrated in the following examples:

Example (1). On February 28, 1953, A completes the construction of a grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d) at a cost $2,000 for the land and $6,000 for the construction. Only $3,000 of the total cost of the facility is properly attributable to construction after December 31, 1952. A elects to claim the amortization deduction and to begin the 60-month period on March 1, 1953. Under section 169 (e), the adjusted basis of the facility for the purpose of section 169 (a) as of that date is only $3,000, the amount attributable to construction after December 31, 1952. In determining the adjusted basis of the facility as of any subsequent date for the purpose of computing the amortization deduction, the amortization deductions allowable in respect of the period prior to such date must be taken into account. See section 1016. Thus, the adjusted basis of the facility for the purpose of computing the amount of the amortization deduction allowable for the month of January 1954, is $2,500 ($3,000 minus $500, the amortization deductions allowable prior to January 1, 1954).

Example (2). A began on January 1, 1954, and completed on June 30, 1954, the construction of a grain-storage facility as defined in section 169 (d) at a cost of $5,000 for the land and $30,000 for the construction. A elects to claim the amortization deduction and to begin the 60-month period on July 1, 1954. On May 1, 1955, A sells the grain-storage facility to B for a price of $34,000, of which $6,000 is allocable to the land. B elects to claim the amortization deduction on the basis of the 50 months remaining in the amortization period. B, in determining the adjusted basis of the facility in his hands, must start with the unadjusted basis of the facility in the hands of A ($30,000) and adjust such basis under section 1016 in respect of amortization claimed by A during his ownership of the facility ($5,000). Since this amount ($25,000) is smaller than the adjusted basis (for determining gain) of the facility in B's hands as of May 1, 1955 ($28,000, that is $34,000 less $6,000 allocable to land), the adjusted basis of the facility for the purpose of section 169 (a) in B's hands as of May 1, 1955, is $25,000. B, therefore, may include only $25,000 in determining the adjusted basis of the facility in his hands as of May 1, 1955, the date of the purchase. The amortization deductions claimed by B must, of course, be applied in reduction of such adjusted basis in determining the adjusted basis of the facility as of any subsequent date for the purpose of his amortization deduction under section 169 (a). The amount by which the purchase price paid by B and allocable to depreciable property ($28,000) exceeds the adjusted basis determined under section 169 (e) for such property ($25,000)—or $3,000—is treated as the adjusted basis (as of May 1, 1955) for the purpose of the depreciation deduction allowable under section 167. See § 1.169–7.

§ 1.169–7 Depreciation of portion of grain-storage facility not subject to amortization. The rule set forth in section 169 (a) (see § 1.169–3), that the amortization deduction with respect to a grain-storage facility is in lieu of any deduction for depreciation which would otherwise be allowable under section 167 with respect to the facility, is subject to an exception provided in section 169 (f). Under this exception, if the adjusted basis of the facility as computed under section 1011 for purposes other than the amortization deductions (see § 1.1011–1) is in excess of the adjusted basis computed under section 169 (e) for the purpose of the amortization deductions (see § 1.169–6), any excess shall be charged off over the useful life of the facility and recovered through depreciation deductions allowable under section 167. Thus, if the construction of a grain-storage facility was begun before January 1, 1953, no amortization deductions are allowable with respect to the amount attributable to such construction before such date (see § 1.169–6). However, the depreciation deduction provided by section 167 and the regulations thereunder is allowable with respect to the amount attributable to construction before January 1, 1953. Similarly, in the case of a subsequent owner the adjusted basis of a grain-storage facility computed under section 1011 for purposes other than the amortization deductions (see § 1.1011–1) may exceed the adjusted basis of the facility computed under section 169 (e) for amortization purposes. In such case the excess will be subject to the allowance for depreciation provided by section 167. For illustration of the treatment of the portion of a grain-storage facility which is subject to the allowance for depreciation, see example (2) in § 1.169–6 (f).

§ 1.169–8 Life tenant and remainderman. In the case of a grain-storage facility held by one person for life with the remainder to another person, the amortization deduction shall be computed as if the life tenant were the absolute owner of the property and shall be allowed to the life tenant during his life.

INCOME TAX, TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1953

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth below in tentative form are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D. C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U. S. C. 7805).

[SEAL] RUSSELL C. HARRINGTON,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

In order to clarify the regulations prescribed under section 305 (b) (2) and section 312 (26 CFR Part 1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, such regulations are amended as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Strike § 1.305–2 and insert revised § 1.305–2 as follows:

§ 1.305–2 Election of shareholders as to medium of payment—(a) General. (1) Section 305 (b) (2) describes certain distributions by a corporation to its shareholders of its stock or rights to acquire its stock which are not within the terms of section 305 (a). The distributions described in section 305 (b) (2) are distributions with respect to which there is or has been an election as to the medium of payment by any shareholder after or before the declaration date. Where such an election exists or has existed, the distribution of the corporation's stock or rights to acquire its stock is not a distribution under section 305 (a). Such a distribution is in effect a distribution of the property which the shareholder could have received and a purchase of the stock or rights to acquire stock with such property. Accordingly, the amount of such distribution will be measured by reference to the property subject to the election and is included in the gross income of the shareholder pursuant to section 301.

(2) A distribution by a corporation to its shareholders of its stock or rights to acquire its stock is not under section 305 (a) if any shareholder has the right to an election or option with respect to whether a distribution shall be made either in money or any other property, or in stock or rights to acquire the stock of the corporation, regardless of

(i) Whether the distribution is actually made in whole or in part in stock or in stock rights;

(ii) Whether the election or option is exercised or exercisable before or after the declaration of the distribution;

(iii) Whether the declaration of the dividend provides that payment will be made in one medium unless the shareholder specifically requests payment in the other;

(iv) Whether the election is provided in the declaration of the dividend; or

(v) Whether all or part of the shareholders have the election.

(b) Nature of election. (1) Section 305 (b) (2) refers to every election, whether express or implied, regardless of how or when exercised or exercisable. An election is a choice to receive payment in one medium or another. It is immaterial when such choice arises and when it is exercisable. Thus, for example, section 305 (b) (2) applies when any shareholder is given his choice as to the medium of payment of dividends by the terms of the corporate charter even though, as to any particular distribution, this choice cannot be exercised after the declaration date. A choice to receive payment in one medium or another may arise out of the terms of the declaration, the provisions of the corporate charter, the provisions of the stock certificates or the circumstances of the transaction. A choice may be exercisable directly or indirectly through action by the shareholder or through his failure to act. Accordingly, there is an election where (i) a dividend is paid in cash to some holders of common stock and in stock of the corporation to the remaining holders of common stock and (ii) the shareholders who receive stock have the right to demand cash or have waived this right. It is immaterial whether the right to demand cash was waived before or after the declaration date, by private agreement, by the terms of the charter, or otherwise. Where a corporation having two classes of common stock outstanding, with respect to which dividends may be paid in stock on one class and in money (or other property) on the other class, makes a distribution (or series of related distributions) in money (or other property) as to one class and in stock as to the other, the distribution of the stock is not under section 305 (a) since there is a choice as to the medium of payment of any distribution by virtue of the existence of the two classes of common stock.

(2) The application of the above rules may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Pursuant to a recapitalization (to which section 368 (a) (1) (E) applies) all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Corporation X are surrendered in exchange for Class A common stock and Class B common stock. Some shareholders choose to receive only Class A stock, some shareholders choose to receive only Class B stock, and some shareholders choose to receive some of each. Dividends may be paid in stock or in cash on either class of stock without regard to the medium of payment of dividends on the other class. A dividend is declared upon the Class A stock payable in additional shares of Class A stock and a dividend is declared on the Class B stock payable in cash. Section 305 (a) does not apply to the stock distributed to the Class A shareholders.

Example (2). Pursuant to a recapitalization (to which section 368 (a) (1) (E) applies) all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Corporation Y are surrendered in exchange for Class A common stock and Class B common stock, every shareholder receiving one share of Class A stock and one share of Class B stock in exchange for each share of the common stock surrendered by him. Dividends may be paid in stock or in cash on either class of stock without regard to the medium of payment of dividends on the other class. After the recapitalization, and before any of the Class A or Class B stock has been transferred, a dividend is declared on the Class A stock payable in additional shares of Class A stock and a dividend is declared on the Class B stock payable in cash. Thereafter, some shareholders sell some of their Class B stock, some shareholders sell some of their Class A stock, and some shareholders exchange Class B stock for Class A stock held by other shareholders. After these sales and exchanges a dividend is declared on the Class A stock payable in additional shares of Class A stock and a dividend is declared on the Class B stock payable in cash. Section 305 (a) does not apply to any of the stock distributed to the Class A shareholders.

(c) Amount taxable. (1) Where a distribution of stock or rights to acquire stock of a corporation is treated as a distribution of property under section 301 by reason of section 305 (b) (2) the amount distributed to a shareholder is measured by reference to the property subject to the election. Accordingly, where there is an election under section 305 (b) (2), the amount distributed to all shareholders is determined as if all the shareholders had received the cash or other property instead of the stock or stock rights.

(2) The application of the above rule may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Corporation X declared a dividend payable in additional shares of its common stock to the holders of its outstanding common stock on the basis of two additional shares for each share held on the record date but with the provision that, at the election of any shareholder made within a specified period prior to the distribution date, he could receive $10 in cash in lieu of one of the additional shares. The fair market value of a share of stock of Corporation X was $10 on the declaration date and $10.25 on the date of the distribution. This distribution is treated as if there had been two separate distributions authorized by separate declarations. There was no election as to the distribution of one share of stock on each share of outstanding stock and therefore section 301 does not apply to the receipt of this share. However, section 301 does apply to that part of the distribution as to which a shareholder could, at his election, receive $10 in cash or a share of stock of X and the amount of this distribution, as to all shareholders, is $10 per share of stock of Corporation X.

PAR. 2. Strike the heading of § 1.312–11 and the regulatory material of paragraph (a) of that section. The revised heading for § 1.312–11 and revised regulatory material in paragraph (a) are as follows:

§ 1.312–11 Effect on earnings and profits of certain other tax-free exchanges, tax-free distributions and tax-free transfers from one corporation to another. (a) If property is transferred by one corporation to another, and, under the law applicable to the year in which the transfer was made, no gain or loss was recognized (or was recognized only to the extent of the property received other than that permitted by such law to be received without the recognition of gain), then proper adjustment and allocation of the earnings and profits of the transferor shall be made as between the transferor and the transferee. Transfers to which the preceding sentence applies include contributions to capital, transfers under section 351, transfers in connection with reorganizations under section 368, transfers in liquidations under section 332 and intercompany transfers during a period of affiliation. However, if, for example, property is transferred from one corporation to another in a transaction under section 351 or as a contribution to capital and the transfer is not followed or preceded by a reorganization, a transaction under section 302 (a) involving a substantial part of the transferor's stock, or a total or partial liquidation, then ordinarily no allocation of the earnings and profits of the transferor shall be made. For specific rules as to allocation of earnings and profits in certain reorganizations under section 368 and in certain liquidations under section 332 see section 381 and the regulations thereunder. For allocation of earnings and profits in certain corporate separations see section 312 (i) and § 1.312–10.

[7 CFR Part 942]

[Docket No. AO–103–A14]

HANDLING OF MILK IN NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA, MARKETING AREA

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR, Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at New Orleans, Louisiana, on April 12–20, 1955, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued March 23, 1955 (20 F. R. 1948), upon a proposed tentative marketing agreement and order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, marketing area.

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing, and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on February 8, 1956, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture his recommended decision. Said decision containing notice of opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on February 18, 1956 (21 F. R. 1128). Within the period reserved therefor, interested persons filed exceptions to certain of the findings, conclusions and actions recommended by the Deputy Administrator.

Upon the basis of the exceptions received, the Assistant Secretary issued a notice of tentative decision on May 2, 1956, with opportunity to file exceptions thereto. In arriving at the findings, conclusions, and regulatory provisions of this decision, each of such exceptions was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto.

To the extent that suggested findings and conclusions proposed by interested persons are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the specific or implied requests to make such findings and reach such conclusions are denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions herein set forth.

The material issues, findings and conclusions, and general findings of the recommended decision (21 F. R. 1128, Doc. 56–1236) are hereby approved and adopted as the issues, findings and conclusions, and general findings of this decision as if set forth in full herein, subject to the following modifications described with reference to Federal Register Doc. 56–1236, 21 F. R. 1128:

a. Delete in its entirety, section No. 2, beginning with the first full paragraph, column 3, page 1129, and substitute the following:

2. Type of pool. In exceptions submitted jointly by handlers and producers in the New Orleans area, the proponents of the market-wide pool expressed their desire to abondon the position taken at the hearing in connection with the pooling provisions of the order.

It was argued that if the pooling standards recommended were effectuated, an incentive would be provided for unregulated handlers on the fringe of the marketing area to qualify for pool participation at any time that their uniform prices are less than the uniform price under the order. It was argued that the most important feature of the market-wide pool, as proposed by the producers, concerned the standards for qualifying both distributing and supply plants for pool participation. The standards recommended are considered to be unacceptable to producers. It was requested in the exceptions that consideration of the market-wide pool be abandoned.

As a result of recent changes within the milkshed, producers and handlers are cooperating to the extent that the need for a market-wide pool has diminished. Additional facilities have been established in the area for disposing of surplus milk, and it appears that producers need not be unduly concerned at this time about a market for surplus milk. This decision, therefore, provides for an individual-handler type pool.

b. Delete in its entirety, section No. 3, beginning with the sixth full paragraph, column 1, page 1130, and substitute the following:

3. Qualifications for market-wide pooling. Since it has been concluded elsewhere herein that the individual-handler pool of the present order should be retained at this time, the qualifications for market-wide pooling are deleted.

c. Delete in its entirety, section No. 4, beginning with the third full paragraph, column 2, page 1131, and substitute the following:

4. Order changes to conform to market-wide pooling. The discussion of order changes to conform to market-wide pooling which appeared in the recommended decision is no longer appropriate in light of the conclusion discussed elsewhere herein to retain an individual-handler pool in the New Orleans order.

d. Delete the words "pool plant" at the beginning of the sixth full paragraph in column 1, page 1133, and substitute the words "fluid milk plant".

e. Delete the first full paragraph in column 2, page 1133, and substitute the following:

Inventories of fluid milk products on hand at a fluid milk plant at the beginning of any month during which such plant became a fluid milk plant for the first time should likewise be subtracted from the Class II utilization of the plant during the month. This will preserve the priority of assignment of producer receipts to current Class I use.

f. At the end of the fourth full paragraph appearing in column 1, page 1134, add the following: "In order to prevent a severe seasonal price adjustment as the result of these recommendations, the amount added to the the basic-formula for the preceding month should be $2.65 from the effective date hereof through February 1957."

g. Delete the second full paragraph appearing in column 2, page 1134, and substitute the following:

Evidence in the hearing record indicates that the location differentials provided for in the present order would act as a deterrent to any milk plant located farther than 110 miles from New Orleans, if such plant desired to qualify as a supply plant under Order No. 42. The maximum location adjustment provided for in the order at the present time is 8.0 cents per hundredweight for plants located more than 110 miles from New Orleans. To the extent that producer milk is received at plants located more than that distance from the market, handlers purchasing such milk should be allowed a lower Class I price based on the amount it costs to transport such milk to the market by the most economical means. If handlers did not assume the cost of moving milk to the market it must otherwise be borne by the producer. The producer would be compelled to meet such cost if he were to sell such milk in the market. Handlers, however, should be expected to make any necessary movement of milk to market by the most efficient means available.

For those reasons a revision of location differential adjustments was recommended that would change the mileage rate from 2 cents to 1.5 cents for each ten mile zone, as well as extend such zoning indefinitely beyond 110 miles, where it presently stops. But, from exceptions filed by producers and handlers it is concluded that more information is needed before any change is provided in the differential rate structure within the 110 mile limit.

With respect to recommended zoning beyond 110 miles the case is different. It is clear from the record that this is necessary in order to establish reasonable prices for milk shipped from more distant locations, and that for such zoning the 1.5 cent differential rate is reasonable. This addition to the location differential provision should be adopted.

h. Delete the third full paragraph beginning in column 3, page 1134, and the first full paragraph in column 1, page 1135, and substitute the following:

However, it is provided that the effect of the reconstructed adjustor be held in abeyance through February 1957. In making the transition from an "economic type" Class I formula which has been in effect to a Class I formula based on the value of manufacturing milk, the direct reduction in Class I prices cannot be precisely determined. The reasons for changing the type of pricing formula has already been discussed herein. Because supplies of milk in this market now exceed Class I sales, plus a reasonable reserve, the application of a supply-demand adjustor also would operate to reduce Class I prices an additional 30 to 40 cents per hundredweight. Such a reduction is not deemed appropriate at this time.

It is expected that by March of 1957, the new level of prices will have resulted in a readjustment to a more desirable relationship of milk receipts to Class I sales, and that at that time the supply-demand adjustor may be made effective again. If the recommended pricing formula has not resulted in the re-establishment of an appropriate supply-sales relationship by the end of February 1957, the application of the supply-demand adjustor after that time will add further impetus to the re-establishment of an appropriate relationship.

i. Delete section No. 8 in its entirety, beginning with the first full paragraph in column 1, page 1136, and substitute the following:

8. Base-excess plan. The provisions relating to producer bases should be revised as to the computation of the base, and the base transfer provisions.

In exceptions submitted, producers and handlers objected to the twelve months operating base recommended by the Department. The chief objection appeared to be that the plan recommended would encourage new producers to enter the market during the flush production season, even though the market may be substantially over-supplied. In this connection, it should be pointed out that base-excess provisions are not intended to restrict entry into the market, but to encourage even seasonal deliveries. If a market is over-supplied, the proper consideration for remedial action is the price level. Base-excess plans should not be implemented to restrict entry into a market.

It is concluded that since both handler and producer groups object strenuously to the revision recommended, the present provisions of the base-excess plan concerning base-forming and base-operating months should be retained.

Under present order provisions, a producer's base is determined by multiplying the daily base of such producer by the number of days for which such producer's milk was delivered to a handler(s).

If a producer makes deliveries every other day, such practice could cause him to lose half his eligible base pounds. This would encourage uneconomical deliveries of milk for producers who have facilities to make deliveries every other day. A situation of this nature would be aggravated in the case of a few producers who deliver milk every third day.

The method provided herein for the computation of bases will provide uniformity and accuracy in base determination. To compute a producer's base by multiplying his average daily deliveries by the number of days in the month will facilitate the computation of bases by the market administrator, and provide a basis for more orderly marketing.

A producer should be permitted to transfer his entire base to any other dairy farmer so long as the transfer is made as of the first of the month, and with advance notice to the market administrator. This will alleviate possible hardship and will not defeat the purpose of the base-excess plan which is to encourage level production. The transfer of bases as provided herein will give added assurance to a producer that he will have the full benefit of any base he is able to build, whether or not he is able to continue milk production.

A transfer of bases, as provided herein, will alleviate possible hardship cases which may arise when a dairyman needs to discontinue milk production. Provision for the transfer of entire bases will accomplish this purpose.

Bases should be transferred by the market administrator only as of the first of the month, and only upon advance receipt of a statement indicating the holder of such base and the person to whom the base is to be transferred, and signed by both parties.

j. Delete section No. 9 in its entirety, beginning with the fifth full paragraph, column 3, page 1136, and substitute the following:

9. Compensatory payments on unpriced milk. In the recommended decision, the provisions for a compensatory payment on unpriced milk was justified in conjunction with a market-wide type pool for the New Orleans market. It has been concluded elsewhere herein that a market-wide pool should not be established at this time. Consequently, the discussion and provisions relating to such compensatory payments are no longer appropriate.

k. Delete section No. 10 in its entirety, beginning with the second full paragraph, column 1, page 1138, and substitute the following:

10. Administrative and other changes. Handlers should continue to make payments to each producer for milk delivered by such producer at the appropriate uniform price. Payments due any producer for milk should be paid by the handler to a cooperative association that makes a written request for such payments if the producer has given the cooperative association written authorization in the form of a contract, or in any form, to collect such payments. In making such payments for producer milk to a cooperative association, the handler should, at the same time, furnish the cooperative association with a statement showing the name of each producer for whom payment is being made to the cooperative association, the volume and average butterfat content of milk delivered by each such producer, and the amount of and reasons for any deductions which the handler made from the amount payable to each producer. This statement is necessary so the cooperative association can make proper distribution of the money it collects to the producer members for whom it makes collections.

Qualified cooperative associations of dairymen, if they so request, should be permitted to receive payment from handlers for their producer-members as a group. A provision authorizing handlers to make payment directly to such qualified cooperative associations for milk received from producer members is necessary to enable an association to carry out the functions authorized by the enabling act, i. e. blending the net proceeds of all of its sales in all markets, in all use-classifications and making distribution thereof to its producers in accordance with the contract between the association and its producers. A cooperative association, if it is to carry out such functions, must have full authority in the collective bargaining and marketing of members' milk.

Marketing services. A provision should be included in the order for furnishing market services to producers, such as verifying the tests and weights of producer milk and furnishing market information. These should be provided by the market administrator and the cost should be borne by the producer receiving the service. If a cooperative association is performing such services for any member-producers and is approved for such activities by the Secretary, the market administrator may accept this in lieu of his own service.

There is need for a marketing service program in connection with the administration of an order in this area. Orderly marketing will be promoted by assuring individual producers that payments received for their milk are in accordance with the classification and pricing provisions of the order, and reflect accurate weights and tests of such milk. To accomplish this fully, it is necessary that the butterfat tests and weights of individual producers deliveries of milk as reported by the handler be verified for accuracy.

In the case of producers who are members of cooperatives having plants, the matter of milk-testing and milk-weighing is under the complete control of such producers and is assessed against such producers either through an association check-off or as a plant operating cost. Bargaining associations in the area are performing check-weighing and check-testing services for their members under their association check-off. In order to place such services on a market-wide basis, the market administrator should also provide them for producers not otherwise receiving services through a cooperative association. The additional service of providing market information to producers is carried on, to some extent, at present, by the cooperatives although detailed information regarding market prices, supplies, and the utilization of milk is not available to either the cooperative associations and their members or the independent producers.

An important phase of the marketing service program of the order is to furnish producers with correct market information. Efficiency in the production, utlization, and marketing of milk will be promoted by the dissemination of current information on a market-wide basis to all producers.

To enable the market administrator to furnish these marketing services, provision should be made for a maximum deduction of 5 cents per hundredweight with respect to receipts of milk from producers for whom he renders marketing services. If later experience indicates that marketing services can be performed at a lesser rate, provision is made for the Secretary to adjust the rate downward without the necessity of a hearing. In the event any qualified cooperative association of producers is determined by the market administrator to be performing such services for its members, handlers would be required to pay to the cooperative association such association dues as are authorized by its members.

l. Marketing area. Exception was taken by handlers and producers to that portion of the recommended decision concerning marketing area. As a result of such exceptions, a tentative decision was issued by the Department (21 F. R. 3023). In the tentative decision, it was proposed that the marketing area be extended beyond the territory proposed for extension in the recommended decision. The additional territory would include the parishes of St. Charles, Lafourche, Terrebonne and St. Tammany, all in the State of Louisiana. Interested persons were afforded an opportunity to file exceptions to the tentative decision.

As a result of such exceptions, it is concluded that the evidence in the record concerning competition between regulated and unregulated handlers in this area is inadequate. There is not sufficient information concerning the distribution of fluid milk by regulated handlers in each of these parishes. Therefore, the marketing area should not be extended to include these four parishes at this time.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Order of the Secretary directing that a referendum be conducted among the producers supplying milk to the New Orleans, Louisiana, marketing area; determination of a representative period and designation of an agent to conduct such referendum. Pursuant to section 8c (19) of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 608c (19)), it is hereby directed that a referendum be conducted among the producers (as defined in the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, marketing area) who, during the month of May 1956, were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area specified in the aforesaid order to determine whether such producers favor the issuance of an order amending the order, as amended, which is filed simultaneously herewith.

The month of May 1956 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the conduct of such referendum.

W. M. Costello is hereby designated agent of the Secretary to conduct such referendum in accordance with the procedure for the conduct of referenda to determine producer approval of milk marketing orders as published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on August 10, 1950 (15 F. R. 5177), such referendum to be completed on or before the 12th day from the date this referendum order is issued.

Marketing agreement and order, as amended. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled, respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, Marketing Area", and "Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, Marketing Area", which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions. These documents shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the attached order, as amended.

This decision filed at Washington, D. C., this 3d day of July 1956.

[SEAL] EARL L. BUTZ,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, Marketing Area

§ 942.0 Findings and determinations. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and each of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon a proposed tentative marketing agreement and order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, regulating the handling of milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, marketing area. (k) On or before the date specified publicly announce, and mail to each handler at his last known address a notice of the following:

(1) The 5th day of each month, the Class I milk price and the Class I butterfat differential, both for the current month, and the Class II milk price and the Class II butterfat differential, both for the preceding month;

CLASSIFICATION OF MILK

§ 942.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified. The skim milk and butterfat to be reported for fluid milk plants pusuant to § 942.30 (a) shall be classified each month by the market administrator, pursuant to the provisions of §§ 942.41 through 942.45.

§ 942.41 Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 942.42 through 942.45, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat; (1) disposed of from the plant in the form of fluid milk products, except those classified pursuant to paragraph (b) (3) and (4) of this section, and (2) not specifically accounted for as Class II milk.

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat: (1) Used to produce any product other than a fluid milk product; (2) contained in inventories of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month; (3) disposed of as dumped skim milk; (4) disposed of as skim milk and used for livestock feed; and (5) in shrinkage not to exceed an amount calculated as follows: (i) 0.5 percent of milk received from producers and disposed of as whole milk, skim milk or cream in bulk tank lots; (ii) 1.5 percent of the skim milk or butterfat received as bulk tank lots of milk and disposed of in a form other than bulk tank lots of milk: Provided, That any disposition of milk in bulk tank lots shall be assigned to receipts of milk in such form; and (iii) 2.0 percent of milk received from producers and disposed of in a form other than bulk tank lots of whole milk, skim milk or cream.

§ 942.42 Responsibility of handlers. All skim milk and butterfat to be classified pursuant to this part shall be classified as Class I milk, unless the handler who first receives such skim milk and butterfat establishes to the satisfaction of the market administrator that it should be classified as Class II milk.

§ 942.43 Transfers. Skim milk or butterfat disposed of by a handler during any month in fluid form as milk, skim milk or cream by transfer to another plant shall be classified as follows:

(a) As Class I milk if transferred to the fluid milk plant of another handler (except a producer-handler), unless utilization in a product specified in § 942.41 (b) is mutually indicated in writing to the market administrator by both handlers on or before the 5th day after the end of the month in which such transfer occurred: Provided, That the amount of skim milk or butterfat shall not exceed the total skim milk or butterfat so used during the month by the transferee-handler: And provided further, That if either or both handlers have received other source milk, skim milk and butterfat so transferred shall be classified at both plants so as to return the highest available utilization to milk received from producers;

(b) As Class I milk if transferred to a producer-handler;

(c) As Class I milk if transferred to any plant other than a fluid milk plant unless:

(1) The handler claims utilization in a product(s) specified in § 942.41 (b);

(2) The operator of such nonfluid milk plant maintains books and records showing the receipts and utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(3) The utilization of skim milk and butterfat at such nonfluid milk plant in fluid milk products is less than the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, received from the transferor-handler(s) and from dairy farmers whom the market administrator determines constitute the regular source of supply for fluid use in such plant, in which case the skim milk and butterfat transferred shall be assigned to the remaining uses of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, during such month, for which producers receive the highest rate of return after the similar assignment of the receipts of skim milk and butterfat from such dairy farmers.

§ 942.44 Computation of skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and other obvious errors, the reports submitted by each handler pursuant to § 942.30 and compute the total pounds of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in Class I milk and Class II milk at all of the fluid milk plants of such handler.

§ 942.45 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified. (a) The pounds of skim milk remaining in each class after making the following computations each month with respect to the fluid milk plant(s) of each handler, shall be the pounds of skim milk in such class allocated to the producer milk of such handler for such month.

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the shrinkage of skim milk in producer milk classified as Class II milk pursuant to § 942.41 (b);

(2) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the remaining pounds of skim milk received in other source milk: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk to be subtracted exceed the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(3) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk in such inventory exceed the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the balance shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class I milk;

(4) Subtract the pounds of skim milk in fluid milk products received from fluid milk plants of other handlers from the pounds of skim milk remaining in the class to which assigned, pursuant to § 942.43 (a);

(5) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagragh (1) of this paragraph;

(6) If the pounds of skim milk remaining in all classes exceed the pounds of skim milk in milk received from producers, substract such excess from the pounds of skim milk remaining in the various classes in series beginning with Class II milk. Any amount so subtracted shall be known as "overage".

(b) Determine the pounds of butterfat in each class to be allocated to producer milk in the manner prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section for determining the allocation of skim milk to producer milk.

(c) Add the pounds of skim milk and the pounds of butterfat in each class calculated pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section and determine the percentage of butterfat in the producer milk allocated to each class.

MINIMUM PRICES

§ 942.50 Basic formula price. The highest of the prices computed pursuant to paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section, rounded to the nearest whole cent, shall be known as the basic formula price.

(a) Divide the average of the basic (or field) prices per hundredweight reported to have been paid or to be paid for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department of Agriculture by 3.5 and multiply by 4.0:

(c) The average of the basic (or field) prices reported to have been paid or to be paid per hundredweight for milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department of Agriculture:

§ 942.51 Class prices. Subject to the provisions of §§ 942.52 and 942.53, the class prices per hundredweight of milk containing 4.0 percent butterfat shall be determined for each month as follows:

(a) Class I milk price. The Class I milk price shall be the basic formula price for the preceding month, plus $2.20 during the months of March through August, and $2.65 in all other months, plus or minus a supply-demand adjustment calculated for each month as follows: Provided, That from the effective date hereof through February 1957, the Class I milk price shall be the basic formula price for the preceding month plus $2.65: And provided further, That from the effective date hereof through February 1957, such supply-demand adjustment shall not apply:

(1) Divide the total receipts of producer milk in the two immediately preceding months by the total gross volume of Class I milk (less interhandler transfers) for such months, multiply the result by 100, and round to the nearest whole number. The result shall be known as the "current supply-demand relationship."

(2) Compute a net deviation percentage by subtracting from the "current supply-demand relationship" computed pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, the "representative supply-demand index" shown below:

Delivery period for which the Class I price is computed	Delivery periods used to compute relationship	Representative supply-demand index
January	October-November	118
February	November-December	123
March	December-January	128
April	January-February	133
May	February-March	136
June	March-April	138
July	April-May	137
August	May-June	134
September	June-July	131
October	July-August	127
November	August-September	121
December	September-October	113

(3) Determine the amount of the supply-demand adjustment from the following schedule:

Net deviation (percentage points):	Adjustment amount (cents)
−24 or more	+49
−21 or −22	+43
−18 or −19	+37
−15 or −16	+31
−12 or −13	+25
−9 or −10	+19
−6 or −7	+13
−3 or −4	+7
−1, 0, or +1	0
+3 or +4	−7
+6 or +7	−13
+9 or +10	−19
+12 or +13	−25
+15 or +16	−31
+18 or +19	−37
+21 or +22	−43
+24 or more	−49

In case the net deviation percentage does not fall within the tabulated brackets, the adjustment amount shall be determined by the adjacent net deviation bracket which is the same or nearest to the bracket used in the previous month.

(b) Class II milk price. The Class II milk price shall be the price determined pursuant to § 942.50 (c) plus 15 cents during the months February through August, and plus 25 cents during all other months: Provided: That, in no case shall such price exceed the basic formula price.

§ 942.52 Butterfat differentials to handlers. For milk containing more or less than 4.0 percent butterfat, the class prices calculated pursuant to § 942.51 shall be increased or decreased, respectively, for each one-tenth percent butterfat at the appropriate rate determined as follows:

(a) Class I price. Multiply the Chicago butter price for the previous month by 0.12;

(b) Class II price. Multiply the Chicago butter price for the month by 0.11.

§ 942.53 Location differentials to handlers. (a) For that milk which is received from producers at a fluid milk plant situated other than in the zone located 61–70 miles from the City Hall in New Orleans, the price specified in § 942.51 (a) shall be adjusted at the rate set forth in the following schedule according to the location of the fluid milk plant where such milk is received from producers:

Zones measured from the City Hall, New Orleans, La. (miles):	Rate per hundredweight (cents)
Not more than 20	+28.0
More than 20 but not more than 30	+8.0
More than 30 but not more than 40	+6.0

More than 50 but not more than 60	+2.0
More than 60 but not more than 70	0.0
More than 70 but not more than 80	−2.0
More than 80 but not more than 90	−4.0
More than 90 but not more than 100	−6.0
More than 100 but not more than 110	−7.0
Each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof	−1.5

(b) The market administrator shall, from time to time, determine and publicly announce the zone location of each plant of each handler, according to the railroad mileage distance between such country plant and the railroad terminal in New Orleans, or according to the highway mileage distance between such plant and the City Hall in New Orleans, whichever is shorter.

(c) For the purpose of this section, the skim milk and butterfat classified as Class I during each month shall be considered to have been first received from producers at such handler's plant located in the 0–20 miles zone, then that skim milk and butterfat which was received from producers at such handler's plant in series beginning with plants located in the zone nearest to New Orleans.

§ 942.54 Use of equivalent prices. If, for any reason, a price specified in this part for use in computing class prices or for other purposes is not reported or published in the manner described in this part, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to or comparable with the price which is specified.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 942.60 Producer-handlers. Sections 942.40 through 942.45, 942.50 through 942.53, and 942.70 through 942.74; 942.80 through 942.84; and 942.90 through 942.94 shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 942.61 Milk subject to another Federal order. Milk received at the plant of a handler, the handling of which the Secretary determines to be subject to the pricing and payment provisions of any other Federal milk marketing agreement or order issued pursuant to the Act for any fluid milk marketing area shall not be subject to the pricing and payment provisions of this part.

DETERMINATION OF UNIFORM PRICE

§ 942.70 Net obligation of handlers. The net obligation of each handler for producer milk received at his fluid milk plant(s) during each month shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator as follows:

(a) Multiply the pounds of such milk in each class by the applicable class price;

(b) Add together the resulting amounts;

(c) Add the amounts computed by multiplying the pounds of overage deducted from each class by the applicable class price;

(d) Add or subtract, as the case may be, an amount necessary to correct errors discovered by the market administrator in the verification of reports of such handler of his receipts and utilization of skim milk and butterfat for previous months; and

(e) Add the amount computed by multiplying the difference between the appropriate Class II price for the preceding month and the appropriate Class I price for the current month by the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat remaining in Class II milk after the calculations pursuant to § 942.45 (a) (4), and (b) for the preceding month, or the hundredweight of skim milk and butterfat subtracted from Class I milk pursuant to § 942.45 (a) (3), and (b) for the current month, whichever is less, respectively.

§ 942.71 Computation of uniform prices for handlers. For each of the months of September through February, the market administrator shall compute a uniform price for the producer milk received by each handler as follows:

(a) Adjust the amount computed pursuant to § 942.70 by the total of the location differentials to be made pursuant to § 942.74;

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat test of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers and multiplying the result by the total hundredweight of producer milk;

(c) Add the amount represented by any deductions made for eliminating fractions of a cent in computing the uniform price(s) for such handler for the preceding month; and

(d) Divide the resulting amount by the total hundredweight of producer milk received by such handler. The result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the unform price for such handler for milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, f. o. b. 61–70 mile zone.

§ 942.72 Computation of the uniform prices for base and excess milk for each handler. For each of the months of March through August, the market administrator shall compute for each handler with respect to his producer milk a uniform price for base and excess milk as follows:

(a) Adjust the amount computed pursuant to § 942.70 by the total of the location differentials computed pursuant to § 942.74;

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers and multiplying the result by the total hundreweight of producer milk;

(c) Add the amount represented by any deductions made for eliminating fractions of a cent in computing the uniform price(s) for such handler for the preceding month;

(d) Subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (e) of this section, compute the value of excess milk received by such handler from producers by multiplying the quantity of such milk by the Class II price;

(e) Compute the value of base milk received by such handler from producers by subtracting the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section: Provided, That if such resulting value is greater than an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of such base milk by the Class I price, such value in excess thereof shall be added to the value computed pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section to the extent that such excess price shall not exceed the base price as calculated herein. Any additional value remaining shall be prorated on a volume basis between excess and base milk;

(f) Divide the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (e) of this section by the hundredweight of base milk in producer milk. This result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for base milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, f. o. b. 61–70 mile zone; and

(g) Divide the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section by the hundredweight of excess milk in producer milk. This result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for excess milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content.

§ 942.73 Butterfat differential to producers. The applicable uniform prices to be paid pursuant to § 942.80 to producers delivering milk to each handler shall be increased or decreased for each one-tenth of one percent which the butterfat content of his milk is above or below 4.0 percent, respectively, at the rate determined by multiplying the pounds of butterfat in the producer milk of such handler allocated to Class I and Class II milk pursuant to § 942.45 (b) by the respective butterfat differential for each class, dividing the sum of such values by the total pounds of such butterfat and rounding the resulting figure to the nearest half cent.

§ 942.74 Location differential to producers. Each handler, in making payments pursuant to § 942.80, shall adjust the uniform price of base milk during the months March through August, and of all milk during each of the months September through February for each producer with respect to all such milk received from such producer at a fluid milk plant by the amount per hundredweight pursuant to § 942.53 (a).

PAYMENTS

§ 942.80 Time and method of payments to producers. (a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler shall make payment to each producer from whom milk is received during the month as follows:

(1) On or before the last day of each month to each producer who did not discontinue shipping milk to such handler before the 25th day of the month, an amount equal to not less than the Class II milk price for the preceding month multiplied by the hundredweight of milk received from such producer during the first 15 days of the month, less proper deductions authorized by such producer to be made from payments due pursuant to this paragraph;

(2) On or before the 15th day of the following month, each handler shall make payment to each producer for milk which was received from him during the month at not less than the uniform price computed pursuant to § 942.71 for the months September through February, and at not less than the uniform price for base milk computed pursuant to § 942.72 with respect to base milk received from such producer, and at not less than the uniform price for excess milk computed pursuant to § 942.72 with respect to excess milk received from such producer for the months March through August, subject to the following adjustments: (i) The butterfat differential pursuant to § 942.73, (ii) the location differential pursuant to § 942.74, (iii) less payments made to such producer pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, (iv) less marketing services deductions made pursuant to § 942.82, (v) plus or minus adjustments for errors made in previous payments to such producer, and (vi) less proper deductions authorized in writing by such producer.

(b) In the case of a cooperative association which the market administrator determines is authorized by its members to collect payment for their milk, and which has so requested any handler in writing, such handler shall, on or before the 2d day prior to the date on which payments are due individual producers, pay the cooperative association for milk received during the month from the producer members of such association as determined by the market administrator an amount equal to not less than the amount due such producer members as determined pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Each handler shall furnish the person to whom payment is to be made pursuant to this section with the following information:

(1) On or before the 25th day of the month, the pounds of milk received from the producer or from each member of the cooperative association during the first 15 days of such month;

(2) On or before the 7th day of the following month to a cooperative association for its individual members, or on or before the 15th day of the following month to producers, (i) the pounds of milk received each day and the total for the month, together with the butterfat content of such milk, (ii) the pounds of base milk received, (iii) the amount (or rate) and nature of deductions made from payments, and (iv) the amount and nature of payments due pursuant to § 942.81.

§ 942.81 Adjustment of accounts. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any reports, books, records, or accounts or other verification discloses errors resulting in moneys due (a) the market administrator from a handler, (b) a handler from the market administrator, or (c) any producer or cooperative association from a handler, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any amount so due and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payments set forth in the provisions under which such error occurred.

§ 942.82 Marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler, in making payments to producers for milk (other than milk of his own production) pursuant to § 942.80, shall deduct 5 cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding 5 cents per hundredweight, as may be prescribed by the Secretary, and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of the month. Such money shall be used by the market administrator to provide market information and to check the accuracy of the testing and weighing of their milk for producers who are not receiving such service from a cooperative association;

(b) In the case of producers who are members of a cooperative association which the Secretary has determined is actually performing the services set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall (in lieu of the deduction specified in paragraph (a) of this section), make such deductions from the payments to be made to such producers as may be authorized by the membership agreement or marketing contract between such cooperative association and such producers, and on or before the 13th day after the end of each month, pay such deductions to the cooperative association of which such producers are members, furnishing a statement showing the amount of any such deductions and the amount of milk for which such deduction was computed for each producer.

§ 942.83 Expense of administration. As his pro rata share of the expense of administration of this part, each handler shall pay to the market administrator, on or before the 15th day after the end of the month, 4 cents per hundredweight or such lesser amount as the Secretary may, from time to time, prescribe, to be announced by the market administrator on or before the 10th day after the end of such month, with respect to all skim milk and butterfat received by such handler, during such delivery period from producers, including that received from such handler's own farm production.

§ 942.84 Termination of obligations. The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligations under this part for the payment of money irrespective of when such obligation arose.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the calendar month during which the market administrator receives the handler's utilization report on the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to an association of producers, the name of such producer(s) or association of producers; or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books and records required by this part to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market adminstrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the calendar month following the month during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or willful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the calendar month during which the payment (including deduction or setoff by the market administrator) was made by the handler, if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

§ 942.90 Base-operating period. The base-operating period shall be the months of March through August.

§ 942.91 Base-forming period. The base-forming period for each year shall be the months of October through February immediately preceding the base-operating period.

§ 942.92 Determination of daily base. The daily base of each producer shall be an amount calculated by the handler(s) to whom such producer delivered milk during the base-forming period, subject to verification by the market administrator, as follows: Divide the total pounds of milk received from such producer during the base-forming period by the number of days in such period.

§ 942.93 Base rules. The following rules shall apply in connection with the establishment and assignment of bases:

(a) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section, the market administrator shall assign a base as calculated pursuant to § 942.92 to each person for whose account producer milk was delivered to fluid milk plants during the months of October through February.

(b) An entire base shall be transferred from a person holding such base to any other person effective as of the end of any month during which an application for such transfer is received by the market administrator, such application to be signed by the baseholder, or his heirs, and by the person to whom such base is to be transferred: Provided, That if a base is held jointly, the entire base shall be transferable only upon the receipt of such application signed by all joint holders or their heirs, and by the person to whom such base is to be transferred.

§ 942.94 Announcement of established bases. On or before March 31 of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer, and the handler receiving milk from such producer, of the daily base established by such producer.

EFFECTIVE TIME, SUSPENSION, OR TERMINATION

§ 942.100 Effective time. The provisions of this part, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated.

§ 942.101 Suspension or termination. The Secretary shall, whenever he finds that any or all provisions of this part, or any amendment thereto, obstruct or do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act, terminate or suspend the operation of any or all provisions of this part or any amendment thereto.

§ 942.102 Continuing obligations. If, upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, or any amendment thereto, there are any obligations thereunder the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any person (including the market administrator), such further acts shall be performed notwithstanding such suspension or termination.

§ 942.103 Liquidation. Upon the suspension or termination of any or all of the provisions of this part, the market administrator, or such other liquidating agent as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including accounts receivable, and execute and deliver all assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated, all assets, books, and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If, upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidating and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 942.110 Agents. The Secretary may, by designation in writing, name any officer or employee of the United States to act as his agent and representative in connection with any of the provisions of this part.

§ 942.111 Separability of provisions. If any provision of this part, or its application to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the application of such provision, and of the remaining provisions of this part, to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

DOMESTIC DATES PRODUCED OR PACKED IN LOS ANGELES AND RIVERSIDE COUNTIES CALIFORNIA

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that there is being considered a proposed rule to amend the administrative rules and regulations, as amended (20 F. R. 6486; 20 F. R. 7988), issued pursuant to Marketing Agreement No. 127 and Marketing Order No. 103 (20 F. R. 5056) (hereinafter referred to as "agreement and order") regulating the handling of domestic dates produced or packed in Los Angeles and Riverside Counties of California, effective under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.).

Consideration will be given to any data, views, or arguments pertaining thereto which are filed in triplicate with the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., and received not later than the close of business on the tenth day after the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER, except that, if said tenth day after publication should fall on a legal holiday, Saturday, or Sunday, such submission must be received by the Director not later than the close of business on the next following business day.

The proposed amendment of the rules and regulations is in the nature of an interpretation of the term "Marketable dates", as defined in § 1003.12 of the agreement and order. Said definition reads as follows: "'Marketable dates' means, for any crop year, whole or pitted dates which are certified as equal to or higher than the minimum grade permitted to be handled by the regulations imposed by this part."

The Date Administrative Committee (hereinafter referred to as "committee"), the administrative agency for agreement and order operations, in the course of its deliberations with respect to its marketing policy for dates during the 1956–57 crop year, has encountered some difficulties in interpreting this definition.

The difficulty stems from the fact that the agreement and order provide for two types of grade regulations on the shipment of whole and pitted dates: (1) Minimum standards under § 1003.39, and (2) additional grade regulation under § 1003.40. The minimum standards under § 1003.39 are U. S. Grade C of the United States Standards for Grades of Dates (20 F. R. 5755), except that other minimum standards of quality may be prescribed by the Secretary upon the recommendation of the committee. The additional grade regulations under § 1003.40, which may raise the quality requirements for whole date shipments are not spelled out in the order, but are invoked by the Secretary, after recommendation by the committee, whenever such action would tend to effectuate program objectives. The question that has been raised regarding the definition of marketable dates is whether such term includes all dates which meet the minimum standard requirements or only those which meet any additional grade regulations as well. There is a need for early resolution of this question, since the need for and extent of volume regulations under the agreement and order are based upon the estimated available supply of marketable dates, and handlers' withholding obligations are expressed in terms of marketable dates.

The committee, at a meeting held on June 15, 1956, approved a resolution requesting that the Department clarify the definition so that all dates which meet the minimum standards prescribed under § 1003.39 of the agreement and order would be marketable dates. This interpretation would permit handlers to satisfy withholding obligations with any dates meeting the requirements of § 1003.39 whenever the volume regulation provisions of the agreement and order are invoked, regardless of whether or not additional grade regulations under § 1003.40 were imposed on the shipment of whole dates. It would also be more equitable to handlers since their withholding obligations would not change in the event additional grade regulations are imposed after the beginning of a crop year.

The proposed rule is as follows:

The administrative rules and regulations, as amended (20 F. R. 6486; 20 F. R. 7968) issued under Marketing Agreement No. 127 and Marketing Order No. 103 (20 F. R. 5056) regulating the handling of domestic dates produced or packed in Los Angeles and Riverside Counties of California, are hereby further amended as set forth hereinafter.

A new heading "Interpretations" is inserted between the present headings "Definitions" and "General", and a new § 1003.106 under "Interpretations" is added, reading as follows:

§ 1003.106 Marketable dates. The term "marketable dates", as defined in § 1003.12, is hereby interpreted to mean whole or pitted dates which are certified as equal to or higher than the minimum standards prescribed in or pursuant to the provisions of § 1003.39.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 5th day of July 1956.

Acting Director,
Fruit and Vegetable Division.

CIGAR-FILLER TOBACCO, AND CIGAR-FILLER AND BINDER TOBACCO

ESTABLISHMENT OF FARM ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR CIGAR-FILLER AND BINDER (TYPES 42–44, 51–55) TOBACCO FOR 1957–58 MARKETING YEAR

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority contained in the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301, 1312, 1313), regulations are being prepared governing the establishment of farm acreage allotments and normal yields for the 1957 crop of cigar-filler and binder (types 42–44, 51–55, inclusive) tobacco.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, includes types 42–44 and 51–55 in the definition of cigar-filler and cigar-binder tobacco, and only type 41 in the definition of cigar-filler tobacco. Since growers of cigar-filler (type 41) tobacco disapproved quotas on the 1956 crop which was the third consecutive year subsequent to 1952 for which quotas were disapproved, no national marketing quota will be proclaimed for such kind of tobacco for the marketing years 1957–58 and 1958–59 unless prior to November 10 of the marketing year one-fourth or more of the farmers engaged in production of cigar-filler (type 41) tobacco harvested in the calendar year in which such marketing year begins petition the Secretary, in accordance with prescribed regulations (21 F. R. 3865) to proclaim a national marketing quota for each of the next three succeeding marketing years.

Cigar-filler and binder (types 42–44, 51–55, inclusive) tobacco growers favored marketing quotas for the 1954–55, 1955–56, and 1956–57 marketing years (18 F. R. 8474). The applicability of the regulations to be issued for cigar-filler and binder (types 42–44, 51–55) tobacco will be contingent upon the proclamation of a national marketing quota for such kind of tobacco for the 1957–58, 1958–59, and 1959–60 marketing years pursuant to section 312 of the act, as amended (7 U. S. C. A. 1312), and upon approval of quotas by growers voting in a referendum. Consideration will be given to establishing a date for such referendum.

It is contemplated that the regulations for cigar-filler and binder (types 42–44, 51–55) tobacco will provide for the establishment of farm acreage allotments and the issuance of notices of allotments and marketing quotas by County Committees substantially the same as provided with respect to the 1956 crop (20 F. R. 6059), except as stated below.

1. The entire § 723.716 of the 1956 regulations providing for determination of base acreages and preliminary allotments would be revised to provide as follows:

The 1957 preliminary acreage allotment for an old tobacco farm shall be the 1956 farm acreage allotment with the following exceptions:

(a) If the harvested acreage (as that term is explained in paragraph (b) of this section) of tobacco on the farm in each of the three years 1954–56 was less than 75 percent of the farm acreage allotment for each of such respective years, the preliminary allotment shall be the larger of (1) the largest acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in any one of such three years, or (2) the average acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in the five years 1952–56: Provided, That any 1957 preliminary allotment shall not exceed the 1956 farm acreage allotment or be less than 0.01 acre.

(b) For the purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the 1956 harvested acreage shall include any acreage on the farm applicable to the kind of tobacco involved which is devoted in 1956 to participation in the Acreage Reserve Program or the Conservation Reserve Program. Also, for such purposes, the 1956 harvested acreage shall be deemed to be the 1956 farm acreage allotment in any case in which (1) the tobacco planted acreage in 1956 was less than the acreage allotment for such farm, (2) the owner or operator of such farm notified the county committee not later than August 1, 1956, that he desired to preserve such allotment; and (3) no quantity of excess tobacco produced on the farm prior to January 1, 1956, and carried over or stored to avoid payment of penalty, has been reduced because the 1956 acreage allotment was not fully planted.

(c) If the county committee determines for any farm (except farms to which paragraph (a) of this section is applicable and farms subject to reduction in the 1957 acreage allotment for violation of marketing quota regulations) that the 1956 acreage allotment does not reflect for the farm the past acreage of tobacco (excluding tobacco acreage harvested in excess of the 1955 and 1956 acreage allotments) with due allowance made for drought, flood, hail, other abnormal weather conditions, plant bed, and other diseases; land, labor, and equipment available for the production of tobacco; crop rotation practices, and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco; the county committee shall determine a preliminary allotment for such farm based on such aforestated factors which is fair and equitable in relation to the preliminary allotments for other old farms in the community: Provided, That the total acreage of all the 1957 preliminary acreage allotments determined under this paragraph for farms in any county shall not exceed the total acreage of the 1956 acreage allotments for such farms.

(d) If the county and State committees determine that a farm has been retired from agricultural production no 1957 preliminary acreage allotment (or 1957 farm tobacco acreage allotment) shall be determined for such farm: Provided, That this paragraph shall not preclude the determination of a preliminary acreage allotment for an old farm returned to agricultural production.

(e) The 1956 farm acreage allotment as used in this section shall mean the correctly determined 1956 farm acreage allotment prior to reduction, if any, because of a violation of the tobacco marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year.

2. The definitions of "new farm", "old farm", and "cropland" would read as follows:

(a) "New farm" means a farm on which tobacco will be harvested in 1957 for the first time since 1951. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is a new farm.

(b) "Old farm" means a farm on which tobacco was harvested in one or more of the five years 1952 through 1956. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is an old farm.

(c) "Cropland" means farm land which in 1956 was tilled or was in regular crop rotation, including also land which was established in permanent vegetative cover, other than trees, since 1953 and which was classified as cropland at the time of seeding, but excluding (1) bearing orchards and vineyards (except the acreage of cropland therein), (2) plowable noncrop open pasture, and (3) any land which constitutes or will constitute, if tillage is continued, an erosion hazard to the community.

3. Consideration is being given to withholding no acreage reserve for adjustments of 1957 farm acreage allotments, but to provide that an acreage reserve from the State acreage allotment be made for correcting errors and for overlooked farms.

4. Provision will be made for determining farm normal yields per acre.

5. The 1956 provision that a new farm allotment shall not be approved for any farm which was part of another farm during the past five years for which an old farm allotment was established, would be restated substantially as follows:

The farm or any portion thereof shall not have been a part of another farm during any of the five years 1952–56 for which an old farm tobacco acreage allotment was determined, except that this provision shall not of itself make a farm ineligible for a new farm allotment (a) if it is the same farm or a portion of the same farm for which an old farm allotment was cancelled since 1951 due to no tobacco being produced thereon for five years, or (b) if it was a portion of an old farm during any of the years 1952–56 and at time of division of the farm contained cropland but received no part of the allotment due (1) to division of the allotment on a contribution basis, or (2) to agreement and approval of all interested parties as provided in the section of the regulations governing divisions and combinations of allotments.

6. The provisions governing determination of new farm tobacco acreage allotments would provide, as provided by law, that production of tobacco on a farm in 1955 or 1956 for which, in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment, respectively, was determined shall not be deemed qualifying tobacco experience for any producer.

7. The acreage available for allotments to new farms would be one-half of one percent of the 1957–58 national marketing quota converted to acreage. For 1956, the comparable percentage was one percent.

8. The section on farms divided or combined would read as follows:

(a) If land operated as a single farm in 1956 will be operated in 1957 as two or more farms, or is divided into two or more tracts pursuant to a legal transfer of ownership or possession which tracts may or may not be operated as farms, the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined or which otherwise would have been determined for the entire farm shall be apportioned among the tracts in the same proportion as the acreage of cropland available for the production of tobacco in each such tract in 1956 bore to the total number of acres of cropland available for the production of tobacco on the entire farm in such year, except that, upon recommendation of the county committee and with State Committee approval and agreement of the interested parties in writing, the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined or which otherwise would have been determined for the entire farm may be apportioned among the tracts (1) in the same proportion as the five-year average acreage of tobacco harvested on each such tract during the years 1952–56 bore to the five-year average acreage of tobacco harvested on the entire farm during 1952–56 or (2) if the farm to be divided in 1957 consists of two or more tracts which were separate and distinct farms, or distinct portions of such farms, before being combined for 1956, in the same proportion that each contributed to the farm acreage allotment: Provided, That with the recommendation of the county committee and approval of the State committee and with the written agreement of all interested persons, the tobacco acreage allotment determined for a tract under the provisions of this paragraph may be increased or decreased by not more than the larger of one-hundredth acre or 10 percent of the 1957 acreage allotment determined for the entire farm with corresponding increases or decreases made in the acreage allotment apportioned to the other tract or tracts.

(b) If two or more farms operated separately in 1956 are combined and operated in 1957 as a single farm, the 1957 allotment shall be the sum of the 1957 allotments determined for each of the farms comprising the combination.

(c) If a farm is to be divided in 1957 in settling an estate the allotment may be divided among the various tracts in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section, or on such other basis as the State committee determines will result in equitable farm allotments.

9. A section entitled "Notice of Farm Acreage Allotments" would be included and would read substantially as follows:

(a) The County Committee shall mail a written notice of the farm acreage allotment and marketing quota to the operator of each farm shown by the records of the county committee to be entitled to such allotment. Insofar as practical all allotment notices shall be mailed in time to be received prior to the date of any tobacco marketing quota referendum. The notice to the operator of the farm shall constitute notice to all persons who as operator, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper are interested in the farm for which the allotment is established. A copy of such notice, containing thereon the date of mailing, shall be kept among the records of the county committee, and, upon request, a copy of such notice certified as true and correct shall be furnished without charge to any person interested in the farm in respect to which the allotment is established.

(b) If the records of the county committee indicate that the allotment established for any farm may be changed because of (1) a violation of the marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year, (2) removal of the farm from agricultural production, (3) division of the farm, or (4) combination of the farm, no notice of such allotment shall be mailed until the proper allotment is determined for the farm by the county committee with the approval of the State committee: Provided, That the notice of allotment for any farm shall be mailed at least thirty days prior to the beginning of the normal planting season for the county in which the farm is located as determined by the State committee.

(c) If the county committee determines with the approval of the State committee that the official written notice of the farm acreage allotment issued for any farm erroneously stated the acreage allotment to be larger than the correct allotment, and the county committee also determines that the error was not so gross as to place the operator on notice thereof, and that the operator, relying upon such notice and acting in good faith, planted an acreage of tobacco in excess of the correct farm acreage allotment, the acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice shall be deemed to be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year, provided the acreage of tobacco harvested from the farm is not in excess of the acreage shown on the erroneous notice. In the event the acreage of tobacco harvested exceeds the farm acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice, the acreage allotment for the farm as correctly determined and shown on a revised notice of farm acreage allotment and marketing quota shall be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year.

10. The time for filing an application for a new farm allotment would be no later than March 11, 1957.

Prior to the final adoption and issuance of these regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Tobacco Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. All submissions must be postmarked not later than ten days after the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER in order to be considered.

Issued at Washington, D. C. this 3d day of July 1956.

[SEAL] WALTER C. BERGER,
Acting Administrator.

ESTABLISHMENT OF TOBACCO FARM ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR 1957–58 MARKETING YEAR

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority contained in the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301, 1312, 1313, 1375), regulations are being prepared governing the establishment of farm acreage allotments and normal yields for marketing quotas to be in effect during the 1957–58 marketing year for burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia sun-cured tobacco. It is proposed that such regulations pertaining to fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia sun-cured tobacco be combined under Part 725 with the regulations for burley and flue-cured tobacco, and that Part 726 be discontinued for the 1957–58 and subsequent marketing years.

Pursuant to the provisions of section 312 of the act, as amended (7 U. S. C. A. 1312), the Secretary of Agriculture has proclaimed marketing quotas for the marketing year 1957–58 for burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia sun-cured tobacco, and such marketing quotas have been approved by growers voting in referenda (21 F. R. 668, 20 F. R. 6543, 20 F. R. 809). In accordance with section 312 of the act, the amounts of such marketing quotas will be determined and announced, and under the provisions of section 313 of the act (7 U. S. C. 1313), such quotas will be apportioned among the States and converted into State acreage allotments.

It is proposed that the regulations governing the establishment of farm acreage allotments and normal yields for burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia sun-cured tobacco for the 1957–58 marketing year provide for the establishment of farm acreage allotments and the issuance of notices of allotments and marketing quotas by county committees substantially the same as provided by the regulations in effect for the 1956–57 marketing year (20 F. R. 4571, 6066; 21 F. R. 1577, 1578), except as described below.

1. The section on determining preliminary allotments for old farms would read:

The 1957 preliminary acreage allotment for an old tobacco farm shall be the 1956 farm acreage allotment with the following exceptions:

(a) If the harvested acreage (as that term is explained in paragraph (c) of this section) of flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured or Virginia sun-cured tobacco on the farm in each of the three years 1954–56 was less than 75 percent of the farm acreage allotment for each of such respective years, the preliminary allotment shall be the larger of (1) the largest acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in any one of such three years, or (2) the average acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in the five years 1952–56: Provided, That any 1957 preliminary allotment shall not exceed the 1956 farm acreage allotment or be less than 0.01 acre.

(b) If the harvested acreage (as that term is explained in paragraph (c) of this section) of burley tobacco on the farm in each of the five years 1952–56 was less than 50 percent of the farm acreage allotment for each of such respective years, the 1957 preliminary allotment shall be the largest acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in any one of such five years, but not less than 0.01 acre.

(c) For the purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, the 1956 harvested acreage shall include any acreage on the farm applicable to the kind of tobacco involved which is devoted in 1956 to participation in the Acreage Reserve Program or the Conservation Reserve Program. Also, for such purposes, the 1956 harvested acreage shall be deemed to be the 1956 farm acreage allotment in any case, except involving flue-cured tobacco, in which (1) the tobacco planted acreage in 1956 was less than the acreage allotment for such farm, (2) the owner or operator of such farm notified the county committee not later than August 1, 1956, that he desired to preserve such allotment; and (3) no quantity of excess tobacco produced on the farm prior to January 1, 1956, and carried over or stored to avoid payment of penalty, has been reduced because the 1956 acreage allotment was not fully planted.

(d) If the county committee determines for any farm (except farms to which paragraph (a) or (b) of this section is applicable and farms subject to reduction in the 1957 acreage allotment for violation of marketing quota regulations) that the 1956 acreage allotment does not reflect for the farm the past acreage of tobacco (excluding tobacco acreage harvested in excess of the 1955 and 1956 acreage allotments) with due allowance made for drought, flood, hail, other abnormal weather conditions, plant bed, and other diseases; land, labor, and equipment available for the production of tobacco; crop rotation practices, and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco; the county committee shall determine a preliminary allotment for such farm based on such aforestated factors which is fair and equitable in relation to the preliminary allotments for other old farms in the community: Provided, That no 1957 burley tobacco preliminary allotment determined under this paragraph (d) shall be (1) less than the smallest of (i) the 1956 allotment, (ii) 0.5 acre, or (iii) ten percent of the cropland in the farm; (2) less than the 1956 allotment by more than one-tenth acre if the 1956 allotment was seven-tenths acre or less; or (3) less than six-tenths acre if the 1956 allotment was eight-tenths acre or more; And provided further, That the total acreage of all the 1957 preliminary acreage allotments determined under this paragraph for farms in any county shall not exceed the total acreage of the 1956 acreage allotments for such farms.

(e) If the county and State committees determine that a farm has been retired from agricultural production no 1957 preliminary acreage allotment (or 1957 farm tobacco acreage allotment) shall be determined for such farm: Provided, That this paragraph shall not preclude the determination of a preliminary acreage allotment for an old farm returned to agricultural production.

(f) The 1956 farm acreage allotment as used in this section shall mean the correctly determined 1956 farm acreage allotment prior to reduction, if any, because of a violation of the tobacco marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year.

2. The definitions of "new farm", "old farm", and "cropland" would read as follows:

(a) "New farm" means a farm on which tobacco will be harvested in 1957 for the first time since 1951. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is a new farm.

(b) "Old farm" means a farm on which tobacco was harvested in one or more of the five years 1952 through 1956. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is an old farm.

(c) "Cropland" means farm land which in 1956 was tilled or was in regular crop rotation, including also land which was established in permanent vegetative cover, other than trees, since 1953 and which was classified as cropland at the time of seeding, but excluding (1) bearing orchards and vineyards (except the acreage of cropland therein), (2) plowable noncrop open pasture, and (3) any land which constitutes or will constitute, if tillage is continued, an erosion hazard to the community.

3. As provided by law in the case of burley tobacco, the 1957 farm acreage allotment will not be less than the smallest of (a) the 1956 allotment, (b) five-tenths of one acre, or (c) 10 percent of the cropland in the farm; also, no 1956 burley tobacco farm acreage allotment of seven-tenths acre or less will be reduced more than one-tenth of an acre for 1957 and no 1956 burley tobacco farm acreage allotment of eight-tenths of an acre or more will be reduced below six-tenths of an acre.

4. No acreage reserve will be established for adjustments of 1957 farm acreage allotments, but an acreage reserve from the State acreage allotment will be made for correcting errors and for overlooked farms.

5. Provision will be made for determining farm normal yields per acre.

6. The 1956 provision providing that a new farm allotment shall not be approved for any farm which was part of another farm during the past five years for which an old farm allotment was established, would be restated as follows:

The farm or any portion thereof shall not have been a part of another farm during any of the five years 1952–56 for which an old farm tobacco acreage allotment was determined, except that this provision shall not of itself make a farm incligible for a new farm allotment (a) if it is the same farm or a portion of the same farm for which an old farm allotment was cancelled since 1951 due to no tobacco being produced thereon for five years, or (b) if it was a portion of an old farm during any of the years 1952–56 and at time of division of the farm contained cropland but received no part of the allotment due (1) to division of the allotment on a contribution basis, or (2) to agreement and approval of all interested parties as provided in the section of the regulations governing divisions and combinations of allotments.

7. The provisions governing determination of new farm tobacco acreage allotments would provide, as provided by law, that production of tobacco on a farm in 1955 or 1956 for which, in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment, respectively, was determined shall not be deemed qualifying tobacco experience for any producer.

8. The 1956–57 regulations for burley and flue-cured tobacco were amended (21 F. R. 1578) by the addition of a paragraph reading as follows: "If a farm to be divided in 1956 through acquisition of a part of the farm by a State or an agency thereof for agricultural research purposes, the entire allotment may be transferred to that portion of the farm not acquired by the State or an agency thereof."

It is not considered necessary that this provision be contained in the 1957–58 regulations.

9. The section on farms divided or combined would read as follows:

(a) If land operated as a single farm in 1956 will be operated in 1957 as two or more farms, or is divided into two or more tracts pursuant to a legal transfer of ownership or possession which tracts may or may not be operated as farms, the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined or which otherwise would have been determined for the entire farm shall be apportioned among the tracts in the same proportion as the acreage of cropland available for the production of tobacco in each such tract in 1956 bore to the total number of acres of cropland available for the production of tobacco on the entire farm in such year, except that the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined, or which otherwise would have been determined, for the entire farm shall, if the farm to be divided for 1957 consists of two or more tracts which were separate and distinct farms before being combined within the past five years (1952–56), be apportioned among the tracts in the same proportion that each contributed to the farm acreage allotment when combined: Provided, That with the recommendation of the county committee and approval of the State committee and with the written agreement of all interested persons, the tobacco acreage allotment determined for a tract under the provisions of this paragraph may be increased or decreased by not more than the larger of one-hundredth of an acre or 10 percent of the 1957 acreage allotment determined for the entire farm with corresponding increases or decreases made in the acreage allotment apportioned to the other tract or tracts.

(b) If two or more farms operated separately in 1956 are combined and operated in 1957 as a single farm, the 1957 allotment shall be the sum of the 1957 allotments determined for each of the farms comprising the combination, or, in the case of burley tobacco, if smaller, the allotment determined or which would have been determined for the farm as constituted in 1957.

(c) If a farm is to be divided in 1957 in settling an estate, the allotment may be divided among the various tracts in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section or on such other basis as the State committee determines will result in equitable allotments.

10. A section entitled "Notice of Farm Acreage Allotments" would be included and would read substantially as follows:

(a) The County Committee shall mail a written notice of the farm acreage allotment and marketing quota to the operator of each farm shown by the records of the county committee to be entitled to such allotment. Insofar as practical all allotment notices shall be mailed in time to be received prior to the date of any tobacco marketing quota referendum. The notice to the operator of the farm shall constitute notice to all persons who as operator, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper are interested in the farm for which the allotment is established. A copy of such notice, containing thereon the date of mailing, shall be kept among the records of the county committee, and, upon request, a copy of such notice certified as true and correct shall be furnished without charge to any person interested in the farm in respect to which the allotment is established.

(b) If the records of the county committee indicate that the allotment established for any farm may be changed because of (1) a violation of the marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year, (2) removal of the farm from agricultural production, (3) division of the farm, or (4) combination of the farm, no notice of such allotment shall be mailed until the proper allotment is determined for the farm by the county committee with the approval of the State committee: Provided, That the notice of allotment for any farm shall be mailed at least thirty days prior to the beginning of the normal planting season for the county in which the farm is located as determined by the State committee.

(c) If the county committee determines with the approval of the State committee that the official written notice of the farm acreage allotment issued for any farm erroneously stated the acreage allotment to be larger than the correct allotment, and the county committee also determines that the error was not so gross as to place the operator on notice thereof, and that the operator, relying upon such notice and acting in good faith, planted an acreage of tobacco in excess of the correct farm acreage allotment, the acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice shall be deemed to be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year, provided the acreage of tobacco harvested from the farm is not in excess of the acreage shown on the erroneous notice. In the event the acreage of tobacco harvested exceeds the farm acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice, the acreage allotment for the farm as correctly determined and shown on a revised notice of farm acreage allotment and marketing quota shall be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year.

11. The time for filing an application for a new farm allotment would be no later than February 15, 1957.

Prior to the final adoption and issuance of these regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Tobacco Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C. All submissions must be postmarked not later than ten days after the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER in order to be considered.

Issued at Washington, D. C. this 3d day of July 1956.

Acting Administrator.

CANNED FRUITS AND CANNED FRUIT JUICES; DEFINITIONS AND STANDARDS OF IDENTITY; QUALITY; AND FILL OF CONTAINER

NOTICE OF PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH A DEFINITION AND STANDARD OF IDENTITY FOR CANNED FIGS

In the matter of adopting a definition and standard of identity for canned figs:

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed by the National Canners Association, 1133 Twentieth Street NW., Washington 6, D. C., proposing the adoption of a definition and standard of identity for canned figs. Pursuant to the authority of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 401, 52 Stat. 1046, as amended by 68 Stat. 54; 21 U. S. C. 341), and in accordance with the authority delegated to him by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (20 F. R. 1996), the Commissioner of Food and Drugs invites all interested persons to submit their views in writing regarding the proposal of the above-named petitioner as published in this notice. Views and comments should be submitted in quintuplicate, addressed to the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, Health, Education, and Welfare Building, Washington 25, D. C., and should be posted prior to the thirtieth day following the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The proposal of the petitioner is as follows:

It is proposed that Part 27 be amended by adding the following new section:

§ 27.— Canned figs; definition and standard of identity; label statement of optional ingredients. (a) Canned figs is the food prepared from one of the optional fig ingredients specified in paragraph (b) of this section and one of the optional packing media specified in paragraph (c) of this section, to which citric acid or lemon juice or concentrated lemon juice is added, if necessary, in such quantity as to reduce the pH of the finished product to 4.9 or below. One or more of the following optional ingredients may be added to flavor, garnish, or season the canned figs:

(1) Spice.
(2) Flavoring, other than artificial flavoring.
(3) A vinegar.
(4) Unpeeled segments of citrus fruits.
(5) Salt.

Such food is sealed in a container and so processed by heat as to prevent spoilage.

(b) The optional fig ingredients referred to in paragraph (a) of this section are prepared from mature figs of the light or dark varieties. Figs (or whole figs), split figs (or broken figs), or any combination thereof are optional fig ingredients. A fig (whole fig) is one that is whole or only slightly cracked and retains its natural conformation without exposing the interior. A split fig (or broken fig) is one that is open to such an extent that the seed cavity is exposed, the shape of the fruit may be distorted, and the fruit may or may not be broken apart into entirely separate pieces.

(c) (1) The optional packing media referred to in paragraph (a) of this section are:

(i) Water.
(ii) Light sirup.
(iii) Heavy sirup.
(iv) Extra heavy sirup.

(2) Each of the packing media in subparagraph (1) (ii) through (iv) of this paragraph, inclusive, is prepared with a liquid ingredient and a saccharine ingredient. Water is the liquid ingredient from which packing media in subparagraph (1) (ii) to (iv) of this paragraph, inclusive, are prepared. The saccharine ingredient from which packing media in subparagraph (1) (ii) through (iv) of this paragraph, inclusive, are prepared is one of the following: Sugar; any combination of sugar and dextrose in which the weight of the solids of the dextrose used is not more than one-half the weight of the solids of the sugar used; any combination of sugar and corn sirup or glucose sirup in which the weight of the solids of the corn sirup or glucose sirup used is not more than one-third the weight of the solids of the sugar used; or any combination of sugar, dextrose, and corn sirup or glucose sirup in which twice the weight of the solids of the dextrose used added to three times the weight of the solids of the corn sirup or glucose sirup used is not more than the weight of the solids of the sugar used.

(3) The respective densities of packing media in subparagraph (1) (ii) to (iv), of this paragraph, inclusive, as measured on the Brix hydrometer 15 days or more after the figs are canned, are within the range prescribed for each in the following list:

Name of packing medium:	Brix measurement
Light sirup	16° or more but less than 21°.
Heavy sirup	21° or more but less than 26°.
Extra heavy sirup	26° or more but less than 35°.

(d) For the purposes of this section:

(1) The term "sugar" means refined sucrose or invert sugar sirup. The term "invert sugar sirup" means an aqueous solution of inverted or partly inverted, refinded or partly refinded sucrose, the solids of which contain not more than 0.3 percent by weight of ash, and which is colorless, odorless, and flavorless, except for sweetness.

(2) The term "dextrose" means the hydrated or anhydrous, refined monosaccharide obtained from hydrolyzed starch.

(3) The term "corn sirup" means a clarified, concentrated aqueous solution of the products obtained by the incomplete hydrolysis of cornstarch, and includes dried corn sirup. The solids of corn sirup and of dried corn sirup contain not less than 40 percent by weight of reducing sugars calculated as anhydrous dextrose.

(4) The term "glucose sirup" means a clarified, concentrated aqueous solution of the products obtained by the incomplete hydrolysis of any edible starch. The solids of glucose sirup contain not less than 40 percent by weight of reducing sugars calculated as anhydrous dextrose. "Dried glucose sirup" means the product obtained by drying "glucose sirup."

(e) The label shall name the optional fig ingredient used, as specified in paragraph (b) of this section (where combinations of figs and split figs are used, the ingredient present in largest proportion by weight shall be named first), and the name whereby the optional packing medium is designated in paragraph (c) of this section, preceded by "In" or "Packed in." When any of the optional ingredients permitted by one of the following specified subparagraphs of paragraph (a) of this section is used the label shall bear the words set forth, after the number of such subparagraph:

(a) (1) "Spiced" or "Spice added" or "With added spice," or, in lieu of the word "spice," the common name of the spice.

(a) (2) "Flavoring added" or "With added flavoring" or, in lieu of the word "flavoring" the common name of the flavoring.

(a) (3) "Seasoned with vinegar" or "Seasoned with -------- vinegar," the blank being filled in with the name of the vinegar used.

(a) (4) "With added --------," the blank being filled in with the name or names of the citrus segment or segments used.

(a) (5) "Seasoned with salt" or "Salt added."

When the addition of lemon juice (including concentrated lemon juice) or citric acid lowers the pH of the canned figs to less than 4.3, the label shall bear the statement "With added lemon juice" or "With added concentrated lemon juice" (if such is used) or "With added citric acid." When two or more of the optional ingredients specified in paragraph (a) of this section are used, such words may be combined, as for example, "With added spices, orange slices, and lemon juice."

(f) Wherever the name of the food appears on the label so conspicuously as to be easily seen under customary conditions of purchase, the words herein specified, showing the optional ingredients used, shall immediately and conspicuously precede or follow such name without intervening written, printed, or graphic matter, except that the varietal name of the figs may so intervene.

Dated: July 3, 1956.

(b) Prior to the hearing, the Secretary will appoint a hearing board of five or more persons, as provided in the act, and may designate one of the members as chairman. § 74.7 Parties. (a) The parties to a hearing shall include the persons and agencies specified in § 74.4 (c).

(b) The Surgeon General shall have all the rights of a party to the hearing.

(c) Upon application and good cause shown, the Board may permit any interested person or agency to appear before it and be admitted as a party to such extent and upon such terms as the Board shall determine proper.

(d) Any party may appear in person or by counsel.

(e) The failure of any party to file an appearance or appear at the hearing in response to the notice of hearing shall not delay the hearing and the Board may proceed, hear and receive evidence and take other appropriate action affecting such party.

§ 74.8 Prehearing procedures. (a) Upon request made to the Board within fifteen (15) days after the service of the notice of hearing, any party shall be afforded an opportunity for the submission of facts, arguments, or proposals to secure abatement of the pollution where time, the nature of the proceeding, and the public interest permit, and due consideration shall be given the same by the Board. Such submission shall be in writing. The filing of such request shall not operate to delay the hearing.

(b) The Board may, at any time, prior to the conclusion of the hearing, on its own initiative or at the request of any party, call a conference with any or all parties to consider:

§ 74.9 Presentation of evidence by the Surgeon General. The Surgeon General shall arrange for the presentation of evidence concerning the pollution, the person or persons discharging any matter causing or contributing to the pollution and remedial measures, if any, recommended by him.

§ 74.10 Hearing procedure. (a) Each witness shall, before testifying, be sworn or make affirmation.

(b) When necessary, in order to prevent undue prolongation of the hearing, the Board may limit the number of times any witness may testify, the repetitious examination or cross-examination of witnesses or the amount of corroborative or cumulative testimony.

(c) The Board shall exclude irrelevant, immaterial or unduly repetitious evidence.

(d) Every party shall have the right to cross-examination, presentation of evidence, objection, argument and other fundamental rights.

(e) Rulings of the chairman on the receipt of evidence and other questions relating to the procedure of the hearing may be appealed to the Board.

(b) All written statements, charts, tabulations and similar data offered in evidence at the hearing shall be marked for identification and upon a showing satisfactory to the Board of their authenticity, relevancy and materiality shall be received in evidence and shall constitute a part of the record.

(c) Where the testimony of a witness refers to a statute, or a report or document, the Board shall, after satisfying itself of the identification of such statute, report or document, determine whether the same shall be produced at the hearing and physically be made a part of the record or shall be incorporated in the record by reference.

(d) The Board may take official notice of statutes of the United States or of any State and of duly promulgated regulations of any Federal agency.

(e) The Board may take official notice of a material fact not appearing in the evidence in the record, but any party, prior to the conclusion of the hearing, shall be afforded an opportunity to show the contrary.

§ 74.12 Oral and written arguments. (a) Oral argument shall be permitted in the discretion of the Board, and shall be reported as part of the record unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

(b) The Board shall announce at the hearing a reasonable period within which parties and other interested persons may submit (1) written arguments, and (2) proposed findings, conclusions and recommendations for the abatement of the pollution together with supporting reasons therefor. Such material shall be submitted in such number of copies as the Board may direct and shall be based solely upon the evidence presented at the hearing, citing the pages of the transcript of the testimony or of properly identified exhibits where such evidence occurs.

§ 74.13 Final findings and recommendations. (a) After consideration of the whole record, and all proposed findings, conclusions and recommendations, the Board shall make its final findings, conclusions and recommendations, if any, based on the evidence presented at the hearing, and submit the same to the Secretary.

(b) Upon submission of such findings, conclusions and recommendations, the Board shall be terminated and all records pertaining to its functions transferred to the custody of the Surgeon General.

(c) A copy of the findings, conclusions, and recommendations, if any, of the Board shall be served on all parties to the hearing by the Secretary.

provisions, including amendments occurring after the effective date of such agreement.

2. Such agreement (a) shall provide that the head of each agency of the United States shall comply with the requirements of the District of Columbia Income and Franchise Tax Act of 1947, as amended, with respect to employees of such agency who are subject to income taxes imposed by such act and whose regular place of employment is within the District of Columbia, (b) shall specify when the withholding of taxes shall commence, and (c) shall provide for procedures for the withholding, the filing of the returns, and the payment of the tax to the District of Columbia which conform, so far as practicable, to the usual fiscal practices of agencies of the United States.

3. Such agreement shall not apply with respect to compensation for service as a member of the armed forces of the United States, or with respect to compensation of an employee who does not have a place of abode, or does not reside or is not domiciled, within the District of Columbia at the time tax is required to be withheld, and shall not require collection by agencies of the United States of delinquent tax liabilities of federal employees.

4. Nothing in this order, or in the rules or regulations issued thereunder, or in the agreement entered into pursuant thereto, shall be construed as giving consent to the application of any provision of law which has the effect of imposing more burdensome requirements upon the United States than it imposes upon other employers, or which has the effect of subjecting the United States or any of its officers or employees to any penalty or liability.

5. The head of each agency shall designate, or provide for the designation of, the officers or employees whose duty it shall be to withhold taxes, file required returns, and direct payment of such taxes withheld, in accordance with the terms of the agreement entered into between the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

6. As used in this order—

(a) The term "agency" includes each department, commission, authority, administration, board, or other independent establishment of the Government of the United States, including any wholly-owned instrumentality of the United States, and each unit of the legislative branch of the United States, but such term does not include governments of the possessions or units of the judicial branch of the United States.

(b) The term "armed forces of the United States" includes all regular and reserve components of the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, the Marine Corps, and the Coast Guard.

(c) The term "employees" as applied to employees of the United States includes officers and other individuals appointed by a federal officer and engaged in the performance of federal functions in an agency as defined in paragraph (a) above, under authority of an act of Congress or an Executive order, who in the performance of their duties are supervised and directed by a federal officer, but the term does not include retired personnel, pensioners, annuitants, or similar beneficiaries of the Federal Government, whether their status is civilian or in the armed forces of the United States, who are not performing active service, or persons receiving remuneration for services on a contract-fee basis. The term shall include an officer of a corporation, but shall not include any elective officer of the Government of the United States or any officer or employee in the legislative branch of the Government of the United States whose compensation is paid by the Secretary of the Senate or the Clerk of the House of Representatives, or any officer of the executive branch of the Government whose appointment to the office held by him was by the President of the United States and subject to confirmation by the Senate of the United States and whose tenure of office is at the pleasure of the President of the United States, unless such officer of the executive branch is domiciled within the District of Columbia on the last day of the taxable year.
